Tim Barhorst, an information technology consultant in Hyde Park who has been using the technology for a year, said he's been impressed.

"I find it's very convenient," he said, noting that he can set up his computer anywhere there's an electric outlet.

He said the speeds are better than his Zoomtown service and comparable to Road Runner.

Alex Pardo of Cinergy said the Internet traffic travels on a separate band wave from the electric current, so there's no interference.

He said the utility has found no problem with radio wave interference,

when I lived in Reno, NV there was a person who was not very friendly on the radio. He was always getting drunk and once he was full of liquid courage, would swear, throw dead carriers, drive the drivers and us locals crazy. So a cb/ham operator made a device that was real small,,,it was placed in close proximity to his house, within 1/4 mile. When he would key up on ch-19, it would start a audio carrier that was intermittant,,it was like a pulse for 5-7 minutes, he would key up again and once again get this pulsating tone, is the best way to describe it. Needless to say he cleaned up his act, and started to come around. So now I am in willamette valley and have the same problem. the person who made that "toy" has passed on,so now I am looking to get something of the same concept made. Any ideas? JPT.

That's right. Hopefully somebody will find a way to generate and send "BPLI" (BPL Interference) via some kind of a handy device right back up the power line and into the distribution network out on the pole. If they send it down the power line then there must be a way to send it right back up the same, creating standing waves, and fudging their datastream. You hackers out there need to get to work on this.

I'm trying to identify the frequency of a new(ish) French space surveillance radar. It may be in the 100 - 400 MHz range, but that's uncertain.

See http://www.onera.fr/onera-dlr/graves.html for a brief description of the system. The transmitter is located east of Dijon, at 47d 20' 53'' N, 5d 30' 55'' E and was tested in October 1998, when an aircraft warning area was announced: http://www.adminet.com/jo/19981206/EQUA9801422A.html

Does anyone here know if there's European/French frequency allocation information around that might help pin down the frequency of this radar?

Look in the 380 mHz range, but it is not always there, nor in the 100 - 400 mHz range. There is an additonal frequency range being used sporadically.

Bad news for our microwave hams, but not so bad for HF users, if true.

For quite a few years, the phoneline networking standard has been delivering up to 10 Mb/sec by using a residential telephone line (http://www.homepna.org/products) to carry a fraction of the HF spectrum.

1 Mb/sec seems to be easily achievable at HF. It's already been done.

Amateur Radio Newslin(tm) Report 1385 – February 27, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1385 with a release date of Friday, February 27, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

RESTRUCTURING: A COUNTER PROPOSAL TO THE ARRL

Just as we all thought it was quieting down, restructuring of the United States Amateur Radio Service is front and center once again. This, as a small group that opposes the quantity over quality approach takes a massive counter proposal to the FCC. The group is headquarted in Florence, Alabama and Amateur Radio Newsline’s David Black, KB4KCH, is at our South-East Bureau in near-by Birmingham, with more:

Robin Gist, K4VU, listened to the ARRL’s plan to restructure amateur radio and didn't like it.

--

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

Gist and five other hams who make up a group called the Radio Amateur Foundation, drew up their own plans for restructuring ham radio. Their 59-pages of suggestions are now in the hands of the FCC. Gist calls the Foundation's petition a comprehensive plan for progressive and thoughtful restructuring. The group suggests taking the Technician class license, making a few changes, and turning it into amateur radio's entry level license. Gist is not pleased with the League's plans for the Technician license:

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

The group suggests giving Technician class hams restricted HF privileges. And it strongly advocates keeping the code--5-word-per-minute Morse code proficiency would be maintained for General and Extra class licenses. Keeping Code, Gist says, is important to help amateurs provide emergency communications.

Under the foundation's proposal, the Novice and Advanced licenses would no longer exist. Current Novice and Advanced license holders would automatically be upgraded to the next category--a novice would become a Technician and an Advanced class ham would become an Extra.

Another big change comes in amateur radio testing under the Foundation's plans.

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

The Foundation suggests not releasing question pool questions to the public.

--

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

Gist believes hams should have to wait at least 10 days before taking a failed amateur radio license test again.

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

Gist says amateur radio should be quality over quantity. A service of radio operators who have a sense of value and appreciation for amateur radio. That is what Gist says the Foundation's goals are really all about.

From the Southeastern Bureau in Birmingham , Alabama, I'm David Black, KB4KCH, for The Amateur Radio Newsline.

While there are well over a dozen restructuring proposals already before the FCC only one has really gotten any major attention of the ham radio community. That’s the plan offered up by the A-R-R-L and referred to by Gist. As we go to air, no Rule Making designation has been assigned by the FCC to the Foundations regulatory change request. THE BPL FIGHT: WHAT HAMS CAN DO

Meantime, the story that refuses to go away has yet some new twists. Of coarse we are referring to the imminent introduction of Broadband Over Powerline Internet access, and the massive interference that ham radio operators believe it will create. Amateur Radio Newsline’s Mark Abramovicz, NT3V, is here with the latest:

Now that the FCC has released the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking in the Broadband Over Powerlines issue, it's time for amateurs to look it over, digest it and begin composing a well-reasoned letter or e-mail.

So says Jim Haynie W5JBP the American Radio League's president. Here are some things in the filing you might consider.

"Noise levels, potential interference both ingress and egress. Those are things that need to be addressed, " Haynie says. "Public relations: What's going to happen when you get on the air on 20 meters and you knock 10 of your neighbors off line all of sudden? They call the local power company, it's a public relations nightmare."

Haynie says once you decide to write that letter, keep in mind it has to be supported with facts.

"I don't see much water being drawn if somebody writes a letter and says, 'Well, this is good for this and it's good for that and it's going to interfere with my ham radio hobby and stuff.' I never, ever use the word hobby to anybody in the Washington. It's the Amateur Radio Service," Haynie says.

"And what you've got to do is use a little bit more fact, a little bit more of concrete-type evidence that you can conclude on your own. And that's pretty simple to do. It's got to be well-reasoned arguments. It can't be emotional argument."

And, once you've finished the letter or e-mail, Haynie says make a copy or print a copy of what you've prepared.

"Put it in an envelope with your QSL card and send it into your local representative at his district office, not in Washington but his district office," Haynie advises. "I'm just amazed how much power that letter has to your local congressman and your local senator when you mail it to one of his local district offices."

Haynie continues to express disappointment the FCC failed to wait for a report from the National Telecommunications Information Agency. The agency oversees radio spectrum use by government agencies and services, including the military. He says its technicians have been busy at BPL trial sites across the country.

"We know that they've done over 18,000 measurements over the last four months in the various (BPL) test areas," Haynie says. "We have gotten actually photographs of their trucks, we've seen them working hard at it. And that's what surprised me that the commission rolled this out before the information was made available.

"We were told by NTIA that it would be available the first part of this year. Now in government-speak, I don't know what that means. I know we got, the League's got petitions sitting up in the commission now since I took office as president in 2000. It is 2004 and they're still sittting on somebody's desk.

"So, FCC and NTIA, I'm sure, have their own timetables and they're not going to worry about what the ARRL or what some ham radio operators think about it. They're going to do their own work in the own way in their own time."

Haynie hopes the NTIA finishes its work soon and gets its report to the FCC pronto. He says it's clear BPL is targeted for special FCC attention.

"I think they'll put this on the fastest of fast tracks and get something going," Haynie says. "Typically, the window, the comment window will be 45-60 days. I'd be really surprised if they gave it 90 days.

"And, once that's done they start the wheels in motion and they'll (FCC) be under tremendous pressure from industry to get this thing out the door."

Haynie says the amateur radio service has allies in this fight and he's confident they will submit comments or speak to their congressmen or senators. Haynie says he's both cautious and optimistic about the outcome.

"I'm very concerned because I've seen the speed at which this thing has happened," Haynie says. "And I've seen the comments that the commission has made and I've seen the denials that the industry has made.

"And it just doesn't make sense. There's something more behind this. And I know people are going to say it's the almighty dollar. And that's true, it probably is. You're looking at millions and millions and millions of dollars of investment here.

"But there's something that just doesn't smell right, I guess, is what I'm trying to say. So, until I get a better handle and the League - our staff people get a better handle on where this is going and trust me we're on top of it every day - I'm just going to be to on the little plus side of a little cautious."

And finally, Haynie says to those who think the ARRL and other hams are overreacting like Chicken Little who cried out: The sky is falling! The sky is falling! He has these sobering thoughts.

"Just because we want, doesn't mean that we get our way. And I'm concerned about that," Haynie says. "And I'm concerned about another possibility that's probably the horror of all horrors.

"And that is if the (BPL) rollout is so big and you get tens of hundreds of thousands of people on, suddenly amateur radio relegates down to the same level as Part 15. That would be the most horrible thing that could happen to amateur radio."

THE BPL FIGHT: A WIN IN 4X4-LAND

Even though the BPL outlook looks a bit grim here in the United States, there has been a big win over in Israel. Hagal International says that equipment for the networking of computers over the A C power mains being sold in the country was found to be causing interference to High Frequency spectrum users. As a result, Israel’s Ministry of Communications requested an explanation from the distributor of this equipment on how to remedy the problem. The distributor did one better. The company replied that it had discontinued the sales of the interfering devices. (Hagal International)

RADIO HONORS: W. VA GOVERNORS FATHER WA8AYP REMEMBERED

Here in West Virginia, Governor Bob Wise strolled into his reception hall last week to present a check to Kanawha County officials. Little did he know that those officials – and some amateur radio operators – had a very special surprise for him.

The money, fifty thousand dollars, was awarded to the county for the purchase of amateur radio equipment for the metro area’s new emergency operations center, and a new mobile command post.

As he usually does when speaking about amateur radio, Governor Wise began to reminisce about his father. He recalled hearing the sounds of CW from his father’s Hallicrafters receiver wafting into his bedroom at night. He even remembered his father’s amateur callsign, WA8AYP. At that moment, his attention was directed to a nearby FT-847 to receive a message.

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

That’s control operator Bill Hunter, K8BS, telling the governor via amateur radio that his father’s callsign is now the club callsign of the Kanawha

County ARES/RACES group. The announcement was not only a complete surprise, the governor appeared clearly touched. After a moment, he quipped, “Hey, do I get a QSL card for this?” He was quickly presented with a specially designed QSL card. After the ceremony, the governor signed copies of those cards, and posed for pictures with the estimated 75 ham operators in attendance.

The surprise was the brainchild of Kanawha County Commission President Kent Carper, W8CHS, who appears to be one politician who can keep a secret.

Robert Wise, Senior became a silent key in 1986. He was active in emergency communications during the 1960’s and 70’s. (ARNewsline(tm))

RADIO HONORS: FCC NAMED TO RECEIVE NCAI LEADERSHIP AWARD

The FCC has been named by the National Congress of American Indians to be the 2004 recipient of it’s prestigious NCAI Leadership Award. The regulatory agency was selected based on its outstanding leadership and ongoing commitment and support to American Indians and Alaska Natives.

The National Congress of American Indians gives only three of these awards annually. One goes to Congress, one goes to the Administration, and one goes to another deserving entity. This year's recipients are House Natural Resources Committee Chairman Richard Pombo of California, the US Commission on Civil Rights, and the FCC. (FCC)

The Question Pool Committee of the National Conference of Volunteer Examination Coordinators has announced the withdrawal Question G5B11 from the Element 3 General class question pool. The QPC says that the question deleted asked what would be the RMS voltage if you combined two or more sine wave voltages?

According to QPC Chairman Scotty Newstadter, W4WW, the withdrawal refers to question G5B11 in the new, December 1, 2003, released General pool. It is not referring to the same numbered question in the pool that expires at midnight, June 30, 2004. (QPC, W4WW)

ENFORCEMENT: JACK GERRITSEN, EX-KG6IRO IN JAIL

Californian Jack Gerritsen, the ex-KG6IRO, will be spending time in jail, but not for his alleged interference to ham radio repeaters in the Los Angeles area.

On Monday, February 23rd, Federal Court Judge Carolyn Turchin sentenced Gerritsen to 30 days in jail and ordered him to pay a $2500 fine on a tresspassing charge. In passing sentence, judge Turchin explained that she could not place Gerritsen on formal probation as the U-S Attorney asked, because he was going to spend his entire sentence in jail with no time left for probation. The Judge told Gerritsen that he has until May 15th to pay the fine or a lien will be placed on his home in the city of Bell.

Gerritsen’s alleged harassment of area repeaters had brought numerous letters to the court asking that it bar him from operating any sort of radio transmitter. In a statement to the court Judge Turchin noted that she had read many of the notes sent to her by the amateur community but that she would not be able to take them into consideration for this case. This was because the charges were brought because Gerritsen failed to obey a sign in the Courthouse and entered a door to the roof of the building.

Judge Turchin did say that she she would forward all the letters to the Federal Probation Department to be put in Gerritsen’s file. The ex-KG6IRO was then taken into custody by U.S. Marshals and escorted away. (ARNewsline(tm))

WITH THE ARRL: LEAGUE LOOKING FOR COMMENTS ON VHF+ CONTESTING

The ARRL is looking for input from VHF and UHF contesters to help improve the radiosporting events they take part in. According to a posting top the VHF Reflector by New England Division Director Tom Frenaye, K1KI, for the last year or so the League has been studying ways to increase interest and participation in VHF and above contests and awards. Now its ready to go further and it is inviting the ham community to take part. We have more in this report:

Tom Frenaye, K1KI, heads up the ARRL's VHF-UHF Contest and Awards Subcommittee. He says that changes to the contest rules and awards programs should be designed to do three things. First, to encourage more people to work more other people. Second, to bolster the number of QSO’s made over longer distances. And lastly, to encourage more people to just join in and participate.

Because of this, there are now some recommendations coming from those in the ARRL who have studied the situation. These incclude making changes in the QSO points and rover rules. Also under consideration is limiting the June VHF QSO Party to the bands from 50 to 1296 MHz only, expanding the Microwave contest based on 10 GHz Cumulative and dropping the current UHF contest. Added would be new contest categories in January, June and September.

Frenaye notes that these major recommendations, and a number of minor ones, are still just that -- recommendations. He says that the ARRL feels it is now very important to have further input from the VHF and above contest community before proceeding. He asks all contesters interested in these bands to take an in-depth look at the preoposed changes and then to respond. He hopes that a lot of you will.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I’m Norm Seeley, KI7UP, reporting.

You can e-mail your ideas and comments on or before March 7th to vhf-contest-proposal@arrl.org. (K1KI via VHF Reflector)

CW SAVVY: A MORSE CODE SYMBOL FOR THE "AT SIGN"

Computer fanatics who also like operating C-W listen up. Radio Currents Online for February 16th says that the International Morse Code is being updated to include a new character for the "at sign". In December, the International Telecommunications Union voted to create the character which will be known as a commat. The commat is made up of dot-dash for the letter A and dash-dot-dash-dot which we all know is the letter C. The two characters are combined with no space between them giving Morse code web surfers an easy way to send an e-mail address or the location of a webpage. (CGC)

ARRL SM ELECTIONS: THE RESULTS ARE IN

Turning to names in the news, word that Patrick Bunsold, WA6MHZ, has elected as the ARRL San Diego Section Manager in the only contested election this winter. Bunsold received 378 votes and his opponent, Stephen Early, AD6VI, garnered only 258 votes.

Election ballots were counted February 24 at ARRL Headquarters. Bunsold's two-year term of office begins on April 1st. All other Section Managers standing for re-election ran unopposed. (ARRL)

NAMES IN THE NEWS: THE OTHER SIDE OF THE CONTROL ROOM GLASS

And Amateur Radio Newsline President and Producer, Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, is now the author of a new column dealing with ham radio operators working in the broadcasting profession appearing on the famed HalEisner.Com website.

Bill’s calls his commentary “The Other Side of the Control Room Glass.” It tells the stories of famous and no-so-famous people in the broadcast profession who share a common interest in Amateur Radio and the way in which being a ham has affected their careers.

The column began on Sunday, February 22nd with the first of a 4-part tribute to the late Roy Neal, K6DUE. This series will include a retrospective on Neal’s successful effort to put a manned Amateur Radio station into space.

“The Other Side of the Control Room Glass” becomes a monthly feature of the website in April. You can read it on-line at www.haleisner.com

HAMS HELPING HAMS: THE MIKE NEWBOLD, K0YO FUND

A fund to help 6 meter rover operator Mike Newbold, K0YO. It was set up by a group of hams who value Newbold's contributions by putting his life on-the-line to get rare grid squares on the air. And late last year it almost cost him his life. Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, has the rest of the story:

According to a posting on QRZ.com made for Phil Krichbaum, N0KE , Mike Newbold, K0YO, was vacationing in Baja Mexico just before Christmas 2003. He was savagely beaten with a pipe, robbed and left for dead. The same thugs also killed two Canadian surfers who were camping about 100 yards away from Newbold and threw their bodies and those of their dogs over a cliff.

Kirchbaum says that Newbold crawled 3 kilometers on his hands and knees through cactus and over rocks to a road where he had a better chance of being located. Some surfers from Los Angeles found him the next day. They took him to a medical facility and contacted the police. They then transported Newbold back to California for further medical treatment. Newbold then went back to Steamboat Springs, Colorado, where his son took him for additional medical care and then home for a Christmas eve dinner. Kirchbaum says he has since visited Newbold brought him a 2 meter F-M radio donated by Bob Ludtke, K9MWM. Thats where he learned that the value of items lost and stolen in Baja easily exceeds $10,000.

To help defray the cost of replacing Newbold's pick-up truck, camper and ham radio gear that he and Gary Yantis, W0TM have established he Mike Newbold Fund. If anyone would care to make a donation to help get Newbold back on the road to rare grids, please contact W0TM or N0KE. Their respective e-mail addresses are gyantis@midtec.com and pfkski@vail.net.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, in Los Angeles.

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: SUCCESSFUL OHIO ISS CONTACT

Friday, February 20th was a great day for youngsters at Ohio's Glenwood Elementary School. That's when International Space Station Commander Mike Foale, KB5UAC successfully answered questions from a number of students. Better yet, Bill Chalkin, KA8VIT, in nearby South Euclid was listening and recording. Take a listen to a ham radio from space:

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

In all, sixteen students got to question KB5UAC about life on-orbit. According to the AMSAT News Service preliminary reports indicate the space station side of the conversation was heard as far East as Boston and Baltimore. (AMSAT, ARNewsline(tm) with audio from KA8VIT)

INTERNATIONAL - WORLDWIDE: NO RECIPROCAL 5 MHZ OPERATIONS

Turning to international news, a reminder that holders of United Kingdom 5 MHz operating permits are reminded that CEPT international operating rules does not apply to 5 Mhz. The only countries currently allowing 5 MHz operation by individual stations are the United Kingdom and the United States. Only club stations are presently being allowed to use 5 MHz in Finland and operations by stations in Norway and New Zealand are for internal emergency communications purposes only. Stations in Canada may use 5 MHz frequencies at agreed specified times but activity from Germany is not currently permitted. (GB2RS)

ON THE AIR: FIELD DAY 2004 - JUNE 26-27

Turning to operating events, the ARRL Letter says that rules and entry packets for the 2004 running of ARRL Field Day now are available on the League's Website. The ARRL Letter notes that Field Day is always the fourth full weekend of June. This year it's June 26th and 27th with activity beginning at 1800 UTC Saturday and ends at 2100 UTC Sunday.

There are no rules changes from 2003. Participation in Field Day now is open to all amateurs within IARU Region 2. Field Day stations may contact stations in other regions for point credit, but stations outside Region 2 are not eligible to submit entries for this event.

RADIOSPORTS: HES OFF AND WALKING

He’s on the road again. We are talking about Tony Whitaker, G3RKL, who is off on his latest trek. Amateur Radio Newslie’s Jim Meachen, ZL2BHF, has the details:

His short walk has begun!:

--

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

That’s the voice of Tony Whitaker, G3RKL, as he begins his pre-announced trek from Invercargill to Blenheim. What’s amazing is that recording comes to you from the other side of the world. From the United Kingdom, where it was recorded by Ian Abel, G3ZHI, in Yorkshire England. How? Through the magic of Internet linked repeaters that will allow the world of Amateur Radio to follow Tony’s almost every step of the way:

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

During his stroll Whitaker will be on the air using the special callsign ZL6SHS. And -- you will literally find him operating everywhere including HF, VHF and UHF. And when access to an IRLP or Echolink equipped repeater is available, he just might pop up in your back yard, eager to say hello.

So, keep an ear open for Tony Whitaker, G3RKL, as ZL6SHS as he jauntily saunters the length of New Zealands South Island. He might be coming to an Internet linked repeater in your hometown and right to your H T.

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org on the MP3 audio file of this newscast.

--

With thanks to Ian Abel, G3ZHI, for the audio of Tony’s first few minutes on the road, I’m Jim Meachen, ZL2BHF, reporting from Auckland, New Zealand for the Amateur Radio Newsline.

With access to Echolink and IRLP now quite common you can expect to hear more from G3RKL here on Newsline in the coming weeks. (ARNewsline(tm) with audio supplied by G3ZHI)

If you are in need of a logger try the N1MM Contest Logger. In my opinion this is rapidly turning into the finest logger available, and is TRUE FREEWARE!!

It can mate with just about any rig available today, ties up with packet clusters on the web, does digital voice keying, mates with MMTTY for teletype and supports just about every contest in the world for scoring and exchanges.

It is a remarkable piece of software that is being constantly updated to support new contests, and has a superb helpfile.

You can find it at: http:\\www.n1mm.com

Hi Allen,

Regarding the radar, did you try posting to a newsgroup that has anything to do with your subject question? I mean, is this surveillance radar an amateur radio issue in any sense?

I couldn't find any modems or other devices in that site which involve Internet access or even WAN netorking via the power utilities' existing infrastuctures. Or they went over my head. Kindly clarify if you will.

Where? By what means?

The way I understand the matter real-world commercial tests of BPL have demonstrated (so far) that, for all practical purposes, Internet access via BPL is delivering only around half the speed common DSL does for a bunch more dollars per month for a connection.

The $29.95/month cost is just another bait & switch scam, the cost goes up to around $50/month after a few months for half the speed of DSL for $30-40/month.

There are a number of approaches for using the microwave bands to provide Internet access under discussion and development. Commonly referred to as "802 dot something" (take yer pick and buy their stock).

But those are not BPL which is defined as Internet access over the elecrtic utilities' power lines which operate in the 2-80 Mhz portion of the radio spectrum. I've personally tuned the HF spectrum in a BPL pilot area and no, it's not just "so bad" it's bad enough to kill HF ham radio anywhere the crap is deployed.

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: HELP FROM DOWN-UNDER IN REVIVING AO-40

The AMSAT Oscar 40 ham radio satellite is still missing in action, but more international help in bringing it back to life is coming almost every day. The latest is from down-under as Brett Dawson, VK2CBD and the team of Australia's Parkes Observatory lend their support to AMSAT Germany in the recovery effort. Q-News Trevor

Teague, VK4BAT, reports:

A 4 MHz wide spectrum with centre frequency of 1097 MHz was scanned with high level technique in order to find the LO frequency of the AO-40 L1 receiver. The fact that nothing was heard of the L1 receiver's LO does not lead to the conclusion that AO-40 is completely dead. The receivers of Parkes are not really fitted for frequencies below 1.25 GHz, and naturally one does not know how good the L1 receiver's LO is shielded or how much of the signal would go through the antenna to the outside world.

As previously reported, the main battery pack that powers AO 40 is believed to have short circuited keeping the auxiliary battery from powering the bird. As this newscast goes to air the rescue effort continuing. (Q-News)

ENFORCEMENT: FCC SEEKING INFORMATION ON ALLEGED FELON HAMS

Back here in the United States, our FCC wants to know if several people on a list it has are felons convicted of an array of very serious crimes. The agency's Daryl Duckworth, N-N-Zero-W, explains:

Duckworth: Seven inquiry letters were sent to individuals thought to be licensees who are incarcerated on felony convictions listed on sex offender registration lists or (who) recently served prison sentences for felony convictions. In these cases, the names match our license records and preliminary information is that the subject is the same person listed in our database.

These inquiries seek first to establish whether that is the case, and, second, to determine what affect the offense has on the qualifications to retain a Commission license.

This has been Daryl Duckworth, NN0W, reporting.

The FCC did not provide names but it did give conviction information and the locations and offenses. The list includes hams believed to have been convicted of offenses ranging from sexual abuse to child molestation and even murder. (FCC, RAIN)

RADIO LAW: JUDGE ORDERS TECHNICAL TESTIMONY IN ALLEGED JAMMING CASE

A Wisconsin federal judge has refused to close the courtroom for testimony by employees of Motorola during the trial of a defendant who allegedly tried to jam police and fire communications. on several occasions last year. In denying Motorola's motion, Judge John Shabaz said on February 27th that the right of Rajib Mitra to a fair trial outweighs Motorola's right to protect its trade secrets.

According to the Madison Capital Times, attorneys for Motorola had argued national and local security concerns as reasons that it did not want public disclosure on how its radio equipment was allegedly jammed by Mitra. The government planed to call five Motorola employees to explain how its Smartnet II radio equipment can be disrupted. Motorola claimed this not only exposed its trade secrets but also placed at risk the lives of law enforcement officers that depend on the proper functioning of their radio communications systems.

But assistant U.S. Attorney Tim O'Shea opposed Motorola's motion, as did Mitra's attorney. Christopher Van Wagner argued that removing the public during his client's testimony would prejudice the defendant. Judge Shabaz agreed with the prosecution and defense. He overruled the Motorola request and ordered the employees to testify noting that no one in the public is coming to his court to find the formula to jam radio frequencies. He noted that this kind of technical testimony can be removed from trial transcripts when they are produced.

Mitra's trial was to began on Monday, March 1st. He faces two charges of using a computer to interfere with police communications. If convicted on both counts he faces up to 20 years in prison. (Capital Times)

RESCUE RADIO: EMERGENCY COMM GENERATOR STOLEN

I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, with a late breaking story. Dateline San Antonio, Texas where, last Saturday night, February 29th, the San Antonio Radio Club had one of its trailer and generator systems stolen.

Paul Guido, N5IUT, reports over the Public Relations remailer that it was a 12.5 Kilowatt Onan unit. The club's biggest and best generator.

A police report has been filed that includes some very good pictures of the trailer with the generator on it. If you have any information on its where-abouts, please contact Paul by e-mail to Pguido2003a@broadwaybank.com or call the San Antonio police.

The San Antonio Radio Club has been a Bexar County, Texas, emergency communication resource since way back in 1919. (N5IUT)

THE BPL FIGHT: THE 11 METER CB ANGLE

Over the past several months we have been hearing about the potential interference to Amateur Radio that's expected if the FCC proceeds with the rollout of Broadband over Powerline Internet access. But ham radio is not the only service in the 2 through 80 MHz spectrum where B-P-L will operate. Shortwave broadcasters are concerned that their audiences will disappear if they cannot be heard over B-P-L generated noise. Also, a number of emergency communications networks have told the FCC that their vital communications will negatively impacted as well.

The one service that nobody has talked about is 11 meter Class D CB radio. An unlicensed service at 27 MHz with millions of radios crammed into 40 overcrowded channels with many operators running far more power than legally allowed. This week, Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, looks at CB, B-P-L and the collision between the two that may not be to far away.

If those who want to bring us Broadband Over Powerline thought amateur radio operators were going to be a nuisance to their plans, they may have an even bigger headache on the horizon. Citizens Band radio operators could prove to be the biggest threat to B-P-L.

The FCC defines CB as a private radio service that doesn't require users to have a license. It hasn't for years. The FCC pretty much gave up regulating the spectrum. It asks users to enjoy their radios but to stay within the five-watt power limit of most of the radios.

But since the FCC gave up trying to keep track of those operating on 27 Mhz, problems have mushroomed. A class of CB operator has emerged who likes to use high-power amplifiers to talk with people several states away.

How powerful? If you check out some of the CB websites, you'll find amplifiers being sold that push the envelope well beyond the legal limit - say 500 watts, 1,000 watts, even 5,000 watts and higher.

Many contemporary electronic appliances, because of poor RF shielding, are susceptible to interference caused by overmodulated CB signals.

The FCC could find itself in a real quandry if the B-P-L industry demands help in going after those who push the limit and disrupt their systems. Imagine the complaints.

Because the FCC can't go to a database to help it find abusers or offenders, it's going to be a difficult if not impossible - task to track these illegal operators.

Will the industry end up funding the FCC's enforcement effort? That would be unprecedented.

Let's be clear: Not all CB operators are outlaws.

Many use their 11 meter radios for personal communications on trips, on hikes, on fishing expeditions. And, yes, the truckers are still big users of the spectrum.

But if you search the worldwide web, you will find CB sites with postings from folks who boast of their radio exploits and their amplifiers and contests.

The websites, of course, take no responsibility for the information or material posted in forums or message boards. They describe them as strictly for entertainment or educational purposes.

Some education the B-P-L industry is sure to get; perhaps a crash or will that be clash course in CB radio.

For now, we'll have to watch and wait.

CBers say they're watching, too. And some of them are vowing no one will stop them from operating as they please.

Stay tuned. For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia

THE BPL FIGHT: CINCINNATI WATCH OUT

Meantime, Cincinnati Ohio may be among the first to have Broadband over Powerlines across the entire area. This, as a division of Cinergy Corporation announces plans to offer high-speed Internet service over its power lines.

According a March 2nd release, Cinergy Broadband is pairing with the Maryland based Current Communications Group to offer the service in parts of Cincinnati this year. Plans also call for an expansion into Kentucky and Indiana as the regional system grows.

Cinergy says that it hopes to initially market the service to 55,000 of its 1.5 million customers. A second venture will bring the technology to smaller municipal and cooperatively owned power companies, covering 24 million customers across the United States. The companies are committing more than $70 million to the effort. (ZD Net via Media Network)

ENFORCEMENT: CONGRESSIONAL SUBCOMMITTEE RECOMMENDS HIGHER FINES FOR INDECENCY

A congressional subcommittee has acted to substantially increase the fines assessed broadcasters who break indecency rules. Some legislators also say that repeat offenders should lose their licenses.

FCC officials have maintained for years that the current maximum fine of $27,500 is too small to serve as a deterrent for large broadcasters who view the fines as a cost of doing business. Now, under a bill recently passed by the House Internet and Telecommunications subcommittee, monetary forfeitures issued by the FCC would be increased by a factor of ten to $275,000 per violation. The cap on the fines would go to a maximum of $3 million.

There is yet another possibility being floated among legislators and one that could come up when and if the bill hits the House floor. That would be to hold performers and others appearing in the electronic media directly responsible for their own words, much the same way as is done in other radio services including ham radio.

But one law maker has cautioned to enlarge the scope of the proposed legislation to far. Representative Fred Upton cautioned that lawmakers should be careful not to expand the bill to the point where it might run afoul of free-speech rights guaranteed by the Constitution. If that happens, Upton says that it could very well buckle under its own weight. (Published news reports)

RADIO LAW: FCC SAYS IT TIME FOR LOW POWER BROADCAST RADIO

The FCC says that Congress should lift the restrictions it has placed on the introduction of low power FM broadcast stations. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, is here with the rest of the story:

In a February 20th statement, the FCC said that its inquiry shows that low power FM stations serving highly specific audiences in small areas do not interfere with the operations of large broadcasters. Also, that they will not keep audiences from hearing the higher power commercial stations as the industry claims.

When the FCC first suggested creating the low power or community radio option. commercial broadcasters and public radio stations complained. The argued that low power stations would interfere with reception of their signals Congress responded by setting what amounted to an R-F no-man's land between the low power stations and existing broadcasters. This severely limited the number of tiny stations that the Commission could license.

Lawmakers also told the FCC to study the potential for interference. The agency spent several years doing just that. It has now concluded that stations running between 10 and 100 watts pose little risk to commercial stations whose power levels can be upward of 100,000 watts effective radiated.

Currently, there are about 300 low powered F-M stations on the air. Most are licensed to churches, school districts, youth organizations, highway departments, environmentalists and the like. By comparison, the nation's largest commercial broadcast radio chain, Clear Channel Communications owns 1,200 stations so far.

ON THE AIR: WYOMING STATION DX TEST MARCH 14

Meantime, a full power radio station is in the news and its a good news for hams and S-W-L's who like listening for rare ones on the A-M band. On Sunday, March 14th, radio station KEVA, 1240 kilohertz in Evanston, Wyoming will conduct a D-X test to find out how far its signal can be heard.

According to Lynn Holman reporting over the Broadcast Employees remailer, the test will take place from 12:00 - 1 a.m. Mountain Standard Time and will consist of numerous Morse code I-D's emanating from a C-D created by Doug Smith, W9WI.

For a conformation card please send your reception reports with return postage to Michael Richard, KEVA-AM, P.O. Box 190, Evanston, Wyoming. The zipcode is 82931. (B.E.A.N.)

CHANGING OF THE GUARD: BAND LEADER ALVINO REY, W6UK - S.K.

Ham radio's changing of the guard continues. This with the sad news that Alvino Rey, W-6-U-K, has passed away.

Ray was 95 when he became a Silent Key from pneumonia in Sandy, Utah on Tuesday, February 24th. Best known as a swing-band leader of the '30s and '40s he was also an inventor and tinkerer who pioneered development of the pedal steel guitar. This instrument, and his ability to make it sound like it was talking became his musical trademark.

Born Alvin McBurney, in California he grew up in Cleveland Ohio. After beginning his music career in New York he changed his name to Rey in 1929 to capitalize on the then popular Latin music craze.

Rey and his orchestra gained national fame with the 1942 hit, "Deep in the Heart of Texas." Nearly 25 years later, Rey was again in the national spotlight when he was featured for several seasons on ABC Television's "The King Family Show."

Ham radio wise, Ray loved to operate all modes, and, according to posts on the V-H-F reflector, was particularly fond of 6 meters. He was also active on all of the the high frequency bands over his many years in the hobby. (K6LAE, published news reports)

THAT FINAL ITEM: THE ORIGIN OF ELECTRONIC SPAM

And finally this week, a brief lesson on something we dread every time we check our e-mail. You know what it is. Unwanted junk e-mail that people have come to call Spam. Ever wonder why? Here's Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, with some details that probably very few people know:

We all know that Spam is the trade name of a canned meat product. At least I suspect that most of you do. But have you ever wondered where the phrase "spam" in relation to unsolicited junk e-mail came from. Well, blame it on the computer nerds who were fans of one of the worlds greatest comedy ensembles.

It seems that the term began being applied to junk electronic mail in the early 1990's by computer geeks. It was based on a 1970 Monty Python skit in which an exasperated restaurant customer is urged to order the meat until she screams: ''Stop it already. I don't want any Spam!''

And that was it. And now you do know the rest of the story.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline. I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, in the City of Angels.

Personally, I'm looking forward to the day when I program my electronic keyer into a CQ loop, fire up the amp and leave on a vacation. Of course, the next logical step is the FCC protecting the BPL by placing amateur radio in part 15.

There will be so much capital investment by companies in BPL that the courts won't dare to overturn the decision!!!! The FCC will cave to the $$$ interest, if they have not already done so.

The answer may be to establish local HF nets, need to be local to keep S/N ratios high, and get on the air during peak internet times and simply shut down the BPL service at the consumer level. Let the consumers complain about poor service. Then provide the defense of non-licensed Part 15 devices etc.

Running 1 KW as the minimum power necessary to communicate across town on 75 phone will certainly have an impact on local BPL users!!!

1253. Why do hams always stand in the way of progress?

In the 80s, it was their steadfast opposition to creation of a codeless amateur license class.

In the 90s, it was Low Earth Orbiting Satellites (LEOs.)

Today, it is Broadband via Power Lines (BPL.)

In earlier times, hams were known for being on the cutting edge of technology. But in recent years, hams are known for repeatedly trying to stand in the way of new technology.

Sad irony, isn't it?

You can 'progress' in one of two directions. Forwards or Backwards.

They have. Mikey Powell was just in Raleigh (where I am) talking to the public, and the paper quoted him on the BPL issue among others. I don't have the exact quote but he basically said, "We'll try not to harm hobbyists, but BPL has too much potential (*) to let it be stopped."

(*) "Potential" = "people are going to get RICH on this."

None of these constitute cutting edge technology. But as a troll you already know that.

Codeless license - no technology involved whatsoever. This is merely a question of what licensing standards to apply.

LEOs - no new technology and hams lost frequencies. Even though the LEOs proved impractical and were not extensively used as predicted, hams never got those frequencies back.

BPL - no new technology here either and hams stand to suffer a great deal of interference if implemented. There are many technologies that are newer and will result in better internet access than BPL so why suffer the problems of BPL, which in the end won't be that practical for the users of BPL either.

Amusing! Here is another way to deal with BPL - specifically anyone who sells it or advocates deployment of the same in a residential area:

Ok, your in Philadelphia, PA, US. Are you sure that you want to advertise this to eliminate BPL interference?

Now thats a good idea. Kinda like retro radio. From what I heard, during the days of King Spark, it took KW levels to be heard in the next town. Lets go for it.

We can send traffic to each part of the country via the National Traffic System...them set up short and long range relay stations. Dang...just like it was in the beginning. I like it.

Its because the licensing standards were reduced to the lowest common denoninator. Sorta like the school system...

LOL - that would do it. But even 100 or 200 watts would be enough to muck up BPL if there were enough of you in the city.

Exactly. Just because someone tags a technology as "progressive" doesn't make it so. BPL is not clever; it is a horrible, insecure kludge that will ultimately disappoint consumers, radio services, everyone except the people who sell the system while it's hot. Look for them to fatten up and bail eventually.

I'm not optimistic because the opposition involves non-fungible -errrr- intangible things like science and facts. Today, facts are no match for policy imperatives. If the government refuses to acknowledge facts in scientific research, in foreign policy, hell in its own CIA, what makes one think they will be more reflective about little ol' Bee Pee Ell?

You'd be more effective playing a dance club remix of the Porkbutt Song on your local repeater than to go against the grain here.

We aren't necessarily against progress per se. Progress, when engineered correctly is just fine with us.

BPL is a bad idea - sending signals over unshielded medium is just plain stupid as those lines will radiate like crazy.

Actually, he'd do better finding a proper buy and sell newsgroup, such as rec.radio.swap. They may have made the mistake when creating rec.radio.amateur.boatanchors to allow for ads, but the intent was that they be part of an ongoing discussion, not to use the newsgroup as a buy and sell one. Someone who is just trying to sell off stuff, as we routinely see in boatanchors and equipment (and that one was never for ads), clearly do not belong there.

He's actually already posted the same ad to homebrew, equipment and rec.antiques.radio+phono separately.

He might also post in the local buy and sell newsgroup. I don't know if he's in Montreal or not, but if he is, mtl.vendre-forsale would be the place.

Oddly, I just responded there yesterday to someone looking for some electronic related items, and pointed out some upcoming hamfests i the Montreal area. There's actually one today, though I know nothing about it beyond that. There's one in Laval in two weeks, and the Montreal Amateur Radio Club is having their annual fleamarket on April 17th.
The advantage of the hamfest is that one doesn't have to package and ship the items.

So there is ample opportunity to sell stuff without posting to newsgroups where ads don't belong.

Even if he's in Ottawa, which seems to be the case from where else he is posting, they have hamfests there too.

Yes it will, and that's when Congress and G.W.Bush will cough up the "Internet Counter-Terrorism Bill of 2006" that will limit all HF amateur radio operators to 5 watts PEP output to prevent this kind of "cyberterrorism".

After all, they will argue, the QRP people showed that amateur operators can work the world at that power level.
Anything higher than that should be viewed as really too dangerous to be left in "civilian" hands. (They will nudge the Democrats across the aisle and say "You know, just like handguns", and it will be a slam-dunk).

Don't underestimate the political power of a 500-million-dollar capital investment.

With the amount of interference and noise BPL will make, we will likely not be in violation of using excessive power "to carry on the desired communications". And we are federally licensed, so that would preempt any local rules and also trump part 15.

Jim,

You make a good point. It's happened before where amateurs lost spectrum. Remember the UPS fiasco where they snagged a chunk of the 220 band?

And of course there was the LEO debacle.

We really need to fight this and make them do the right thing. And it's a bit like un-ringing the bell. There are a whole lot of transceivers out there that put out anywhere from 50W to 200W right out of the box.
And a whole lot more amps that kick up to the 1.5KW range. Granted, the FCC knows who and where every ham in the U.S. happens to be, but they don't know exactly what gear you've got do they? I mean I'm an extra without an HF rig right now.

And when you think about it, a properly placed 5W transmitter will do stuttering wonders for BPL.

BPL needs to be killed and pronto.

I think that's already an FCC requirement Steve. Somewhere somebody recently mentioned that warnings like that are required to be printed in the instruction sheets which come with Part 15 wireless devices.
'Course the last thing anybody does when plugging widgets in and firing 'em up is read the instructions.

You mean, by running high power and interfering with the BPL access? Never happen. When Suburban Dad can't get his sports and Mom can't get AOL and Junior can't download Korean porn, all because of one 80-year-old down the street with a hobby that 98% of Americans don't even understand, they'll pull the rug out from under ham radio faster than you can say "broadband." If there were 50 million active hams and we were well organized, we might have a chance.

IIRC, that website has been around a _long_ time, and its URL is quite

That's because the part of your brain that should be concerned about this issue has been erased by tightly focused selective amnesia brain beams, and the previous thoughts replaced by what They think you should think. Happens to the best of us. It just happened to me, right now.
I've completely forgotten what I should warn you about.

I think it had something to with top-posting being righteous and just.

1281. Using Existing Law Against BPL

Forgive me if this has been mentioned before-
I haven't read this group for years.
Concerning fighting BPL, which the power industry is ramming at us using Part 15, why can't we use Part 15 to clobber them?

The FCC has a history of listening when you quote their own laws to them. Here is a good one:

TITLE 47--TELECOMMUNICATION

CHAPTER I--FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

PART 15--RADIO FREQUENCY DEVICES--Table of Contents

Subpart A--General

Sec. 15.5 General conditions of operation.

(a) Persons operating intentional or unintentional radiators shall not be deemed to have any vested or recognizable right to continued use of any given frequency by virtue of prior registration or certification of equipment, or, for power line carrier systems, on the basis of prior notification of use pursuant to Sec. 90.63(g) of this chapter.
(b) Operation of an intentional, unintentional, or incidental radiator is subject to the conditions that no harmful interference is caused and that interference must be accepted that may be caused by the operation of an authorized radio station, by another intentional or unintentional radiator, by industrial, scientific and medical (ISM) equipment, or by an incidental radiator.
(c) The operator of a radio frequency device shall be required to cease operating the device upon notification by a Commission representative that the device is causing harmful interference.
Operation shall not resume until the condition causing the harmful interference has been corrected.

We are federally licensed stations. If their "Part 15"
"incidental radiators" interfere with our stations, the law REQUIRES the power companies to cease their operations until the interferance is fixed.

Why can't we take this angle to clobber these guys?

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

3B8, MAURITIUS. Jun, OE1ZKC/JH4RHF, will be on the air from 3B8-land on his way to/back from the 3B9C DXpedition, March 14-16th and April 1-3th. His callsign will be decided upon arrival. He will operate from 3B8CF's shack. Jun will probably be on 40-10 meters, SSB, CW, RTTY and SSTV on request. QSL via OE1ZKC.

3B9C UPDATE. Project Star Reach (3B9C) has released "Bulletin No.4" this past week and it can be found on their Web page. Excerpts from the bulletin state "Remember, 3B9C is expected to hit the bands around midnight local (2000 GMT) on Friday 19th March, so not long to go now. The container of equipment has arrived on the island, and a final planning meeting has been held in the UK, attended by 17 of the team members. We are also delighted to announce that Robert, 3B9FR, will join the team as a full member, taking time off work to be a part of 3B9C (he runs the island's radio station). This will probably be the last bulletin before we head out to 3B9, but we will continue to post bulletins from the island, both on our Web page and to the major newsletters." A QSL route has been annouced. The bulletin states, "Arrangements are now in place for QSLing. This is a non-trivial task, with possibly in excess of 100,000 QSL requests to be handled in due course. The QSLing task will therefore be shared by a team of volunteers, centrally co-ordinated through StarQSL, a piece of software developed especially by John, G3WGV, for the purpose. Among other things, StarQSL allows bureau and Web requests to be handled (checked, validated) by any volunteer with Internet access, but with an option for QSL labels to be printed at a central point for handing in to the bureau. Direct cards should be sent to FSDXA, PO Box 73, Church Stretton, SY6 6WF, UK. Bureau cards go via the RSGB bureau. There is also a form on the Web page for requesting bureau cards." Another topic in the bulletin deals with an upcoming 3B9C video (with a D68C video added free to the purchase), as well as the status of AO-40, EME, 6m and RTTY contacts, plus a few words on their contest efforts and trophies. For complete details, go to the Web page at: http://www.fsdxa.com/3b9c/bulletin-4.html

5V7, TOGO. The 5V7C team is now active as of late Friday. Activity should last until March 13th. The complete list of pilot stations were announced this past week. They are: Bruno/F5AGB (for the Europe and French speaking countries), Floyd/N5FG (NA - SA and Central), Mike/UA0MF (AS), Toshi/JA1ELY (JA) and Lee/ZL2AL (VK). QSL via F5TVG: Franck Savoldi, P.O. Box 92, 94223 Charenton Cedex, France. For more information, visit their Web page at: http://5v7c.free.fr/defaulteng.htm
Don't forget to read the band and mode plans and the forecast propagation at: http://5v7c.free.fr/Infopropag.htm

9Q, DEM. REP. OF CONGO. After a few problems in the start, Gus, SM5DIC, is now active as 9Q0AR until about March 20th. He was heard this past week on 20/17/15/10 meters. Modes vary from CW, SSB, RTTY and PSK31. Gus's QSL Manager Leif, SM5BFJ, told OPDX this week that Gus is active from the Radio Club in Kinshasa. Leif would also like OPDX to remind everyone when sending a QSL request to him, please include 2 USD or 1 IRC (this is because of the high Swedish postage cost) for the return postage.

A5, BHUTAN (Also 9N). Jim Wise, W4PRO, leaves for Bhutan on March 19th. He will be on the air around March 22nd or 23rd as A52PRO. Jim will operate until April 3rd from Thimphu, Bhutan, and then will travel to Tibet where he will not operate. However, he will be in Khatmandu, Nepal, from April 10-13th where he has asked for the 9N7PRO callsign.

BOOK REVIEW (by Tedd, KB8NW): Reading "THE COMPLETE DX'ER" (3rd Edition), I would have to say that this is the "Complete Package" for a new DXer, as well as for an older DXer (to polish up their DXing skills). Author Bob Locher, W9KNI, has put together a text book diary (an Elmer in a book) on how to achieve good DXing skills and what is needed to work DX. Individuals who bought Bob's 1st and 2nd Editions (published 1983 and 1989) may want to add this updated 3rd Edition. Bob was inspired to come out with a 3rd Edition due to the major changes in DXing (InterNet, PacketCluster, etc..), and his new found interest in QRP operations (after building an Elecraft K2 QRP transceiver). The book deals with "How to Listen" (going through the bands or listening to pile-ups), "What is Needed" (or not needed -- the bare essentials), QSLing, and "What Equipment and Accessories are Needed" to get the job done. These are just a few items in the book. Early in the book, Bob brings out the importance of good listening skills. Probably a skill many newer DXers do not have or older DXers lost with the age of the DXClusters. This 223 page book is worth reading and have in a DXer's library. The book lists for 19.95 USD (plus shipping). For more reviews and details on purchasing the book, go to the Web page at: http://idiompress.com/books-complete-dxer.html

C56, THE GAMBIA (Update to OPDX.658). Jan, PA9JJ, will be active as C56JJ from Banjul, March 29th to April 5th. Remember that most of his activity will be on 80/40 meters and the WARC bands SSB. However, he may be on some other bands and do some CW. There will be an online log after his return on his home page at: http://www.qsl.net/pa9jj

CT HISTORICAL COLLECTION (Help Needed). Carlos Nora, CT1END, reports that he is involved in an organization in Portugal which is devoted to documenting and preserving the history of Amateur Radio in Portugal from the early days to the present. If you have Portuguese QSL cards prior to 1960, Portuguese QSL cards from DXpeditions or Portugueses DX Magazines and other special events, they would appreciate receiving them as a donation to their collection, or as an alternative, send a digital image of QSL card. The Web page of the "Historical Archive of the Portuguese Amateur Radio" can be viewed at: http://ahrap.sytes.net
If you can help them, please respond by E-mail (ahrap@cbnora.no-ip.com) or by mail to the address at:
Carlos Nora, CT1END, Praceta D. M=E9cia N=BA 15 - 2=BADto., Massama Norte, 2605-247 Belas, Portugal

D2, ANGOLA. Rod, EA7JX, informs OPDX that Joao/CT1BFL and Durval/CU3BW will be working in Luanda, capital city of Angola, during the next 6 month and be active as D2U and D2DB, respectively. They are now using a G5RV, but by the end of this month or the next April, they will have a tribander on the air. CT1BFL will operate on all modes, including PSK, RTTY and SSTV. CU3BW will operate on all modes, but not CW. QSL is via EA7JX: Rodrigo Herrera, P.O. Box. 47, 41310, Brenes, Sevilla, Spain.
ADDED NOTE: QSL Manager EA7JX is also manager for LW9EOC (L59EOC), LU5FF

(LQ0F, L45FF, AY5FF, L24FF, L73F), YV1DIG (YW1D, YX1DIG), CO3JO, YN9HAU, VK3FY/DU8, VK3FY and YW6P.

DAYTON CONTEST DINNER. The North Coast Contesters are pleased to announce: The 12th Annual Dayton Contest Dinner. Tickets are on sale as of Thursday morning, March 4th. Master of Ceremonies is Tim Duffy, K3LR. The 2004 Contest Hall of Fame Inductions will be formally announced by the CQ WorldWide Contest Director and CQ Contest Hall of Fame member, Bob Cox, K3EST. As part of the dinner program, they will honor recent silent key and contester ambassador, James White, K4OJ. The dinner will be held on Saturday night, May 15th, at 6:30 PM: Cash bar opens at 5:30 PM. The dinner will be held at the Crowne Plaza Hotel (Official Contest Hotel) 5th and Jefferson Streets (Next to the Convention Center) Dayton (Downtown), Ohio in the VAN CLEVE BALLROOM. Menu: Prime Rib of Beef, Potato, vegetables, rolls, chocolate fudge cake, choice of beverage, coffee, tea or iced tea. Vegetarian menu is available by request at the dinner. Price is 33.00 USD per person. (They try to have the price as low as possible, so we are sorry for the price increase this year!) SEATING IS LIMITED TO 300, SO ORDER YOUR TICKETS EARLY. Seating is random and is not reserved. Tables are set in rounds of 8. All dinner ticket orders are handled exclusively by Craig Clark, K1QX at: Radioware and Radio Bookstore, PO Box 209, Rindge, NH 03461 (http://www.radio-ware.com) You can place your order by calling:

or by FAX 1-603-899-6826 24 hours
You can also EMAIL your orders to: jcclark@prexar.com
Visa, Mastercard, American Express. Sorry no COD orders.
E-MAILs must include charge card + number, callsign and return address information. Tickets will be sent via First Class US Mail no later than May 7, 2004. Please allow plenty of time for your tickets to arrive before you leave for Dayton. Radioware and Radio Bookstore is not responsible for tickets lost in the mail.  Special thanks to Craig Clark, K1QX and Radioware - Radio Bookstore for once again handling the tickets ***
Deadline for ticket orders is May 6, 2004. -- NO EXCEPTIONS --
There will be no tickets at the door. Many contest operators from around the world attend this event. If you enjoy radio contesting, you do not want to miss this dinner. They expect a quick sell out. Order your tickets early!

GH0, JERSEY. Ron/G4DIY (GP0STH), and Lee/G0DBE will be active from here, March 15-20th, as GH0STH. Their bands and modes of activity were not provided. QSL via G4DIY.

GITMO WEB SITE. Chuck Harding, N8CH, informs OPDX that he has been asked to put up a Web page for the Guantanamo Bay Amateur Radio Club. Bill, W4WV, has donated his Web site which he doesn't use. More data is being compiled by the guys on GITMO. The site is available at:
http://members.visi.net/~verb

HK0, SAN ANDRES AND PROVIDENCIA. Gerd, DL7VOG, will make his third trip to San Andres & Providencia. The reason for going this time is for his 25th wedding anniversary. He expects to spend most of his time on Providencia Island (which he says "is a tranquil place, far away from mass tourism") at the hotel "Deep Blue". He is scheduled to be in Bogota, March 13th, then stay on Isla Palma (SA-078) from March 14-17th. He will operate as HK0GU/1 from Isla Palma, Colombia. Then look for him to be active as HK0GU from Providencia (NA-049) starting March 19th; he will depart April 5th. During his stay he will be active in the BARTG Spring RTTY Contest and the EA-RTTY Contest. Look for updates to be posted on a regular basis at: http://www.qsl.net/hk0gu QSL via his home callsign, direct or by the bureau. LAST MINUTE UPDATE: Rys, SP5EWY, heard from Gerd that he will "try" to be active as much as possible on 160m. However, he will be running barefoot (100w) and does not think it will be easy.

HS, THAILAND. Champ, E21EIC (XW1IC, 9M2/E21EIC), informs OPDX that the PTD has renewed the 80/160m license in Thailand for all HS hams during the contest ONLY. The license will be expire on December 31, 2004.
Their frequency table is: 160m - 1800-1825 kHz 80m - 3500-3505 kHz and 3524-3536 kHz
Champ also mentioned that Chai, HS1NGR, will be active on 3536 kHz (SSB only) and QSX 3795 kHz every weekend around 1700-2000z. QSL via CBA.

IOTA NEWS.....
AF-014. Look for Rosel/DL3KWR and Hardy/DL3KWF to sign CT3/homecall now through March 18th from Ilha da Madeira (DIP MA-001). Their activity will be mainly CW on the WARC bands (generally during their late afternoon and evening hours). QSL via their home callsigns. E-mail requests for bureau cards are welcome at: dl3kwr@darc.de dl3kwf@darc.de

AS-155. Operators BV8BC, BV8BM, BV8BQ, BV8CM, BX8AAA and BM8BTM will be active as BV9O from Orchid Island, March 11-15th. Their bands/modes of activity were not provided. QSL ONLY direct to BV8BC.

EU-108. Look for Jim, MM0BQI, to sign MM0BQI/P from the uninhabited Treshnish Islands off the west coast of Scotland, scheduled for the first week in May. EU-108 is currently number 32 on the list of most wanted European IOTAs. The operation will take place from the island of Lunga, the largest in the Treshnish group. (Islands Of Scotland Award reference NH07). Activity will be on all bands 80-6 meters, SSB, CW, RTTY, using IC706g and IC7400 transceivers. Antennas will be Butternut verticals and wire dipoles. QSL via the bureau or direct to: Jim Martin, MM0BQI, 3 Lismore Avenue, Edinburgh, EH8 7DW, SCOTLAND. All surplus money from direct QSLs will be donated to the Hebridean Trust, who owns and works to preserve the islands and whose permission to land and operate is gratefully acknowledged. For up-to-date information, see the Web page at: http://www.qsl.net/mm0bqi/eu108 (coming soon)

Also, E-mail Jim at: mm0bqi@theRSGB.net

EU-128. Look for Andy, DL4OK, to sign homecall/p from the Staberhuk Lighthouse (ARLHS reference FED-226) located on Fehmarn Island (DID O-01 for the German Islands Award), March 18-25th. His activity will be on 80-10 meter CW/SSB. QSL via the DARC Bureau to DL4OK.

OC-142. The members of the Lockyer Valley Radio Club will be active as VK4FRI from Fraser Island, March 15-19th. Activity will be on all HF bands using CW, SSB, PSK and SSTV. QSL direct only to: P.O. Box 101, Laidley, QLD 4341, Australia.

OC-170. The members of the VK6 DX Chasers Club announced that they will conduct an expedition to Woody Island from around 0600z on March 21st to around 1600z on March 27th. This is their second visit to this island which is part of the Recherche Archipelago, located 15 km from the town of Esperance and some 600km South East of Perth. They plan to have up to 3 stations that will be active on 40-10 meters including 12m and 17m. There may be some 80/75m operation if conditions and static levels permit. The callsign is yet to be advised. Operators will be, Neil/VK6NE, John/VK6NU, Alek/VK6APK, David/VK6YEL, Gerald/VK6KTN and Phil/VK6ZPP. All requests for QSLs are to go to Neil, VK6NE.

KP4, PUERTO RICO. Alfredo, WP3C, will be active as KP4AH in the CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (10m)/Low-Power entry. QSL KP4AH via direct.

P4, ARUBA. Operator Andrius/LY2TA and Jurgis/LY2CY will be on Aruba from May 23-31st and will be active as P40X for the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th, Operation class TBA). QSL via LY2TA CBA.

PJ2, NETHERLANDS ANTILLES. Martin, W1MD, will be active as PJ2T from Curacao in the CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band entry. QSL PJ2T via N9AG.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
QSL information from the latest CQWW 160M SSB Contest is now available at: http://www.contesting.info

QSL RW2F via DK4VW. Operators were the Kaliningradsk UA2 Contest Club in the ARRL DX Phone Contest (March 6-7th) as a Multi-Multi entry.

V26R QSL STATUS. Mike, KA2AEV, announced this past week that as of March 5th, all the QSLs from the USA/VE for the 2003 and past V26B operations have been answered and are in the mail. He is still working on the DX requests. If you are in the USA or Canada and are awaiting a QSL from V26B, and you do not receive it within the next 2-3 weeks (Depending on the USPS!!!), please drop Mike another request with an SAE and return postage for your request. Please be advised that QSLs are not required. Please put your QSO info on a piece of paper. Mike states, "That will work for us!" He also states, "Sorry for the Inconvience of past QSLing practices. We seem to have our act together now."

QSL MANAGER Nenad, VE3EXY, reports that the QSLs for VK1AA/2, VK1AA/4 and VK9LX/9 are still not printed. DO NOT SEND A SECOND REQUEST. He also mentions, "I am still receiving lots of requests with insufficient funds. One U.S. dollar is not enough for an overseas letter from Canada, especially when you send several QSL cards. All those requests are processed IMMEDIATELY, but will be sent via the BUREAU."

NOT THE QSL MANAGER. Jim, WB4UBD, is NOT the QSL Manager for VK0IR. He was only assisting W4FRU, the QSL Manager at that time. He has no logs and no cards. The QSL Manager for the 1997 VK0IR operation is N2OO.

Rusty, W6OAT, announced this past week that he will be handling the QSLs for Jerry, YI9MD. Cards are "OK" either direct (Rusty Epps W6OAT, 651 Handley Trail, Redwood City, CA 94062, USA) or via the bureau. Wayne, W4MPY, is donating the cards for Jerry (K6MD at home), and they are still working with Jerry to get the exact wording he wants printed on them. Rusty states that it will be a few weeks before he actually receives any QSLs from Wayne, so please be patient with them as they may be a bit slow in the beginning.

Dave, W2GI, reports that the YI9ZF logs have been updated through February 27th at: http://dx.qsl.net/logs/

http://zs6ez.za.org/qsl-pol.htm
Chris states, "I pre-emptively QSL every QSO through the bureau, and respond to all direct requests received..... I am not in a position to collect registered mail from the post office, which would involve a two-hour drive in office hours. There is not a significant mail loss problem, so registered mail is completely unnecessary.... Although, I am now somewhat behind with QSLing after a computer theft, I routinely respond to all requests. I always have, and I always will. The ZD9IR logs are also in the Logbook of the World, allowing anyone to claim DXCC credit as required."

SPECIAL EVENT. Lee/K1NT and Marvin/AG5I will be operating special event stations K5O and K5K mobile during Oklahoma's QSO Party, "Just for the fun of it", March 13th and 14th. A special QSL card will be available for working either station. A certificate for 1 USD is available for working both stations. QSL via KW5DX.

SKP 2004. Danny, WP4F, informed OPDX and its readers that this year there will be several activities in Puerto Rico. One event will be in April where they will celebrate the First Puerto Rico Straight Key Party. The party will start the second Sunday of April (April 11th) between 1800z to 0200z (Monday). The 8 hour party will be CW only. Station KP4ES will be on the air as the "Official Party Station: from the Puerto Rico Amateur Radio League". Look for KP4ES to operate on the following frequencies: 28030, 28130, 21030, 21130, 14030, 7030, 7130, 3530 and 3705 kHz. Stations located in Puerto Rico archipelago will be signing /SKP. There are no band and/or frequency restrictions. Any amateur radio frequency may be used for a valid contact (Suggested frequencies: 30khz above the CW lower sub-band limit). For more complete details, please visit the following Web page at: http:/www.prarl.org/skeyparty2004.htm

VP2M, MONTSERRAT. Keith, VP2MEG, wrote to OPDX last week wondering why "VP2M" was not listed in the "DXCC COUNTRY/ENTITY REPORT" for the week of February 22-29th, stating "VP2M" is active. Believe it or not, there were NO cluster reports for "VP2M" for that week. Information is taken from the world-wide AB5K AR TelNet Clusters Network. Goes to show NOT all stations are reported. Keith, VP2MEG, did mention to OPDX that a new batch of hams (locals) are operating from the island, and they are training some more. Come guys/gals, let's see some VP2M QSNs reported (ed. As this was being written - still NO cluster QSNs for VP2M!!).

XE, MEXICO. Bela, N8SHZ, was expected to leave for Mexico on the 5th of March to return about the 28th of April. Look for him to probably sign XE1/N8SHZ and is expected to be working 12 and 17 meters mostly. QSL is guaranteed direct with a SASE for US and 1 Green Stamp for others.

XF4, REVILLA GIGEDO. The XF4IH operation from Socorro Island is now active and will continue until March 20th. Some of their announced suggested operating frequencies are:
SSB - 3795, 7050/7080, 14195, 21295 and 28495
CW - 3503, 7003, 10102, 14003, 18077, 21003, 24897 and 28003/28025
Activity will be on 160m-70cm on SSB/CW/RTTY/PSK31/SSTV and satellites.
QSL via XE1IH: Enrique Garcia Munive, P.O. Box 118-481, 07051 Mexico - D.F., Mexico. Check their Web site for more information at: http:xf4ih.xedx.net

XV, VIETNAM. Operators JP3AZA (XV3AZA) and JA9BV (XV3BV) will be active now through March 14th. Activity will be on the HF bands 80-15 meters (Not including WARC bands) CW/SSB. QSL via the bureau or direct to JA3DYU.

YA, AFGHANISTAN. Masa, JG1OWV, informs OPDX that Afghanistan hams are now planning to operate club station YA0J for the upcoming CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th). Their activity will be limited, and they will try to be on as much as possible within their work schedules. This will be the first Multi-Operator entry from that country.

YV4, VENEZUELA. Dario, YV4GMG, in Santa Cruz, informs OPDX that he is active on 20/15/10 meters. Also, active from the same station is Hector/ YV4GMH and Maria/YV4GMB. All three operators have been found recently on PSK31. QSL via their home callsigns.

YA, AFGHANISTAN. Rene, DL2JRM, is on a business trip in Afghanistan until March 19th. He is currently active as YA/DL2JRM and plans to be active on 160-10 meters. Over the past week, he was heard on 160/40/17/15 meters CW.

ZX7, BRAZIL. Look for Mor, CT1AHU/PT7ZXU, to participate in the CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th) as ZX7U as a Single-Op/All-Band entry. QSL via CT1AHU (QRZ.com), direct or the REP Bureau. Visit the Web page (under construction) at: http://ct1end.netpower.pt/zx7u

What kind of antennas are these guys running? The website has no information about the setup at all.

Greetings.

I have not posted anything to the NIM board since about Friday. It seems even when I quit for a few days, everyone seems to keep throwing stuff at me. I am gonna stand my ground.

I will no longer post at NIM Busters.

Have at it.

I don't see any such conclusion as you make in the subject of your post.

I do not see any opposition by radio amateurs regarding the deployment of WLAN equipment on either the 2.4 or 5.8GHz bands (and in fact, the ARRL even tried to claim they were leading the way for amateur use of 802.11b by amateurs when there were some who, on their own a full year before such a claim, had set up their own 802.11b stations).

There's one example that makes your "always" false.

How do you renew a license these days?

I sent a ncvec 605 to the FCC and they sat on it for two months and then sent it back

``The Federal Communications Commission does not accept the NCVEC Form 605. Please mail this form to your local volunteer examiner.''

I haven't the foggiest idea what they're talking about.

You can send $10 or so to the ARRL or,

1. Go to the FCC web site.

2. Create an ID number and password for yourself.

3. Attach your ham radio license to the ID number.

4. Renew your license.

5. Pay the necesary fees (vanity calls), regular licenses are free.

Note that the license must expire in 90 days or less, or be expired less than 2 years.

You're welcome. If it worked, you should be able to go the the inquiry page and see the new expiration date. Note that QRZ.com, etc don't directly mirror the database, they get nightly updates, so they will be a day or two behind.

Hmmmm. How do I approach this one? Okay, with much trepidity, I'll try and offer some thoughts without incurring the wrath of my esteemed colleagues here today.
First, the gentleman speaking on behalf of the Tarkine is a little beyond the intended bounds of this NG with regard to what seems to be a socially charged topic; environmental activism. It does look like a beautiful forest, though.
On the other hand, some gentlemen have reacted... well, some guys are pretty irate. He did ask a fair question, though, and we might try to give an answer while correcting some issues. Personally, I'm not interested in why someone wants to communicate. Likewise, I'm not interested in what they convey amongst themselves so long as it's in accord with the unwritten rule of gentleman's conduct. Heck, I might even get a Tarkine QSO card out of it and chew the rag about less incitive topics. Now, on with the show.
I'm not clear about what kind of video you're trying to send. You can definitely send still images over HF and that'll cover the distance you're talking about. Do a Google search for SSTV (Slow Scan TV). I'd personally recommend looking at www.ac6v.com and go from there. Of course, FSTV (Fast Scan TV) is there but it's still not like armchair TV. There are limitations to your equation.
Limit #1: I don't know of a way to send a fully streaming video in the format you're suggesting. If you take video and save it as a file, I don't think it'll be compatible with FSTV. You might be able to send it as a file (viewable on a computer) but it's so big, the transmission's so slow and it'll probably be corrupt by time it's finished. But, I'm not an expert on ATV (Amateur TV) or sending large files of different formats.
Limit #2: You'll never get full streaming video over amateur radio. (There's a challenge for you guys to mount:)
Limit #3: Access to the internet... That's dicey at best and technically beyond my scope at worst. To receive media from the internet is probably gonna break international treaties and laws since it's improbable you can filter commercial and profane subject matter out. To upload to the internet is more feasible. The easiest way to do this would be virtual sneakernet, i.e. he sends a graphic to you and you upload it.
Limit #4: This one's a show-stopper. Your friend must be a licensed amateur radio operator or operate under the supervision of a licensee at his station. Perhaps you or a friend might join him in the trenches?

P.S. If it works out, you have to do a DXpedition and send out QSO cards to everybody who calls:)
P.P.S. This is cross-posted only with the intent to give a decent answer and let it fade into memory. I apologize if it's been addressed elsewhere or slows any connections.

Go to Google and search for "atomic clock". In the first 20 or 30 listings you should find hobbyist sites that have diagrams and maybe even kits.

Acording to the FCC database, W8LVI expires 03/15/2014.

Yes, I have one of these clocks also. The thing is, these clocks are set 6 times in a 24hr perod by the WWVB signal. The rest of the time the time base is an ordinary crystal. I want my clock to be set on a more continous basis. This could only happen with the continous decoding of the signal. This is how the "professional" clocks, such as those made by Spectracom work.

You might consider the old Heathkit clock, which still turns up cheaply at hamfests now and then.

If you build your own, make sure you use nixie tubes. That's important.

About ten years ago, when I was living in Seattle, I had a clock radio with rather crap reception, so finding a station I was both interested in and capable of listening to when I woke up was a bit of a task. One day, though, as I began slowly and carefully tuning the dial to try to find something worth listening to, I stumbled across clear, strong, and repeating Morse code. It wasn't an SOS, which was about the only Morse I knew, but it was a good strong signal, better than the alarm clock's built in buzzer, so I shrugged mentally and left the tuner there. As a result, the pattern got burnt into my brain.

Some years later, I decided to look up what this dot and dash pattern might mean, in hopes of determining what I'd been listening to. I'd heard of CQ, so I thought it might turn out to be that, but no...

That's 'BF', isn't it? Why would someone be sending 'BF BF BF' out on a radio frequency? Or was my radio so crap as to be picking up something else entirely? Please shed some light my way; I'm feeling lost...

Most likely you heard a low frequency aeronautical beacon. These operate below the am broadcast band.

I did a quick check and found a few beacons that ID as BF.

They are in Seattle, WA; Bakersfield, CA; Bradford, PA; Cleveland, OH; and Scottsbluff, NE.

Were you near any of those cities?

My guess is, you may have been picking up an NDB (Non-Directional Beacon), used by aviation. Perhaps you were close enough that it picked it up, or perhaps you had tuned to the second harmonic of the signal, or there were some unintentional signal mixing products in the receiver that allowed you to hear it. Hard to say. But that would be my guess.

Art,
Where did you get this info. On the Web? I've been listening for them with my IC 706.
Airnav, the only one I had found, didn't have any "BF".:

For some time now the web site has indicated that would happen. I think many of Sheldon's kits are available from Kanga U.S., but I have never seen anything on Bill's website as extensive as Sheldon's.

You'll find that most of the schematics on the net for atomic clocks are of the crystal variety-they set once or twice a day with WWVB and the rest of the time use a crystal. You'll have to do some digging to come up with something that does continuous decoding, but I'm sure it's out there.

The FCC tune has already changed. Read the article at:

http://www.arrl.org/news/stories/2004/03/09/1/?nc=1

Notice the FCC statement "...Powell responded to the question by saying the FCC would not let BPL interfere with critical services."

Now the protection appears to have migrated to "critical" services only, and the burden of proof is thus shifted to amateur radio to show how our service is "critical" and worthy of protection against the best-thing-since-sliced-bread BPL.

And they are about to lock up a goddamn housewife while these vultures

Hello, I'm new at the HAM radio thing, but I just put me up my antennas and I have a power supply out of a old pop up camper that was only putting out 12.3 volts, with no load out of it, I can receive signals very clear, but cannot transmit signals, my strength meter goes full scale, but no one can hear me, and I know that a few friends should have been able to hear me. My question is if I have a power supply that is not putting enough voltage will that effect my radio where I cannot transmit, my friends say all they get on the other end is a buzz noise, and I notice that the lights on my display go dim when I transmit. What I did is use a GPS-disciplined receiver to give me a highly accurate 10 MHz standard. The receiver costs $250 from www.buylegacy.com but you'll end up paying (way too much) for a power supply/line lump and the antenna. I also spent money on software to use with it on my win2k box.

Every 10 minutes that software updates a web page with the sky view and how the high-grade crystal oven is functioning, including estimated error over 24 hours if it loses contact with the GPS satellites.

The IC-706 is deaf as a post below 500 KC.
If you're interested in the low freqs, pick up an old Icom R-70; they are outstanding for LF work. The only thing better would be an old TRF, since they have a better noise floor, but they're hard to calibrate for frequency.

Dustin -- the current draw should be in the specs in your manual.
I allow at least a 50% margin.

I can't find the FT-2500's current draw on the web but found it is a 50
watt radio in TX

From the Yaesu site -- a FT-2600M is a 60 Watt radio and draws 10 Amperes So I would use at least a 15 amp supply for this radio. A little less for the FT-2500
Check the manual specs!

Hi,

I'm looking for user and service manuals for these 2 equipments:

Philips PM5131 0.1Hz-2MHz Function Generator, and Philips PM5326 ...-125MHz RF Generator.

Any help (by mail, email, bird, etc...) whould be very much appreciated.
Mail expenses on me, of course, if that is the case.

Thank you.

For a normal 'ordinary' Consumer Time Standard that is Accurate to within a Tenth of Second: Every Minute; Every Hour; Every Day . . .
The above Time Synchronization Process is more than adequate.

Hi Dustin

Sounds to me like your supply isnt able to deliver the power you need.
You dont mention how many watt's you should be able to transmit with, my station needs 20 Amps when transmitting 60W, so you need to find out how much your supply is able to deliver.

Fred,

Upon re-reading your post, I note that you were living in Seattle at the time. I think that clinches it.

The beacon you heard was at Boeing Field (hence the "BF"). It operates on 362 kHz (perhaps you heard the 2nd harmonic at 724 kHz). This is an "outer marker" beacon and is named "Nolla."

you find yourself mentally undressing your rig.

you'd rather turn on your rig instead of your wife.

your definition of high fashion is a baseball cap with your call letters on it.

your shack actually begins to look like one.

at a party, after you've told a joke, you say "hi hi".

you're happy to be considered just another bean for the pot.

your idea of sightseeing is checking rooftops for antennas.

you check for your packet messages before you check your answering machine.

you think carrying an HT is more of a status symbol than a portable cellular phone.

you have the need to explain to someone that being a ham is not the same as being a CBer.

and finally a quote from a very good friend who is not a ham and therefore wishes to remain nameless:

Just because you're a ham doesn't mean you have to be a pig

I really don't care who it is. they are foolish enough to try and pick a fight while unarmed, thats their business. Ah well, he's in my shitlist

Still, it would be nice to actualkly hear a radio related discussion in

You are just the kind of sheep that big business loves. BPL as it stands is a BAD idea. The interference potential isn't just to amateur radio but a host of other services.

Amateur radio is a hobby, yes -- but it is a hobby that also provides training for services to the public. E.g., search and rescue operations (e.g., much of the shuttle debris was in areas with no cell-phone or regular two-way radio service), emergency communications when major power outages occur, etc., etc.

My FT-41R 440 Hand Held, has no transmit or receive. If the squelch is "open", there is white noise out of the speaker, but the Green "Receive Light" does not come on. When the PTT is pushed the Red "Transmit: light does not come on, but the bar graph indicates power output. No signals are heard by the receiver when the PTT is released or in it's idle state.

The displayed frequency on the screen looks ok, if a repeater is set, then the

also the knob on top dose not work ,(that i can tell) i have done a reset on it, no help

Mine is set only once per day, sometime between midnight and 4 am.

I was under the impression that the reason this was done is that the signal is too weak to be decoded during other times of the day. In fact, I have some (admittedly very inexpensive) atomic clocks that have never decoded the signal here in Florida.

Dennis,

I don't know what you mean by ordinary crystal, but even.001% is not very good. You may want to look at high accuracy temperature compensated oscillators. Depending on where you live, you may actually be able to phase lock your oscillator to the WWB carrier. You would have to use a phase detector that does not pull you off to one side if you lose the signal. Also, the ~3.58MHz color subcarrier on some TV stations is locked to a cesium standard.

/ / BYPASSING THE CIA: ...set up to purposely bypass "usual intelligence channels to make a case [for war] that conflicted with the conclusions of CIA analysts." The office presented unreviewed - and often uncorroborated - intelligence directly "to the offices of Vice President Dick Cheney and national security advisor Condoleezza Rice" without the knowledge of CIA Director George Tenet (yesterday, Tenet acknowledged that he only learned about these side briefings last week). \ \

For the demon bush Jr, as evil incarnate, this failure of his intelligence is nothing new. He trumpeted against Saddam, if someone should harm anything of value that he and his mob were to steal, he'd charge'em up for crimes against humanity, but not so [apparently] when he and "sexy" rummy sent in thousands of missiles to destroy public property. Or land mine cluster duds to kill leaderless American Patriots, along with tons of radioactive toxic waste to indiscriminately murder untold thousands of people for generations. All by the lawless demon antiChrist so to desecrate the American dream for everyone, by ungodly stealing our human values. (instead of going anywhere without restriction or delay, while granted free access also to national Iraqi broadcasts to say whatever about current deprived survival conditions.) See?, as corporate america's deity, the bushmob isn't accountable to the enslaved People under his evil tyrannical rule of godless dictatorship. That's why he is referred in biblical texts, as the lawless evil enemy of all the People, God, the Universe, and well... just everything. Humanity is in dire need of a god send just now, quick! somebody say someone somewhere said something somewhat similar, that you, like anyone, would want to be included like everybody else is too; committed to freedom from oppression, and to be our own person, like Christ is. Now, we just need a good King to run around the world for HELP to party it up like a wild animal for all of Creation as a Life spokesman. Hmmm? Sure I'm up for it.

I would request again, for a brave American Patriot to immediately arrest if possible, or simply destroy the unarrested, escaping from 9/11 demon antiChrist, Our Mr.

bush Jr., along with "sexy" rummy. Done for the sake of saving innocent lives not further sacrificed for leaderless America's inaction to protect Americans for themselves as Constitutionally legitimate. Bushites are too ignorant, bigoted, and plain stupid evil to remain corporately unchallenged by the documented evidence of the traitor bushmob's contempt for Law, or the Lord. To protect Justice as freedom through OUR news media programing, we're going to need to make a break through in communications. (I suggest cultist corporate news hounds consider using the Internet as a possible source of public information, and maybe legitimately converse with us as the concerned community.)

Big Sky

We, as glorious human beings, are wondrously effected by the nature's of perception, but as so 99.9 percent wondrous, we come with some recognizable universal draw backs. One: actual evidence as measurable, must be a requirement to convince us of something to deprive another of rights over by judicial action. True judicial action through democratic means. (The simplicity of "a freeman shall not be imprisoned" is being profoundly missed by the bushmob's America as played too dumb to comprehend through our media news channels censored.) Demon bush demands you faithfully blank your mind from his bad faithed dictate on how unspeakable 9/11 magically went down, but without most the established crime scene evidence that is freely uploadable. It's not, gee, I wonder when he'll really screw up, it is bush himself whom is committing the crime of 9/11 with rummy to begin with, then thinking, he could get away with it still by lying to EVERYONE. For all time. War crimes have no statute of limitations in my book, and the law has a mighty long reach my friend.

Bushite bremer hired Saddam's secret police, and fired school teachers. Mr. bremer, you'll remember, is the president of Kissinger Associates, the group that criminally provided Saddam the WMD knowhow. That's is evil for ya. His strategic defense, is that American soldiers, are too weak as slaves, and create doubt on what is firmly established in evidentiary proceedings already. Mr. bremer figures, since no person would willingly put themselves where he is, as certainly, it just can't be so.. (I'm sure he and rummy get alot of chuckles from conning US all as God to murder ourselves like that.) Doubt is an ever present property of a constantly changing, nothing is absolute universe. Substantiated evidence is ALL we got to go on, and sometimes, that can even get foggy. Similarly, with bush and rumsfeld. Their kind of treason is so blasphemous, people can't recognize that any real human being would willingly try to actually do such a thing for the windfalls of big corporate profit, and as such, a many god person, (as often the good natured and kind hearted), desperately look for any doubt, than to face such a human fear of real demon behavior in our World of worlds of every character. I as Lord hope, that over time, soon, recognizing war crimes will become almost second nature to US, and the fear of Human development as all good, will change to wicked fun and prosperity for all concerned. Currently, the lawless bushites are left to furthering with the barter of Your dying existence, all done by Your inaction to simply help Yourself. Yeah, YOU left televised to be politically powerless over trying to raise some awareness on the true state of your being alive in this world.

Kimmitt "We certainly don't believe that this indicates the coalition is demonstrating weakness".

Who is this "we" the bushites keep referring to? Is bombing residential communities to murder US people indiscriminately with toxic cluster duds, (that kill aplenty dubya dubya's), not just one of the stupidest, most heinous, worthless war crimes ever that could be committed in anyone's name? Seriously. It purposefully gets killed American Patriots, and for what but a blind worship of bush as their ticking - - "Intel". - -

Where is Kimmitt to speak about feeding plutonium to the loyal troops? Something he doesn't wish them to learn of? Is that not weakness as a military leader refusing like a coward, to stand on defense of your own dying blood brothers? He instead wishes to decieve himself, than to fight bravely believing in Freedom and Justice for US all. Maybe he'll change his view, by accidentally arresting bremer for the WMDs sold to Saddam illegally by following the evidence trail himself. Then maybe helping me out to get those responsible for 9/11 in the bush administration. What do you say Kimmitt?, are you with yourself as true American Patriot, yea or nay?

" "When there is a security failure, the party responsible for security is to be blamed. And let us ask ourselves, who has the capability of launching such bombs in these circumstances? What story should we believe, should we believe and blame the figure that the Americans are drawing for us (Abu Musaab al-Zarqawi and al-Qaida fighters), or should we believe what we are seeing on the ground everyday?" he said. "

Well yah. It makes no sense for why bush's Laden, or the real Laden even, would be working directly for the bushmob to steal further more from Iraqi wealth, and the soldiering American tax payer, while not suggesting a kill shot to russell, blount, bremer, rumsfeld or bush. Or, speaking on the despicable war crimes, or where all the stolen loot is going to. (IT'S SEVENTEEN PAGES!!!) Then, guess who decided all of Iraq should get this criminal, let's do the bushmob another great idea? Bremer, or the CPA. (Reminds me of rummy's "pentagon" plan P2OG, a terrorist plan figured by rummy; that since, he don't want found out responsible for treason, he'll orchestrate it himself to 'appear' [like as if by magic] as the Pentagon, or America, and that's only if, we were to be asking him directly about something he criminally planned personally. (but shhhh.. it's a written secret between just him and US apparently) Strange days of terrible tragedy, I know.. But fun!))

These crimes Kimmitt seems dead set on not investigating, ring more from his weak leadership, than from anything else. The bushite war crimes are as iligitimately premissed, and as so evil is always dumb and weak like Kimmitt is spotlighted as traitor to every American soldier out there truly dying needlessly as bushwhores so to rob from Iraqi and American. Kimmitt only lacks himself some manly courage to try saving US all by communicating for America's America. Will he, or.

Illiterate, irrational, all around dumb dubya had stated long before, that he knows that the, no plan to die for but getting bushite rich quicker scheme letter writing guy, is for sure, senior al-Qaeda, and I guess, he would know better than everyone else about the writer doing himself as the deceived pure evil nazi war criminating antiChrist so many favors? The bush liar as America's enemy kills ourselves as the innocent and undefended, needlessly but for stealing our human values, and so... accused Laden is a terrorist for what loyal causes again?

I want to come down and party with you People, but the bushmob keeps trying to ruin our days, by destroying American lives not being spoken for. I don't like the bushite attitude about criminally ruling our ways, and I'm here to freely, demand Justice for Freedom as the Heaven's awakening. The problem is NRA members aren't acting to protect Justice left unrepresented by corporate mind control., Like Freedom of the living breathing good American Police investigating forces being denied as relevant news material witnesses. Demon bush's war mongering against God hasn't only recklessly murdered near two hundred thousand mostly defenseless, unarmed people, but has dumped with rummy, thousands of TONS of radio-active toxic waste to murder God for what will be greater than 50 generations of innocent human beings. Murdered in your name, my name, America's name, God's name. What beef does a bushite corporate america have with the Children of God? I beg the NRA, the CIA, the FBI, good guy bikers, and any other real Patriots to stand up as men for the Family, and kill the unarrested enemy bushmob for 9/11 as traitors to our dying America, and for the war crimes they have committed in our names. War crimes while sacrificing to actually DIE, the dumfuk nazi teen soldiers whom have no leadership present to speak of. As I've stated previously, we will ask all American soldiers to either stand for America and the Constitution, as freedom and Justice for all, demanding evidence to convince US whom is suspected for criminal offences, or with the bushites, as enemies of themselves to self arillate.

Evil is just the deceived disguised. (Wow I AM Amazing)

I guess this is all quite a consideration to take and role through with for a couple thousand years, but look, evil incarnate antiChrist bush is back again fuking US around, harming our World as Humanity with flagrant war crimes continuing. His illegitimate power base comes from Americans thinking that because he is the President, he shouldn't be accountable to American Law like the rest of US, and that is where a bushite takes the fall while trying to bring down all of Americans through corporate censorship on his treason. Like unarrested fascist steven "he'll kill a bunch of US folk if you complain publicly about bush banking policy or bush health care premiums" russell, or unarrested bush bitch buford blount, who confesses the joy to see American soldiers die rightly for his irrational crimes against innocent civilians trying to defend ourselves. Fuk, who wouldn't destroy unarrested buford blount I ask all creatures great and small. Wouldn't you? I mean, come on, HONESTLY, THINK ABOUT IT, what real man, if he had to, wouldn't, to protect their innocent family? Steven russell and buford blount as steroided pill poppers have targeted innocent whomevers for being just alive, because they trust, in faith, that all America will think it makes the demon bush 'cabal' so scary and strong in a godless world that gets killed, not all so blind cowardly Patriots seen led leaderlessly as unAmerican like that forever. One or two Soldier's of Fortune in the American marines, willing to join up with US as true freedom fighters for America, is all I'm pushing for here as King of kings.

(Hey.. I know... I naturally spook myself, but I so enjoy living for something, and, there does seems to be room to believe here for you as anyone to freely be also. If Americans only knew how fantastic you could be as this living universe questing justice for freedom, You'd as anyone, think twice about silently letting the bushmob take you as anyone else further to suffer unheard from. I urge soldiers to unite on our determination to take the bush administration out of our life and death business decisions, and straight behind bars, awaiting their open public trials for treason.)

The bushites who faithfully advocate the murder of innocent people blindly are our enemies, and I ask all able bodied men, to do what is right, and get the bushmob of terrorists before they take another American soldier as too weak to realize what is protected in the American constitution.

The Top 150 Subpoena list for the 911 Commission
http://post911timeline.org/article006.htm

Demon bush needs to be arrested, along with the rest of the 'cabal', and CNN has got to be infiltrated further by American intelligence. We need to get those responsible for 9/11, and if it means a boring hour long

TV news program with fewer commercials, with free, open dialog on the documented facts, and confessions made already by the White House, (that they had the plan before hand, and went completely with it, no lie, they did it,) we could get this wrapped up in say, two weeks, tops. I suggest, we get them good with the Law, cause it just makes right sense to every one concerned. What do you say?

I'll phone CBC and CNN, and tell them Our FBI says General Ahmad funded Atta, or that DU is measured radioactive as a toxic heavy metal containing also plutonium that oxidizes to microscopic particles, and you know what they'll do? They'll leave our families to die as further victims to the evil bushmob in criminal sacrifice. Celebrating their riches as terrorist harboring, corporate fascists, as true nazi collaborators. (Just try yourself, don't be embarrassed as scared of nothing.) I plead as the NRA, to get your guns loaded, and kill the unarrested bushmob for the sake of American family values. Your family values. The demon bush and "sexy" rummy are not only personally responsible escaping as perpetrators for 9/11, needlessly murdering near 200,000 innocent People, but in that process, they're sacrificing America's dumfuk teen soldiers, who don't have minds yet to think around. That is not what I'm all about. True, I'd happily kill any armed bushite who was threatening murder against my innocent family, but too, I know the marines, the true marines, would be standing 100 percent with me, if we could communicate about what these bushites are criminally doing in our names. With US as equals committed to freedom and justice for all, we do not want unarrested bush, rummy, cheney, or bremer as leaders. Tommy franks, buford blount, and steven russell, need to be also arrested for war crimes, or executed now in the name of America's America.

Iraq needs to have returned the money that has been stolen, organizing elections need to be started upon, and whomever at rummy's pentagon that is managing the disappearing American public fund trick, need to be tracked down, and found out as person or persons. We need American soldiers to commit to Justice ruling our ways, so together, we can nab the actual bad guys for attacking freedom in America defended by the almighty magical word of Justice as universal.

" Heather Williams: Haiti as Target Practice

First, no one bothered to ask who the rebels were and why they were advancing on major cities. If in fact they represented a broad opposition, as reporters readily implied or stated openly, why were the rebels unable to furnish the barest credible details of their demands, their civilian bases of support, and their connections to leaders of civil society groups?

..."All sides," he wrote in a very fine article last fall in Dollars and Sense, "concede that Aristide won the presidential ballot with 92 percent of the vote. The sole disagreement is over run-off elections for seven senators from Aristide's part who obtained pluralities but not majorities in the first round. The seven senators eventually resigned, making way for new elections." Nonetheless, these electoral "abuses" were grounds for the Bush administration and pliant international partners in Europe to suspend hundreds of millions of dollars in credit lines and aid to

It's not the great artist Gibson, but corporate american cult news who sit back bushiting "It's harmless, now shut up dummy", knowing sadistic "sexy" rummy dumped thousands of tons of radio-active toxic waste, along with land mines to commit senseless, gratuitous mass murder in residential communities housing the God of Revelations.

It is bushite america who call themselves Christian, who fund the Likud with American sweat and labor, to criminally assault innocent Christians as accused of nothing but being Christian. They do this as enemies of Justice and God, to tell US as unbelievers, to quickening the coming of the Lord, who will in turn, condemn the individuals responsible, straight to hell

Killing people
for no good reasons really sucks. I hate bushites.

Let's get the Patriots together and bag US some Rumsfeld

I just so much hate that demon antiChrist bush, and his cabal of war mongers, it hurts. Let's just kill George W. Bush for being qualified to lead but only himself and Rumsfeld directly up to our NRA's firing squad, for almost foolishly thinking they would actually escape the planned murder of US thousands in New York City on 9/11, then continuing by sacrificing dumdum nazi soldiers on a cross in a completely unnecessary war against civilization. What is it that the evil bushites can do now in Iraq, before murdering untold thousands and thousands, but for stealing even more of God's good will towards all Mankind as loved?

No words from the bushites who rule our communications through corporate news censorship, while Christian parents call out unheard: why has corporate america allowed forsaken soldiers to eat plutonium to murder God for a measly few dollars the bushmob will pocket for the up coming "unbiased" re-election news campaign? As I suggested before, (If there are no real men in the marines) why not just give the unarrested bushmob all the money they want, so we can forgo all the needless death and suffering against our friends and family?

Destroy the demon bushmob, and all day long you'll have good luck, I swear! Johnny says "give living a try!"

This next story is what the cruelty of america against Christ is all about. Funding with their lives under the leadership skills of the, corporate profit at all costs form of american brutality, a government, of People, under the Likud that persecutes the innocent as God is, while they celebrate all as drunken bushite wannabe, private banker billionaires. Drinking our wine, while secretly calling God fiction.

" The annual burden may well exceed $3 billion ï¿½ details are very sensitive and thus kept secret. Under the Free Trade Agreement Israel is allowed to export to the US freely, even though US exports to Israel are very much constrained. That trade-aid deficit, a loss to the US, now hovers around $9 billion per year.

Private Jewish aid from the US has contributed another $50-plus billion to the burden. Much of this is a ``tax expenditure,'' because the donations are tax deductible in the US, but the whole amount is a deadweight cost to the US economy, since Israel tends to use aid money not to purchase from the US, but, instead, buys from the EU. "

http://www.commondreams.org/views04/0226-03.htm

" Citing the flaws in those elections, the United States and other foreign governments refused to monitor the presidential election that followed, later in 2000, which Mr. Aristide won handily. The opposition boycotted the affair and still claims that the election was illegitimate, but it does so against the weight of the evidence. This includes a Gallup poll commissioned by the United States government but never made public. (I obtained a copy last year.) It shows that as of 2002 Mr. Aristide remained far and away the most popular political figure in Haiti. "

" Moreover, those eight contested Senate seats didn't affect the balance of power in Parliament. Even if it had lost them all, Mr. Aristide's party would still have had a clear majority. "

What is the opposition's position on health care funding, or a progressive tax system? Just what is it that is being fighted for if the rebels want to keep it secret? If Aristide has no military, nor large, broad based police force, how do allegations of a police state ring through, done by a militarized force looting and killing? And, who's funding these war actions?, could it be, the bushmob again? To maybe, publicly turn our way from George W. Bush's continuing criminality against America's better name? Likely, but I don't know for evidence yet. But, what does it matter, if Americans can't stand up now to arrest or kill the bush demon and "sexy" rummy for the crimes of 9/11 I ask you?

" Hidden from the Headlines sums up many of the Haitian government's worthy accomplishments, which the U.S.
corporate press effectively whites-out. ``More schools were built in Haiti from 1994-2000 than between 1804
and 1994,'' the authors point out, ``many in rural areas where no schools existed previously.'' They also cite progress made in agriculture, public transportation, infrastructure, health care, AIDS prevention and treatment, and defending children's rights. ``Clearly,
these programs represent a progressive agenda, initiated under the most trying conditions,'' the booklet says. "

Someone should ask Greenspan to consider taking out the middle US all together, and tax Americans to just give their earnings hand over fists, straight to the bushmob partners for nothing. Then, the economy will really take off., something else. Hell is what America is becoming with that ungodly bush demon escaping our police authority. As for Greenspan, he has always been a liability. 2% is what he gets for America's Social Security. Then, he gets loans for America, from America at interest, paid to him and his band of debt profiteers stupidly. Can You, as an American, borrow someone billions that you don't have, charge them interest for the privilege, then take their homes if they fail to pay you PERSONALLY back money you didn't have to begin with?
I want to SERIOUSLY ask now, when are the pirate bankers going to pay back the money they borrowed from America?
The treasury department, on behalf of America lent them
the money to begin with, so most the national debt, is the total, Greenspan and his private banker nazi war buddies owe all Americans. No?, how so? Teach me. I'm listening.

The Jews had it right

Demon bush recently commenting on his vast superior knowledge of matrimony, spewed forth "millennia of human experience,"

Imagine a corporately successful American divorce lawyer, taking what he can get away with, and the marriage experience for America we'll be like that sometimes.

Just where is the "human experience"? I don't yet know all the answers, but, why is it that the happy couple can't just have a religious ceremony sanctifying their marriage, and be done with the rest of the, I might screw you over in the legal ease later part of it? If done so, I'm sure marriages would more easily stand the test of time. The strength of marriage is recognized for what it symbolizes in love ever lasting union. (as God is, or as with Nature, or just as all the dedicated one on one playtime)

The divorce lawyers take half your life's assets through pressing subtly for, doing so as he/she plans, to be sweetly bittered out of settlement as far as the lingo can commiserate the arbitrator of commissary charges on every forthwith therefore, stuffed for your(s), petty pity parties into their glorious big fat wallet.

Marriages don't truly hold together through love by expensive paper work done by hearty bureaucrats, but by a personal life commitment to love, cherishing one.. blah blah blah... Now, how could anyone, anywhere, as "The State" say to two people who express a mutual caring love, (as anyone else could), are forbidden to express love through sharing freely with one another as something truly beautiful? A celebrated relationship that makes their time together something treasured? Time of the newer old world along with all the ancient newborn stars above orchestrating for their everyday ra-ra pom-pommed humdrum of roughing it through the bad times to revel in the good? Couples who have committed to life long sharing, live longer on the average, than anybody else does. It's a fact Jill.

(As for me, and my own little Universe that revolves around myself starving for attention as almost penniless performer, leaves me with my one liner, "no I'm actually playing the Son of Man as Creator for real to packed live auditoriums", really kinda, makes things difficult...but hey! Things could change. God is free Love man!, don't you guys remember the 60's? Look, I'll even show you how i do some of my best card tricks, if you get me on for an hour or two with Aaron Brown. He's on that CNN channel. The News channel. Or perhaps my secret nemesis, Art Bell, why don't you give him a call?)

God but, the Marriage thing is really a big something in America, as it does seem amiss, though I'm honestly not qualified to offer much more insights, until I can get off the, why is bush getting away with murdering US as the antiChrist first. (Maybe it is all my fault why no girl wants to give her love to me in between my swashbucklin'.. oh well then, I guess that's one of the mysteries I pose as the average chicken coop's "holy God cock")

Anyway, I think it's time we'd be getting the deviant George W. Bush annulled from our wills.

" MK Ahmed Tibi (Hadash) said he does not think Boim should resign because the deputy defense minister acts as valuable evidence for those who think the Israeli government embraces a group of fascists. "

As I've written, since i took up this challenge, areil sharon is the furthest thing from a Jew one could imagine. No really, that's the most disturbing quality of racism, and or bigotry practiced in our governments as Institutionalized. (A fault found that is genuinely unfair as those who practice it.) (of which so very none get truly wealthy from.) Resulting in an individual monster named ariel sharon: enemy of every Jew since the dawn. To, as a representative government, publicly, in the People's name, ACT deliberately unfair as criminals, denigrating some labeled group of innocent people for cheating and victimization, or murdering like hitler did, is as of, unfair to the God of Christian, Pagans, the Buddyhas, along with a great many others even including the, "no thanks", they have all the answers already to life's big question innocent Atheists, DOES NOT preclude including the "Jews" of the old new testament, that sharone (in contempt of all People as God, as in his own life left rejected 'unfairly') would have left unread. For the bonuses of american tax taking from an "other" less fortunates to not have anti-Semites (Semite=Arab) with nazi american mk-47s around ariel sharon always to protect himself from a true Kingly Jew. For, what else is in this life, but to make people suffer like Jesus did. Right ariel sharon? It's this, it's so simple, the corporations wont let US say so thing again. FRONTLINE did a show once, several years ago on the actual individual people that the Jew-haters funded by nazi america victimize, but repeated since?,.. rarely never in AMERICA. Why? Because anyone with any sense would immediately see, who was the bad guy, and who was the Jew. Not good for the repuglicons who take money on the, won't go away issue though, played unknowable on "unbiased" commercial corporate american TV news broadcasts. They're stayed to f-o-r-c-e US neutral by, in a evil cult like bushite trace, find irrational excuses to except silently: concentration camps, torture, and first degree murders against innocent Christians or Jews, paid for committed in our names as illegitimate.

What ever happened to the 50 year Jewish Jubilee where all Jews give up on what is their now stolen land, to acknowledge God's Holy teaching from the Tora? Is the Jubilee just a myth? If you build a house, on the property you share, would it be wrong for ariel sharon to steal it, while america was left unaware? American tv doesn't even play what their being truly taxed to death for under the demon antiChrist, their Mr. bush Jr., so what can we expect in all honesty, right? (Demon bush murders good guy American police officers, and it's just far to embarrassing for corporate america to immediately arrest or execute the traitor.)

Mr. ariel sharon has been on the Jewish hit list, since a Jew met a Jew in the park and said, "that ungodly bastard sharon just murdered my Palestinian Jewish friend, who he called innocent of all things." Demon anti-Jew ariel sharon knows what his consequences are, for, that's all he is as the ungodly. Knows nothing of democracy, knows nothing of freedom or Jewish religious teachings, he just keeps killing Jews so they won't catch him, while he does things like, oh I don't know, desecrates the third holiest of holies. Again, ariel sharon is not Jewish. Deal with it. PRIME EXAMPLE: The evil Jew-hater, ariel sharon, was caught directly involved in the cover up, of the failed attempt for his partners in crime to blow up some could be Jewish People in the Mexican congress, then likely finger Laden as innocent of as terrorists. To incredible to believe? Believe it. Didn't see it splashed on CNN as important on where American tax dollars are being funneled as Christ killers though did you?

snpd the God is sometimes gay part

But simply put, the more Jews ariel sharon gets murdered, the more money from repuglicons comes by taking Christians for Christ helpless on the cross, but without any 'real' God. Then anti-Jew ariel sharon puts money back into the private pockets of 'wealthy' repuglicons for funding true terrorism on the sly. The Likuds steal people's homes, life savings, shoot to death innocent Christians, Atheists, whomever, while they then send off the surviving victims with only what can be carried quickly, to suffer in some ghetto camp. Hitler, revisited. What "Jews" since whenever have suffered from, now without God in Government, made fearful to stand for their rights against bigot murderer ariel sharon's mk-47s., they then under tyranny, falsely, try to condemn all themselves as forsaken without G's leadership found in Mr. ariel sharon. The Jews had it right on me never actually personally getting up on a cross by God's inability to communicate through silence, it is more of a metaphor on the true state of humanity, but no more so graphically illustrated by today's Likude Israel that condemns all the People as God. One more example on many: Demon sharon, funded by nazi bushite america, will have Jewish Israeli teens arrested that disagree with murdering innocent people to steal their land as God from. It's a fact Jack. Mr. areil sharon is not Jewish. Live with it suffering without speaking, or shout to the high heavens that your fed up, and we're not going to take it any longer. The King has returned!

King of the Jews,

" Whenever President Bush is now confronted with an unacceptable reality, he either changes the subject - is steroid use really more important than the environment? - or expresses confidence in his certainty. "I'm absolutely confident that..." he'll say, as if the issue is his determination rather than his conclusion. "

It's his faith infinitive as the antiChrist, where he has hypnotized the dopey with merely the power of suggestion, that has brought him to US as foolishly not conceiving, or most importantly, truly understanding. So, do we feel sorry for his ignorance as fallibility we are all prone to own as the human rendition? No. But for stupidity thinking he could murder US as the innocent to steal our free values, and just get away with it by lying to no one continually, is where the Lord makes our stand for God unseen as miraculous.

The demon bush dictate is not exceptable for my just little man universe. I knows too much about freedom to go on dying in bush's forsaken place as innocent sacrifice. With corporate america's unarrested demon bush forcing my hand, I would decide to defend by concluding, he is truly, the enemy of all America. America: weak without leadership, yes, but not as dumb as some would have us believe. When is it that we feel sorry for the thousands of lives bush's deliberate actions of mass murder have taken for no good reasons? Their ain't nobody to defend america's overlord, but through corporate censorship of the reality of who's really dying for the demon bush liar. I'm the one anyone would ever have a legitimate fear of getting on the wrong side of, and if your not in the process of attempting to get away with murdering some defenseless family for nothing but to rob from, to each, his or her own, mostly, right?

Falling for You

Brahimi said. "We need to organize elections as early as possible but not as early as impossible."

Help me understand: Why can not Iraq start on the process of

O R G A N I Z I N G E L E C T I O N S

NOW to work towards gaining accountability for soon as possible? After June? What the... Can't we people talk while walking? Look, the future is likely coming no matter what, and what ever illegitimate government is embarrassingly stalled by evil WMD proliferator baathist bremer to steal unaccounted American tax dollars from the "willing" victims dying, (like by bush bitch cluster dud) will still necessitate the need, to have started on the process of fair elections for our Iraq before hand. Corporate america might not care of sacrificing America to rob from, but real People are honorable, and won't reserve the scourge of nazi bushitizm a place to suffer any further if we can help it.

The bushites are sorrily, simply not qualified under the dire circumstances they've assaulted ourselves into for mugger war profitizing, as leading US to be dying undefended while failing miserably on my behalf to demand Justice as freedom is truly.

Now, it has been vaguely suggested that a, steven "you can't have public health care or he'll murder whomever for thinking" russell, or a buford "bush bitch" blount as treasonous evil nazi bushwhore, to undermine freedom and democracy everywheres in our world might cowardly attack defenseless innocent families at the polls while leaving "bin Laden" fingerprints, criminally warring to kill more American dumdums for commi Halliburton et al, continuing committing as unaccounted massive waste in America by over billing the dying People. Why would bushites do this? Evil is blind irrationality, disguised as thought out faithfully by fascists. The, nothing to fear suggestible absolute nature of non-linerality, is 99.9 percent, super fractal wowy miraculous as crazy about the fringes, (or is that bridges?). But, without Justice ruling our stay, we leave for a Heaven waiting, on a sea of madness as enemies of life to all things eternally being. Translated: We need to arrest these specific war criminals at the end of our, ready to fire rifles. Done to stop them personally, from robbing or murdering America indiscriminately as enemies to everyone. But in addition to that, (like at the same time) who says the polls can't be stretched out over several days or a week, with multiple options on submitting votes registered through the oil-for-food program? I want to know where Annan is on this., why it can't be done., and what his position is on returning the Iraqi Humanitarian aid stolen by Halliburton, or Iraqi Central Bank deposits cashed by HAS TO BE, current pirates. Annan, be a man, an acknowledge our presence as relevantly important for our world's living sake.

We had 100 percent access throughout Iraq prior to allowing bush, rumsfeld, and franks to sacrifice literally thousands of innocent lives. Who are now DEAD or DYING NEEDLESSLY as first degree murder victims, in some bastardized Lord's name apparently.

(Quick, somebody call upon everyone to get up off their knees, God's coming to read as one person today of the unbound wonder of what it is to be uniquely ourselves within a nude sunrise grinning. To make some progress forward for a better future, we're not meant to just pray for someone else to come and stop whom from cheating who of Liberty? What is it that you can't think of? Every wonder? Who wouldn't do God a favor if they could imagine so brightly. Who's stopping you from defeating tyrant bush as war criminal, but for only yourself contained by his continuing bad example? Tell you what: let's together find ourselves of one mind on putting the bushmob behind bars awaiting immediate public trail, and I'll promise to try visiting them every year, just to see how things are developing. Or instead just shoot bush and rummy for almost escaping Operation Infinite Justice of a real American Patriot soldier's undying love for his soul brother.)

Any improvements of the current situation in Iraq today, are going to be less that what would have costed to not kill innocent people for nothing but evil bushite war profitizing at it's level worst in this history ever of all Humanity recorded. The demon antiChrist of corporate america has got to go, and he's got to go immediately as arrested or shot dead by the Patriots for treason, before he causes US anymore needless losses and grief to our friends and family. Like for the next fifty or so generations what with the plutonium being fed blindly as willed to cowardly, weak, American teen enemy bushite soldiers presently. (If we could seperate the bushites from the rest of US, this might be a good thing, but they have no real leadership to speak about freely as the dying stupidly.(PRINT THIS PAPER AND MAIL IT EVERYWHERE))

DYING like those from 9/11 did, or dying slower, like with NYC air quality as best Oz has to offer. (Harmless corporate TV tells US without opinion.) Either or even in other ways, the demon bush is truly killing God's America in Your name not heard from. Help me you idiot. You! Yes you there, reading here. I am your secret friend see?, and.. well.. the Universe needs your help desperately pal. Please? For me? ..Oh God help me your really dumb without you aren't I too? Listen: we need to talk.

We are here to save all of creation from needless death. Big deal. Your are of a real eternal nature, that exists also, (as understood scientifically) timeless. For real. (The big bang is now. (All mass is also of not as seperate energy, then there's our gravity...))

Our possibilities for a great, better future are staggering, if we are capable collectively as individuals to defeat the "kindness" of George W. bush, the dying embodiment of evil as the very true demon antiChrist of all biblical references ever mentioned. His lying isn't just deceitful, it is downright hellish.

You know what I think? The evil enemies of Humanity, don't want US People to be recognized from being victims under tyranny through corporate cult censorship. Without Justice ruling our ways under the irrational criminal bushmob dictate, we lose as losers cheating ourselves as not worth the consideration to be free individuals.

Granted, I am an actual god familiar with the rights present within the Constitution of America. THEE God's god, here to teach the world about needless sacrifice, caused primarily, for the effects of inflated egg shell egos. As Creator, I goofed somewhere in the, order to chaos mixer. I didn't plan (it was a mistake) for Americans to be so cowardly and weak when it comes to defending their very own selves from needless death and sorrow through blatant, naked, how can you miss it, evil criminal enterprises. So, perhaps, now if I stop writing, and fake I flied off vamoosed into the unknowable, a couple people on the planet might go 'hmpht', and decide to carry on bravely, the real, honest to death struggle for freedom living without me as sorrily missed. (I as John am not anything special paradoxically.) This is fear itself, ain't nobody nowhere as terrifyingly terrifiable as this is just truly super terrific being only my simple written taughts, yet, ... I'm like.. just fiction writer, big dreamer Johnny Wizard, looking for some happiness, human respect, and a good last supper before I check out from this made by the earthling "space explorers" dungeon cell.

But who cares about me, or my great, he thinks he's so brilliant ideas? Everything's seriously a pain to him sometimes, and he talks to himself like he's the, been here and gone as eons now, King of the Universe for the holy Word from the Heavens above or something. What a poor dying fool to chance that anyone would willingly help themselves by caring for someone. ..You know, I'm beginning to not be all that crazy about the demon bush liar continuing to war humanity in my own true name also now that I think of life in this way honestly. H-e..Y -! (Morningstar has been accused of a lot of things, but you'll notice, always plays fair as your rules.))

What freedom in Iraq will come that allows a, buford blount to walk unaccosted by 'legal' services? Or where rummy's cluster dud advocates gain silent gratitude? A nation high-jacked by bremer's buddies who illegally sold Saddam WMD, then the product wisely gets destroyed as functionally useless being primarily indiscriminate warfare, then bremer's buddies come in again and murder untold thousands upon thousands, all because your magic TV is letting them get away with it as considered too embarrassing to the billionaire private stake holders. Fuk you corporate american Human haters for not reporting the bushites as war crime supporters.

Where in the real world are the nazi bushites gonna demand we go to allow 'them' to continue warring the Constitution while wearing a bushite soldier's uniform in their dying universes of Universe? Leaderless corporate america?, injured and dying as the unjustly starving? What can the bushites do now in Iraq, that they couldn't do before the needless murder of untold thousands upon thousands of innocent people with loving families? Before dumping thousands of tons of radio-active toxic waste as enemies of God's children? Only to rob, maim, and destroy God's great work through Love. We had complete unrestricted access throughout Iraq, and Saddam was offering the national media for bush to pontificate, while not refusing dialog for any suggestions.

I ask:

Can not America invite me formally for brunch, by somehow bypassing the war mongering nazi tyrant held up in the Oval office? I'd invite you all, but my place is still a mess, and I'm stuck eating for survival just now. I don't qualify for help, because surely, a person with your talents, should have someone willing to stave you off the, who cares about saving the world for you buddy, laughing in all seriousness shtick. (cool eh?)

I give you my world:

To save humanity from tyranny will be accomplished through the value of these free ideals recognized.

Isn't life grand sometimes when the bushites aren't needlessly murdering our innocent families in your name?

I again,
will now leave
you without me,

forever loved,

Johnny Wizard - Your "other" parent or guardian advising you to immediately, by Citizen Right, arrest the President's 'cabal' in the name of the Lord, who already died for this once already god damn it, and I'm not sacrificing any longer unknown as forgotten in the absence of any true reason to our existence, I want to celebrate. I want to afford a cold brew to nuzzle on a warm sunny afternoon, at a hideaway somewhere, lost in my comforts of having few real worries, but for unintentionally offending someone for not having the time to except their generous support, or gratitude.

" "We need to find a mechanism to create a caretaker government and then help prepare the elections later - sometime later in the future," he added. Mr Annan said that there was "wide agreement" "

Unelected care taking government? What is the group their now supposedly doing? Where in the process is corporate america to simply fix the Russian generators they've been paid over and over again already for as doing nothing in The People's interests?, As unaccounted to? Where is corporate america to fly in the emergency food and provisions for the innocent as victimized? Who's care will this continuing robbery of America through war crimes further fail to serve? How can Annan gain "wide agreement", with no poll on the issue? Who personally did he talk to, agreeing to leave Iraq without working for an elected government of the People?, and who consented to give up on such dire needs? Where is Annan on the thousands of tons of radio-active toxic waste dumped by rotten rummy? Is it not an issue he should personally be addressing for Humanity, to demand an immediate clean up paid for by those responsible? Imagine that: Truly toxic as dying, American Patriot soldiers making it up to God's great Creation, by hunting down the actual bad guys, who done did crossed the wrong family this time.

Wow, now that would be a war worth televising!

No End to War

The Frum-Perle prescription would ensnare America in endless conflict.

" And if God accepts the existence of evil, how do Frum and

The Perle-Frum prescription for permanent war makes sense only

New Moon

To steal public utility services paid already as owned completely by IRAQI, (America dying for the bushite American pension thieves at WorldCom or Britain's
"Dutch"-Shell,) ain't gonna change the business
locations. The evil unAmerican cop killing bushites think they're gonna party in Manhattan on our dime in apartments for around $15,000 a month, while sneering at a homeless beggar on the streets, who thought he was still in Vietnam.

An oil-for-Iraq program needs to be reestablished, but transparent to all as addressing the immediate emergency needs of Iraqis. Private, in the secret back room with the bushmob nazi bankers, and their private inept collaborators flustering as international fraudulent behaviors, just wont do., try as bush might to murder perhaps millions of Americans uncovered by his criminally enforced, reduction in health care coverage extravaganzas.

THE ROVING EYE IRAQ AND AL-QAEDA
Part 1 - The usual suspects
http://www.axisoflogic.com/artman/publish/article_5146.shtml

" This latest US intelligence, though, makes little sense. For starters, al-Qaeda pigeons are highly unlikely to move around with computer discs in their briefcases: since early 2002 a disabled al-Qaeda has used women couriers to deliver strictly verbal messages. "

Kimmitt in collusion with the bushmob perhaps? To cover up an investigation set up to encourage the blind murder of America as bushite by attempting to divide all the People of Iraq as Iraqi?, na... not in a tribal based, enduring practically timeless, inter-woven culture.

Those who ran public healthcare and university are all the bad guys for thinking, the blind bushite bigots would conclude illegitimately., and I would say to yourself: no, the People with equal rights to stay united for good times, are a people sworn to uphold law that serves our freedom's best. Iraqi assets are not bush and bremer's right to steal without question, nor either, American generosity swindled by WorldCom, Enron, Dutch-Shell or Halliburton is the final, be all answer to everything.

You as sure would know that unjustly victimizing the World in our name because "they" didn't believe in blindly worshiping with servitude, the war mongering mass murderer demon bush liar, is freedom stolen from any. Wide, across the board, ask anyone for comment on where the bombs dropped from. Needlessly in bush's name, but to war God's love, and my good life.

This is all I'm ever doing as King, but perhaps also, not going left hungry. If you can help me help you, we'll be set for something better.

Truth can pose serious problems, when we idolize blindly the evil demon antiChrist for criminal sacrifice, instead of arresting him for 9/11 along with cheney, and bummer rummy, the silent but radio-active cluster dud dropper who murders American Patriots for a nickel.

Too awe shock embarrassing is it to ameliorate for the sake of a dying American Patriot Kimmitt?

For, why would Laden want the bushites to stay to further rob America through creating instability within his own ranks? without denouncing the demon bush war lies, that are paying a very real price.. ? What would it cost commi Halliburton, to face public accountability (Democracy) in Iraq on where Iraqi money is being misappropriated for? Do you think they'll get to keep the oil business, to sell back to all of Iraq at uncontested mark up freely? To steal food aid to under pay the third world? Starving?

To steal public utility services paid already as owned completely by IRAQI, (America dying for the bushite American pension thieves at WorldCom or Britain's "Dutch"-Shell,) ain't gonna change the public business locations. The evil bushites think they're gonna party in Manhattan on our dime in apartments for around $15,000 a month, while sneering at a homeless beggar on the streets, who thought he was still in Vietnam.

Perhaps, he is.

By the bushmob attempting to create unrest, so Halliburton at al, can continue in the tommy franks chaos to rob America blind with false billing, instead of cash paying, is costing the lives of American teen soldiers. Who god love'em or hate'em, don't have the intellect to strategize their way out of an open paper bag, never mind evil bush's false creeds without real leadership present as living for. Instead of bruising our egos, the bushites are dropping bombs illegally on the family.

Man.

Ask a dying soldier how it sits to know commi Halliburton pocketed Humanitarian Aid? Go ahead, ask'em?! Then ask'em why they die as cowards by rummy cluster dud for the bushmob to rob their own direct families left unprotected? Ask'em! You know what they'll tell you? They're not happy about these bushmob war crimes truly destroying America in America, "freedom", "democracy", Johnny Wizard or otherwise., Or instead they'll mumble something incoherently while jaunting away to murder some one found defenseless, or innocent to pay further while dying to slave under the criminal dictate of the really evil demon bush Jr..

We need to see an apology to come from America, an apology to Humanity for this carnage waged unnecessary, but for these contemptible war profiteering practices as direct assaults to all as God is. Assaults that we have been unable to remedy by openly communicating to bush's secret White House, rumsfeld's secret Pentagon, or Ashcroft's secret Justice Department.

Just who's running this show anyway, I wanna know.

A - g - a - i - n

Will Americans save themselves with help from the rest of US, by arresting bush and rumsfeld immediately for high treason?, or will they cower and DIE as the innocent, in false gratitude to the lying traitors bushmob? To with their dying breath proclaim unattested, to be ridding the Universe of their continuing criminal behavior.. a.k.a. evil?

Evidence is a must to establish a crime scene provocateur, to deny such privilege is to deny freedom be served as consented through any government.

Hint: Demon bush, rumsfeld and Ashcroft, they ain't no struggling democracy entirely.

Look, the thing about God coming down, and having it out with humanity on some various critical issues, isn't like going to happen, it is doing.

We had complete unrestricted access throughout Iraq prior to murdering any innocent child in america's name.

These verbs will strike that antiChrist demon down for ever and a day, and if I've gone, faded away, these words will still remain, till now we meet again,

Ann Coulter - "Liberals just call Republicans names."

Her suggestion is against the common sense of a literate segment of humanity who knows something is a farce about this tart, and for me, entertains for words to gain a better understanding for proper acknowledgment.

Coulter is bigot rousing on purpose I think, just to get all the american corporate monetary gratitude, in selling herself not present as a significant baitor unaddressed publicly in our corporate news circles. She sells excuses to cowards, of not addressing specific acts of treason committed by individual traitors, like rummy or Ashcroft, and instead, suggests all people have no ability through bushite america to recognize themselves being robbed their freedoms or murdered directly for the furthering of the evil bush demon war lies.

Interesting.

A repuglicon nazi bushwhore, who will say anything to allow bush to steal further from America, is not a tried and true Republican blue collar. Is it in Ann's contention, that all Republicans can't imagine themselves having any independent opinions? Or, is Ann saying that every Liberal blames Republicans of every stripe throughout History instead lawless bush personally for sacrificing the nation as evil incarnate?, committing to murder individual New Yorkers as America sacrificing, then further acquiescing to needlessly feed toxic waste to all American soldiers, while loyally blowing themselves up dead as individuals to pieces with sexy rummy cluster dud, all for being blind disciples of the unAmerican bush demon antiChrist, their ungodly evil false-deity as enemies of God's love, America, and our good names?

Naming the repuglicon demon bush a terrorist recruiting cop killing heroin pusher, who played a central part in the murder of thousands of New Yorkers is well established factually, and publicly confessed as all planned to act upon before hand. Who says? MSNBC's Jim reported with the White House, as a 'top secret' [Oops, deceived America wasn't suppose to read this one Condi] strategy of not following the 9/11 crime scene evidence, and confessed as 'fully implemented'. A General Ahmad plan to blame bin Laden as innocent of to secure invasion of Afghanistan. For Enron et 'al, the treasonous g-e-t-t-i-n-g . . . a-w-a-y. ... Pension thievers. Robbing from American Patriots as lead worthless in value with. Dying.

Remarkable to say the least.

Anyway, solid, documented evidence including the circumstantials, like cheney's "The Dabhol Working Group", Niaz Niak, and the quietly contacting of allies publicly to attempt legitimacy of faked collusion, as such, with rummy's Pentagon arranging a same-time, what

(Also, to succeed in assisting in robbing the Central Bank, and museum, the nuclear facilities containing radio-active contaminants were left unguarded, as not centrally relevant to franks why soldiers were told they're still sacrificing their lives for. "Duh, why are we here to kill good people needlessly so the bushmob back home can further rob our undefended families bro? Bro?")

This is for all to agree settled as official History.

America devolving into the criminal tyranny of the evil bushmob is happening. All the while, we witness, the LEADERLESS nazi bushite soldier cowering as cowardly sell outs to their very own friends and family being robbed back home, left undefended through blatant over billing as UNACCOUNTED, leaving their own sons and daughters to dutifully eat plutonium, and going further silent when it comes to rumsfeld and franks needlessly dropping thousands of land mine cluster bombs to murder us people indiscriminately, which, kills their own aplenty, in a more way than one knows. Karma. (rummy's pentagon is misleading soldiers on how many have so far died to allow Halliburton to criminally steal humanitarian aid from The People, as one example,) Again, as bushite fascist nazi vermin, they let those responsible for destroying America through the bushmob war crimes, still sit in the, for sale freedom captain's chair, high-jacked from US true Loyalists, attempting to get away the bushmob is doing from 9/11, by going real fast .. nowhere.

Second, if Liberals include whomever, how could Ann possibly assess that all would consider calling ourselves anything but, unique as individuals? Bizarre.

The American Constitution is our souls included in those timeless thoughts of Justice for all as The People. The bushmob is destroying freedom by persecuting the innocent as terrorists, when they, in AMERICA'S NAME, throw out the concepts of Justice for any. No publicly understood evidence to form our conclusions, is a corporate demand your faith be in the unjust bushmob

'cabal', and not in Freedom for all through establishing the actual "bad guys". Closing the public criminal investigations on 9/11, is a critically essential part documented as the evil cabal's "top secret" criminal treason plans, put together prior to the murder of thousands of American citizens. Prior to the event as hidden question, and, confessed as never considered.

Playing to Win

Bush declared, "and he wouldn't let them in. And, therefore, after a reasonable request, we decided to remove him from power."

So, there was indeed no imminent threat posed by Saddam to Amerka, and inspectors had complete unrestricted access throughout Iraq without delay prior to the, bush demon's further war crimes. So, what was the reason for all the pointless mass murder and destruction again? Oh right.. to sacrifice American soldiers so terrorist bush's war profiteering can feed off themselves as family without leadership present as spoken for. Hey no problem if Bechtel or Halliburton never actually gets anything done, or at a good price after their magic trick "pay here for what?" commissions eat up most of the investment, it's only the dummy American People bid payers again left unaccounted to DIE intentionally. The bushites could make more killings for decades to come, while flogging the now desecrated American flag as the new bushmob's being intolerance, greed and true contempt for all US as Humanity. US, a dying dream that once was the great American way of living; now war crime bush's personal enslavement for global tyranny.

The devote bushites tell a Loyal but dumb Soldier to quietly eat plutonium and get blowed up by rummy cluster dud, because, it's harmless. Again the marines have got to come in and save our day, by arresting bush and rummy for 9/11 now, with truth as the all time word of God exists within yourself included. Look, don't think I'm gonna fly down to Washington like some comic hero, and arrest the entire bush administration, going through them, one by one from their holding cells, on where all the stolen cash and American values went all by myself.

GOD NEEDS YOU

All the deaths of American Soldiers in Iraq today, (like the People who died for the bushmob's 9/11), are caused from their leaderless weakness to not face bremer and the bushmob as war criminals continuing to transgress in America's name high-jacked.

Mr. bremer fired Iraqi school teachers, and hired up Saddam's secret service, those, who if any, would have closer relationships to charges of criminal impropriety in the name of the baathist banner, than any other group would be. If an American soldier in Iraq today, feels those from the Saddam Baathist regime should face American Justice (the real way by thinking) why then, is bremer not behind bars awaiting his public court appearance? Mr. bremer as the director of Kissinger Associates, is as, directly tied to "CRIMINALLY" providing Saddam his WMD knowhow. The first "Iraqgate".. [I apologize as Creator for being partially responsible for this worse than B movie but true plot line scenario, however, looky here!, there is so much more to believe!!!]

The bushmob tricks are too cunning to comprehend, see? Again, for those who can, bush must be stopped from murdering American Patriots for no good cause, because, it's really getting US royally miffed way up here also as the true beings actually committed to Justice as Freedom for all. That's all folks.

Imagine this is why the bushite soldier states the Humans must not be allowed to disagree with anything the bushmob in Iraq does, because then we'll all know together how pathetically weak and cowardly they truly appear as criminally acting with such betrayals as an ungodly evil tyranny, without any true leadership to speak about. Robbing their own nation of America as immediate family in the process. Dying. All for intolerant war monger bush's hatred for the American dream, and contempt for all human good will as kindness.

" The Corps unilaterally issued a waiver of Halliburton's requirement to provide "any cost and pricing data." The Corps says it issued the waiver at the request of Halliburton. How convenient. " (N.D.)

Just another PUBLIC bushmob act of sedition against the old red, white, and blue, to sacrifice an American Patriot as measured worthless with. So American Soldier, what are you going to do for US payers being robbed in the open by the bushmob in Your dying brother's name like that?, as one American Citizen censored from speaking publicly at length like all the rest of US are also in corporate america? Just try to air an American Patriots concern on american talk radio, and see how fast your rights are silenced by the witches, or bushite cultists Art Bell has no problem giving his National show over and over again to forbid any protest.

" Steven Russell said that "protests are not authorized and that participation in protests is punishable." "

" Steven Russell. "These People have always hated US in this area. It is not surprising that they hate US." "

He ain't kidding me he is completely unqualified to hold any leadership position. A real de-generative paranoid delusionist, mared likely early on from corporate neglect he suffers still from. He is what is referred to as a bigot, and likely therefor, a probable racist. The 'area' he forces through threats of murder, are to demand this vision be no greater than his own. His own of equality being freedom by Justice Supreme doesn't stand his scrutiny as aimed for target. Bible or Constitution, all trash. Innocent guilty, good guy bad guy, he couldn't divulge as devote blind bushite, war criminal 'mastermind'. Oh by the way, truly, he breeds indiscriminate warfare as a bad soldier, while the bushmob are walking away with who's loyal investment. . . ? . . . The clock is ticking. If I can teach Buford and Steve with this breaker, they'll turn around and kill bush and rummy instead for 9/11 to make the newspapers. This is why a repuglicon doesn't like to feed early start programs, that way, Lt. Col. Steven Russell can pretend he's doing US in this world a favor, when really, he couldn't care to know if his ACTION would CAUSE the needless murder of yet another, Patriot American brother. Steven, you arrest Buford, and Buford, well you just go ahead and arrest Steven, and then... well, we'll take it from there.

Instead What?

Instead tell US as an antiAmerican bushite?, you'll murder US innocent for demon bush and rotten rummy?, regarding those free speechers who dare voice with FACT, that, Iraqi banking, university, or health care, is more intelligent to remain Universal as it was to serve the People's interests BEFORE baathist bremer sabotaged communications? The bushmob isn't bringing Freedom, but stealing it. And as such being consequence, so too, Amerka. Haven't you heard? Bush's Amerka will be freeer now that evidence is no longer a requirement to convince US who is evil incarnate, and protesters can be shot without CNN making the news over it. It's betterer I'm sure Ashcroft would say to torture or murder the innocent, that to arrest the culprits responsible for high treason in God's America. Right bushites?

" commander of the 1st Battalion, 22nd Infantry Regimen, Lt. Col. Steven Russell, as saying, "This is to remind the town that we have teeth and claws and we will use them." "

What an evil dumdum traitor to the town of New York City steven russell is eh?

Imagine this is why the evil dumdum bushite soldier states the Humans must not be allowed to disagree with anything the bushmob does criminally, because then we'd all know how they ungodly as cowards behave; treasonously acting in such a inhuman tyrannical manner without true leadership to speak about. Ask an American Soldier who proudly states they wouldn't kill unarrested buford "bush bitch" blount or steven russell instantly to save the life of one innocent defenseless child, and I'll show you an enemy of America as just another expendable soulless nazi bush whore. (ten cents per I'm paying..) Let's all hope and pray a sexy rummy cluster dud dropped by bank robbing heroin pusher tommy franks does them in, instead of US good guys driving in the designated place at the right time bound for further criminal bushmob sacrifice as leaderlessly too weak and cowardly to stand up for 'the Human cause', eh?

An aside: Corporate Americans are publicly taxed twice as much per capita for their inhuman private health care exclusions, than Canadians do for public health care that measures every Canadian as Canadians. (The bushites are evil, and dumber than dumb I told you before the election, but your news agencies refuse to still listen to our top priority concerns regarding the demon antiChrist's murder rampages against American principles, and her citizens left uncapitalized.)
Think of it: the criminal bushmob will easily sacrifice a leaderless bushite nazi soldier, to steal from their own families back home undefended, maybe a nickel, while I, as a real man, beg them to be Soldiers from America's America, by getting to unarrested buford "bush bitch" blount, death squad recruiter tommy franks, or even baathist bremer as the actual enemies of true Patriots everywhere. At the same time, DEMANDING the start to promoting free fair elections, the solving of tommy's bank robbery, and the return of the stolen Humanitarian Aid giving illegally to double biller commi Halliburton.
But so far, they cower as cowards, afraid to protect their own family from further bushite tyranny that they don't have a mind to speak of. Nor, an Art Bell to learn from. (American Talk Radio don't wanta get political while advocating no concerns about dying soldiers led by the bushmob. Why? Americans seem to hate all of their humanity, or so the bushites would like you to think so through censorship of the dying victims. However, I'm still holding out on the chances of one or two in the Marines as loyal to America, who will if they have to, bravely be taking down bush and rumsfeld immediately for escaping arrest regarding 9/11.
You can fool some of the people some of the time, but bush can't fool all of the people as evil incarnate, for that would just be plain silly.)

Look, about all those bad names you thought I called you before, as a messed up son of a gun, listen, we all make mistakes, and... well, if your willing to work for the survival of Justice in America, somebody'll be proud to salute your Patriotism as Freedom truly reining. (Or perhaps the real Americans, to protect the lives of their blood brothers and sisters, will bravely demand the immediate arrest by gun point of the bushmob for 9/11, to be strong and brave, humane and godly. I guess we'll ask who is the sea, the demon antiChrist bush, along with Ashcroft and rotten rummy, or still We. - ba)

Communicating knowledge is powerful stuff let me tell you. (Roar) A person can spend a lifetime of study in a branch of understanding, and write an illumination readable by another in just a few short hours, then take in a play or perhaps a movie, then the weekends over, and you better get back to work or you'll lose the house on this next late mortgage payment. I don't claim to have all the answers, but i do just about. Hidden in here somewhere...

Step Right Up

I know generally, American people ain't so politically aware, when it comes to huge amounts of living wasted by little scary, but far too distant as likely scenarios. Tell me what you think: can you imagine 10 billion dollars in one year spent to investigate Laden, (with perhaps only three officers in total working on those 'secret investigations'? [Connie Chung - CNN], instead of just dirt cheaply starting, with whom did what when where went why? (W199i and Barbara Bodine) Evidence must be crucial to convince US who is stealing literally, billions. Every year. (Where is some great King to wake up to this madness, and offer US an ever changing alternative I kept foolishly asking myself.) Look,. I know a bushite war monger's lying can spook me too, on how they manage to have no commitment to communicate honestly with the facts, while publicly advocating the indiscriminate murder of ourselves as the innocent., instead of SEEKING solutions to remedy things with intelligence bringing kindness as it's territory. God is all great, and I'm not so bad either.

Of the blind human condition trying to thrive, G is the last Word on lethal threats to the innocent. Threats made by war criminals who have high-jacked America's White House, protected by dying as evil bushite nazi teen terrorists angers everyone truly. Enemies of our Humanity whom is still living art within Heaven. I genuinely dislike devote bushite, American cop killing cultists with everything I am of honestly, and so too, it does appear also, the bushmob could care even less for its disciples. For the demon antiChrist, Your Mr. Bush Jr., fools all Patriots when he tells them evidence of his treason. What secrets? He secretly planned and implements to not work for public criminal investigations regarding the murder of thousands of American People. Thousands. With Kissinger. What is it, that you as a bushite or otherwise, can't figure? None are seperate from this dying dream we call life's living end. Time to change your religious convictions on the true existence of a higher power maybe? (I am really very easy to believe in, and when speaking face to face, I leave little of no shadows to doubt I am simply a, super freak as Natural human Being. I scare few that shouldn't be, and I can't read anyone's mind, however, intention, is a whole other matter all together. You gotta be almost like a god to fool me into thinking one plus one doesn't equal two.)

Anyway.

America is still a work in progress, alive, willing, and almost able to defend by rule of individual rights by wHoly miGht. It makes absolutely no difference on what you think of me personally, (if you've finalized an estimation), I mean it, no difference. There are ideas as this Universe living would concur upon, timelessly, and see?, I know this as the Son of Man of anyone already, always have. (I don't need people to tell me I'm great as the Wisdom of Ages, I just need a few dollars to tide me over until I can get a steady paycheck.) I have no intentions of ever forcing the world against our ability, or getting elected as King for being just myself as a none-partisan, soft-spoken well mannered businessman. I am the actual make believe Lord and Creator of the bushite cesspool labeled America, and thanks for nothing is not what I'm demanding.

Letting the bushmob escape from committing the terrorist acts of 9/11, can not go further unanswered in this universe, I'm sorry. That's just not a world I as a defender of my living purpose would feel comfortable held up in chains and shackled ever. It's really not where I dream unbound along with the real world ways of life's struggle for true freedom, being my commitment kept honorably by doing some good for my sake is a virtue for all. God, American People are so ignorant, cowardly, and duped to not help ourselves sometimes, it destroys US, instead of the lying bush demon antiChrist. You know?, the enemy of all People, freedom and Justice? as a corporatist bushite cult deceiver would want US to not believe?

Can you believe that demon bush spewed last week that American Patriot Soldiers have been SACRIFICED because Saddam, ""did not let us in." Now, if he is that uninformed on Our documented reality regarding TRUTH in America, along with his now completely confessed absent war rational, will You, as an American Soldier, watch yet another corporately unspoken for Brother or Sister sacrificed to DIE in servitude for that super evil bush's bullshit continuing in Your name unchallenged?

Ottawa promises inquiry will get to the bottom of Arar case http://www.cbc.ca/stories/2004/01/28/arar_inquiry040128

Beautiful. As I wrote then, when I first learned of the Arar relationship, I postulated that in fact, the official RCMP, or CSIS, likely played no part in the terrorist bush jinx. Now, I'm not saying their could possibly be one blind devote bushite among the millions of Canadians that make our nation great, but truly I believe, we will get the enemy of freedom in America by just being ourselves. Blind bushite ideology centered on international criminality has it's downfalls in context to our relative real world situations, as we seem to be learning together, one way or the other.

" McClellan said the inspectors should continue their work "so that they can draw as complete a picture as possible. And then [and only then] we can learn - it will help us learn the truth." "

"...but we should not wait for every piece ... to begin to reconstruct what happened," Kay retorted. If we did, Kay offered, the bush administration could take more than 15 years! to acknowledge what is publicly known today by our intelligence officials!

What does McClellan want us to tell him about? We already do have a complete picture of betrayal by the almost unbelievable, super evil bushite administration, on their intentional lies of deceit to murder thousands of good Americans for stolen freedoms believed fought and died for already.

From Johnny Wizard's highly recomended "My Divine Right"

" The Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, found corporate America sold Iraq anthrax, VX nerve gas, West Nile fever germs and botulism, right up until March 1992, on hopes apparently, to risk further American soldier causalities, who were at that present time engaged in battle with poisoning themselves mostly.. "

Demon bush has stated over and over again, like rotten rummy has, Saddam didn't co-operate with US as the U.N. giving inspectors complete access without delay anywhere. Let US just kill the two escaping 9/11 perpetrating, war mongering mass-murderers for that!, my

"The People of Iraq are free"

The enemy bushite falsely faiths that somehow, in time, by forcing a continuing threat of our murders as the innocent striving for Freedom through representation, they as the enemies of You, America, Humanity, and God, will as they are doing, provide US a "free" government in this World that will permanently sell off all of our Nations assets below wholesale, to give into the convicted likes of a Halliburton, WorldCom, or five dollar a day, worker wages Bechtel. Now what kinda People's Democracy would that be then, where bush states is now truly "free" for his war crime ilk to rob from in Our stolen names dying? The demon bushmob 'cabal' has freed Iraqis from access to clean water, electricity, low cost fuel, food, medicine, being not bombed or shot at by getting organized, or non-radio-active-rec-centers.

So, the lawless demon antiChrist bush along with bremer, are pimping for bushites who will suit those who would vote in our pirated names to rob ourselves by such betrayals, TO SACRIFICE MORE AMERICAN PATRIOTS AS WORTHLESS WITH.

Bush's Iraq: An Appointocracy

" Except that the United States has absolutely no intention of actually getting out of Iraq. It wants its troops to remain, and it wants Bechtel, MCI and Halliburton to stay behind and run the water system, the phones and the oil fields. "

Never ever land more like. Imagine that: Arabic WorldCom phone bills, Halliburton gas bills, with the only store "legally" open to US public will be Bechtel, who will demand through bushite tyranny, you pay your wages for something unjustly over billed as, but put together at less than five dollars a day wages offered, being as the only jobs available through not publicly accounted bushite middleman directly chancing the whole country of America as undefended financially., extending "their" risk to do nothing; by the further needless SACRIFICE of MORE AMERICAN (bushited) PATRIOTS AS truly dying WORTHLESS WITH as da dumdums. Armed American Soldiers should be bravely going after Baathist bremer with DEMANDS for immediate democratic elections and the immediate return of ALL the stolen oil-for-food money to be spent entirely on priority Iraqi needs, solving the bank robbery, while considering to start printing up millions of invites for Iraqis to stay in America until the toxic waste dumped by rumsfeld can be partially neutralized., while we hunt down the rest of the evil bushmob, one by one, with the full extent of Law, entrusted to the Loyal American Patriot Soldier's Oath to do what is strategically right in our America to survive. Why do we do this? To protect our fellow Soldiers from sacrificing under lawless criminal command where a, buford "bush bitch" blount type, murders good people for no stated reason, but to toll more American casualties, while robbing all Civilization as fallen bushite victim.

No wonder the evil bushites are now leaving in the light, their Iraqi dis-investment plan, for the easier pickings of undefended COWARDLY America tax payers to rob from. Again, more than half of the monthly 4 billion plus 'top secret' plan, plans to not account to ourselves., on costs of expenses doing nothing much of anything in Iraq TO SACRIFICE MORE AMERICAN PATRIOTS AS WORTHLESS WITH. (Apparently, they can't think this far due to the required math skills of subtraction and division.. Or, so the bushmob don't say in between Our commercial breaks on newscasts, or our acclaimed artists publicly blast during the, we're the best at this, award ceremonies.)

See the tragedy? The leaderless "bushited", American Soldiers are too weak or cowardly to stand strong as Americans for the needless loss of their very own by cluster bomb. It is From the get go, an American Soldier is sacrificed for, as the evil demon bush lies. Examples abound today like stolen money being wasted to fake fix things, really lives little damage undone. Or leaving buford "bush bitch" blount and the heroin pushing, child killer tommy franks unarrested, does little of no good for America's image abroad, when waring the bushmob "Freedom" medal, on an American cop killing cowardly bushite soldier's dying breast. A "Freedom" medal celebrating the ultimate escape of bush and rumsfeld from an American Patriot's wrath as the primary 9/11 instigators. (Say to a proud bushite, "General Ahmad funded Atta" and they run away as cowards, to play pretend like nazi savages who dropped bombs on US innocent irrationally to pay further costs in sacrifice to their false-deity unthinkingly.) God or no God, I hate the demon antiChrist, corporate america's false-deity, Your unelected Mr. bush Jr., as much as any real Creator of this world, or any other should.

With such real inaction on old promises [lies] made by the dishonorable and dishonest leaderless bushite nazi savages, while desecrating all of Humanity by fighting against a just rule of Law, (instead of protecting America's America), forces the continued REAL WORLD sacrifice of true Liberty, until the bushmob gang is brought up by US for war crimes., as the 9/11 perpetrating, super evil as ungodly, demon antiChrist in disguises. (I very much would feel welcomed to play my part in those public proceedings.) Hmmm.. maybe CNN or CBC can become publicly convinced we should have our own news programs on what's truly happening?, to compete against the 'evil bushites' in this competitive free market place of ideas? Who knows..

Take care of the business, by getting US in on our news-casts., as these principles here standing in words, are a dreamers dreams, just waiting for You to bring to reality., by standing proud, strong, and forever free as a, truly, super awesome Human Being.

[then subverted to steal American lives with by lying]

Demon Bush replied, "No, the intelligence I operated on [then subverted to steal American lives with by lying] was good, sound intelligence."

Where is bush leading America on not ever taking an apology for his misdeeds to destroy our true American value with? I don't know how else to simply word this to the still sleeping, but bush isn't America, America is America. You, as an American, have a sworn right to demand for America, bush not be allowed to further miscarriage Justice blindly back to the dark ages, by not correcting himself on behalf of established publicly, where American intelligence stood, stands, and ultimately strives. Freedom is not protected by letting the "bad guys" go, to further toll more innocent lives for criminal sacrifice. Sometimes, the real simple things are over looked as profound meaning. The Magna Charta of 1215 states that a freeman should not be imprisoned. Simple right? Not for the bushites who side instead to faith in pope bush, who deliberately unminds a timeless universal principle that exists also in the 1700 B.C's, Code of Hammurabi, where all individuals are to be found equally under the Law, to be fair minded about our business. Simple right? No, corporate america says being fair, is not to care one way or the other between commercials., and the result? The available 9/11 evidence is not publicly disclosed as relevantly important, for Laden did the whole thing by himself, (bush, cheney, and rumsfeld said they know better than everyone else put together so don't even bother to form your own conclusions on your present state devaluating) case closed, now blindly pay your further tithes to bush, cheney and rumsfeld for letting the crime go publicly undetected, while with 13303, we will silently watch bush make himself tyrannical dictator over the rest of our Humanity, where he tells US, to escape, he will with evil american nazi bushite soldiers in tow, get this: not be found accountable to Ourselves anywhere by law to witness, or to an all knowing God even. Spooky, strange and somewhat disturbing, siding to show, bush really is dim-witted as archetypical evil incarnate eh? See? Civilization's Code of Hammurabi consists of 282 paragraphs, of which, the first line from the first paragraph translated states "If a man bring an accusations against a man, and charge him with a capital crime, but cannot prove it, he, the accuser shall be put to death." Your demon bush Jr. is recognized as an enemy of God not only by the Taliban, but since the birth of the Human condition. The position Your Mr. bush Jr., the antiChrist, threatens against US all, (EVERY FAMILY'S MAN, WOMAN, AND CHILD), is one where, as murdering war monger nazi tyrant, he can with bush bitch traitor buford blount and bremer, deem any NATION of People, outside all the laws of the Universe, regarding our truer existence dying. My timing as Creation is impeccable, when you think about it. But don't think too much about nothing in your own defense while dreaming what is doing, isn't really happening. The unjustified NEEDLESS continuing murder and destruction in Iraq by toxic bombings and the use of cluster bombs as landmine to really kill cowardly and ignorant American soldiers pirated as anti-American lawless God hating nazi teen bush bitches, then, with tommy franks to undermine the ORHA plan to rob the central bank, museum, and steal billions in humanitarian aid by killing more leaderless as evil godless american soldiers with, was in itself, a crime against Your Humanity., and bush along with rummy need to pay the Piper immediately, before needlessly, taking US any further as not truly represented lyrically to sing or dance about aimlessly.

The demon bush's life, isn't worth the sacrifice he makes of our opinions on Liberty, or our children's future.

The French 1789 Declaration of the Rights of Man and of Citizens, makes perfect sense when it states in so many words, that all People are born [anywhere] free in respect to their legal rights, Laden, and You included. But no, not by the evil bushite misrule. If a Human is not american, then the bushites don't need to follow the actual criminal leads to establish a criminal case rightfully against the accused, and instead, the bushites will blindly victimize our dying world as the disenfranchised and innocent, without true leadership present as spoken for.

By corporate america not working to understand Freedom requires our due process as our self commitment, means, a bushite nation guided by the flimsiest of allegation to deny the rights of all People falling as innocent victims, instead of nabbing the actual criminal masterminds who murdered Americans to steal Freedoms granted to US all by living in the know. So, I purpose a quick, let's get started, New World Constitution; anyone who victimizes the innocent intentionally, should pay a price by our political will, instead of ourselves censored, as the unconcerned bushmob victims. By our corporate news agencies encouraging the blind ungodly belief that evidence is no longer a requirement to convince US who is a criminal, is another bushmob war crime in the making, and a road straight to doom for everyone corporately devalued for bankrupt liquidation. Suspicion is the minimum, when it comes to bush demanding your blind faith in him religiously for indiscriminately murdering hundreds of thousands, while ignoring our Judicial investigations, so fraudsters commi Halliburton, can over bill even further, US tax givers as the unwilling still paying. It was reported that seriously incompetent Bechtel, (who steadfast so far as america's corporately unaccountable, refuses to fix what they're currently being paid for by tax paying bushite soldiers DYING as COWARDS for the wrong side to blow up then pretend repair as), hires workers at five dollars a day, while billing US all as unworthy of consideration in the final tallies during news break. What can't you figure if corporate news america will forbid you raising concern for the life of an American tax payer losing out to war criminals who would murder New Yorkers for a fast dollar at your expense for further keeping silent? These words are freely your own to do as you will. Shout for Americans dying needlessly under the TRULY incompetent bushite lawless rule, or don't side to help a plead for mercy regarding yourself truly included.

Can the bushites possibly think, we're all not ever possible to stand together without a true Loyal President, or, make believe King named Johnny, on the facts firmly established regarding the treasonous war monger antiChrist lying to Patriots dying US as victim for?

America, I will now leave the rest of Our job in your hands for the time being.

Yours again,
Johnny Wizard

Regardless of your ignorance, it is the amateurs that are pointing out the potential problems of BPL. If nothing else, this speaks volumes about the need for reasonable tests for potential amateurs (not something that you can walk into a test and walk away with an 'extra' class license). The code/no code arguement, in my opinion, is moot; what is more to the point is what these amateurs can and do contribute, regardless of the rants of many folks who may be envious of the frequencies available to amateurs.

I worked in EMC compliance. We had a problem with interference from powerlines. Yes, it is possible to reduce the problem. Whilst it won't qualify as a test to pass a particular piece of hardware, it is great for determining sources of RFI. Someone has a problem with RF interference to home equipment (not necessarily amateur). How do you solve it? I've helped in both cases. Some folks have minds so closed that they can't see the forest for the trees (or vice-versa).

I remember finishing my active duty with the U.S. Navy. I suspect it was verteran's day as there had been a parade and I was in a bar later on. A few guys in Navy uniforms had a problem. I overheard the conversation. Their transmitter had low output and couldn't tune. I went over to them and asked to see the transmitter. Sure enough, a bad cap in the tank circuit. We repaired it on the spot (dang if I didn't get hornswaggled into joining the reserves LOL).

When folks like you ask "did you repair that pothole in interstate 90 between ....", you are missing the point. It is the knowlege and theory that can enable hams to assist in many situations. Although I had engaged in emergency communications on Guam Island (and it was many years ago) and an SOS on 500 KHz at sea (also many years ago), you assume that I am obsolete. I would suggest that bad capacitors still happen and the folks with some technical background still can help. Although that situation with the U.S. Naval Reserve was many years ago, I've also repaired much more modern transceivers in the past decade. I am also quite capable of reducing interference between devices today. You dwell on the past; the technically astute needn't.

BTW, BPL is not going to serve the "underserved". I won't explain it. You take the time and effort (if you have the perseverence - which I doubt - and research it).

Gerry and others,
Yes I have went thru 2 of those dam things already. A big white one with normal minute and hour hands which I threw away after a few weeks of trying to make it behafe. Then got the more or less square shaped one with wooden panels on eachside of the clock face. Shows day date weekday (seconds or indoor temp) Outdoor temp. Has an ICON top center thats supposed to show up black if WWV is being heard.
Mine rarely does unless take it upstairs and point it north/south.
Then the icon (wwv) shows very dimly. Mine is supposed to access the WWV sig during hours from midnight to 6am only. But still the ICON rarely shows up. I hear the people who sell them are very helpful and will even replace your clock if you cant resolve the problems. Their ph nr is 1 (800) 972-0292 and ask for Shelly.

Whack! right on James. As if any of today's grid gloms are some kinda dreamy nitwits who are gonna take Internet access into the boonies like the TVA did with volts and amps.

I am looking for a logging program for just logging QSO's that can convert log files to the ADIF format.
I am looking for a shareware program as I am spouse finanically challenged.

Forget about getting an atomic clock to set in Hawaii. The signal is simply too weak. Atomic Time (who I bought my dual time clock from) says that it helps if you point the antenna (apparently they just use ferrite rod antennas-just like in a cheap transistor radio-to recieve) towards Fort Collins, which is due east of my QTH.

Yes, that's the impression I got too. Somewhere on the net I saw a diagram of WWVB's coverage area-it covers all of North America at night and just a little area of the Rockies during the day.

Are you sure your not talking about wwvb, and not wwv. Or in Poor "Stephen", arrested for stealing donations from the United Way donation jar at a convienince store. Say, maybe you can console high-el, now that his episcopalian priest daddy did a dirt dump on March 1st. You know, he followed in the footsteps of those catholic priests with the improper relations with the altar boys. Myabe that's why they moved around so much.

And your step mommy came to adopt you how? Did your real birth mom toss you on the steps of an orphanage or did she trade you for pack of cigarettes?
Did your birth mom look at you and say, "Oh! Shit! I wasn't planning on giving birth to a one-legged Troll."
Bet your birth mom wanted her money back...too bad the Sailor who paid her for sex was shipping out...rumor is he later died of venereal diseases.
And what is it like, Wussman, to be a real life, bonified Bastard? What is it like to forever wonder whose sperm begat you and under what circumstances?
Did your daddy "plug" your mom during a drunken weekend liberty? Where did your Daddy get off to? Did he run out or get transferred to points unknown?
Just think...if your mommy had swallowed just one more time you wouldn't be here! What a Hoot, Rog. You were only a swallow away from not being born.
What was your daddie's last name? Do you even have a Birth Certificate?
Yes...one from a Hospital...your certificate from the Humane Shelter doesn't count.
Your insane fetish in regards to Lloyd is paled in comparison to your own questionable background.
Take another pill, Wussman.
You are not all together with the mainstream....never will be.
You are a sick puppy, Rog, but thank your lucky stars that your Mommy was not a swallower. Otherwise you wouldn't be dirtying the face of this community.

Try ACLOG by N3FJP. It is very user friendly and has the most features I've seen for tracking contacts. You can try it for free. Then if you want to keep using it, the fee is only $15

Awww, poor fatassed "Steven", he's just so mad because while his daddy was serving time in jail, (which later convicted FELON "Stephen" did also) his mommy has sex with all the black men in the community, and 9 months later, she shit out "Stephen."

Looks like daddy high-el did follow those catholic priest footsteps...oh, oh.. I bet dumbass davey was an altar boy, too!
But let's not forget "Steven"'s buddy, Michael W. Bryant, who was busted for pot and smoking it with his students which made him do a plea agreement and resign before he got fired from

Or how Whorass Grimm's wife left him because of the physical

I'd shoot for a bit more than -65 dB. A good Sinclair notch duplexer can easily exceed -95 at 600 kHz spacing. I wouldn't good for much less than -85 dB on a two meter system.

From the Kansas City Star:

"If you ever bump into Larry Woodworth around town, be sure to ask him who he's been talking to lately.

"As a longtime amateur radio operator, Woodworth has access to the world at his fingertips.

"With the push of some buttons and turn of some knobs on his radio, he can talk to people as far away as Africa or Japan. And all it takes is one watt of power, he says with a smile.

"Woodworth is the director of the Ensor Farmsite and Museum, a little known museum on 183rd Street in southern Olathe that recently earned distinction as a national historic place. The farm housed one of the country's earliest amateur radio transmitting stations from 1917 to 1973.

"But not only does Woodworth oversee the museum as director, he continues to keep amateur radio, also known as ham radio, operations alive within the house. He even uses one of the original 80-foot radio towers used by the home's former owners and residents, Marshall Ensor and his sister Loretta Ensor. Both were ham radio operators.

"Marshall gained notoriety as a radio amateur during the 1930s when he taught Morris Code over the airwaves to thousands of people across the country and Canada."

Hello,
From the nature of the question you can probably guess that I am new to ham radio.

What is a "call channel"? The instruction manual for my 2M/70cm portable transceiver mentions being able to set up a call channel, but it does not define what that is. Can someone tell me what it is and what it is good for?

TIA,

Personally I think if some of you spent as much time working or on the radio, instead of worrying about the other fellow, you'd be too busy to care..:)

The "Call Channel" enables you to file a rapid direct report to the FCC on any other ham who is bothering your or breaking FCC rules.
Generally speaking, no set up is required, but if you live over 1000 mile from a FCC office, then you might need to set it up. Operating the Call Channel is simple, just press "call" on most righs, and the report is on its way. Hope this helped some.

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

3B9, RODRIGUES ISLAND. Mart, DL6UAA, who was active earlier in the week from Mauritius as 3B8MM, is now active as 3B9MM. The length of his stay is not known, but he seems to be very active on CW on the WARC bands. QSL via DL6UAA.

4W, TIMOR LESTE. Operator 4W4JEG was active this past weekend on 21245 kHz after 0215z. QSL via JR6ETW.

5H, TANZANIA (Also IOTA Op). Eric, SM1TDE, will be active as 5H3/SM1TDE from Dar Es Salaam between April 4-18th. His activity will mainly be on CW but with some RTTY and SSB as well. His frequencies for CW are usually 2 kHz up from the band edges. He will only use 100w and simple antennas. Eric may also be active for a few days from Zanzibar Island (AF-032) during the second week. QSL via SM1TDE, by the bureau or CBA.

5K, COLOMBIA. Pedro, HK1HHK, announced that he will be using the callsign 5K1X during the CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th). Operating class is not sure. QSL via HK1HHX.

5V7C QRT. The 5V7C team is now back home. They went QRT this past Saturday around 1330z. The team is very tired but are pleased that they made some 17500 QSOs. Look for more updates on news about the QSL cards and online logs. Remember to QSL via F5TVG. A complete report on the DXpedition will be available soon on their Web page at: http://www.5v7c.free.fr

6 METERS MARATHON. Attention 6 meter Ops! The Rientolan Amateur Radio Club, OH3AG, invites you to participate in the first Global Six Meters Marathon. The objective of the Marathon is to work as many DXCC countries as possible between May 8th, 2004, at 0000z and August 8th, 2004, at 2400z on the six meters band. The results of this contest will be published during the Tampere Six Meters Forum on August 14th when the Magic Band enthusiasts abroad will meet. This marathon is open to all amateur radio operators world wide. You can follow this contest online at: http:/www.50mc.tk

9A80, CROATIA (Special Event/Attention Prefix Hunters!). Emir, 9A6AA, informs OPDX that radio club "Zagreb", one of the oldest radio amateur radio clubs in Europe, is celebrating its 80th anniversary. The club was founded on March 29, 1924. There will be three special event stations active daily using the prefix 9A80 (9 Alpha Eight Zero) until December 31st, 2004. Look for the following: 9A80Z, 9A80ABD and 9A80ADE. QSL via the following QSL Managers: 9A80ADE and 9A80Z via 9A3KR
9A80ABD via 9A4A

9M6, EAST MALAYSIA. As this was being written Don, K6IPV, was preparing to leave Sunday night for a visit to his old friend, VK6XA, in Perth. He will not be on the air there since Bill has sold his gear. However, from there he will head to Hillview Gardens, in Borneo, where Don will operate as 9M6AAC before the contest and 9M6A during the contest. QSL is via N2OO. His arrival at HGARC is on March 224th, and his last day on the air will be the 30th.

BW3, TAIWAN. Tatsuhiko, JD1BKQ, will be active as BW3/JD1BKQ in the CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (20m)/Low-Power entry. QSL via JR3PZW.

CORRECTION DEPARTMENT. The following are the corrected Web links which had typos in their URL address in last week's OPDX.651 (ed. Sorry, your editor's eyes are getting old!). Please correct the URLs under the following headings:

SKP 2004. http://www.prarl.org/skeyparty2004.htm
XF4, REVILLA GIGEDO. http://xf4ih.xedx.net

CT7, PORTUGAL. Look for Dario/CT1EWE and Nelson/CT2GVG to participate in the CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th) using the special callsign CT7Z. QSL via the operator's instructions.

EI25, IRELAND (Special Event). To celebrate the enlargement of the European Union to 25 members on May 1st, the Irish Radio Transmitters Society (IRTS) is issuing a European Union Enlargement Award for amateurs who contact special event stations with the prefix "EI25" during the weekend of May 1-2nd. The special event stations will be located in ten Irish cities/towns which will represent or have been twinned with a new member state as listed below: Special Event QTH Represented/Twinned with Callsign New Member State
---------- ---- ----------
EI25CY Bray Cyprus
EI25ES Galway Estonia
EI25HA Sligo Hungary
EI25LY Kilkenny Lithuania
EI25ML Waterford Malta
EI25OK Killarney Czech Republic
EI25OM Cork Slovakia
EI25SL Limerick Slovenia
EI25SP Letterkenny Poland
EI25YL Drogheda Latvia
In addition, an IRTS HQ station with the callsign EI25EU will be operational from Dublin. AWARD REQUIREMENTS: To qualify for the award, stations should work the ten EI25 stations listed above but may use the HQ station EI25EU as a "joker" for one missing contact (Also see SUBSTITUTE STATIONS). SUBSTITUTE STATIONS: If a contact with one or more of the EI25 stations is not made it can be substituted by 2 contacts with stations located in the relevant new member country (e.g. If EI25HA is not worked, it may be replaced by QSOs with 2 HA stations. However, a total of 3 EI25 stations must be included in the award submission). While EI25 stations will only be active on May 1-2nd, 2004, contacts with "Substitute Stations" may be made up to 5/31/2004. All applications for the award must be received by 12/31/2004. The award is available to SWLs on a 'heard' basis. QSL cards are not required, but applications should be submitted by way of log entries certified by two licenced amateurs. The Award will not be endorsed for band or mode. A fee of € 5.00 or 5 IRCs should accompany the application which should be addressed to: IRTS Awards Manager, P O Box 462, Dublin 9, Ireland.

HB75, SWITZERLAND (Special Event/Attention Prefix Hunters!). During the year 2004, the Swiss Amateur Radio Club (USKA) headquarters will be using the special callsign HB75A in celebrating its 75th anniversary. For prefix hunters: There will be an entry in CQ WPX SSB Contest with the all time new prefix, HB75A. Operators for the contest have not yet been decided, but they will enter the contest as a Multi-Single. QSL via HB9A.

IOTA NEWS.....
AS-079. Yoshiro, JA1AMP (JL3SIK), will be active from Tarama Island (part of the Miyako Islands), April 9-11th. His callsign will be JA1APM/6. Look for activity on 40-6 meters CW/SSB (possibly RTTY, PSK31 and MFSK16). QSL via JL3SIK by the bureau or direct to: Yoshiro Nishimura, Takemidai 4-2-6, Suita City, Osaka 565-0863, JAPAN.

AS-117. A team of JA operators will be active as JO1ZZZ/3 from Awaji Island, March 20-21st. Activity will be on 160-6 meters CW, SSB, RTTY, PSK31 and MFSK16. QSL via JL3SIK (QRZ.com).

EU-075. Charles, KE2SP, will be active as SV8/KE2SP from Hydra Island until June 15th. He is running QRP (5 watts into a dipole). He was heard this past week on 21277 kHz at 1248z and 18162 kHz at 1453. QSL via his home callsign.

EU-128. Andy, DL4OK, will be active as DL4OK/p from the Staberhuk Lighthouse (ARLHS reference FED-226) located on Fehmarn Island (GIA O-01 for the German Islands Award), March 18-25th. His activity will be on 80-10 meter CW/SSB. QSL via the DARC Bureau to DL4OK.

NA-184. Operators Ed/K0NW and Laurence/WA6LUT will be active from St. Georges Reef (NA-184) and the Lighthouse (ARLHS USA 793) from April 30th to May 2nd. The callsign will be WA6LUT. The operators will be primarily on SSB on the usual IOTA frequencies. QSL to WA6LUT.

OC-170. (Update to OPDX.651) Alek, VK6APK, has sent OPDX an update regarding the trip to Woody Island, by the VK6DX Chasers Club commencing March 20th. The callsign to be used will be VK6EWI. This is the same callsign that was used during the last activation of the island by the group. Also, a seventh member has joined the operating team. He is Richard, VK6TT. Look for them on or near the standard IOTA frequencies on 40-10 meters.

KH6, HAWAII. Yuzuru, JR1AGC, will be active KH6/JR1AGC from Kona, March 28th through April 1st. Activity will be on 75-6 meters, but he mostly prefers 15 meters SSB (21202/21242 kHz). Antennas mentioned are a 75-30m Long-Wire, 20-10m SIGMA-5 and 6m HB9CV.

KP2, U.S. VIRGIN ISLANDS. Harry, W6DXO, will be active as KP2/W6DXO from the Island of St. John (NA-106) between now and March 19th. Activity will be mainly on 17/12/10 meters SSB and with PSK activity planned. QSL via his home callsign, direct or by the bureau.

LIGHTHOUSE ACTIVITY. Look for Steve, G0SGB, to be active as ZB/G0SGB/p from the Europa Point Lighthouse (ARLHS GIB-001) from Gibraltar on March 20-21st. He also plans to activate four other lighthouses on Gibraltar during this stay there. There is also reports that Steve, G0SGB, will be active from various lighthouses in Spain as EA/G0SGB/p on March 22nd and 23rd. Activity will be mainly on 14264 kHz or possibly other bands as conditions permit. QSL via his home callsign (QRZ.com).

OH0, ALAND ISLAND. Operators OH2GEK, OH3BHL, OH8GCW and OH9MM will be active as OH0I in the Russian DX Contest (March 20-21st) as a Multi-Single entry. QSL via OH3BHL. ADDED NOTE: Also, look for activity in the BARTG RTTY Contest with a separate station on the air!

PJ4, NETHERLANDS ANTILLES. Helmut, DF7ZS, informs OPDX that he will be operating in the CQ WPX Contest as a Single-Op/All-Band entry (starting March 27th) on SSB from Bonaire as PJ4P. He will stay for one week after the contest operating as PJ4/DF7ZS for some casual operations. QSL is via his home callsign. Logs will be available after his return at: http://www.df7zs.de

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
6D9X QSLS. Jim, N1NK, announced this past week that after a couple of setbacks in the printing process, he now has the 6D9X QSLs and the first batch of cards went out in the mail March 9th. All the direct requests that he has, should be processed in the next couple of weeks. He is sorry about the delay.

QSL the recent (Friday, March 12th) 4U1UN activity to QSL Manager HB9BOU, direct or via the USKA (HB9) QSL Bureau. Operators were Theo/PB7CW and Henry/KT1J/PA0AFN.

RESULTS OF THE 2003 BEST DXPEDITION SURVEY. The 425 DX News announced their results of the "Best 2003 DXpedition Survey" this past week. The ST0RY DXpedition to Sudan (March-April 2003) was voted the 425 DX News "DXpedition of the Year" for 2003. Congratulations to the winner. For more details and the complete list, please visit the following Web page at: http://www.425dxn.org/trophy_2003/

SV/A, MOUNT ATHOS. Reports are coming out that at least half of the 800 year old Helandari Monastery complex was destroyed by a fire last week on Thursday. None of the 25 resident monks were hurt, and reports indicate that a collection of centuries old icons, heirlooms and religious relics were saved. This is not the same location where our friend Monk Apollo,

SV2ASP/A, lives and transmits from. The fire was at the Chelandri Monastery. Monk Apollo lives at the Docheiariou Monastery. For more details and actual pictures of the fire, please visit the following Web pages at:

SV9, CRETE (Early Contest Announcement). Look for operators Roberto/I2WIJ, Salvatore/IK8UND, Luigi/IK8HCG and possibly others to be active as J49Z during the CQ WW DX SSB Contest (October 30-31st) as a Multi-Single entry. QSL via IK8UND, direct only.

T33, BANABA (DXpedition Update). Alan Eshleman, K6SRZ, sent out the following press release last week: "During the next two weeks, members of the T33C team will be heading for rendezvous on Tarawa (T30), and from there on to Banaba (T33). T33C should be on-the-air by April 4 or 5. All of the equipment that was shipped from Europe has now cleared Kiribati customs and is ready for transfer to Te Taobe, the boat that will take the team from Tarawa to Banaba. T33C's likely operating frequencies are now posted on the expedition Web site: http://www.dx-pedition.de/banaba2004/
The T33C operators understand that there will be other DXpeditions on the air at the same time. For that reason, our frequencies may change from time to time. To prevent overlap and confusion with other operations, we will try to maintain splits and spreads that do not conflict. We encourage all hams to be sure that any packet spots of T33C are, in fact, our station. It would be a shame to work another station thinking you were working T33C and not be in our log. This has happened before on other expeditions. If there is any doubt whether or not you are our log, please work us again. Hams throughout the world may communicate problems or suggestions through our pilot stations:
Europe Martino, IK3RIY (ik3riy@libero.it)
West Coast NA Larry, N7DF (n7df@yahoo.com)
East Coast NA Woody, KQ4NW (kq4nw@rbnet.com)
Asia Toshi, JA1ELY (ja1ely@bb.mbn.or.jp)
Oceania Gary, KH6GMP (kh6gmp@hawaii.rr.com)
South America: Daniel, PT7BI (MiltomMoutinho@aol.com)
Freddy, PY3YD (py3yd@radioamador.com)
When we establish a reliable PACTOR link, we will send daily logs and bulletins to our Web site. All logs will be refreshed upon our return to Tarawa on April 18. The T33C team again thanks all those organizations and individuals who have contributed to the effort....."
Contact: Alan Eshleman/K6SRZ (doctore@well.com) ... For the T33C team

VP9, BERMUDA (A Real Early Annoucement!). Jon, N0JK, informs OPDX that he will be active in the CQ 160 CW Contest in January 2005. He mentions that he will have a decent transmit antenna and use a receive antenna.

WARD 2004. Sylwester, SP2FAP, MK QTC Editor, informs OPDX that the WARD 2004 Award (World Amateur Radio Day 2004 Award) is designed to commemorate the "World Amateur Radio Day" celebrated by the IARU on April 18th each year. The Award is issued by the MK QTC (Polish Amateur Radio Journal) with support of the PZK (The Polish Amateur Radio Union).

WARD 2004 will be granted/issued for at least the following numbers of contacts (any stations in the world): either 10 QSOs on HF bands, or 5 QSOs on VHF+ bands. All contacts must be made between 0000-2400z on April 18th. Send a standard application form (log extract), including the list of QSOs, to: Redakcja MK QTC, ul. Wielmozy 5b, 82-337 Suchacz-Zamek, Poland, on or before May 31st, 2004. The price of the WARD 2004 Award is 10 IRCs or USD 5.00 or EUR 5.00. Full-color Award, size: 210 x 297 mm.
The WARD 2004 Award is also available to SWL's for the same numbers of reports. More info is available at the following Web page:

In general depending on the manufacturer, the call channel will open up even if you are on another memory. That allows your buddy to call you when you are not monitoring the agreed on channel (the call channel)

Yeah, that's exactly the problem we face (well, that and a lack of appreciation for irony, judging by some of the responses I'm seeing to your post)...non-hams, including a lot of businesspeople involved in lines that are looking for more frequencies to use, look at it from just that perspective: hamming is a fringe hobby that eats up valuable spectrum and provides nothing to the average person that they can't already get from the Internet. That's the superficial sound-byte opinion, and people won't invest much time in trying to get beyond that. One can only educate those who want to be educated...

Alright people, knock off the childsplay. The "call" channel refers to a feature on the radio. Usually on 2 meters its 146.525 I think, and I cannot remember 70cm. Anyway, once this particular frequency is programmed into the "call channel" you are able to access it normally at the push of one button. Most mfg., already have this programmed for the national calling frequency for each band. Some people will meet up on a repeater and say, 'hey, lets go simplex and meet up on the call channel.' then all's you have to do is hit that one button, and your all set.
Good luck!

Amateur Radio Newsline(tm) Report 1387 ï¿½ March 12, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1387 with a release date of Friday, March 12th, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T. The FCC says that automatic stations have to avoid willful interference to other hams. Also, a magazine editor speaks out on restructuring. Hear the details on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1387 coming your way right now.

RADIO LAW: AUTOMATIC RESPONSIBILITY FOR ALL HAMS

The FCC says no Amateur Radio stations are exempt from the requirement to avoid unnecessarily interference with ongoing communications. This includes automated operations. Amateur Radio Newsline's Rick Johnson, KA9VZD, is in Antioch Illinois with rest of the story:

According to the ARRL Letter, FCC rules enforcer Riley Hollingsworth says that it is important for all stations, including automated ones, to realize that they are responsible for any interference caused when they come on top of existing communications Hollingswoth told the ARRL Letter that an amateur had written to him alleging that what appeared to be automated PACTOR stations that were routinely starting to transmit atop PSK31 QSO's on 40 and 30 meters.

In response, Hollingsworth noted that there are no exemptions for automated stations. Rather that the Amateur Service rules address interference with other communications. The rules say that no amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any other radio communication or signal.

The amateur who filed the complaint reportedly also contacted one of the PACTOR stations in an effort to develop a dialogue to solve the problem. Hollingsworth expressed the hope that all involved in the PACTOR versus P-S-K 31 problem can work things out. He also points out that stations responding to automated interrogations are equally responsible for not causing interference to existing communications.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Rick Johnson, KA9VZD, near Chicago.

Hollingsworth also issued advisory letters to three hams who operate automated stations to remind them of the rules. (FCC, ARRL Letter)

ENFORCEMENT: HAM WHO ALLEGEDLY HARASSED POLICE ASKED TO EXPLAIN OR TURN IN HIS LICENSE

The FCC Enforcement Bureau is once again naming names and it has asked one ham to explain why he allegedly transmitted on a public service frequency to harass law enforcement. Henry Feinberg, K2SSQ, has the rest of the story:

In a February 18th letter to Russel A. Brown, N1KHV, of Palmer, Massachusetts the FCC says that it is considering action based on a February 3rd Incident Report from the Monson Police Department and a February 15th Investigatory Report and a Statement. The latter reportedly was signed by Brown and documents his deliberate operation on Police frequencies without a license. This, the FCC alleges was an attempt by Brown to interfere with police communications and harass police personnel.

The FCC inquiry makes it clear that the information he submits will be used by the Commission in determining Brown's qualifications to remain a Commission licensee. The FCC also has given Brown the option of voluntarily submitting his license for cancellation in order to avoid a hearing on the issue. Brown was told to indicate his preference in his response which was due within 20 days of the FCC letter of inquiry being issued.

The FCC also warned Brown that providing a willfully false or misleading reply would be the subject of a separate enforcement action and could subject him to additional sanctions. (FCC)

ENFORCEMENT: CHANGING CALL SIGNS BRINGS FCC INQUIRY

The FCC wants to know why a Tennessee radio amateur keeps changing his call sign. And, in a February 18th letter it is asking Donald H. Binkley the regulatory agency is asking the Nashville ham to explain why he has been jumping between two calls for the past six years.

According to its letter of inquiry, Binkley currently holds the call K4WX. The FCC says that license grant was originally made on September 23, 1998. On June 19, 2000 the FCC says that Binkley filed an application to change his call sign from K4WX to N4ZZ. That application was granted on July 7, 2000. Then, on May 15, 2002 Binkley applied to change your his sign from N4ZZ back to K4WX. That application was granted on June 4, 2002. Now, Binkley has applied for the N4ZZ call once again and this time his request appears to have raised a proverbial red flag with the FCC. As a result, the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau has forwarded the latest application to the enforcement folks for follow-up and review.

In his letter to Binkley, FCC rules enforcer Riley Hollingsworth says that these ongoing applications raise questions about apparent abuse of the licensing system. He notes that the Communications Act gives the Commission the authority to request information from licensees and applicants regarding their applications and operation of their radio stations. And that's just what he is doing with Binkley,

He has told K4WX to respond stating his intentions regarding the filing of these applications. He also told Binkley to let his office know which of the two call signs he wants to keep. Binkley was given the usual 20 days from the date of the FCC's letter to respond. (FCC)

RESTRUCTURING: AN EDITOR SPEAKS OUT

The editor of a popular ham radio magazine says that his readers have strong opinions on restructuring, and he wants them shared. In an interview with Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, CQ's Rich Moseson, W2VU, talked on a general level about the various restructuring proposals and about his upcoming C-Q reader survey:

CQ's Rich Moseson says there's been an active dialogue going among readers of the magazine since the latest round of amateur radio licensing restructuring proposals landed at the FCC's door:

--

"We have a whole raft of petitions that have been filed with the FCC over the past several months all proposing various things from radical changes to little tweaks from eliminating the code requirements completely to adding new ones," Moseson says. "It's a great opportunity for discussion and for a forum on what the ham community thinks our hobby should look like going into the future."

Moseson says despite the diversity of those proposals, he says there seemed to be some consensus emerging among those who submitted comments to the FCC and other forums:

"It looked like the majority of those people would agree on a restructuring where the code requirement was kept in place at 5 wpm for Extra," he says.

--

And now that the American Radio Relay League has weighed in with its own proposal - a no-code entry license called the Novice - complete with HF privileges, Moseson says CQ wants to know what readers think.

"W5YI's 'Washington Readout' colum is all about the League's proposal in detail and our reader survey for April is also about the League's proposal," Moseson explains. "It's going to be asking our readers what they think of each of the major points of the proposal, whether they agree or disagree or have no opinion. And we'll, of course, be reporting the results of that survey in probably the June issue."

--

Even if you're not a CQ subscriber, you can find a copy at a newstand or bookstore.

Moseson says amateur radio must and has kept in step with the times:

"I'm not sure what we're going to come out of this with or what direction it's going to go to, " Moseson says. "But one of the points that I've always made is that if we are going to keep ham radio as a healthy, vital hobby and service then it has to adapt to changing times and the licensing structure has been doing that over the course of many, many years."

--

As to how soon, we might expect action from Washington. Moseson says it's difficult to predict:

--

"My guess would be the earliest that you'd see any kind of a decision from the FCC would be the end of this year, probably more likely about a year from now in the spring of 2005," Moseson says.
--

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia.

--

Moseson also offered his opinion that even if Morse testing was not included as a requirement for any of the license classes that it wouldn't go away. He says CW contest entries have grown in recent years. Thats good news for those advocating long term preservation of the historic mode. (ARNewsline(tm))

CONVENTIONS: THE NAB HAM RADIO RECEPTION IN LAS VEGAS NV.

Its only a few weeks until the National Association of Broadcasters holds its 2004 gathering. One of the major social events that occurs at the NAB convention each year is the `Amateur Radio Reception'. This year will be no exception but for the first time ever this years `Ham Radio Reception' will be hosted by Heil Sound, Limited and its well known owners Bob, K9EID, and Sarah Heil. They would like to invite any and all amateur radio operators who will be in attendance at the NAB show to join them for this annual fun event.

Bob and Sarah are promising a fun time. They are also planning appearances by some of their special friends as well as dozens of attendance prizes that will be given during the two hour reception. This includes several of the new Heil Poline performance microphones autographed by legendary Eagles guitarist Joe Walsh, WB6ACU.

This years NAB Ham Radio Reception takes place Wednesday April 21st, from 6 to 9 P.M. local time. The venue is the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel, Ballrom B. Of coarse, thats in Las Vegas, Nevada. Bob says all that is required to join in the festivities is to bring a smile and your NAB attendance badge for complimentary food and drink.

For more information please feel to contact Bob or Sarah at 618-257-3000 or by e-mail to bob@heilsound.com. The Heil's say that they hope to see you there. (ARNewsline(tm))

CONVENTIONS AND HAMFEST TRAVEL TIPS: TRY FLYING OR TAKE THE BUS

Talking of ham radio social events, its no secret that gasoline prices here in the United States at historically high levels, and the Department of Energy saying to expect prices to go a lot higher. As a result, many hams are asking the rhetorical question: Can I afford to go to a major hamfest or convention this year? Especially one of the big ones like Dayton or NAB. The answer for the most part is yes, but a lot depends on where you live and how far you have to travel to that show. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, explores some alternatives to driving your own car:

If your QTH is several hundred miles away from your favorite hamfest and you drive a gas guzzling vehicle like an S-U-V then you may think twice about going this year. That is, unless you can find an alternative to $3 or more for each gallon of gasoline. Well, there are currently two very good transportation buys available if you are willing to give up the luxury of a personal vehicle.

Lets take a centrally located city like Dallas, Texas. There's a big convention every year in the suburb of Arlington that draws exhibitors and attendees from all across the country. If you live in Houston and plan to attend, its about a 275 mile drive each way. In an S-U-V that gets 10 to 12 miles to a gallon at the projected $3 a gallon the drive one way will cost about $81 each way or $162 round trip. Compare that to the $89 round trip currently being offered between the two cities on Delta and Continental airlines. Want cheaper? Go greyhound, buy your ticket 7 days in advance and it will only cost you $58 round trip.

And what about Hamvention in Dayton Ohio? That's coming up in May. Well, its the same thing here. Using Chicago as your home, the trip is also about 275 miles each way. To drive will cost about the same but make your reservations now and fly out of Chicago's Midway airport and ATA will take you full circle for about $120. Go Greyhound and you can go full circle for only $82

Live further way. Say Los Angeles or San Francisco? Well, you can really get a bargain. Fly United Airlines out of Santa Ana California early in the morning with a connection in Chicago and you can go round trip for $255. By way of comparison, that same ticket a year ago went for about $100 more. And for you Northern California folks, you can do the trip for $283 out of San Jose on American Trans Air.

And the usual disclaimer here,. The prices we quoted we those showing on Sunday March 8th on several travel websites including greyhound.com and orbitz.com. Since the airlines are notorious for changing prices at a moments notice, these could be gone by the time this newscast goes to air.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, reporting.

Two final tips that most frequent flyers already know. First, book early. The best prices for flights are usually sold on-line months in advance. Also, keep an eye on all of the Internet based travel discounters and check their prices daily. You never know when a flight or a bus ride to your favorite hamfest may be a lot less expensive than what it costs to drive your vehicle. And you won't have to hunt for a place to park, either. (ARNewsline(tm))

INTERNET SCAMS: ARRL AND RAC E-MAIL BEING SPOOFED

The ARRL and Radio Amateurs of Canada are warning their members and others about bogus or spoofed messages carrying ARRL.net or rac.ca suffixes. Both organizations say that they have been notifoed by people who have received e-mail messages alleging to be from the ARRL E-Mail Forwarding Service or directly from Radio Amateurs of Canada.

The senders of the e-mail encourage you to open the file or an attachment to the e-mail. Don't do it. These messages are false and are the result of one of the variants on a number of viruses now permeating the Internet. The attached file contains variations of worm viruses, MyDoom, Bagle and Netsky. Opening the file could result in your computer being infected. The bottom line: Delete the message and forget you ever got it. Your computer will be a lot safer that way. (ARRL, RAC)

HAM RADIO ADVENTURE: COMMUNICATORS NEEDED FOR CAVEING EXPEDITION

Gulf Coast United States, along with Caribbean, or South America base station operators are needed for communication on the ham bands with a scientific expedition. This, in July through August time frame.

The 60 day expedition will explore deep caves in the high Andes mountains and jungle in the western Amazon area of South America. Expedition access to the remote areas is via trekking on foot and pack animal. The expedition will use a solar and battery powered 20 Watt backpack transceiver. Antennas will be a wire dipole or vertical. A miniature notebook computer will be along for digital operations.

Communications will consist of position reports, some short messages with families of expedition members, and any possible emergency or medical messages. All operation will be non-commercial.

Operators with good base stations, efficient antennas and low noise locations are needed on the 40 through 15 meter amateur bands. The operations will use SSB, CW and a variety of digital modes. If you are interested, e-mail Bonnie Crystal, KQ6XA, at radioadventure@aol.com. (KC5FM, KQ6XA)

PUBLIC SERVICE: BAKER TO VEGAS FOOTRACE NEEDS YOUR HELP

Also in need of ham radio communicators is the famed Baker to Vegas Challenge Cup Relay race. Baker is Baker California and of coarse Vegas refers to Las Vegas, Nevada.

This year's foot race for teams from Law Enforcement Agencies takes place on April 24 th and 25, starting near Baker, traveling along State Route 127. The race then continues through radio show host Art Bell, W6OBB's hometown of Pahrump, Nevada and finishes up in Las Vegas.

For years, Amateur Radio has played an important role in the annual event. If you or your group is interested in helping with communications, please visit www.bakertovegas.com on the world-wide-web, to sign up. (Via e-mail)

RADIO LAW: CONGRESS ON ITS WAY TO INCVREASING INDECENCY PENALTIES AGAINST BROADCASTERS

Federal legislators are inching closer to increasing the penalties against broadcasters who permit indecent or obscene material to hit the public airwaves. This, as the House and Senate Commerce committees pass bills that would sharply boost fines of television and radio broadcasters who violate indecency regulations.

The U.S. House of Representatives measure increases fines to as much as $500,000 per violation from the current $27,500 per violation level. That version also contains a so-called three strikes provision that would require the FCC to hold a hearing to determine whether a broadcast license should be revoked after three violations take place. It also permits the FCC to weigh heftier penalties against the person who actually utters indecent material on the air as well as the ability to go after the network that broadcast the material in addition to the individual stations. Right now, the FCC can only fine the licensed station that aired the material and has limited ability to penalize the person who said it.

Current FCC rules limit indecent material presented in a patently offensive manner to late night hours, when children are less likely to be a part of the listening or viewing audience. In some past instances the broadcast standard has been applied to obsenity and indecency issues in private radio including the Amateur service.

Newsline attempted to find out if new and higher penalties directed by Congress might be applied to ham radio. We were told that at this point, the FCC's and Congressional actions are directed at the "broadcasters" and not at Amateur Radio. (Published news reports)

HAM RADIO BUSINESS: QRZ.COM HAS T1 TROUBLE

If you tried to access the QRZ.com website late on Thursday March 4th you probably found it down. The sites owner, Fred Lloyd, AA7BQ, reports that around 1800 UTC both of the dual T1 lines that supply the sites 3 Megabit feed to the Internet went down.

According to Lloyd, the sites network is supplier is Cable & Wireless and his location is served by two leased high-speed lines by the local phone company, Qwest. The Qwest lines connect the Arizona based QRZ.com servers to the Cable & Wireless location in downtown Phoenix.

About 2 hours after the outage was reported on Thursday, one of the lines was repaired and brought back up. For reasons unknown to Lloyd, the second T1 line has not been brought back up. Now, however, instead of a Qwest problem, it appears that the second line was intentionally disconnected by Cable & Wireless. Lloyd says that Cable & Wireless is currently pulling out of some of the less profitable market areas. Apparently, QRZ was mistakenly disconnected from the grid even though Lloyd had previously been assured that Cable & Wireless is not pulling out of his market. This put Q-R-Zeds back at 1.5 Megabits. That's the same speed that they were for years before the upgrade last December. (QRZ.com)

WORLDBEAT: MOTOROLA DONATES RADIOS TO VK EMERGENCY CORPS

Communication is set to improve for one of Australia's most remote indigenous Army Cadet Units following the donation of 24 state-of-the-art two way radio's by Motorola Australia. The company presented the radios destined for the Bamaga Cadet Unit in Far North Queensland to the Australian Parliamentary Secretary for the Minister of Defence , Fran Bailey , at a recent ceremony in Melbourne. Bailey said that she was delighted with the generous support shown by Motorola and acknowledged the contribution the company has made to the nations Indigenous Participation Project. The Bamaga Cadet Unit comprises Two Adult Officers and about 15 cadets. Bamaga is located the tip of Northern Queensland and is one of the most remote parts of Australia. (Q-News)

WORLDBEAT: TOWARD RESOLVING THE MEXICO - US 560, 780 & 920 KHZ BORDER SITUATIONS

An update on the radio border war developing between Mexico and the United States as we reported a few weeks ago. According to Joseph Berring in a letter to the CGC Communicator, the alleged problems caused by the Mexican broadcasters on 560, 780 and 920 kHz has become a top priority for both the U.S. FCC and the State Dept. as well as for the Mexican Administration.

According to Berring, top U.S. officials recently met with their Mexican counterparts in Mexico City. Berring observes that despite the controversy and problems that have arisen, Mexico's position has been very clear and unwavering. That being existing bilateral agreements are valid and they have not been violated. Additionally, Mexico seems to have some complaints of its own regarding U.S. stations.

The United States position is obviously a bit different. Not only does the US administration feel that there are clear violations, but that there are specific sidebar agreements dating as far back as 1996 that address the issues at hand.

Berring, who is a consultant on United States and Mexico border issues says to stay tuned. It should prove interesting. (CGC)

THAT FINAL ITEM: TRANSMITTING DATA FROM MARS - AND CONSERVING ENERGY

And finally this week, were you aware that the pair of Mars Rovers now exploring the red planet actually have two ways to send data back to Earth? They can send it direct or indirect. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, has more:

As you might expect, direct entails using the rovers own high-powered microwave systems and using up a lot of very precious power reserves. Kind of like making a long distance contact on 2 meter FM simplex. You can do it but you need high power and a very directional antenna.

The indirect method uses low-powered UHF links to relay the data to orbiting satellites. These satellites then use their high-powered transmitters to beam the data back to scientists. Thats not much diferent than working a long distance on 2 meters, but doing it with an H-T through your favorite repeater.

To save energy on the solar powered rovers, the UHF relay method is preferred. As of February 18th, the two rovers had sent 10 billion bits of data from Mars to Earth. Of this, only 18% of that data was transmitted directly. The rest was relayed through the Mars Odyssey and Mars Global Surveyor satellites.

I wouldn't "just pull" on that knob if it won't come off the shaft easily. You can do a lot of damage to the VFO, including pulling the shaft completely out of the assembly, if you are not careful.

I would take the rig to an amateur-radio repair shop and have their technicians look at it. The fact that the knob on your radio is as loose as you say it is (and that you cannot tune the VFO) leads me to believe there may be other problems, such as a slipping clutch or defective brake mechanism (some rigs, such as my Icom IC-725, have adjustable braking for the tuning dial to adjust the stiffness or looseness [for want of a better phrase] of the VFO knob, to allow for personal preferences).

The shaft may have somehow become disengaged from the VFO itself, which would make it absolutely impossible to tune. In any case, I'd take that rig to a repair station. The Yaesu FT-757GX is a good (if technologically old) rig, so it would be worth having it repaired.

Good luck and 73, well, it is common courtesy to at least ask "is the frequency in use" and then wait a few minutes for a reply. I do so on some of the 2 meter repeaters here in Phoenix. I give me call, ask if the frequency is in use and wait 2 minutes. no reply, I go ahead and make my call.

also you, of all people, should realize that not everyone is going to have good equipment or a hot location when it comes to propogation. So, give the guy a break, even is he is 'Brand new" to the hobby. attitudes such as your tend to do mare harm than good.

well, you don't like it? petition the FCC with a proposal then wait the required number of days/weeks to get it to an RFC (notice of proposed rulemaking). Try to operate outside of that system, and you will be ignored (one lone voice in the crowd kid of thing). Use the system, and you will be surprised at what you CAN get done.

Just my thoughts (having been there and done that...).

I bought my HT and some other items there, and AFAIR everything shipped promptly.

My one complaint is that their online "shopping basket" times out very quickly: a couple of times I needed to check something and by the time I came back to continue shopping my basket was empty again.

My biggest purchases have been from HRO, but their prices are sometimes higher.

Art,
Mike and "incognito" helped me figure it out. On my Icom dual band it is basically a special memory channel (one on each band) that has the advantage over the other memories (60) that you can just press one button on the unit and you get to the frequency you set into the call channel. So the national simplex frequencies of 146.520 and 446.0 would be naturals to use as call channels, but from what I can tell (have not actually tried to set it up like this yet) you could also program in a repeater with offset, and PL.

We (you and me) don't own any bands or frequencies. They are public property just like federal land is public property and FCC is supposed to administer that property for the benefit of its owner, old John Q Public. Happily, they have set aside a part of that public property for nonprofit recreation and public service. That's the part we like to think is "ours".

Morse Code was important back when the only way to modulate information onto a carrier was to turn the transmitter on and off but now days it is an anachronism, like starting fires with flint and steel or hunting with a bow and arrow. It may be fun but its only value is the recreation it provides its adherents. That may or may not justify keeping the Morse-only bands (ie, use it or loose it OM) but it certainly cannot justify denying people access to what is after all their own public property.

The same applies to the technical side. It was important to be able to sketch a Colpitts or Hartley oscillator, and know the difference, back when we had to build our own equipment or at least repair it. But modern tehnology has reduced us all to "appliance hams". I can buy an FT-840 for $500 or an equivalent kit for $1200. The latter is FB if you get $700 worth of fun from soldering but even that requires little technical knowledge. So why use theory bar John Q from using his own property? Because he says "good buddy" instead of OM and 10-4 instead of "Roger that!"??

Crowded bands? I work with an environmentalist. He frets over all the crowding and pollution. He wants his kids and grandkids to enjoy the same wide open places he did. Trouble is, he and others like him fathered so damn many kids they filled up all the open places and bands. So who to blame? Why ARRL of course! (c:

Demon bush and rotten rummy will NEVER escape Humanity's wrath for committing 9/11 on our watch. For, the real men of this world as true Patriot, conservatively number in at least the tens as the American marines. Oh yeah!

It should be remembered that the bush administration needed a pretext to invade Afghanistan, and someone from Condoleezza's office provided US as MSNBC with the "top secret" war plans of such. A publicly confessed plan that demands criminal leads as evidence not be provided, or secured, lest GEORGE W. BUSH envision implicating somelse instead of the innocent and forfeit his chance at a clean get away. Written Presidential directives. Signed by bush just prior to 9/11, and confessed as fully implemented. It is that God simple. According to Blair's new doctrine, therefore, post-September 11 a ``fear'' of a threat (felt by himself or President George W. Bush) --whether or not it has any foundation in truth--justifies an assault on another country that has itself never indicated any intention to attack the UK. A war criminal asks for the law to be changed post factum

Bushite Blair spewed about how he personally wants to change international law to okay relentless mass murder with war crimes, excused by unsubstantiated evidence for the likes of pension thieves Worldcom and commi double billers Halliburton. Fuk you Blair. You don't speak for anyone with your lies to murder good people to steal our sworn to protect human values. Justice for all, would put the 9/11 perpetrators, bush and rummy, behind bars or executed by US true Patriots, and Blair, behind bars for war crimes.

America, a criminally lead country whom order their mindless toxic nazi slave bush bitches to sacrifice their worthless lives for pension thieves and robber barons. All Nations of every world should be concerned about our rights to life and liberty, with the evil demon bushmob's denial of granting US Justice for Freedom, or wisdom for good as God is Humanity.

/ / BYPASSING THE CIA: ...set up to purposely bypass "usual intelligence channels to make a case [for war] that conflicted with the conclusions of CIA analysts." The office presented unreviewed - and often uncorroborated - intelligence directly "to the offices of Vice President Dick Cheney and national security advisor Condoleezza Rice" without the knowledge of CIA Director George Tenet (yesterday, Tenet acknowledged that he only learned about these side briefings last week). \ \

For the demon bush Jr, as evil incarnate, this failure of his intelligence is nothing new. He trumpeted against Saddam, if someone should harm anything of value that he and his mob were to steal, he'd charge'em up for crimes against humanity, but not so [apparently] when he and "sexy" rummy sent in thousands of missiles to destroy public property. Or land mine cluster duds to kill leaderless American Patriots, along with tons of radioactive toxic waste to indiscriminately murder untold thousands of people for generations. All by the lawless demon antiChrist so to desecrate the American dream for everyone, by ungodly stealing our human values. (instead of going anywhere without restriction or delay, while granted free access also to national Iraqi broadcasts to say whatever about current deprived survival conditions.) See?, as corporate america's deity, the bushmob isn't accountable to the enslaved People under his evil tyrannical rule of godless dictatorship. That's why he is referred in biblical texts, as the lawless evil enemy of all the People, God, the Universe, and well... just everything. Humanity is in dire need of a god send just now, quick! somebody say someone somewhere said something somewhat similar, that you, like anyone, would want to be included like everybody else is too; committed to freedom from oppression, and to be our own person, like Christ is.

Now, we just need a good King to run around the world

Creation as a Life spokesman. Hmmm? Sure I'm up for it.

I would request again, for a brave American Patriot to bush Jr., along with "sexy" rummy. Done for the sake of saving innocent lives not further sacrificed for leaderless America's inaction to protect Americans for themselves as Constitutionally legitimate. Bushites are too ignorant, bigoted, and plain stupid evil to remain corporately unchallenged by the documented evidence of the traitor bushmob's contempt for Law, or the Lord. To

Big Sky

We, as glorious human beings, are wondrously effected by the nature's of perception, but as so 99.9 percent wondrous, we come with some recognizable universal draw backs. One: actual evidence as measurable, must be a requirement to convince us of something to deprive another of rights over by judicial action. True judicial action through democratic means. (The simplicity of "a freeman shall not be imprisoned" is being profoundly missed by the bushmob's America as played too dumb to comprehend through our media news channels censored.) Demon bush demands you faithfully blank your mind from his bad faithed dictate on how unspeakable 9/11 magically went down, but without most the established crime scene evidence that is freely uploadable. It's not, gee, I wonder when he'll really screw up, it is bush himself whom is committing the crime of 9/11 with rummy to begin with, then thinking, he could get away with it still by lying to EVERYONE. For all time. War crimes have no statute of limitations in my book, and the law has a mighty long reach my friend.

Bushite bremer hired Saddam's secret police, and fired school teachers. Mr. bremer, you'll remember, is the president of Kissinger Associates, the group that criminally provided Saddam the WMD knowhow. That's is evil for ya. His strategic defense, is that American soldiers, are too weak as slaves, and create doubt on what is firmly established in evidentiary proceedings already. Mr. bremer figures, since no person would willingly put themselves where he is, as certainly, it just can't be so.. (I'm sure he and rummy get alot of chuckles from conning US all as God to murder ourselves like that.) Doubt is an ever present property of a constantly changing, nothing is absolute universe. Substantiated evidence is ALL we got to go on, and sometimes, that can even get foggy. Similarly, with bush and rumsfeld. Their kind of treason is so blasphemous, people can't recognize that any real human being would willingly try to actually do such a thing for the windfalls of big corporate profit, and as such, a many god person, (as often the good natured and kind hearted), desperately look for any doubt, than to face such a human fear of real demon behavior in our World of worlds of every character. I as Lord hope, that over time, soon, recognizing war crimes will become almost second nature to US, and the fear of Human development as all good, will change to wicked fun and prosperity for all concerned. Currently, the lawless bushites are left to furthering with the barter of Your dying existence, all done by Your inaction to simply help Yourself. Yeah, YOU left televised to be politically powerless over trying to raise some awareness on the true state of your being alive in this world.

Who is this "we" the bushites keep referring to? Is bombing residential communities to murder US people indiscriminately with toxic cluster duds, (that kill aplenty dubya dubya's), not just one of the stupidest, most heinous, worthless war crimes ever that could be committed in anyone's name? Seriously. It purposefully gets killed American Patriots, and for what but a blind worship of bush as their ticking - - "Intel". - -

Where is Kimmitt to speak about feeding plutonium to the loyal troops? Something he doesn't wish them to learn of? Is that not weakness as a military leader refusing like a coward, to stand on defense of your own dying blood brothers? He instead wishes to decieve himself, than to fight bravely believing in Freedom and Justice for US all. Maybe he'll change his view, by accidentally arresting bremer for the WMDs sold to Saddam illegally by following the evidence trail himself. Then maybe helping me out to get those responsible for 9/11 in the bush administration. What do you say Kimmitt?, are you with yourself as true American Patriot, yea or nay?

" "When there is a security failure, the party responsible for security is to be blamed. And let us ask ourselves, who has the capability of launching such bombs in these circumstances? What story should we believe, should we believe and blame the figure that the Americans are drawing for us (Abu Musaab al-Zarqawi and al-Qaida fighters), or should we believe what we are seeing on the ground everyday?" he said. "

Well yah. It makes no sense for why bush's Laden, or the real Laden even, would be working directly for the bushmob to steal further more from Iraqi wealth, and the soldiering American tax payer, while not suggesting a kill shot to russell, blount, bremer, rumsfeld or bush. Or, speaking on the despicable war crimes, or where all the stolen loot is going to. (IT'S SEVENTEEN PAGES!!!) Then, guess who decided all of Iraq should get this criminal, let's do the bushmob another great idea? Bremer, or the CPA. (Reminds me of rummy's "pentagon" plan P2OG, a terrorist plan figured by rummy; that since, he don't want found out responsible for treason, he'll orchestrate it himself to 'appear' [like as if by magic] as the Pentagon, or America, and that's only if, we were to be asking him directly about something he criminally planned personally. (but shhhh.. it's a written secret between just him and US apparently) Strange days of terrible tragedy, I know.. But fun!))

These crimes Kimmitt seems dead set on not investigating, ring more from his weak leadership, than from anything else. The bushite war crimes are as iligitimately premissed, and as so evil is always dumb and weak like Kimmitt is spotlighted as traitor to every American soldier out there truly dying needlessly as bushwhores so to rob from Iraqi and American. Kimmitt only lacks himself some manly courage to try saving US all by communicating for America's America. Will he, or.

Illiterate, irrational, all around dumb dubya had stated long before, that he knows that the, no plan to die for but getting bushite rich quicker scheme letter writing guy, is for sure, senior al-Qaeda, and I guess, he would know better than everyone else about the writer doing himself as the deceived pure evil nazi war criminating antiChrist so many favors? The bush liar as America's enemy kills ourselves as the innocent and undefended, needlessly but for stealing our human values, and so... accused Laden is a terrorist for what loyal causes again?

I want to come down and party with you People, but the bushmob keeps trying to ruin our days, by destroying American lives not being spoken for. I don't like the bushite attitude about criminally ruling our ways, and I'm here to freely, demand Justice for Freedom as the Heaven's awakening. The problem is NRA members aren't acting to protect Justice left unrepresented by corporate mind control., Like Freedom of the living breathing good American Police investigating forces being denied as relevant news material witnesses. Demon bush's war mongering against God hasn't only recklessly murdered near two hundred thousand mostly defenseless, unarmed people, but has dumped with rummy, thousands of TONS of radio-active toxic waste to murder God for what will be greater than 50 generations of innocent human beings. Murdered in your name, my name, America's name, God's name. What beef does a bushite corporate america have with the Children of God? I beg the NRA, the CIA, the FBI, good guy bikers, and any other real Patriots to stand up as men for the Family, and kill the unarrested enemy bushmob for 9/11 as traitors to our dying America, and for the war crimes they have committed in our names. War crimes while sacrificing to actually DIE, the dumfuk nazi teen soldiers whom have no leadership present to speak of. As I've stated previously, we will ask all American soldiers to either stand for America and the Constitution, as freedom and Justice for all, demanding evidence to convince US whom is suspected for criminal offences, or with the bushites, as enemies of themselves to self arillate.

Evil is just the deceived disguised. (Wow I AM Amazing)

I guess this is all quite a consideration to take and role through with for a couple thousand years, but look, evil incarnate antiChrist bush is back again fuking US around, harming our World as Humanity with flagrant war crimes continuing. His illegitimate power base comes from Americans thinking that because he is the President, he shouldn't be accountable to American Law like the rest of US, and that is where a bushite takes the fall while trying to bring down all of Americans through corporate censorship on his treason. Like unarrested fascist steven "he'll kill a bunch of US folk if you complain publicly about bush banking policy or bush health care premiums" russell, or unarrested bush bitch buford blount, who confesses the joy to see American soldiers die rightly for his irrational crimes against innocent civilians trying to defend ourselves. Fuk, who wouldn't destroy unarrested buford blount I ask all creatures great and small. Wouldn't you? I mean, come on, HONESTLY, THINK ABOUT IT, what real man, if he had to, wouldn't, to protect their innocent family? Steven russell and buford blount as steroided pill poppers have targeted innocent whomevers for being just alive, because they trust, in faith, that all America will think it makes the demon bush 'cabal' so scary and strong in a godless world that gets killed, not all so blind cowardly Patriots seen led leaderlessly as unAmerican like that forever. One or two Soldier's of Fortune in the American marines, willing to join up with US as true freedom fighters for America, is all I'm pushing for here as King of kings.

(Hey.. I know... I naturally spook myself, but I so enjoy living for something, and, there does seems to be room to believe here for you as anyone to freely be also. If Americans only knew how fantastic you could be as this living universe questing justice for freedom, You'd as anyone, think twice about silently letting the bushmob take you as anyone else further to suffer unheard from. I urge soldiers to unite on our determination to take the bush administration out of our life and death business decisions, and straight behind bars, awaiting their open public trials for treason.)

The bushites who faithfully advocate the murder of innocent people blindly are our enemies, and I ask all able bodied men, to do what is right, and get the bushmob of terrorists before they take another American soldier as too weak to realize what is protected in the American constitution.

http://post911timeline.org/article006.htm

Demon bush needs to be arrested, along with the rest of the 'cabal', and CNN has got to be infiltrated further by American intelligence. We need to get those responsible for 9/11, and if it means a boring hour long TV news program with fewer commercials, with free, open dialog on the documented facts, and confessions made already by the White House, (that they had the plan before hand, and went completely with it, no lie, they did it,) we could get this wrapped up in say, two weeks, tops. I suggest, we get them good with the Law, cause it just makes right sense to every one concerned. What do you say?

I'll phone CBC and CNN, and tell them Our FBI says General Ahmad funded Atta, or that DU is measured radioactive as a toxic heavy metal containing also plutonium that oxidizes to microscopic particles, and you know what they'll do? They'll leave our families to die as further victims to the evil bushmob in criminal sacrifice. Celebrating their riches as terrorist harboring, corporate fascists, as true nazi collaborators. (Just try yourself, don't be embarrassed as scared of nothing.) I plead as the NRA, to get your guns loaded, and kill the unarrested bushmob for the sake of American family values. Your family values. The demon bush and "sexy" rummy are not only personally responsible escaping as perpetrators for 9/11, needlessly murdering near 200,000 innocent People, but in that process, they're sacrificing America's dumfuk teen soldiers, who don't have minds yet to think around. That is not what I'm all about. True, I'd happily kill any armed bushite who was threatening murder against my innocent family, but too, I know the marines, the true marines, would be standing 100 percent with me, if we could communicate about what these bushites are criminally doing in our names. With US as equals committed to freedom and justice for all, we do not want unarrested bush, rummy, cheney, or bremer as leaders. Tommy franks, buford blount, and steven russell, need to be also arrested for war crimes, or executed now in the name of America's America.

Iraq needs to have returned the money that has been stolen, organizing elections need to be started upon, and whomever at rummy's pentagon that is managing the disappearing American public fund trick, need to be tracked down, and found out as person or persons. We need American soldiers to commit to Justice ruling our ways, so together, we can nab the actual bad guys for attacking freedom in America defended by the almighty magical word of Justice as universal.

It's not the great artist Gibson, but corporate american
cult news who sit back bushiting "It's harmless, now shut up dummy", knowing sadistic "sexy" rummy dumped thousands of tons of radio-active toxic waste, along with land mines to commit senseless, gratuitous mass murder in residential communities housing the God of Revelations.

It is bushite america who call themselves Christian, who fund the Likud with American sweat and labor, to criminally assault innocent Christians as accused of nothing but being Christian. They do this as enemies of Justice and God, to tell US as unbelievers, to quickening the coming of the Lord, who will in turn,
condemn the individuals responsible, straight to hell

It is America who sit bushiting "Freedom", while wording

Killing people
for no good reasons really sucks. I hate bushites.

Let's get the Patriots together and bag US some Rumsfeld

I just so much hate that demon antiChrist bush, and his cabal of war mongers, it hurts. Let's just kill George W. Bush for being qualified to lead but only himself and Rumsfeld directly up to our NRA's firing squad, for almost foolishly thinking they would actually escape the planned murder of US thousands in New York City on 9/11, then continuing by sacrificing dumdum nazi soldiers on a cross in a completely unnecessary war against civilization. What is it that the evil bushites can do now in Iraq, before murdering untold thousands and thousands, but for stealing even more of God's good will towards all Mankind as loved?

No words from the bushites who rule our communications through corporate news censorship, while Christian parents call out unheard: why has corporate america allowed forsaken soldiers to eat plutonium to murder God for a measly few dollars the bushmob will pocket for the up coming "unbiased" re-election news campaign? As I suggested before, (If there are no real men in the marines) why not just give the unarrested bushmob all the money they want, so we can forgo all the needless death and suffering against our friends and family?

Destroy the demon bushmob, and all day long you'll have good luck, I swear! Johnny says "give living a try!"

This next story is what the cruelty of america against Christ is all about. Funding with their lives under the leadership skills of the, corporate profit at all costs form of american brutality, a government, of People, under the Likud that persecutes the innocent as God is, while they celebrate all as drunken bushite wannabe, private banker billionaires. Drinking our wine, while secretly calling God fiction.

" The annual burden may well exceed $3 billion ï¿½ details are very sensitive and thus kept secret. Under the Free Trade Agreement Israel is allowed to export to the US freely, even though US exports to Israel are very much constrained. That trade-aid deficit, a loss to the US, now hovers around $9 billion per year.

Private Jewish aid from the US has contributed another $50-plus billion to the burden. Much of this is a ``tax expenditure,'' because the donations are tax deductible in the US, but the whole amount is a deadweight cost to the US economy, since Israel tends to use aid money not to purchase from the US, but, instead, buys from the EU. Haiti

" Citing the flaws in those elections, the United States and other foreign governments refused to monitor the presidential election that followed, later in 2000, which Mr. Aristide won handily. The opposition boycotted the affair and still claims that the election was illegitimate, but it does so against the weight of the evidence. This includes a Gallup poll commissioned by the United States government but never made public. (I obtained a copy last year.) It shows that as of 2002 Mr. Aristide remained far and away the most popular political figure in Haiti. "

" Moreover, those eight contested Senate seats didn't affect the balance of power in Parliament. Even if it had lost them all, Mr. Aristide's party would still have had a clear majority. "

What is the opposition's position on health care funding, or a progressive tax system? Just what is it that is being fighted for if the rebels want to keep it secret? If Aristide has no military, nor large, broad based police force, how do allegations of a police state ring through, done by a militarized force looting and killing? And, who's funding these war actions?, could it be, the bushmob again? To maybe, publicly turn our way from George W. Bush's continuing criminality against America's better name? Likely, but I don't know for evidence yet. But, what does it matter, if Americans can't stand up now to arrest or kill the bush demon and "sexy" rummy for the crimes of 9/11 I ask you?

" Hidden from the Headlines sums up many of the Haitian government's worthy accomplishments, which the U.S.
corporate press effectively whites-out. ``More schools
were built in Haiti from 1994-2000 than between 1804
and 1994,'' the authors point out, ``many in rural areas where no schools existed previously.'' They also cite progress made in agriculture, public transportation, infrastructure, health care, AIDS prevention and treatment, and defending children's rights. ``Clearly,
these programs represent a progressive agenda, initiated
under the most trying conditions,'' the booklet says. "

" The multi-millionaire central banker insisted that it was better public policy to cut benefit levels and increase the age of eligibility for Social Security and Medicare--an action that would hurt millions of working people--rather than reverse tax cuts that overwhelmingly favor a thin layer of the super-rich. "

Someone should ask Greenspan to consider taking out the middle US all together, and tax Americans to just give their earnings hand over fists, straight to the bushmob partners for nothing. Then, the economy will really take off., something else. Hell is what America is becoming with that ungodly bush demon escaping our police authority. As for Greenspan, he has always been a liability. 2% is what he gets for America's Social Security. Then, he gets loans for America, from America
at interest, paid to him and his band of debt profiteers stupidly. Can You, as an American, borrow someone billions that you don't have, charge them interest for the privilege, then take their homes if they fail to pay
you PERSONALLY back money you didn't have to begin with?
I want to SERIOUSLY ask now, when are the pirate bankers
going to pay back the money they borrowed from America?
The treasury department, on behalf of America lent them
the money to begin with, so most the national debt, is the total, Greenspan and his private banker nazi war buddies owe all Americans. No?, how so? Teach me. I'm listening.

God but, the Marriage thing is really a big something in America, as it does seem amiss, though I'm honestly not qualified to offer much more insights, until I can get off the, why is bush getting away with murdering US as the antiChrist first. (Maybe it is all my fault why no girl wants to give her love to me in between my swashbucklin'.. oh well then, I guess that's one of the mysteries I pose as the average chicken coop's "holy God cock")

Anyway, I think it's time we'd be getting the deviant George W. Bush annulled from our wills.

As I've written, since i took up this challenge, areil sharon is the furthest thing from a Jew one could imagine. No really, that's the most disturbing quality of racism, and or bigotry practiced in our governments as Institutionalized. (A fault found that is genuinely unfair as those who practice it.) (of which so very none get truly wealthy from.) Resulting in an individual monster named ariel sharon: enemy of every Jew since the dawn. To, as a representative government, publicly, in the People's name, ACT deliberately unfair as criminals, denigrating some labeled group of innocent people for cheating and victimization, or murdering like hitler did, is as of, unfair to the God of Christian, Pagans, the Buddyhas, along with a great many others even including the, "no thanks", they have all the answers already to life's big question innocent Atheists, DOES NOT preclude including the "Jews" of the old new testament, that sharone (in contempt of all People as God, as in his own life left rejected 'unfairly') would have left unread. For the bonuses of american tax taking from an "other" less fortunates to not have anti-Semites (Semite=Arab) with nazi american mk-47s around ariel sharon always to protect himself from a true Kingly Jew. For, what else is in this life, but to make people suffer like Jesus did. Right ariel sharon? It's this, it's so simple, the corporations wont let US say so thing again. FRONTLINE did a show once, several years ago on the actual individual people that the Jew-haters funded by nazi america victimize, but repeated since?,.. rarely never in AMERICA. Why? Because anyone with any sense would immediately see, who was the bad guy, and who was the Jew. Not good for the repuglicons who take money on the, won't go away issue though, played unknowable on "unbiased" commercial corporate american TV news broadcasts. They're stayed to f-o-r-c-e US neutral by, in a evil cult like bushite trace, find irrational excuses to except silently: concentration camps, torture, and first degree murders against innocent Christians or Jews, paid for committed in our names as illegitimate.

What ever happened to the 50 year Jewish Jubilee where all Jews give up on what is their now stolen land, to acknowledge God's Holy teaching from the Tora? Is the Jubilee just a myth? If you build a house, on the property you share, would it be wrong for ariel sharon to steal it, while america was left unaware? American tv doesn't even play what their being truly taxed to death for under the demon antiChrist, their Mr. bush Jr., so what can we expect in all honesty, right? (Demon bush murders good guy American police officers, and it's just far to embarrassing for corporate america to immediately arrest or execute the traitor.)

Mr. ariel sharon has been on the Jewish hit list, since a Jew met a Jew in the park and said, "that ungodly bastard sharon just murdered my Palestinian Jewish friend, who he called innocent of all things." Demon anti-Jew ariel sharon knows what his consequences are, for, that's all he is as the ungodly. Knows nothing of democracy, knows nothing of freedom or Jewish religious teachings, he just keeps killing Jews so they won't catch him, while he does things like, oh I don't know, desecrates the third holiest of holies. Again, ariel sharon is not Jewish. Deal with it. PRIME EXAMPLE: The evil Jew-hater, ariel sharon, was caught directly involved in the cover up, of the failed attempt for his partners in crime to blow up some could be Jewish People in the Mexican congress, then likely finger Laden as innocent of as terrorists. To incredible to believe? Believe it. Didn't see it splashed on CNN as important on where American tax dollars are being funneled as Christ killers though did you?

But simply put, the more Jews ariel sharon gets murdered, the more money from repuglicons comes by taking Christians for Christ helpless on the cross, but without any 'real' God. Then anti-Jew ariel sharon puts money back into the private pockets of 'wealthy' repuglicons for funding true terrorism on the sly. The Likuds steal people's homes, life savings, shoot to death innocent Christians, Atheists, whomever, while they then send off the surviving victims with only what can be carried quickly, to suffer in some ghetto camp.

Hitler, revisited. What "Jews" since whenever have suffered from, now without God in Government, made fearful to stand for their rights against bigot murderer ariel sharon's mk-47s., they then under tyranny, falsely, try to condemn all themselves as forsaken without G's leadership found in Mr. ariel sharon. The Jews had it right on me never actually personally getting up on a cross by God's inability to communicate through silence, it is more of a metaphor on the true state of humanity, but no more so graphically illustrated by today's Likude Israel that condemns all the People as God. One more example on many: Demon sharon, funded by nazi bushite america, will have Jewish Israeli teens arrested that disagree with murdering innocent people to steal their land as God from. It's a fact Jack. Mr. areil sharon is not Jewish. Live with it suffering without speaking, or shout to the high heavens that your fed up, and we're not going to take it any longer. The King has returned!

It's his faith infinitive as the antiChrist, where he has hypnotized the dopey with merely the power of suggestion, that has brought him to US as foolishly not conceiving, or most importantly, truly understanding. So, do we feel sorry for his ignorance as fallibility we are all prone to own as the human rendition? No. But for stupidity thinking he could murder US as the innocent to steal our free values, and just get away with it by lying to no one continually, is where the Lord makes our stand for God unseen as miraculous.

The demon bush dictate is not exceptable for my just little man universe. I knows too much about freedom to go on dying in bush's forsaken place as innocent sacrifice. With corporate america's unarrested demon bush forcing my hand, I would decide to defend by

Brahimi said. "We need to organize elections as early as possible but not as early as impossible."

Help me understand: Why can not Iraq start on the process of

O R G A N I Z I N G E L E C T I O N S

NOW to work towards gaining accountability for soon as possible? After June? What the... Can't we people talk while walking? Look, the future is likely coming no matter what, and what ever illegitimate government is embarrassingly stalled by evil WMD proliferator baathist bremer to steal unaccounted American tax dollars from the "willing" victims dying, (like by bush bitch cluster dud) will still necessitate the need, to have started on the process of fair elections for our Iraq before hand. Corporate america might not care of sacrificing America to rob from, but real People are honorable, and won't reserve the scourge of nazi bushitizm a place to suffer any further if we can help it.

The bushites are sorrily, simply not qualified under the dire circumstances they've assaulted ourselves into for mugger war profitizing, as leading US to be dying undefended while failing miserably on my behalf to demand Justice as freedom is truly.

Now, it has been vaguely suggested that a, steven "you can't have public health care or he'll murder whomever for thinking" russell, or a buford "bush bitch" blount as treasonous evil nazi bushwhore, to undermine freedom and democracy everywheres in our world might cowardly attack defenseless innocent families at the polls while leaving "bin Laden" fingerprints, criminally warring to kill more American dumdums for commi Halliburton et al, continuing committing as unaccounted massive waste in America by over billing the dying People. Why would bushites do this? Evil is blind irrationality, disguised as thought out faithfully by fascists. The, nothing to fear suggestible absolute nature of non-linerality, is 99.9 percent, super fractal wowy miraculous as crazy about the fringes, (or is that bridges?). But, without Justice ruling our stay, we leave for a Heaven waiting, on a sea of madness as enemies of life to all things eternally being. Translated: We need to arrest these specific war criminals at the end of our, ready to fire rifles. Done to stop them personally, from robbing or murdering America indiscriminately as enemies to everyone. But in addition to that, (like at the same time) who says the polls can't be stretched out over several days or a week, with multiple options on submitting votes registered through the oil-for-food program? I want to know where Annan is on this., why it can't be done., and what his position is on returning the Iraqi Humanitarian aid stolen by Halliburton, or Iraqi Central Bank deposits cashed by HAS TO BE, current pirates. Annan, be a man, an acknowledge our presence as relevantly important for our world's living sake.

We had 100 percent access throughout Iraq prior to allowing bush, rumsfeld, and franks to sacrifice literally thousands of innocent lives. Who are now DEAD or DYING NEEDLESSLY as first degree murder victims, in some bastardized Lord's name apparently.

(Quick, somebody call upon everyone to get up off their knees, God's coming to read as one person today of the unbound wonder of what it is to be uniquely ourselves within a nude sunrise grinning. To make some progress forward for a better future, we're not meant to just pray for someone else to come and stop whom from cheating who of Liberty? What is it that you can't think of? Every wonder? Who wouldn't do God a favor if they could imagine so brightly. Who's stopping you from defeating tyrant bush as war criminal, but for only yourself contained by his continuing bad example? Tell you what: let's together find ourselves of one mind on putting the bushmob behind bars awaiting immediate public trail, and I'll promise to try visiting them every year, just to see how things are developing. Or instead just shoot bush and rummy for almost escaping Operation Infinite Justice of a real American Patriot soldier's undying love for his soul brother.)

Any improvements of the current situation in Iraq today, are going to be less that what would have costed to not kill innocent people for nothing but evil bushite war profitizing at it's level worst in this history ever of all Humanity recorded. The demon antiChrist of corporate america has got to go, and he's got to go immediately as arrested or shot dead by the Patriots for treason, before he causes US anymore needless losses and grief to our friends and family. Like for the next fifty or so generations what with the plutonium being fed blindly as willed to cowardly, weak, American teen enemy bushite soldiers presently. (If we could seperate the bushites from the rest of US, this might be a good thing, but they have no real leadership to speak about freely as the dying stupidly.(PRINT THIS PAPER AND MAIL IT EVERYWHERE))

DYING like those from 9/11 did, or dying slower, like with NYC air quality as best Oz has to offer. (Harmless corporate TV tells US without opinion.) Either or even in other ways, the demon bush is truly killing God's America in Your name not heard from. Help me you idiot. You! Yes you there, reading here. I am your secret friend see?, and.. well.. the Universe needs your help desperately pal. Please? For me? ..Oh God help me your really dumb without you aren't I too? Listen: we need to talk.

We are here to save all of creation from needless death. Big deal. Your are of a real eternal nature, that exists also, (as understood scientifically) timeless. For real. (The big bang is now. (All mass is also of not as seperate energy, then there's our gravity...)) Our possibilities for a great, better future are staggering, if we are capable collectively as individuals to defeat the "kindness" of George W. bush, the dying embodiment of evil as the very true demon antiChrist of all biblical references ever mentioned. His lying isn't just deceitful, it is downright hellish.

You know what I think? The evil enemies of Humanity, don't want US People to be recognized from being victims under tyranny through corporate cult censorship. Without Justice ruling our ways under the irrational criminal bushmob dictate, we lose as losers cheating ourselves as not worth the consideration to be free individuals.

Granted, I am an actual god familiar with the rights present within the Constitution of America. THEE God's god, here to teach the world about needless sacrifice, caused primarily, for the effects of inflated egg shell egos. As Creator, I goofed somewhere in the, order to chaos mixer. I didn't plan (it was a mistake) for Americans to be so cowardly and weak when it comes to defending their very own selves from needless death and sorrow through blatant, naked, how can you miss it, evil criminal enterprises. So, perhaps, now if I stop writing, and fake I flied off vamoosed into the unknowable, a couple people on the planet might go 'hmpht', and decide to carry on bravely, the real, honest to death struggle for freedom living without me as sorrily missed. (I as John am not anything special paradoxically.) This is fear itself, ain't nobody nowhere as terrifyingly terrifiable as this is just truly super terrific being only my simple written taughts, yet, ... I'm like.. just fiction writer, big dreamer Johnny Wizard, looking for some happiness, human respect, and a good last supper before I check out from this made by the earthling "space explorers" dungeon cell.

But who cares about me, or my great, he thinks he's so brilliant ideas? Everything's seriously a pain to him sometimes, and he talks to himself like he's the, been here and gone as eons now, King of the Universe for the holy Word from the Heavens above or something. What a poor dying fool to chance that anyone would willingly help themselves by caring for someone. ..You know, I'm beginning to not be all that crazy about the demon bush liar continuing to war humanity in my own true name also now that I think of life in this way honestly. H-e..Y -! (Morningstar has been accused of a lot of things, but you'll notice, always plays fair as your rules.))

What freedom in Iraq will come that allows a, buford blount to walk unaccosted by 'legal' services? Or where rummy's cluster dud advocates gain silent gratitude? A nation high-jacked by bremer's buddies who illegally sold Saddam WMD, then the product wisely gets destroyed as functionally useless being primarily indiscriminate warfare, then bremer's buddies come in again and murder untold thousands upon thousands, all because your magic TV is letting them get away with it as considered too embarrassing to the billionaire private stake holders. Fuk you corporate american Human haters for not reporting the bushites as war crime supporters.

Where in the real world are the nazi bushites gonna demand we go to allow 'them' to continue warring the Constitution while wearing a bushite soldier's uniform in their dying universes of Universe? Leaderless corporate america?, injured and dying as the unjustly starving? What can the bushites do now in Iraq, that they couldn't do before the needless murder of untold thousands upon thousands of innocent people with loving families? Before dumping thousands of tons of radio-active toxic waste as enemies of God's children? Only to rob, maim, and destroy God's great work through Love. We had complete unrestricted access throughout Iraq, and Saddam was offering the national media for bush to pontificate, while not refusing dialog for any suggestions.

I ask:

Can not America invite me formally for brunch, by somehow bypassing the war mongering nazi tyrant held up in the Oval office? I'd invite you all, but my place is still a mess, and I'm stuck eating for survival just now. I don't qualify for help, because surely, a person with your talents, should have someone willing to stave you off the, who cares about saving the world for you buddy, laughing in all seriousness shtick. (cool eh?)

I give you my world:

To save humanity from tyranny will be accomplished through the value of these free ideals recognized.

Isn't life grand sometimes when the bushites aren't needlessly murdering our innocent families in your name?

I again,
will now leave
you without me,

forever loved,

Johnny Wizard - Your "other" parent or guardian advising you to immediately, by Citizen Right, arrest the President's 'cabal' in the name of the Lord, who already died for this once already god damn it, and I'm not sacrificing any longer unknown as forgotten in the absence of any true reason to our existence, I want to celebrate. I want to afford a cold brew to nuzzle on a warm sunny afternoon, at a hideaway somewhere, lost in my comforts of having few real worries, but for unintentionally offending someone for not having the time to except their generous support, or gratitude.

Unelected care taking government? What is the group their now supposedly doing? Where in the process is corporate america to simply fix the Russian generators they've been paid over and over again already for as doing nothing in The People's interests?, As unaccounted to? Where is corporate america to fly in the emergency food and provisions for the innocent as victimized? Who's care will this continuing robbery of America through war crimes further fail to serve? How can Annan gain "wide agreement", with no poll on the issue? Who personally did he talk to, agreeing to leave Iraq without working for an elected government of the People?, and who consented to give up on such dire needs? Where is Annan on the thousands of tons of radio-active toxic waste dumped by rotten rummy? Is it

No End to War

The Frum-Perle prescription would ensnare America in endless conflict.

By Patrick J. Buchanan
http://www.informationclearinghouse.info/article5712.htm

" And if God accepts the existence of evil, how do Frum and Perle propose to ``end'' it? Nor can any nation ``win the war on non-combatants for political ends.

...If it is America we defend, An End to Evil makes no sense.
The Perle-Frum prescription for permanent war makes sense only if it is the mission of the armed forces of the United States to make the Middle East safe for Sharon--and here we come to the

To steal public utility services paid already as owned completely by IRAQI, (America dying for the bushite
American pension thieves at WorldCom or Britain's
"Dutch"-Shell,) ain't gonna change the business
locations. The evil unAmerican cop killing bushites think they're gonna party in Manhattan on our dime in apartments for around $15,000 a month, while sneering at a homeless beggar on the streets, who thought he was still in Vietnam.

An oil-for-Iraq program needs to be reestablished, but transparent to all as addressing the immediate emergency needs of Iraqis. Private, in the secret back room with the bushmob nazi bankers, and their private inept collaborators flustering as international fraudulent behaviors, just wont do., try as bush might to murder perhaps millions of Americans uncovered by his criminally enforced, reduction in health care coverage extravaganzas.

THE ROVING EYE IRAQ AND AL-QAEDA
Part 1 - The usual suspects
http://www.axisoflogic.com/artman/publish/article_5146.shtml

" This latest US intelligence, though, makes little sense. For starters, al-Qaeda pigeons are highly unlikely to move around with computer discs in their briefcases:
since early 2002 a disabled al-Qaeda has used women couriers to deliver strictly verbal messages. "

Kimmitt in collusion with the bushmob perhaps? To cover up an investigation set up to encourage the blind murder of America as bushite by attempting to divide all the People of Iraq as Iraqi?, na... not in a tribal based, enduring practically timeless, inter-woven culture.

Those who ran public healthcare and university are all the bad guys for thinking, the blind bushite bigots would conclude illegitimately., and I would say to yourself: no, the People with equal rights to stay united for good times, are a people sworn to uphold law that serves our freedom's best. Iraqi assets are not bush and bremer's right to steal without question, nor either, American generosity swindled by WorldCom, Enron, Dutch-Shell or Halliburton is the final, be all answer to everything.

You as sure would know that unjustly victimizing the World in our name because "they" didn't believe in blindly worshiping with servitude, the war mongering mass murderer demon bush liar, is freedom stolen from any. Wide, across the board, ask anyone for comment on where the bombs dropped from. Needlessly in bush's name, but to war God's love, and my good life.

This is all I'm ever doing as King, but perhaps also, not going left hungry. If you can help me help you, we'll be set for something better.

Truth can pose serious problems, when we idolize blindly the evil demon antiChrist for criminal sacrifice, instead of arresting him for 9/11 along with cheney, and bummer rummy, the silent but radio-active cluster dud dropper who murders American Patriots for a nickel.

Too awe shock embarrassing is it to ameliorate for the sake of a dying American Patriot Kimmitt?

For, why would Laden want the bushites to stay to further rob America through creating instability within his own ranks? without denouncing the demon bush war lies, that are paying a very real price.. ? What would it cost commi Halliburton, to face public accountability (Democracy) in Iraq on where Iraqi money is being misappropriated for? Do you think they'll get to keep the oil business, to sell back to all of Iraq at uncontested mark up freely? To steal food aid to under pay the third world? Starving?

To steal public utility services paid already as owned completely by IRAQI, (America dying for the bushite American pension thieves at WorldCom or Britain's "Dutch"-Shell,) ain't gonna change the public business locations. The evil bushites think they're gonna party in Manhattan on our dime in apartments for around $15,000 a month, while sneering at a homeless beggar on the streets, who thought he was still in Vietnam.

Perhaps, he is.

Another American soldier owes me a beer, or will be dying to steal life from themselves as sacrificed for the evil criminal dictate of Their Mr. bush Jr.. Don't go silent as the unknown dying enemy to God and humanity, stand with Justice and freedom in America for Americans, and I swear, we won't kill ya as the good guys in the epilogue.

By the bushmob attempting to create unrest, so Halliburton at al, can continue in the tommy franks chaos to rob America blind with false billing, instead of cash paying, is costing the lives of American teen soldiers. Who god love'em or hate'em, don't have the intellect to strategize their way out of an open paper bag, never mind evil bush's false creeds without real leadership present as living for. Instead of bruising our egos, the bushites are dropping bombs illegally on the family.

Man.

Ask a dying soldier how it sits to know commi Halliburton pocketed Humanitarian Aid? Go ahead, ask'em?! Then ask'em why they die as cowards by rummy cluster dud for the bushmob to rob their own direct families left unprotected? Ask'em! You know what they'll tell you? They're not happy about these bushmob war crimes truly destroying America in America, "freedom", "democracy", Johnny Wizard or otherwise., Or instead they'll mumble something incoherently while jaunting away to murder some one found defenseless, or innocent to pay further while dying to slave under the criminal dictate of the really evil demon bush Jr..

We need to see an apology to come from America, an apology to Humanity for this carnage waged unnecessary, but for these contemptible war profiteering practices as direct assaults to all as God is. Assaults that we have been unable to remedy by openly communicating to bush's secret White House, rumsfeld's secret Pentagon, or Ashcroft's secret Justice Department.

Just who's running this show anyway, I wanna know.

A - g - a - i - n

Will Americans save themselves with help from the rest of US, by arresting bush and rumsfeld immediately for high treason?, or will they cower and DIE as the innocent, in false gratitude to the lying traitors bushmob? To with their dying breath proclaim unattested, to be ridding the Universe of their continuing criminal behavior.. a.k.a. evil?

Evidence is a must to establish a crime scene provocateur, to deny such privilege is to deny freedom be served as consented through any government.

Hint: Demon bush, rumsfeld and Ashcroft, they ain't no struggling democracy entirely.

Look, the thing about God coming down, and having it out with humanity on some various critical issues, isn't like going to happen, it is doing.

We had complete unrestricted access throughout Iraq

Ann Coulter - "Liberals just call Republicans names."

Her suggestion is against the common sense of a literate segment of humanity who knows something is a farce about this tart, and for me, entertains for words to gain a better understanding for proper acknowledgment.

Coulter is bigot rousing on purpose I think, just to get all the american corporate monetary gratitude, in selling herself not present as a significant baitor unaddressed publicly in our corporate news circles. She sells excuses to cowards, of not addressing specific acts of treason committed by individual traitors, like rummy or Ashcroft, and instead, suggests all people have no ability through bushite america to recognize themselves being robbed their freedoms or murdered directly for the furthering of the evil bush demon war lies.

Interesting.

A repuglicon nazi bushwhore, who will say anything to allow bush to steal further from America, is not a tried and true Republican blue collar. Is it in Ann's contention, that all Republicans can't imagine themselves having any independent opinions? Or, is Ann saying that every Liberal blames Republicans of every stripe throughout History instead lawless bush personally for sacrificing the nation as evil incarnate?, committing to murder individual New Yorkers as America sacrificing, then further acquiescing to needlessly feed toxic waste to all American soldiers, while loyally blowing themselves up dead as individuals to pieces with sexy rummy cluster dud, all for being blind disciples of the unAmerican bush demon antiChrist, their ungodly evil false-deity as enemies of God's love, America, and our good names?

Naming the repuglicon demon bush a terrorist recruiting cop killing heroin pusher, who played a central part in the murder of thousands of New Yorkers is well established factually, and publicly confessed as all planned to act upon before hand. Who says? MSNBC's Jim reported with the White House, as a 'top secret' [Oops, deceived America wasn't suppose to read this one Condi] strategy of not following the 9/11 crime scene evidence, and confessed as 'fully implemented'. A General Ahmad plan to blame bin Laden as innocent of to secure invasion of Afghanistan. For Enron et 'al, the treasonous g-e-t-t-i-n-g . . . a-w-a-y. ... Pension thievers. Robbing from American Patriots as lead worthless in value with. Dying.

Remarkable to say the least.

Anyway, solid, documented evidence including the circumstantials, like cheney's "The Dabhol Working Group", Niaz Niak, and the quietly contacting of allies publicly to attempt legitimacy of faked collusion, as such, with rummy's Pentagon arranging a same-time, what if a 9/11 occurred plan involving everyone misled, like also dummy rummy's P2OG, where dummy rummy writes to commit terrorist acts against our innocent families, he prefers if any connections have to be made, they be made with the widest banner of "The Pentagon", as to hide himself from corporate american news scrutiny, who instead will report it as, the Pentagon isn't speaking about only rumsfeld's high office involved in blatant treason, and naked evil doing. (Also, to succeed in assisting in robbing the Central Bank, and museum, the nuclear facilities containing radio-active contaminants were left unguarded, as not centrally relevant to franks why soldiers were told they're still sacrificing their lives for. "Duh, why are we here to kill good people needlessly so the bushmob back home can further rob our undefended families bro? Bro?")

This is for all to agree settled as official History.

America devolving into the criminal tyranny of the evil bushmob is happening. All the while, we witness, the LEADERLESS nazi bushite soldier cowering as cowardly sell outs to their very own friends and family being robbed back home, left undefended through blatant over billing as UNACCOUNTED, leaving their own sons and daughters to dutifully eat plutonium, and going further silent when it comes to rumsfeld and franks needlessly dropping thousands of land mine cluster bombs to murder us people indiscriminately, which, kills their own aplenty, in a more way than one knows. Karma. (rummy's pentagon is misleading soldiers on how many have so far died to allow Halliburton to criminally steal humanitarian aid from The People, as one example,) Again, as bushite fascist nazi vermin, they let those responsible for destroying America through the bushmob war crimes, still sit in the, for sale freedom captain's chair, high-jacked from US true Loyalists, attempting to get away the bushmob is doing from 9/11, by going real fast .. nowhere.

Second, if Liberals include whomever, how could Ann possibly assess that all would consider calling ourselves anything but, unique as individuals? Bizarre.

The American Constitution is our souls included in those timeless thoughts of Justice for all as The People. The bushmob is destroying freedom by persecuting the innocent as terrorists, when they, in AMERICA'S NAME, throw out the concepts of Justice for any. No publicly understood evidence to form our conclusions, is a corporate demand your faith be in the unjust bushmob 'cabal', and not in Freedom for all through establishing the actual "bad guys". Closing the public criminal investigations on 9/11, is a critically essential part documented as the evil cabal's "top secret" criminal treason plans, put together prior to the murder of thousands of American citizens. Prior to the event as hidden question, and, confessed as never considered. Ya, right.

Bush declared, "and he wouldn't let them in. And, therefore, after a reasonable request, we decided to remove him from power."

So, there was indeed no imminent threat posed by Saddam to Amerka, and inspectors had complete unrestricted access throughout Iraq without delay prior to the, bush demon's further war crimes. So, what was the reason for all the pointless mass murder and destruction again? Oh right.. to sacrifice American soldiers so terrorist bush's war profiteering can feed off themselves as family without leadership present as spoken for. Hey no problem if Bechtel or Halliburton never actually gets anything done, or at a good price after their magic trick "pay here for what?" commissions eat up most of the investment, it's only the dummy American People bid payers again left unaccounted to DIE intentionally. The bushites could make more killings for decades to come, while flogging the now desecrated American flag as the new bushmob's being intolerance, greed and true contempt for all US as Humanity. US, a dying dream that once was the great American way of living; now war crime bush's personal enslavement for global tyranny.

The devote bushites tell a Loyal but dumb Soldier to quietly eat plutonium and get blowed up by rummy cluster dud, because, it's harmless. Again the marines have got to come in and save our day, by arresting bush and rummy for 9/11 now, with truth as the all time word of God exists within yourself included. Look, don't think I'm gonna fly down to Washington like some comic hero, and arrest the entire bush administration, going through them, one by one from their holding cells, on where all the stolen cash and American values went all by myself.

GOD NEEDS YOU

All the deaths of American Soldiers in Iraq today, (like the People who died for the bushmob's 9/11), are caused from their leaderless weakness to not face bremer and the bushmob as war criminals continuing to transgress in America's name high-jacked.

Mr. bremer fired Iraqi school teachers, and hired up Saddam's secret service, those, who if any, would have closer relationships to charges of criminal impropriety in the name of the baathist banner, than any other group would be. If an American soldier in Iraq today, feels those from the Saddam Baathist regime should face American Justice (the real way by thinking) why then, is bremer not behind bars awaiting his public court appearance? Mr. bremer as the director of Kissinger Associates, is as, directly tied to "CRIMINALLY" providing Saddam his WMD knowhow. The first "Iraqgate".. [I apologize as Creator for being partially responsible for this worse than B movie but true plot line scenario, however, looky here!, there is so much more to believe!!!]

The bushmob tricks are too cunning to comprehend, see?
Again, for those who can, bush must be stopped from murdering American Patriots for no good cause, because, it's really getting US royally miffed way up here also as the true beings actually committed to Justice as Freedom for all. That's all folks.

Imagine this is why the bushite soldier states the Humans must not be allowed to disagree with anything the bushmob in Iraq does, because then we'll all know together how pathetically weak and cowardly they truly appear as criminally acting with such betrayals as an ungodly evil tyranny, without any true leadership to speak about. Robbing their own nation of America as immediate family in the process. Dying. All for intolerant war monger bush's hatred for the American dream, and contempt for all human good will as kindness.

http://www.alternet.org/story.html?StoryID=17671

" The Corps unilaterally issued a waiver of Halliburton's requirement to provide "any cost and pricing data." The Corps says it issued the waiver at the request of Halliburton. How convenient. " (N.D.)

Just another PUBLIC bushmob act of sedition against the old red, white, and blue, to sacrifice an American Patriot as measured worthless with. So American Soldier, what are you going to do for US payers being robbed in the open by the bushmob in Your dying brother's name like that?, as one American Citizen censored from speaking publicly at length like all the rest of US are also in corporate america? Just try to air an American Patriots concern on american talk radio, and see how fast your rights are silenced by the witches, or bushite cultists Art Bell has no problem giving his National show over and over again to forbid any protest.

" Steven Russell said that "protests are not authorized and that participation in protests is punishable." "

" Steven Russell. "These People have always hated US in this area. It is not surprising that they hate US." "

He ain't kidding me he is completely unqualified to hold any leadership position. A real de-generative paranoid delusionist, mared likely early on from corporate neglect he suffers still from. He is what is referred to as a bigot, and likely therefor, a probable racist. The 'area' he forces through threats of murder, are to demand this vision be no greater than his own. His own of equality being freedom by Justice Supreme doesn't stand his scrutiny as aimed for target. Bible or Constitution, all trash. Innocent guilty, good guy bad guy, he couldn't divulge as devote blind bushite, war criminal 'mastermind'. Oh by the way, truly, he breeds indiscriminate warfare as a bad soldier, while the bushmob are walking away with who's loyal investment. . . ? . . . The clock is ticking. If I can teach Buford and Steve with this breaker, they'll turn around and kill bush and rummy instead for 9/11 to make the newspapers. This is why a repuglicon doesn't like to feed early start programs, that way, Lt. Col. Steven Russell can pretend he's doing US in this world a favor, when really, he couldn't care to know if his ACTION would CAUSE the needless murder of yet another, Patriot American brother. Steven, you arrest Buford, and Buford, well you just go ahead and arrest Steven, and then... well, we'll take it from there.

Instead What?

Instead tell US as an antiAmerican bushite?, you'll murder US innocent for demon bush and rotten rummy?, regarding those free speechers who dare voice with FACT, that, Iraqi banking, university, or health care, is more intelligent to remain Universal as it was to serve the People's interests BEFORE baathist bremer sabotaged communications? The bushmob isn't bringing Freedom, but stealing it. And as such being consequence, so too, Amerka. Haven't you heard? Bush's Amerka will be freeer now that evidence is no longer a requirement to convince US who is evil incarnate, and protesters can be shot without CNN making the news over it. It's betterer I'm sure Ashcroft would say to torture or murder the innocent, that to arrest the culprits responsible for high treason in God's America. Right bushites?

" commander of the 1st Battalion, 22nd Infantry Regimen, Lt. Col. Steven Russell, as saying, "This is to remind the town that we have teeth and claws and we will use them." "

What an evil dumdum traitor to the town of New York City steven russell is eh?

Imagine this is why the evil dumdum bushite soldier states the Humans must not be allowed to disagree with anything the bushmob does criminally, because then we'd all know how they ungodly as cowards behave; treasonously acting in such a inhuman tyrannical manner without true leadership to speak about. Ask an American Soldier who proudly states they wouldn't kill unarrested buford "bush bitch" blount or steven russell instantly to save the life of one innocent defenseless child, and I'll show you an enemy of America as just another expendable soulless nazi bush whore. (ten cents per I'm paying..) Let's all hope and pray a sexy rummy cluster dud dropped by bank robbing heroin pusher tommy franks does them in, instead of US good guys driving in the designated place at the right time bound for further criminal bushmob sacrifice as leaderlessly too weak and cowardly to stand up for 'the Human cause', eh?
An aside: Corporate Americans are publicly taxed twice as much per capita for their inhuman private health care exclusions, than Canadians do for public health care that measures every Canadian as Canadians. (The bushites are evil, and dumber than dumb I told you before the election, but your news agencies refuse to still listen to our top priority concerns regarding the demon antiChrist's murder rampages against American principles, and her citizens left uncapitalized.)
Think of it: the criminal bushmob will easily sacrifice a leaderless bushite nazi soldier, to steal from their own families back home undefended, maybe a nickel, while I, as a real man, beg them to be Soldiers from America's America, by getting to unarrested buford "bush bitch" blount, death squad recruiter tommy franks, or even baathist bremer as the actual enemies of true Patriots everywhere. At the same time, DEMANDING the start to promoting free fair elections, the solving of tommy's bank robbery, and the return of the stolen Humanitarian Aid giving illegally to double biller commi Halliburton.
But so far, they cower as cowards, afraid to protect their own family from further bushite tyranny that they don't have a mind to speak of. Nor, an Art Bell to learn from. (American Talk Radio don't wanta get political while advocating no concerns about dying soldiers led by the bushmob. Why? Americans seem to hate all of their humanity, or so the bushites would like you to think so through censorship of the dying victims. However, I'm still holding out on the chances of one or two in the Marines as loyal to America, who will if they have to, bravely be taking down bush and rumsfeld immediately for escaping arrest regarding 9/11. You can fool some of the people some of the time, but bush can't fool all of the people as evil incarnate, for that would just be plain silly.)

Look, about all those bad names you thought I called you before, as a messed up son of a gun, listen, we all make mistakes, and... well, if your willing to work for the survival of Justice in America, somebody'll be proud to salute your Patriotism as Freedom truly reining. (Or perhaps the real Americans, to protect the lives of their blood brothers and sisters, will bravely demand the immediate arrest by gun point of the bushmob for 9/11, to be strong and brave, humane and godly. I guess we'll ask who is the sea, the demon antiChrist bush, along with Ashcroft and rotten rummy, or still We. -ba)

Communicating knowledge is powerful stuff let me tell you. (Roar) A person can spend a lifetime of study in a branch of understanding, and write an illumination readable by another in just a few short hours, then take in a play or perhaps a movie, then the weekends over, and you better get back to work or you'll lose the house on this next late mortgage payment. I don't claim to have all the answers, but i do just about. Hidden in here somewhere...

Of the blind human condition trying to thrive, G is the last Word on lethal threats to the innocent. Threats made by war criminals who have high-jacked America's White House, protected by dying as evil bushite nazi teen terrorists angers everyone truly. Enemies of our Humanity whom is still living art within Heaven. I genuinely dislike devote bushite, American cop killing cultists with everything I am of honestly, and so too, it does appear also, the bushmob could care even less for its disciples. For the demon antiChrist, Your Mr. Bush Jr., fools all Patriots when he tells them evidence of his treason. What secrets? He secretly planned and implements to not work for public criminal investigations regarding the murder of thousands of American People. Thousands. With Kissinger. What is it, that you as a bushite or otherwise, can't figure?

None are seperate from this dying dream we call life's living end. Time to change your religious convictions on the true existence of a higher power maybe? (I am really very easy to believe in, and when speaking face to face, I leave little of no shadows to doubt I am simply a, super freak as Natural human Being. I scare few that shouldn't be, and I can't read anyone's mind, however, intention, is a whole other matter all together. You gotta be almost like a god to fool me into thinking one plus one doesn't equal two.)

Anyway.

America is still a work in progress, alive, willing, and almost able to defend by rule of individual rights by wHoly miGht. It makes absolutely no difference on what you think of me personally, (if you've finalized an estimation), I mean it, no difference. There are ideas as this Universe living would concur upon, timelessly, and see?, I know this as the Son of Man of anyone already, always have. (I don't need people to tell me I'm great as the Wisdom of Ages, I just need a few dollars to tide me over until I can get a steady paycheck.) I have no intentions of ever forcing the world against our ability, or getting elected as King for being just myself as a none-partisan, soft-spoken well mannered businessman. I am the actual make believe Lord and Creator of the bushite cesspool labeled America, and thanks for nothing is not what I'm demanding.

Letting the bushmob escape from committing the terrorist acts of 9/11, can not go further unanswered in this universe, I'm sorry. That's just not a world I as a defender of my living purpose would feel comfortable held up in chains and shackled ever. It's really not where I dream unbound along with the real world ways of life's struggle for true freedom, being my commitment kept honorably by doing some good for my sake is a virtue for all. God, American People are so ignorant, cowardly, and duped to not help ourselves sometimes, it destroys US, instead of the lying bush demon antiChrist. You know?, the enemy of all People, freedom and Justice? as a corporatist bushite cult deceiver would want US to not believe?

Can you believe that demon bush spewed last week that American Patriot Soldiers have been SACRIFICED because Saddam, ""did not let us in." Now, if he is that uninformed on Our documented reality regarding TRUTH in

WORTHLESS WITH.

Bush's Iraq: An Appointocracy
http://www.globeandmail.com/servlet/ArticleNews/TPStory/LAC/20040122/CONAOMI22/Colu

mnists/Idx

" Except that the United States has absolutely no intention of actually getting out of Iraq. It wants its troops to remain, and it wants Bechtel, MCI and Halliburton to stay behind and run the water system, the phones and the oil fields. "

Never ever land more like. Imagine that: Arabic WorldCom phone bills, Halliburton gas bills, with the only store "legally" open to US public will be Bechtel, who will demand through bushite tyranny, you pay your wages for something unjustly over billed as, but put together at less than five dollars a day wages offered, being as the only jobs available through not publicly accounted bushite middleman directly chancing the whole country of America as undefended financially., extending "their" risk to do nothing; by the further needless SACRIFICE of MORE AMERICAN (bushited) PATRIOTS AS truly dying WORTHLESS WITH as da dumdums. Armed American Soldiers should be bravely going after Baathist bremer with DEMANDS for immediate democratic elections and the immediate return of ALL the stolen oil-for-food money to be spent entirely on priority Iraqi needs, solving the bank robbery, while considering to start printing up millions of invites for Iraqis to stay in America until the toxic waste dumped by rumsfeld can be partially neutralized., while we hunt down the rest of the evil bushmob, one by one, with the full extent of Law, entrusted to the Loyal American Patriot Soldier's Oath to do what is strategically right in our America to survive. Why do we do this? To protect our fellow Soldiers from sacrificing under lawless criminal command where a, buford "bush bitch" blount type, murders good people for no stated reason, but to toll more American casualties, while robbing all Civilization as fallen bushite victim.

No wonder the evil bushites are now leaving in the light, their Iraqi dis-investment plan, for the easier pickings of undefended COWARDLY America tax payers to rob from. Again, more than half of the monthly 4 billion plus 'top secret' plan, plans to not account to ourselves., on costs of expenses doing nothing much of anything in Iraq TO SACRIFICE MORE AMERICAN PATRIOTS AS WORTHLESS WITH. (Apparently, they can't think this far due to the required math skills of subtraction and division.. Or, so the bushmob don't say in between Our commercial breaks on newscasts, or our acclaimed artists publicly blast during the, we're the best at this, award ceremonies.)

See the tragedy? The leaderless "bushited", American Soldiers are too weak or cowardly to stand strong as Americans for the needless loss of their very own by cluster bomb. It is From the get go, an American Soldier is sacrificed for, as the evil demon bush lies. Examples abound today like stolen money being wasted to fake fix things, really lives little damage undone. Or leaving buford "bush bitch" blount and the heroin pushing, child killer tommy franks unarrested, does little of no good for America's image abroad, when waring the bushmob "Freedom" medal, on an American cop killing cowardly bushite soldier's dying breast. A "Freedom" medal celebrating the ultimate escape of bush and rumsfeld from an American Patriot's wrath as the primary 9/11 instigators. (Say to a proud bushite, "General Ahmad funded Atta" and they run away as cowards, to play pretend like nazi savages who dropped bombs on US innocent irrationally to pay further costs in sacrifice to their false-deity unthinkingly.) God or no God, I hate the demon antiChrist, corporate america's false-deity, Your unelected Mr. bush Jr., as much as any real Creator of this world, or any other should.

With such real inaction on old promises [lies] made by the dishonorable and dishonest leaderless bushite nazi savages, while desecrating all of Humanity by fighting against a just rule of Law, (instead of protecting America's America), forces the continued REAL WORLD sacrifice of true Liberty, until the bushmob gang is brought up by US for war crimes., as the 9/11 perpetrating, super evil as ungodly, demon antiChrist in disguises. (I very much would feel welcomed to play my part in those public proceedings.) Hmmm.. maybe CNN or CBC can become publicly convinced we should have our own news programs on what's truly happening?, to compete against the 'evil bushites' in this competitive free market place of ideas? Who knows..

Take care of the business, by getting US in on our news-casts., as these principles here standing in words, are a dreamers dreams, just waiting for You to bring to reality., by standing proud, strong, and forever free as a, truly, super awesome Human Being.

Demon Bush replied, "No, the intelligence I operated on

was good, sound intelligence."

Where is bush leading America on not ever taking an apology for his misdeeds to destroy our true American value with? I don't know how else to simply word this to the still sleeping, but bush isn't America, America is America. You, as an American, have a sworn right to demand for America, bush not be allowed to further miscarriage Justice blindly back to the dark ages, by not correcting himself on behalf of established publicly, where American intelligence stood, stands, and ultimately strives. Freedom is not protected by letting the "bad guys" go, to further toll more innocent lives for criminal sacrifice. Sometimes, the real simple things are over looked as profound meaning. The Magna Charta of 1215 states that a freeman should not be imprisoned. Simple right? Not for the bushites who side instead to faith in pope bush, who deliberately unminds a timeless universal principle that exists also in the 1700 B.C's, Code of Hammurabi, where all individuals are to be found equally under the Law, to be fair minded about our business. Simple right? No, corporate america says being fair, is not to care one way or the other between commercials., and the result?
The available 9/11 evidence is not publicly disclosed as relevantly important, for Laden did the whole thing by himself, (bush, cheney, and rumsfeld said they know better than everyone else put together so don't even bother to form your own conclusions on your present state devaluating) case closed, now blindly pay your further tithes to bush, cheney and rumsfeld for letting the crime go publicly undetected, while with 13303, we will silently watch bush make himself tyrannical dictator over the rest of our Humanity, where he tells US, to escape, he will with evil american nazi bushite soldiers in tow, get this: not be found accountable to Ourselves anywhere by law to witness, or to an all knowing God even. Spooky, strange and somewhat disturbing, siding to show, bush really is dim-witted as archetypical evil incarnate eh? See? Civilization's Code of Hammurabi consists of 282 paragraphs, of which, the first line from the first paragraph translated states "If a man bring an accusations against a man, and charge him with a capital crime, but cannot prove it, he, the accuser shall be put to death." Your demon bush Jr. is recognized as an enemy of God not only by the Taliban, but since the birth of the Human condition. The position Your Mr. bush Jr., the antiChrist, threatens against US all, (EVERY FAMILY'S MAN, WOMAN, AND CHILD), is one where, as murdering war monger nazi tyrant, he can with bush bitch traitor buford blount and bremer, deem any NATION of People, outside all the laws of the Universe, regarding our truer existence dying. My timing as Creation is impeccable, when you think about it. But don't think too much about nothing in your own defense while dreaming what is doing, isn't really happening. The unjustified NEEDLESS continuing murder and destruction in Iraq by toxic bombings and the use of cluster bombs as landmine to really kill cowardly and ignorant American soldiers pirated as anti-American lawless God hating nazi teen bush bitches, then, with tommy franks to undermine the ORHA plan to rob the central bank, museum, and steal billions in humanitarian aid by killing more leaderless as evil godless american soldiers with, was in itself, a crime against Your Humanity., and bush along with rummy need to pay the Piper immediately, before needlessly, taking US any further as not truly represented lyrically to sing or dance about aimlessly.

The demon bush's life, isn't worth the sacrifice he makes of our opinions on Liberty, or our children's future.

The topic is WWVB, the binary signal. WWVH is the voice signal, which an autosetting clock will not understand.

That may be the case Scott, but the 'atomic clocks' they are speaking of use the WWVB signal from Ft. Collins, Colorado on 60 KHz to set their time automatically.

That signal may indeed not be propagating well enough to be of use in Hawaii.

I agree with whoever said WWVH in Hawii is l/c and on same status as wwv in Colorado, so these "skyscan" clocks should perform as specified. I found though that my latest one will keep time right to the second for a period of time, the I have to move it upstairs where reception is better and leave it there for 24 hours. Once reset to exact time tick I again put downstairs in the shack and its good for another momth or so. I fail to see how the clock reader can discriminate between WWVH (on Kauai) and WWV in Colorado.

But most atomic clocks use WWVB on 60 khz out of Fort Collins. WWVH, to my knowledge, only uses HF freqs (5, 10, 15 Mhz). But yeah, I'm sure the rice keeps better time than the people who eat it. :)

I heard the LuaLuaLei transmitter a lot, but not WWVH, when I lived there.
500kW or 1MW IIRC, somewhere around 24kHz.

I thought WWVH also had BCD data a couple times an hour? Or has that been stopped along with the Omega navigation beacons?

Is there no VLF facility in Hawaii comparable to WWVB?

They don't use WWV or WWVH. They use WWVB 60 kHz out of Fort Collins.

The data sent on 60 kHz by WWVB isn't transmitted by WWVH. Here's a chart of the coverage areas of WWVB and it looks like it has a decent chance of being received in KH6-land at certain hours, like 0800 UTC.

WWVH is the 2.5, 5, 10, 15, and 20 MHz voice and data transmitter, it's on exactly the same freq as WWV in Ft Collins. If you listen, there's a silence before the guy on WWV speaks, that's for the lady from WWVH to talk first. (very polite :)

The clocks use WWVB which is a 60 khz signal.
Interference from LuaLuaLei may make that impossible to pick up.
There also used to be a Loran transmitter around 100kHz IIRC, on the north shore of Oahu, but they may have taken that down now.

I've also found a racehorse named "Morris Code". Its quite amazing what Google can find!
On a slightly more serious note - It's really quite sad to see how often
"Morse" is distorted into "Morris" I've found thousands of hits.
I supose this kind of thing is inevitable in a population of so-called english speakers who don't know or don't care about the difference between "there", "their" and "they're".

I noticed that during Black Heritage week a black band came into our company and played music. I particularly noticed the drummer and my mind began to wander, thinking that the heritage goes way back to early primitive days using this device to communicate over great distances, albeit within audible range. We also know that sinusoid signals can focus the energy into a narrower spectrum enhancing the range. Every boy scout knows that (in the northern hemisphere) the green stuff grows on the north side of trees and when cut down and placed face up, a more mellow sinusoid sound is made when banging on the trunk. Hence the origin of the technology called the "Moss Code". :-)

How in the hell can the CLOCK detector tell any difference between the time signal from WWV or WWVH. They are both on exact same frequecies, the time tick is identical on both !!!!
Kokomo Joe
WWVH on Kauai has a consistantly strong signal. Albeit at times is totally off the air several times in any given month.

If the signal format is exactly identical to WWV it has a continuous time signal being sent as a 100 Hz tone at 1 bps. If you can't hear it on your radio (because of "comm grade" headphone or speaker or ears), you can use skysweeper in free demo mode and see the bits clear as day in the waterfall display.

Someone should call in and tell him his ass sucks well water. He won't take my call. I told him 25 years ago that he was going to bankrupt 73 if he didn't stay true to the hobby.

Wayne Green. Loser extrordinaire. Failed more ham radio businesses and magazines than anyone in human history.

I don't want to pay to listen to him, unless I'm writing a book about "good examples of a bad example".

Once that poor lady named Barbara who used to do Coast to Coast on weekends was stuck with Wayne for four hours. I listened for thirty minutes, my gorge slowly rising, as he spewed smelly chunk after chunk of typical Coast to Coast-type utterly baseless drivel, all delivered without supporting evidence or citation, and in tones of absolute authority, somewhat as if he Moses on the mount. Wayne Green, at least when he appears on Coast to Coast, is as full of off-the-wall theories and opinions as your local surly homeless man. No, I take that back. He's worse! The fact that he's made a lot of money in his life apparently means he's never been humbled enough to learn to apply even the slightest pinch of doubt to his own opinions. He's as sublimely sure of himself in his nonsense as a petty dictator to whom no-one has ever said "No."

I think he's a kook when he's on the show, because I sure have not heard him talk of radio, but actually kooky things.

But I don't think it's fair to categorize him as a "loser".

He may have turned CQ around when he was editor in the fifties, and most definitely one cannot say it was a bad magazine when he was editor. While he was there, the first practical parametric amplifer wsa described, along with a practical selectible sideband synchronous detector. He drew various well known people to the magazine, Sam Harris and John W. Campbell to name two (I can't remember if Don Stoner was already there when Wayne took over as editor), as article writers or columnists.

He left, and started 73. How do you rate a failed magazine? It lasted over forty years, which is a pretty good life for an independent magazine.
Yes, it decayed badly in it's last ten years, but for 25 years or so it was a pretty good construction magazine.

He started Byte, and while he lost it within three issues, I don't think anyone can argue its success. But of course, it only lasted about 20 years.

He started Kilobaud, and it only lasted about 7 or 8 years. But then, a whole slew of computer magazines, a field that he pretty muchs tarted, died off at the same time.

He started various magazines dedicated to specific computers, which also had a relatively limited run, but then, so did the computers they dealt with. They, and Kilobaud for that matter, I don't think generally failed under his watch, because he sold them off to IDG for a bundle.

He started a CD magazine, that maybe lasted ten years, but it was pretty successful for a while. I'm pretty sure he sold it off, again for a bundle, before it faded away.

Note that with a lot of his magazines that "failed", he was picking topics that were on a rising curve, where there was a need for specialized magazines because the topic was so new. They were a source of infortion, a place to find ads for related items, and a place for advertisers to reach the specialized field. As such things moved to the mainstream, they lost steam becuse one could find information elsewhere, and for that matter one needed the information maybe less because the topic was all over the place. Take the CD magazine; it arrived when CDs were relatively new and they could run a list of all CDs in each issue. You likely had to go out of your way to find CDs, and you needed help to decide which player to buy, since they were uncommon and quite expensive. Now, you can buy the players everywhere, and for under a hundred dollars, and you can find those CDs everywhere too.

Of course Wayne had some magazines that bombed really fast. But over the same span, plenty of magazines have come and gone. Wayne had the money, or gumption, to try magazines on new topics, and since he kept trying, he was bound to fail sometimes. Others would stop after one failure.

How many ham businesses did he ever start? Radio Kits in the sixties? A useful service for people who wanted to build what were in the magazines but apparently it was always a money loser. There was a time when he could publish books, because he had the press for 73. He stopped at some point, does that make it a failure? He sold code tapes for some years, and then that too faded away. Does that make it a failure?

Were there some I don't know about? I had suspicions about some advertising in 73 in the sixties, that happened to be in New Hampshire near 73. Was it Redline, that made converters? They didn't last too long, but plenty of such small businesses came and went, even without Wayne's help.

He had his hands in multiple fields, because the core magazine, 73, was successful enough that he could try other things. The computer magazines were successful, likely some of them had greater readership than 73 at any time in its history, and that meant he could try new things. When he sold them off, the cash meant he could still try new things.

Sure, there was a period when 73 was part of IDG, but that was fallout from selling the computer magazines. But basically, for over forty years he was an independent publisher. He never had to go to a regular job, never had to fallback on that when his projects failed. That has to make him successful.

Hardly any magazines over the same period were published by independents. Most were under big publishers. Independents had a tendency to fail.

Or, they'd be sold to the big publishers, and then had tendency to disappear. Gernsback himself started an awful lot of magazines, and most of them "failed" too, maybe faster than Wayne's. Gernsback, the publisher, failed last year, killing it's last remaining magazine, that basically hadn't had much of a life.

No, I think Wayne was pretty successful.

I'd have to agree. Back in the late '70s (long before the IBM PC) Green published "80-Micro" devoted to the Radio Shack TRS-80 (of which I owned three or four, various models). It was a thick, hefty magazine with tempting ads for expensive things like a 5-MB hard drive. Every issue carried many program listings in Basic, or hex code which could be laboriously keyboarded to produce an .exe file. I typed in most of them, learning how to program in the process (and I'm sure MANY current old programmers started out the same way), and eventually sold a few of my own new programs to Wayne for publication.

Wayne was a pioneer, and the TRS-80 was the first "serious" (even with only 16K ram) computer most of us saw... it had a 64-column screen fine for word processing, compared to only 40 or so on the Apple. The early TRS-80 had a very bouncy keyboard, and I had a real epiphany about the power of software when Wayne's magazine published a little software patch... I keyed it in and the bounce went away for good.

I've never heard him on the radio and thus can't comment on whether his current ideas are wacky or not, but his many contributions to ham radio and home computing are indisputable.

Back on topic: once I even programmed a controller for my NRD-525 in compiled basic with full dual VFOs and could control everything on the receiver but the volume. Without Wayne, I might never have taught myself how to do that :^)

Gernsback and Green have/had two things in common.
Both sold cleverly veiled bullshit which was dressed up as valid future science to geeks, nerds and fools. Modern day PT Barnum's who wrap their circus act in 5-point colored paper. Noorey and Bell do the same thing by giving them and their ilk an occasional microphone today. If they were not in print media or broadcasting, they all most certanly would be selling pre-owned automobiles someplace, or perhaps partners with shady local politicians.

That was a Navy transmitter, not NIST. I was stationed at Lualualei

I taped the show last night.
Guess what folks..!

BOTH Wayne and that GOLD PLATED KOOK David were booted off of the show last night by Noorey!
Seems that Booth did not want to talk about anything and all that Green seemed to want to do was shill for Booth and his crap for sale. After wasting ONE HOUR of airtime (..on 500+ AM stations and XM Sat Radio live) and logging THOUSANDS of listener complain e-mails that they were cheated, Noorey booted both these jerks off the program!

BAAAAAAAAAAAAA
HAHAHAHAHA!!!!!!!!!
Just what these two carnival circuis sideshow barkers needed! Booth made a total schmuck of himself and Green sat there grinning like a cheshire cat with a microphone inserted up it's anus.....all on live AM Radio.

Here's the official release from C to C AM:

Meeting with Lucia?

Returning to the show, precognitive David Booth was joined by author Wayne Green to ostensibly discuss his recent meeting with Lucia, witness to the Miracles of Fatima in 1917. Booth had been invited to meet with Sister Lucia, presumably because of the apocalyptic visions he had in 2003.

Booth said he met Sister Lucia, now 97, at a Carmelite convent in Portugal and held a private conversation with her for five minutes.
He would only reveal that he was told that a "new star" that had been prophesized about would begin to shine. Because Booth had been booked on the show to discuss his meeting with Lucia, and refused to elaborate further upon it, the interview was cut short, and the last 90 minutes of the program was reserved for Open Lines.

Noory finally stands up to the fraud$

Remember when Art Bell tried to scare us shitless by bringing on guests who predicted the end of the world then actively selecting which guests he would label on his fraud "list" he would never have on his show again? He continually ditched guests and "friends" in a lame attempt to bring integrity to the show yet only interested in saving his own butt. Things came to a head when he spooked the Heaven's Gate cult members to kill themselves. Art was never the wildly alarmist hit-and-runner like his guests, at least apparently. Whitley Shitter and Ed
Damn-you-all-to-h*ll we all know are on his team.
They write "collaborative" books like bargian trash bin "superstorm" and call themselves prophets vs. the "mainstream" media.
Then Art tells them to shut up on end of the world ultimatims and even Dames
relented that his death prophecies could with .00000001% chance be "averted" with enough "positive" thinking by Coast listeners.

First there was Nigel Cawler or someone who couldn't come up with the UFO landing specifics, and Art got "impatient" and knocked him off after the break in 1996. Follow up to the heady days with the Hale Bopp
"companion" kept people awake with deathwatch pulses. Then Art dumped the Reverse Speech guy. Courtney Brown was next. Later on it was the guy who lit "flares" in the nevada desert where an old lady in a wheelchair had traveled there spending hundreds of dollars to see a UFO.

Finally, Noory couldn't stand it anymore. Night after night, he had to have the frauds sell their books and videos and make excuses for them.
And now he finally broke with "Wayne Greene" and the "vision-1979" man tonight-morning. What a schmuck the vision man is saying 97% of the world's population is going to die in Sept. (read 5.9+ billion people wasted just like that). If vision-man cared so much for humanity why doesn't he just offer his information free on his website? At least put up a pay-pal donation option like Hoaxland does now.

At least Hoaxland is entertaining. And he's quick on his feet especially with the scientific stuff. Hoaxie should be a NASA administrator instead of the lazybum desk pushers in charge of NASA now.

But all the other "end of the world" pushers of their video and books, I'd say Noory continue and throw them all out if Art won't do it.

(10 million listeners. If only .01% scared shitless listeners bought into the bunk, that's 1000 people who buy $20-$100 books or video tapes making a hefty $20,000-$100,000 from 1 night of advertising! This must go through every bullshitters mind who's lucky or glib enough to get a guest spot on C2C. No wonder Noory has to reign it in finally. C2C has become whose the best bullshitter who can come up with the best spiel and promote books/tapes so listeners can "learn more". C2C has become the "Who wants to be a millionare" of the airwaves, or any of thos "reality" shows which always feature a lame $100,000+ prize at the end of the season.

I am going to Sea Base in a few weeks..
Anyone know the conditions at the Florida Sea Base facility?
Can I run an antenna for 20 meters?
Is there AC there for a charger?
Do you have cell service there? Which service etc. T-Mobile, etc?

I have for auction on eBay (http://www.ebay.com) a very nice JRC JST-245 Transceiver + accessories.
All items are in exceptional condition. See the Product Review in September 1995 QST for a glowing report. The transceiver puts out 150 watts, has a built in Power Supply, and has the prettiest front panels of any radio around. Including the original box, manual, power cord, desk mic and deluxe external speaker.

73 failed because of the "dumbing down" of ham radio. I started subscribing to 73 and Ham Radio, remember that one, because of their TECHNICAL content and projects. I look through my late 70s and 80s issues and they are just full of projects.
Yes, Wayne was full of himself. Tho sometimes he said things againest the arrl that needed saying, causing food for thought.
What killed 73 was solid state "sealed" rigs that could not be modified and the manufacturing of full featured radios cheap by yesterdays standards making homebrewing economically unreasonable. Why do you think Heath, Echo and other kit manufactures closed. Back in those days all rigs had huge wiring harnesses that HAD to be hand soldered. Real labor intensive. Labor costs now with solid state and "computer" type boards is actually the least of the manufacturing cost. A complete turn around from the '70s & '80s time frame.
Hams, for the most part, quit building and experimenting. So 73's and Ham Radio's meat and potatoes disappeared.

I have one of the small desk clocks that synchronizes to WWVB at night. It auto-adjusts the internal crystal (or says it does) to keep itself going during the day. I've found that it maintains accuracy very well: certainly good enough for anything short of atomic physics.

I live in the NorthEastern U.S., where the signal is relatively weak (look at the maps at the URL a previous poster supplied) and don't have any significant trouble with it. I looked at the NIST web site, and I think they said something about boosting the power of the WWVB signal: so if you had trouble with it before, it might be worth trying again.

Yes, not to belabor the subjct, but WWVB is 60Khz, while WWV, & WWVH are 2.5.....20Mhz.

There is no voice with WWVB. Howver, for calibration purposes
WWVB is more stable, and accurate.

No, the second ticks are 5 cycles of 1000 Hz on WWV and 6 cycles of 1200 Hz on WWVH.

You're right a wwv or wwvh clock both receive and decode the same manner. Both wwv and wwvh transmit at 2.5, 5. 10, 15, & 20Mhz.
There is no 60Khz on Kiuai.

Yes, he is! Credible eyewitnesses in the area claim to have seen Elvis sharing a pitcher of Rum/Cokes with none other than Fat Ted Kennedy. The waitress said that after a couple of hours and several pitchers later Fat Ted offered to drive Elvis home. Elvis gracefully declined the offer and told Fat Teddy that he wasn't in the mood for a midnight swim. Fat Ted commented that his new Oldsmobile was as safe as any car made...it has custom air bags installed and unlike his other Oldsmobile, this one will float clear across Chappaquiddick and back!
Elvis demurred and opted to walk home.

Fat Teddy was last seen careening down the road and bouncing from curb to curb as he "felt" his way back to Hyannis Port. According to the waitress, Fat Ted told Elvis that he had a high-level meeting with some Muslims tomorrow and he had to get some call girls lined up before he passed out.

If you are talking about some people having out of area calls, it is not a problem. Even if all callsigns were aligned with their call areas, you still can't tell where a ham is by his/her call sign. For example I live in Michigan. If I hear a 0 call, do I point my antenna at northern Minnesota or southern Missouri? Can't tell from the call sign. I still have to look it up.

Besides you will run into a storm of protest from anyone holding call signs that are 1x3 or shorter. All sequentially assigned call signs that are 1x3, 1x2, and 2x1 are gone. Therefore anyone not eligible for an Advanced class 2x2 or an Extra 2x2 beginning with A would either have to settle for a 2x3 call or find a vacant vanity call. In the 1x2s and 2x1s these are almost no vanity calls available.

Then of course, some people would be condemned to frequent call changes as their job situations require them to move frequently. I was originally licensed in 1992 in Ohio and thus received an 8 call. Since then, I've lived in Illinois (9 land), South Dakota (0 land) and now back to Michigan (once again in 8 land). I would have ended up with 4 different calls and would not have been able to get my original call back when I moved to Michigan. Fortunately, I did not have to change my call.

Since you obviously have access to the internet, it only takes a minute to look up a person's location.

No, what I was talking about was the fact that my callsign is not centered when the FCC prints it out. As a matter of fact, it's way to the right of the page. I noticed that a friend's is the same way. We're both Extra class and my license looks so stupid, I don't want to display it publicly.

Everything else is centered and I know that the FCC is aware of this because I first reported it in August 2002.

on 3/14/04 don sent a bulk email message to everybody on the 146.640 group email list, here it is...My name is Ed Roberts, W9PXL, here in St Pete. I work at the Lighthouse Crossing RadioShack at 38th ave and Tyrone Blvd.

Last year my buddy (N4OJ) and I decided to start having a swapmeet/tailgate/hamfest thing here in front of the store. The first one was held last October and it went real well. I am pleased to announce the second one is this Sunday March 14th, from 8:00am till ????

All you folks from the 640 repeater are cordially invited to attend. I didn't know if you were aware of this swapmeet. I know it will be a busy weekend with your picnic and Chesters, but please consider attending or at least let others know about it.

If you have any questions call Terry N4OJ at 727-319-9964. It is going to be fun! 73 de W9PXL, Ed

ps the location is : Lighthouse Crossing Shopping Center

3993 Tyrone Blvd St Pete, FL 33709

The story doesn't end there. Apparently after booting Green and Booth off the show, Noory had his producers check with the Carmelites of the convent where the nun lives. They were told she is very old and frail and has not had visitors for a long time! Noory discussed all this on Friday nights show.

The whole thing was obviously a scam from the start. Green and Booth had claimed that Sister Lucia had never heard of David Booth or his apocalyptic dreams. They are pandering to the end of the world crowd claiming that 97% of the people on Earth would die this year.

Anyone up for a good tar and feathering?

Every license I've received since 2002 has been that way. I've had address changes. And when my friend renewed, his came the same way.

This should be easily corrected in the template they're using but you know how most government employees are. But it really makes them look stupid. A third world country probably has no mistakes like that.

3B9, RODRIGUES ISLAND. The Mega DXpedition, 3B9C, is now active until April 13th. Direct QSLs go via: FSDXA, P.O. Box 73, Church Stretton, SY6 6WF, UK. Bureau cards go via RSGB Bureau. Remember, Bureau QSLs can be requested via their Web page. For updates and more details, visit their Web page at: http://fsdxa.com/3b9c/

3D2, FIJI. Brian, N6IZ, will be active again as 3D2IZ from Namotu Island (IOTA OC-121) in Fiji from March 28th until April 3rd. In between surfing and taking in the sun, look for him on 80/40/30/20/15/10 meters SSB or CW. Details from his last visit (in 2003) are available via the following Web page (soon to be updated) at: http://www.brianboschma.com/3d2iz.html

9A50, CROATIA (Attention Prefix Hunters!). Look for special event station 9A50EZA to be active until the end of year in honor of 50th anniversary of the Radio Club "Ludbreg". Activity during the past week was on 14187 kHz after 2000z. QSL via 9A1EZA: Radio Club "Ludbreg", P.O. Box 9, HR-42230 Ludbreg, CROATIA.

9U5M QRT. Dennis, PA7FM, informed OPDX that Michael, PA5M, active as 9U5M, went QRT on the evening of the 16th of March. He hasn't been as active as he wanted to.....but the main reason being in Burundi was his work for the World Food program of the UN. Over the past weekend Michael was in A6 but will go to 9L Monday, March 22nd. Due to the very busy work there, he won't apply for a licence this time. His next DX activity may be about 2 months from now when he will go to some other place (not known yet). Meanwhile, the complete 9U5M and YI/PA5M logs are online at: http://www.pa7fm.nl QSLs should go to PA7FM: Dennis Robbemond, Loggerhof 11, 3181NS Rozenburg, The Netherlands. Please remember that one USD is not enough to cover the cost of mailing outside of Europe, and therefore, those QSLs will be answered by the bureau.

CU, AZORES. Arlindo, CT1EGW, will be active as CT1EGW/CU2 from April 7-11th, from Sao Miguel (EU-003). During his free time he plans to operate on RTTY. QSL via direct or via the bureau.

D2, ANGOLA (6 meters). Ed, D2PFN, travelled to Johannesburg over the past weekend to pick-up a 6 meter 4 element beam. He will install it on his tower, and it will be operational in 7-10 days.

DA0, GERMANY. Look for the following operators to be active using the special callsign, DA0WPX, in the CQ WPX SSB Contest this weekend. Operators are Klaus, DB9JP; Marion, DF4UM; Luer, DF5TP; Peter, DH4JQ; Gerhard/DH4JU, Harald/DH9KR, Diethelm/DJ2YE, Guenter/DK1RI, Alexander/DK5VZ, Karlfried/DL1EK, Marion/DL1SDJ, Stefan/DL7AOS, Lars/DL9LR and possibly some others. They will set up a special station for this contest. They will use 4 running and one multiplierstation during the contest. All radios are YAESU FT-1000 Mark V. They have monobander beams for 10, 15 and 20m, a 4-square for 40 and 80, verticals for 80 and 160m, two dipoles each for 40, 80 and 160, and beverages and a multiband-beam for the multiplierstation. QSLs are "prefered" by the DARC bureau or by DL1EK. No e-QSLs!

DXCC NEWS. Bill Moore, NC1L, ARRL DXCC Manager, announced that the following operations are approved for DXCC credit:

Uganda - 5X1X (November 11, 2003 to December 17, 2003)
Iraq - YI/NG5L (From April 10, 2003 to June 9, 2003)
YI9L (formerly YI/NG5L) (From June 10, 2003 to February 27, 2004)
YI9LEK (Current operation beginning January 25, 2004)
YI/PA5M (Current operation beginning August 14, 2003) Togo - Pascal, F5JSD, has commuicated with Bill, NC1L, and he reports that the 5V7C operation (March 5-13th) is good for DXCC.
ADDED REMINDER: Do you have questions regarding DXCC program issues? Visit the DXCC Web site. Here you will find the program rules, the current and deleted DXCC lists and all of the forms needed to participate. If, after reading the information here, you still have questions regarding the DXCC Program, contact the DXCC Desk. The DXCC Web page is at:

FM, MARTINIQUE (Also V2). Koh/JA1ADT, Taka/JA7AGO and Aki/JA7ZP are going to attend the Caribbean Hamboree (TO7HAM - http://www.caribbeanhamboree.org) that will be held starting April 9th to 14th. Look for them to operate as FM/homecall before the meeting on 80-10 meters on all modes. QSL via their home callsign. Also, the trio will visit Antigua (V2) and expect to be active starting April 15th to the 20th. Activity will be all band/modes.
Callsigns will not be known until they get there. QSL via their home callsigns.

FO, CLIPPERTON ISLAND. It looks like the April DXpedition to Clipperton Island has once again been postponed until 2005. Reports indicate that weather may have played a factor in the decision, but the delay will give the organizers time to gather more operators for the trip. If you are interested in joining the team going to Clipperton in 2005, please contact Dave, K4SV, via E-mail at: K4SV2@Charter.net

FY, FRENCH GUIANA. Didier, FY5FY, will be active in the CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th) as Single-Op/All-Band/High-Power entry. QSL via FY5FY, by the bureau or CBA. By the way, his activity will also include 160m.

HR5, HONDURAS. Gerard, F2JD, will again be active as HR5/F2JD from March 18th to May 14th. He will be active on all bands on SSB, CW and RTTY. QSL via F6AJA and the logs will be online on the Web site at:
http://LesNouvellesDX.free.fr

IOTA NEWS.....
NEW TOOL! Tim, EI8IC, has provided DXers with a new tool on his Web for IOTA chasers. Enter your 6-digit Grid Locator code, and the Web page will generate a short path, long path and distance list from your QTH to each of the current IOTA reference numbers. Visit his Web pages at the following URLs:
http://www.qsl.net/ei8ic/iota/iota.php Mirror Site: http://www.mapability.com/ei8ic/iota/iota.php

AF-NEW. Possible new IOTA to be activated. See TJ3 below.

AF-NEW. Sebastien, F8DQZ, will be in Guinea from April 18th to May 2nd. One of his main goals is to activate Tristao Islands located in the Guinee-Maritime Province North Group. What is interesting is the callsign he will use to operate, 3XDQZ (Three X-Ray Delta Quebec Zulu). QSL via F8DQZ. Activity will be on 80-10 meters. Visit his Web page at:

http://f8dqz.chez.tiscali.fr/

EU-057. Jens, DD0VD, will active as DD0VD/p from Ruegen Island (GIA
O-07), March 27-28th. Activity will be mainly on 40-10 meters SSB (w/100 watts into a ground plane antenna). He is expected to also try 17 and 12 meters. QSL via his home call (QRZ.com).

EU-123. Three operators Jurij/MMODFV, John/GMOWRR and Mike/GM-SWL, were expected to activate four islands of the North Berwick Harbour:
Fidra Island - Reference numbers are: IOSA FF04, SCOTIA CS04, WAB NT58, ARLHS SCO-080 and WLH LH-0313.
Co-ordinates are: 56.07N and 02.78W.
Lamb Island - Reference numbers are: IOSA FF08 and WAB NT58.
Co-ordinates are: 56.07N and 02.75W.
Craigleith Island - Reference numbers are: IOSA FF03, SCOTIA CS03 and WAB NT58. Co-ordinates are: 56.07N and 02.71W)
Bass Rock - Reference numbers are: IOSA FF02, SCOTIA CS02, WAB NT68, ARLHS SCO-018 and WLH LH-0764.
Co-ordinates are: 56.08N and 02.64W.
The expedition will use special callsign MSODGR/p from March 20-23rd. Administratively the islands are in East Lothian Council Area (CAOSA: EL). Pertinent equipment available to the group are two Icom transceivers, IC-706 and IC-735, and a number of portable antennas. Contacts will be carried out on all HF bands, CW, SSB and Digital Modes. It is also planned to take numerous pictures of the islands including their fauna and flora. All the pictures and further information will be presented as an addition to the publications on the Scottish HAM Portal at: http://www.scotham.net QSL cards for contacts with MSODGR/p should be sent via the RSGB QSL Bureau or direct to MMODFV: Jurij Phunkner, P.O. Box 7469, Glasgow, G42 OYD, Scotland, U.K.

JW, SVALBARD. Francois, F8DVD, will once again be active from here between April 4-10th. He will operate from the town of Longyearbyen located on the 78 Deg Lat North (IOTA EU-026, WAZ 40, Grid Loc JQ78TF). For this second expedition, Francois will use the callsign JW/F8DVD. Activity will be on all bands between 80-10 meters. Francois will be especially active for Asia and all Pacifc aera. He will often operate number by number to give a chance to all stations, especially the QRP ones. QSL via the French Bureau or Direct to: Francois Bergez, 6, Rue de la Liberte, F- 71000 MACON, France (SAE + IRC or USD - 1 USD for EU, 2 USD for others).

LIGHTHOUSE ACTIVITY. Operators XQ1IDM, CE2WUI, CE1RQB, CE1BPY, CE1VLY, CE1LXT, CE1POT, CE1LYF and CA1WJB will be on the air as 3G1E from Peninsula del Alacran Lighthouse (CHI- 061) starting 0000z June 5th to 1600z June 6th. The suggested frequencies are:

SSB - 3970, 7050, 14270, 18145, 21270, 24930 and 28370
CW - 3530, 7030, 10010, 14030, 18070, 21030, 24895 and 28030 kHz
Also, look for activity on 6 meters and PSK31. QSL via CE1FA: P.O. BOX 71, Arica, CHILE. Checkout their Web page at: http://www.geocities.com/ce1_3g1e

LU, ARGENTINA (IOTA Activity). Patrick, WD9EWK, will be heading to Argentina next month, leaving Phoenix on April 14th and returning on April 24th. He will spend about 3 days in and around Buenos Aires followed by almost 6 days on Tierra del Fuego (IOTA SA-008) - staying in Ushuaia. His callsign will be LU/WD9EWK. Patrick stated his activity will be casual while there, and this is not a DXpedition. He also mentioned he will take at least one small HF radio with him - an FT-817, IC-703, or possibly both - and hopes to get on the air with one of those radios and/or from the stations of other hams down there. His operations will be SSB and CW, but there could be some RTTY/PSK31 activity if he operates from a station equipped for those modes. QSL via WD9EWK, either direct or through the QSL bureaus. He will design the card after the trip using photos he takes while he is down there. Patrick has started a Web page with information about the trip and will update it as needed before and during the trip at: http://lu.wd9ewk.net/

LUXEMBOURG. Philippe, LX2AJ, will be active as LX7I in the CQ WPX SSB Contest (March 27-28th) as Single-Op/Single-Band (80m) entry. QSL via LX2AJ. Visit his Web site at: http://www.qsl.net/lx2aj

P4, ARUBA. Andy, AE6Y, will once again be active from here. Look for him to sign as P40Y from March 24-30th. He will also be active in the CQ WPX SSB Contest. QSL to his home callsign.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.................
5V7C LOGS. The logs have been uploaded to the following Web site at: http://5v7c.free.fr/searchlog.php

QSL 9M2/GM4YXI via N3SL. Steve, N3SL, states, "Logs will be E-mailed and cards are on hand, so QSLs should be immediate (if direct) to Kim Larson, daughter of N3SL (use N3SL QRZ/callbook address)."

Randy, W5UE, now acting QSL Manager for HC8L for all past and future activity, reports that new cards are being ordered, so expect a slight delay in processing your requests. As with other stations he manages, direct requests with SASE or SAE with 1 USD or IRC will be answered directly; others will be answered via the bureau system. QSL status for HC8L and other stations Randy manages can be found on his Web page at: http://www.datasync.com/~w5ue/qsl-w5ue.html

AY1ZA QSLS. Dominik, DL5EBE, reports that Henry, LU4DXU, who just returned from his AY1ZA DXpedition to Laurie Island (South Orkneys), has received lots of direct QSL requests during his absence. Unfortunately, many of the requests didn't contain enough return postage. In order to get your card back in the same way received, please make sure that your

SASE contains 2 IRCs or 2 USD to cover the high postage from Argentina to overseas.

NEW QSL MANAGER. Petr, OK1DOT, reports that he is the new QSL Manager for Bob, 9V1GO. OK1DOT direct address is: Petr Gustab, P.O.Box 52, Cesky Brod, 282 01 CZECH REPUBLIC / EUROPE.

NEW QSL MANAGER. Mac, W3HC, informed OPDX that he is now the QSL Manager for the contest station PS2T. He adds that he just found out after sending many cards back.

TO4E QSLS. Jean Michel, F6AJA, reports that a sample of the TO4E QSL is on the following Web site (follow the link "articles parus" and choose "Europa") at: http://LesNouvellesDX.free.fr

SCOTTISH HAM PORTAL. Jurij, MM0DFV, invites OPDX readers to visit the following new Web site at: http://www.scotham.net
The Web has information about the Scottish ham life as well as other important DX news, Scottish islands and awards.

SILENT KEYS..... OPDX and its readers would like to send out our deepest sympathy to the family and friends of the following "Silent Keys"(SK).

Ivo, 9A5I - Hrvoje, 9A6XX, reports that Ivo, 9A5I, was one of the most active contesters and a big award chaser in their region.

LESLIE, G6XN - Leslie "Les", G6XN, of Surrey, England, became a "Silent Key" on March 3rd. He was 95 and among the oldest Amateur Radio operators in the UK. Licensed in 1928, Les was well-known among the amateur community for his writings on antennas.

Vane, Z31RC - After a short illness, Vane, Z31RC, became a Silent Key on March 16th at the age of 48. He was an active DXer and Contester plus he was one of the founders of the Z30M (Z37M) Contest Club.

T33C -- BANABA AWARD. Alan, K6SRZ, sent out the following press release:
"The Banaba Award is meant to encourage stations Worldwide to make as many contacts as possible with the T33C Expedition between 4 and 16 April 2004.
We would like to encourage all amateurs no matter how modest their stations to contact us. We will be on all bands from 160m through to 6m and all the main modes, CW, SB, RTTY, FM, PSK, and even SSTV. You can find more about this DXpedition at our Web page:
http://www.dx-pedition.de/banaba2004/
The Banaba Trophy will be awarded to the station who makes the highest number of band-mode contacts with us during our stay. To level the playing field, only the following band-modes will apply. Contacts on other band-modes will not count for the Trophy.
CW: 160m 6m (10 bands)
FM: 10m only

SSB: 160m 6m excluding 30m (9 bands)
RTTY: 40m, 20m, 15m and 10m (4 bands)
PSK: 20m, 15m and 10m (3 bands)
THERE ARE 27 POSSIBLE BAND-MODES THAT COUNT TOWARD THE TROPHY.
Should two or more stations have the same number of band slots, the Trophy will be awarded to the station who made that total first. A Certificate of Excellence will be awarded to the other stations who share the highest total. The Trophy and Certificates of Excellence will be awarded FREE!

"BANABA CERTIFICATES OF MERIT"-- In parallel, we intend to operate an Awards Scheme, where a very colourful Certificate can be obtained. The rules are very simple: again try to make contact with us on as many of the above band slots as possible:

THE BANABA BRONZE AWARD - Is for stations who make contact with us on a minimum of 5 band/slots
THE BANABA SILVER AWARD - Is for stations who make contact with us on a minimum of 10 band/slots
THE BANABA GOLD AWARD - Is for stations who make contact with us on a minimum of 15 band/slots

We will issue one certificate per person, based on the highest number of band-mode QSOs. For example, if you make 12 band-mode QSOs, you will qualify for the Silver Award only (not both Bronze and Silver).

Certificates will cost 5 (USD) each plus 2 (USD) post and package. Proceeds of the Certificates will go into the Expedition Fund. Applications for the Certificates should be made to GM4FDM: Tom Wylie, 3 Kings Crescent, Elderslie, Renfrewshire, Scotland PA5 9AD. Please include funds to cover the certificate and postage. Applications should also include a QSO list for the specific Award. Should any QSOs be found to be 'not in the log', these QSOs will NOT count for either a Certificate or indeed the Trophy. When in doubt, check our on-line log and work us again if necessary! We will not enter into any correspondence regarding the Certificates and the decision of the Expedition members shall be final. We're sorry, but we cannot accept E-mailed applications..... Thank You....." Alan Eshleman/K6SRZ for the T33C DXpedition

TJ3, CAMEROON. Roger/G3SXW and Nigel/G3TXF will be operating as TJ3G from Kribi in Cameroon from approximately Tuesday, March 23rd to Thursday, April 1st. This will be a 80-10 meters CW only operation. The suggested frequencies will be: 3513, 7013, 10113, 14033, 18083, 21033, 24903 and 28033 kHz. [These frequencies are higher than usual in order to avoid any conflict with 3B9C]. Although they will be using the same callsign TJ3G, Roger/G3SXW will be operating the traditional HF bands while Nigel/G3TXF will be looking after the WARC bands. QSL via G3TXF.

TJ3, CAMEROON (Possible New IOTA). Jack, F6BUM, announced he is going to Cameroon April 2nd. His length of stay was not mentioned. Also, he is thinking of activating Mondoleh Island while there from April 10-11th between 0700-1600z. However, night operations from the island are not possible because he can not stay on the island at night! Activity on CW will take place on April 10th and SSB operations will be on the 11th. Look for him to use the callsign TJ3MC. QSL via the address on QRZ.com.

YA8, AFGHANISTAN. Johnny, YA8G (LA5IIA), informed OPDX that he is now active on all nine HF bands at the momen, and has put some effort in working NA on 80m CW and 20m RTTY, both SP as well as LP. Johnny states, "My noise level is still tremendously high, but sometimes I can copy signals from EU, AS, NA and SA at the same time. I beg each and every DX'er to respect when I'm calling certain areas." QSL cards are being handled as soon as they are received by his manager, LA4YW. You will be able to watch the QSL layout on Johnny's Web site, as well. Johnny also mentions that the logs for YA8G are now updated 2-3 times a week at the following Web site: http://www.qsl.net/la8g/YA8G.htm

ZD8, ASCENSION ISLAND. Ian, G8WVW, and his family are now new residents of Ascension Island and will be there until the end of March 2006. He has been allocated the callsign ZD8I and will be active using SSB on the bands from 80-6 meters (except 30m). An Icom IC-2KL will be arriving on the island in May together with an Optibeam OB9-5E for HF and a 6 element Tonna for 6 meters. His suggested frequencies are: 3737, 7077, 14237, 18137, 21337, 24937 and 28537 kHz. Operating times are when work and family commitments permits. The QSL Manager is G4LTI. Further information can be found on the Web page at: http://www.zd8i.net ADDED NOTE: Ian is expected to visit the Falkland Islands occasionally (first trip - last two weeks in May), and do not be surprised if you hear him as a VP8 (callsign not known yet). He will be active as QRP using a FT-817 into a dipole.

ZK1, SOUTH COOK ISLANDS. Victor, ZK1CG (ZK1USA), from Rarotonga Island (OC-013) in the South Cook Islands, will be active in the CQ WPX SSB Contest as a All-Bands entry as ZK1CG. He informs OPDX that there are only 2 active operators on ZK1 at the moment. Jim, ZK1JD, is the other operator. Victor will see if he can get Jim, ZK1JD, to get on during the contest to help out. Remember, Victor's shack is in his workshop, so he may get called away at times for work during the contest.

ZL7, CHATHAM ISLANDS. Chris, ZL1CT (GM3WOJ), is planning to be active as ZL7V, July 5-15th (Callsign and dates to be confirmed). Activity will be on 80/40/30/20 meters CW/SSB. QSL via N3SL. ADDED NOTE: There "may" be some activity from Chatham Island during the Easter vacation/holidays by another operator (announcement will not come until his arrangements are all in place).

ZS8, MARION ISLAND. A reort from the "425 DX News" states Ludwig/ZS6WLC and Pieter/ZR6PSR, two staff members of the Hartebeesthoek Radio Astronomy Observatory Space Geodesy Programme, will conduct a scientific expedition from Marion Island (AF-021) in April. The two operators are to depart on April 1st from Cape Town, and depending on off loading of equipment and other work load, amateur radio operations as ZS8MI will commence on April 7th until around the 30th. Plans are to operate CW/SSB. The following are suggested frequencies from the below Web page:
SSB - 3750, 7080, 14195, 21295 and 28495 kHz

CW - 3505, 7010, 14020, 21025 and 28060 kHz
* Please note that they will listen 5-10 kHz up (except on CW). CW will be slow, about 15 WPM. If you send anything faster than 15 WPM you will be ingored!
They are expect to leave the island on May 2nd. QSL via ZS6M: Bernardus Roode, P.O. Box 158, Kempton Park 1620, South Africa. For updates and more detailed information (including on-line logs and direct QSLing policy), please visit the following Web page at:
http://www.hartrao.ac.za/geodesy/marionweb/main.html

ZW2, BRAZIL. Sergio, PY2TV, from Sao Paulo, activated the special callsign ZW2TV during the Russian Contest this past weekend. He plans to use this special callsign during the next 2 contests weekends.

1487. VE testing fees?

I hesitated to post to this group seeing how much bs there is in here, but what the heck, they're only electrons...

Guys in our club are charging a VE testing of $12. This seems like blatant opportunism to me. The FCC says VE's can charge a fee to recover costs of examination and apparently later removed any limit to the fees (unless I misread something.)

Is everyone charging comparible fees or is our group just a bunch of grubbers?

I am bringing this up as a troll. I am considering disassociating myself from the club if the practice is not altered and I am truly concerned that this is not the right thing for us hams to be doing.

Your opinion is appreciated.

1489. Motorola Syntor X

I've been looking at Motorola Syntor X radios for awhile for conversion to the 2 meter ham band. From what I've been able to learn, that shouldn't be a problem.

Awhile back I purchased a radio that should do the trick.
My problem now is getting cables and a control head that will work. The information I've been able to gather seems to indicate a bewildering variety of control heads are out there.

I would like to know if someone with experience with these units would be willing to answer some questions off-line about what combination of pieces I need to acquire to make this work.

I have considered going with the Piexx "revival" hardware, but my station computer is a Linux box and their control software is not available for Linux.

The NCVEC (National Councel of Volunteer Exam Coordinators) sets the fee and I believe it has to be approved by the FCC although I'm not 100% sure on the latter. While a VE team may charge less, it cannot charge more.

Our area here around Detroit, MI also charges $12 fee.

If you feel it is too much, contact one of the VECs and find out how they determined the $12 figure. You may find that it basically just covers average expenses of all the paperwork and processing.

Subject: Interesting Ad for Free Radio Equipment

Free Ham Radio Gear.... I hadn't been on the ham bands for many years when I saw the ad in the newspaper For Sale Column.
I had struggled really hard to get my ham license as a teenager. But in my adult life I got involved in other things, and the radio gear on the bench had a fine coating of dust on it from inactivity.

The ad said -- "Giving away Ham Radio Gear. You pick up. No charge. Free to a good home!" Wow I thought - This sounds too good to be true! I had just the other day thought how much fun it would be to turn the radio on and make a few contacts both local and worldwide.

So I called the number and a pleasant older voice answered. I made arrangements and went over to see this gear. The radios ranged from older tube sets to a new HF/VHF radio. I asked the ham why he didn't want any money for the gear. He just smiled and said that he could not use it anymore. I thought that he might be selling his house and moving into a retirement community where they did not allow radios. I thanked him, packed the gear in the car and rushed home to try it out.

My antenna farm was a tangled mess due to a number of frozen winter storms without repair. So I fashioned a crude antenna from a hunk of wire and stuck it to the back of one of the newer radios. I pushed the "on" button, with the intent of just listening to some HF Ham Stations, and was surprised what I heard.

There were signals there all right but not the ones I had hoped to hear. Instead the band was full of Short Wave and Data Signals. I turned to another band and heard the same thing. This is really weird I thought!
Since this was one of those fancy newer HF/VHF radios, I tuned down to the 2 meter and 440 bands looking for the local repeaters. What I heard there were truck drivers and taxi cab companies talking to their dispatchers, and even a local hotel chain talking to their work crew about getting rooms ready. I thought to myself -- no wonder the guy wanted to get rid of this equipment -- the radio only gets the scanner channels. I'm guessing that he wanted to get rid of this radio, because he didn't want to go to the expense of sending them back to the manufacturers service center.

Puzzled by what I was hearing I decided to call the old ham and ask some information on what had caused this radio to receive the local scanner frequencies in the ham band segment. Over the phone he laughed out loud and said, "No those are the ham bands all right -- or what used to be the ham bands!" "What - do you mean used to be?", I asked back.

He went on to tell me that several years ago the FCC had closed those bands to hams due to inactivity by the ham community. Those bands are now being used by land services and other business uses," he said. "You mean all the ham bands were given away?", I asked. "Don't be silly," he replied, " the FCC sold off those parcels of unused bands to the highest bidder! They simply put out a letter to all the hams saying that these bands were restricted to business only. And we were to never use these bands again under penalty of thousand of dollars in fines."

What he told me left me dumbstruck! "So let me get this straight," I said, "you mean that the reason you gave me this equipment is because there are no longer bands to use it on! "Yep! he said with a laugh, "It was simply that the FCC saw all those empty ham bands as a gold mine of potential fundraising for the government. With no one using the bands, and a unsupportive and ineffective ham radio lobby, hams just literally gave those bands away to be sold off!"

As I hung up the phone I thought of all the money I already had tied up in ham radio equipment down in the basement. I had purchased both old and new sets through the years and was quite proud of my ham radio station. All that money wasted with nothing to do now, but monitor the local Burger King asking if someone wanted fries with their Whopper.

A far fetched story? Not at all! Not a day goes by that you don't read in the newspapers about the government selling off frequencies to the highest bidder! A national radio communications magazine recently had an article by a columnist saying his good byes as he was closing his column after many years. Why? Well, he explained that with all the different agencies going to trunking, the average scanner listener could no longer listen to anything interesting on the radio. That facts are time had passed and so had technology. Suddenly he found himself with no one sending him emails about interesting local frequencies that he could pass on to his readers. With all the new systems out most of the old scanner units were as useless as our old early day computers.

There is a moral to this story of course. Anyone who has been around the activity for a while can see the handwriting on the wall! Have you listened to the repeaters lately, during daytime, during drive time, or anytime at all? Remember the days when all your friends were on the radio just waiting to chat with you during the drive home or after dinner? Well, those friends are no longer on the radio anymore.

Some have said it was because their old friends had moved to other towns. Some said that their old friends got busy doing something else, and no longer had the time to talk on the radio. Some blamed it on the internet. While others decided that they just did not want to talk to the new people they heard on radio. Everyone had an excuse for no longer turning the radio on. Suddenly there was silence!

So when was the last time YOU threw out your call on the radio? When was the last time you turned on the HF radio and enjoyed the thrill talking to another land? I didn't say TYPING on the internet to another land, I said TALKING on the radio to another land! When was the last time you came to a radio club meeting, and what excuse did you have for that? Was it because you were too busy? Was it because you were afraid you would have to talk to "those new people" face to face? It seems that today we all have so many excuses no longer being active on the bands. I am sure that you have heard plenty or perhaps made up a number of them yourself.

Well, lets look at this another way! I remember a local AM talk radio broadcaster suggesting that we follow the money trail. Let's start with our side! We shelled out money for books and tapes to learn the needed information to past the license test. We shelled out good money for the license, for the QSL cards, for the tower, the antennas, the base radio, the mobile radio, the HT's, the new keyer, club memberships etc. Look at all the money that you have spent on this great hobby. Count it up and you will soon discover that you have a lot of time and money invested in this activity.

Now lets return to the FCC looking for a way to make a buck by selling frequencies. You know they really don't care how much you personally have spent on radio hardware! They don't care how much time you took to get that license. In fact your personal interests are the last thing they are thinking about. They are only looking at all those "empty" frequencies that they could sell to big business. Remember the 220 ham segment that was sold off to United Parcel Service a number of years ago? It will happen again -- for the right price!

But wait you say! How about the need for ham radio during National Emergencies? How about 911, and the twin towers, and the terrorists who are lurking everywhere. How about the hurricanes, the tidal waves, the tornados and the floods? Let's be honest folks -- when was the last time that YOU participated in any of those events? If you haven't turned on the radio in years then isn't that just another excuse. Ham Radio is going to run out of excuses one day and suddenly YOU will be the one giving all your equipment away. You may think this is all far fetched, but you would be run. Remember that there are no guarantees that the ham bands will go on forever. Especially if they are mostly empty and there is a buck to be made.

Perhaps you would like to turn on the radio and check this out for yourself? Simon and Garfunkel put out a record talking about "The Sounds of Silence." This sound is not a good sound for YOU the ham radio operator! This is the sound of the wolves at the door just waiting to pounce on your ham bands! Oops - I meant to say on the FCC frequencies that were your ham bands.

This is a wake up call!
Use them or lose them! Let me repeat that again so it sinks in: USE THOSE BANDS NOW...OR LOSE THEM TOMORROW!

Now is the time to dust off those radios, to throw out your call, to join a radio club, to support the ARRL efforts in your behalf, to do Field Day this summer and to return to the days when you made life long friends through a great hobby.

Or you can just leave it the way it is now. Get that newspaper ad ready for some poor ham who hasn't been on the radio for a long time. It will save you leaving those boat anchors out on the curb for the trash man!

Indeed - I nabbed KD1S at just the right time (Formerly KD1NR, and before that N1MPQ).

But at least I kept the region identifier the same. Friend of mine ended up with a KH6 callsign. He's always wanted to move to Hawaii and that's as close as he'll get for now.

Funny, mine is right in the center, but then I've been an extra since 1993. Maybe the off-center placement is the FCC's way of showing a watered down extra. :)

It's $12 here, too...I just passed my General the other night, and that's the going rate. I look at it this way: $12 isn't a heck of a lot of money in this hobby (or anywhere else, these days), and a license/upgrade test session is pretty cheap by comparison to what the equipment can cost for even a modest station. Why put up a fuss about it? Nobody's ever going to get rich from testing hams...

1495. RFID tags -- what frequency?

I got an old IBM desktop computer to use in the shack, and when I opened it up I found it has an RFID feature.

Of course I will disconnect the thing, but, just out of curiosity, what frequency do these things work on? (I understand that RFID tags can be either active or passive, but this one presumably is active, since it has an antenna that plugs into the mobo. I have read that they all use the same frequency, but each individual item has a unique code.)

I'm sure it's not that. Because if it was for stupidity, yours would definitely be off-center. :)

My goodness! Snoory gets a spine!
My impression has been that since he took over he's been afraid to rock the boat by thoroughly interviewing any guest, lest some of the credulous listeners be lost. Meanwhile Art, appearing on the weekend and with nothing to lose anymore, dared to actually call into question some of the nonsense. Now it's Snoory too!
That show could really be fun if some of those money-grubbing liars who appear on it were asked a few probing questions from time to time.

Probing questions won't happen to entertaining guests, no matter how fraudulent they may be. Booth got every break imaginable from Noory, including Noory's frequent repetition of Booth's claims about his "O'hare crash vision" and the interview with the Fatima witness. But Booth continued to evade Noory's softball questions.

Uri Geller will be next Thursday night's guest. Let's see how long Noory's integrity attack lasts.

They are ocasionally on ebay. Then there is the venerable Heathkit clock, which decoded WWV. I had a Heathkit for a while, but sold it. It was really not very stable compared to WWVB. I have several WWVB clocks, and receivers. Both are commercial grade, and very stable. The consumer clocks are very accurate, but not good for calibration.

Mine (everyone since 2002) and my friend's are way off. I'd give a quarter if they'd fix it and I'm willing to wager everybody's is off now.

<snip>

Yes and no. Your biggest problem with the Syntor X series is that, if you get the more commone Range 2 VHF (150-174MHz) radio, the receiver's front end (specifically, the preselector) will start to cut off pretty sharply below about 149MHz.

To correctly tune the preselector (which is, in essence, a 24MHz-wide bandpass filter) for the entire 2m amateur band requires a spectrum analyzer/tracking generator combo, or a full-blown network analyzer, and just under an hour's worth of tweaking.

If you do not have the required equipment and/or skill, I can do it for you at my normal labor rates (web address in my signature block).

You would do well to check out:

...And ask this same question on the 'General Info' or 'Hardware Info Wanted' sections. You will likely get many answers, and most of them will probably be helpful. ;-)

Happy hunting.

Interesting but you need to elaborate and clarify. Did Noory flat out state that Booth did not meet with Sister Lucia? Also, your sentence
"Green and Booth had claimed that Sister Lucia had never heard of David Booth or his apocalyptic dreams" doesn't make sense in context.
If she never heard of him how could she request a visit from him? Why would Booth make that claim? It would undermine his claim that the meeting took place. Clarify please.

Noory stated that the morning after the show his producers called the convent and were told that Sister Lucia had not had any visitors.

Probably what made him and the producers suspicious was the strange claim that the last Fatima nun, Sister Lucia would call Booth to come meet with her when she had never heard of booth or his dreams 25 years ago of a plane crash. You are correct, that makes no sense.

Noory threw plenty of softballs to Booth, but even with Noory's help his story didn't make sense. Booth and Green had nothing to say except promote book sales and they were booted and Noory said that neither would be welcome on C2C again.

That's all I know since that's all Noory said on Friday's show.

ALL ARRL groups are (or should be) charging $12.00.

Groups under other VECs charge what their VEC tells them to. Their amount need not be the same as the ARRL's.

He's written about it in his editorials, years (maybe even decades now) ago. It was long enough ago that it's not tainted by his more recent "follow any conspiracy" trend, though who knows if he really knows. For that matter, there have been more recent books and such explaining what might have happened to Amelia, so they may in fact tell the same story Wayne wrote about years ago.

His father was long connected with civil aviation (actually, I think he started in military aviation, but that was not a career), and so perhaps that put Wayne in contact with people who had a better idea, or maybe it attracted people who had a better idea. Wayne's father wrote an ongoing series for 73 around 1973 about his early days in aviation, kind of a column but telling it in sequential order.
I found it interesting.

On top of a $500,000 investment, Earthlink has just invested another $3.5 million. You folks who are Earthlink subscribers are helping to pay for the BPL investment.

(See http://www.dslreports.com/shownews/41140)

So why don't you put some action behind your anti-BPL rhetoric and walk away from Earthlink? Any ham who opposes BPL while s/he continues to use Earthlink as an ISP has to be viewed as a very large hypocrite.

The idea of a boycott is not a bad one.. but there is the unfortunate

Remember the scene in "Braveheart" ? The scotts just annihilated 300 heavy horse and riders and the commander of the british tells his subordinate "YOU lead them". If we followed your logic, every person who was personally responsible for sending jobs overseas should be executed. So you do it. There would be a lot of blood all over the place because to many corporate pukes WANT the damn BPL, no matter how many were wiped out. Similarly, no matter how many people take exception to the current administration, it will continue because so many want it, no matter what it does to our country or the world. However, in the case of the current administration, there is an active resistance who would have absolutely no qualms about liquidating the opposition. Perhaps you might join them - they would love to destroy our infrastructure.

Each measurement contributes or detracts in its own way.

The "simple" answer
High solar flux = good Solar flares = bad
Sunspots generate high solar flux (good) but also generate periodic solar flares (bad). So you alternate between outstanding propagation and blackouts.
Geomagnetic storms = bad

However it is indeed more complex than that. The different bands are effected to different degrees by the different types of activity.

If the solar flux gets over 120, things will be quite good except for when solar flares and geomagnetic storms cause temporary perturbations. If the solar flux climbs as high as 200 (which it has occasionally) even VHF can open up for ionospheric propagation. If the flux drops below 100, the higher HF bands such as 10, 12, 15, and 17 meters are weak, sometimes not supporting long distance propagation at all.

Hope this helped.

1523. Windows software for logging, intened for packet use

Looking for Win98-compatible logging software for use on a P-200MMX Compaq laptop with a thundering 32MB of RAM. Users wish a lookup function; when a callsign is entered, they want to see a popup with the name & station location.

This is intended for packet use (and, yes, will be scrounging for memory for this Armada 1590). Oh, yes, free would be preferred, since this is for the county ARES unit.

What do y'all use for logging?

Thank you kindly.

Forget the RFID things in old IBM machines, you should worry about the little stick-on "rip-off" gadgets that everyone uses (Best Buy, Wal-Mart, CompUSA). These all-white or all-black rectangular gadgets in particular are passive, but they are pervasive. You need to take them off and stick them on the back of your friend's pants/shoes/hat so that it sets off everything on the way out of the store. Plus, if you can do it to a stranger, or even better, a nun, and if enough of us do it, they will ditch these infernal things. That will get the Pope involved.

Thus fulfilling the Biblical pronouncement of Revelation, the whole "666" thing, and so on.

If those things operate on 666 MHz, I'm a believer.

Yes, but at the same time, Earthlink is spending millions to bring suit against spammers. Don't toss them off the truck just yet. I think they can be redeemed.

I'm 100% against BPL. Let's convince Earthlink to be the same.

Earthlink will do what is popular, legal, and profitable. The big question is: How do we let them know that what they are doing with BPL is not going to work?

I have to say that if you only post here, they won't hear your complaint. Have any of you contacted Earthlink yet about BPL? Hmmm?

Hello Hans,

You sound like someone who has been "out of the hobby" for a while. Is that true?

Remember: things have been changing fast in high-tech! The latest small radios are just great for occasional/moderate/mobile users. I have a radio in my car that covers 160M through 70 cm, 100 watts, CW and voice, and it's about the size of a large paperback novel. (Yaesu FT-100)

The short answer is: Yes, they are very good, and VERY competitive, which is good for us, the consumer.

My advice is that you try to put your hands on the front panel of a radio that you want to buy, in case you have big fat fingers like I have! Stick with the major brands, and go to arrl.org and other sites that have reviews.

All the best, and 73,
Dave

What kind of troubles are you having? Perhaps there are other steps that you need to take first. If it is just slow QSLs, that's the nature of things. Generally they won't send them out to you until there is enough to do so.

Hi Dave,
Yes you're right ;-) I was very active in the 70's and 80's but since then it has been more of; children, house, golf, motorcycle, etc.
I was just about to pull out my Drake TR4CW from the storage but realized that I would probably need something more modern and also "smaller".
Something that could slip down in one of the saddle bags on the motorcycle would be great ;-)

Now I have heard from a number of sources that these new, small HF transceivers are actually really good. I will most certainly try to get my hand on one for a weekend or two and check them out.

Thanks for you input Dave,
cheers,
Hans

Well I cant specifically help you with the software, but take care to remove as many other memory hogs before you run it. 32MB is "marginal" in a W98 environment. You'll be swapping RAM to hard disk if you have too many apps and TSR's running.

This means no virus scanner or preloaded stuff in the start group or "run" in the registry. (I wont type the whole key) Might even be worth wiping the current build,installing W98 from scratch and then doing all security (only) updates. Also be wary about loading IE6 as that seems to use more memory than 5.5

NIW,

Sorry to hear that you are having a problem, but my experience with the ARRL's incoming bureau has been nothing but great.

The "8U" card manager (K8UPR) maintains a "bank account" process for participating hams. It works like this: You send him money - no self-addressed envelopes, just money {let's assume a starting balance of $10.00}, and every time he sends you a batch of cards he deducts the cost of the envelope and postage, and includes a "bank statement (starting balance - expenses for this shipment = ending balance). If you needed a LARGE envelope, he takes one of those off his shelf; if you only need a small one, that's what he uses... and that's what you pay for... plus the exact cost of shipping.

Even better - he has a published email address, and is prompt about answering emails. I could not be happier.

As long as I've been a ham, and that's >40 years, there has been discussion about the magic bullet that would swell the ranks of amateur radio, but with only the best and brightest people. Consider this, though: If all you had to do to get a ham license was fill out a form, how many more people would do so, than enter the hobby now? No matter what changes are made to the licensing structure, not everyone wants to get a license. I don't have any emotional attachment to the Morse Code requirement, but let's face it, it isn't that hard to learn. At 15 I had to work a lot harder to learn the theory than I did to learn the code. I wanted to be a ham, so I just did it. Killing the code requirement may be an idea whose time has come, but it isn't going to result in a large increase in license applications.

People who are concerned about developing new hams should look to making the hobby more appealing. Look at the hamfest photos you see scattered around the Web, even many on the ARRL site. Fat, old, sloppy-looking white people. Now, go to an urban area and scan the 2-m repeaters, and listen to some of the shenanigans. Anyone with a scanner can hear that stuff, and what kind of incentive is that to become a ham?

If I want to communicate I can send an email or pick up my cellphone. What interests me about amateur radio is being able to do technical magic with rf. You know the kinds of things I mean. Then there is the public-service angle, still important today. ARRL, for example, has tried to make use of astronauts and other _attractive_ people in its efforts to spread interest in ham radio to the schools, an example that ham clubs everywhere should emulate.

Let's face it, though, most hams don't care whether the hobby grows or not. For them, it's always been there and probably always will be, in one form or another. Such is human nature. If you care, however, stand back and look at how you and your friends represent the hobby. If you were a parent bringing your child to a ham club meeting or hamfest, or listening to a local repeater, or reading the r.r.a. groups, ask yourself what first impressions you would take away from the experience. We could do a lot to encourage more people to become hams without burying ARRL and FCC in paper.

What do you definitely need?
A logging program or a packet program?

I have some www adresses for free (FOR AMATEUR USE ONLY) programs.

But I doubt this would be for amateur radio use... Nevermind we all are happy CBers now!
Look for the Winlog32 full (registered) version which has maps You can easily find it witha good search engine.

Yes, that's understood. We are searching for more RAM for the laptop, and That's been done, already.

It will not be used for web browsing. Packet & logging, that's all.

Both, and with the limited memory capabilities (over 64MB on this machine actually slows it down, because of the BIOS), finding a pair which were not memory hogs, or a dual-function program, would be very nice.

That would be very nice. I'd appreciate it if you would send them to K7AAY

We are building out the packet net, and doing so with donated equipment.
We are searching for more RAM for the laptop, and perhaps you overlooked

The EOC packet stations are being fully funded by the appropriate agencies, but getting full funding for firehouses and field stations is more difficult. Voluntarism with in-kind donations from civic-minded corporations is allowing us to stretch our capabilities.

Perhaps you could sppecify the Utopia in which you reside, which provides full funding for all ARES needs?

Ah. I thought not.

Hans,

I'll go a step farther, now knowing that you are talking about a saddlebag installation (please tell me about the antenna???!!!) that you might want to use one of the recent Yaesu FT- rigs, such as the FT-857 (look at http://www.universal-radio.com/catalog/hamhf/0857.html) but there are several that would work. They are all FT-8x7.

Have fun shopping -- it's all very competitive and that is great for us, the consumers. Contact me directly, please, if you want to talk details. My guess is that when you do some research about what is going on these days with ultra-miniaturization, you will say something like Homer Simpson's "woo-hoo!".

Let us know what you decided to do, and take pictures (digital, so you can post them).

All the best, 73,
Dave

1548. Getting an old DSI 3600A counter to work?

Hi All,
I just ran across an old DSI 3600A frequency counter at an auction for $1. I was hoping that I might be able to use this to help check the alignment on my old Swan 500CX. Problem is, it had no documentation with it and the only other freq. counter I have used was a radio shack handheld one w/the BNC whip. It has a pair of unlabeled PL-259 connectors on the backside. Only controls on the front side are the direct /pre scale selector for the .1 or 1 sec. gate. Also has an "oven" on it, which I am not quite sure what that exactly is.
Was wondering if anyone could comment on the use of this one. Sorry to sound so non-electronics savvy for an amateur op, but any help would be appreciated.

Thanks,

The "oven" is for keeping a cup of coffee warm while talking on 160 meters on a cold winter night....
Actually..the oven keeps the timebase osc. stable (once it gets to temp). 2 well, I have seen since the first time I took my exame to become "ticketed" that the tests s have been "dumbed down" a lot since 12 years ago. Instead of making the test easier, we really need to make it more challanging without the code requirement. Its probably going to be the only real way to insure that we get some pretty technically savvy folks into the service (I refuse to call it a hobby because its a lot more than that). The real funny thing is, I took that test 12 years ago and I thought it was ridiculously easy (I aces it first time with practically no studying - 2 years prior expereince in the Devry technical course of study did help a bit) and I have seen what passes for a test these days.

true enough... unfortunately, some of those that don't want the license also don't care about regulations and they'll bootleg on the bands because they get a rush from pulling an illegal act.

well, after an animated discussion with another poster in this group hiararchy, perhaps, keeping the code as an endorsement only would be sufficient. Sure, we have digital modes that can punch through noise levels of 30 DB and up and still get the data through, but then, there might (just might) be a need for it if the technology ever gets fubared on account of a large emp (yes frank, I know you are lurking in here somewhere and are going to mention that it appears I've pulled a 180.
don't bother as its already fairly obvious what my point really is). my point is, make CW a tool that one can have as an optional endoresement to extra (kid of like Extra +).

appealing yes, hobby, no!. its a service and should really be thought of as such. as for the "fat, old, sloppy-looking white people" comment, you haven't been to too many ham fests down here in Arizona. Granted, I can't really tell all that well what they look like (being legally blind and all), but I can tell you, a lot of them were KIDS! lastly, on this paragraph, we don't have too many games being played on the phoenix metro area repeaters (thanks to the Arizona Repeater Association and their technical/interference chair) because of equipment designed to analyze the incomming transmission, record the forst ew seconds to hard disk and compare that to any signlas that were known to cause intentional interference. Digital Fingerprinting is a nice tool to have and has, for the most part, eliminated most of the "shenanigans" you mention. Sure, we still have our fair share of losers on the air, but anyone with even a modest amount of brains will cease interaction fairly quickly (thus marginalizing said losers off the air).

you miss the point. its NOT a hobby. The less people think of it as a service, the more likely it is to be harmed by the assumption that its a "hobby". Its a SERVICE dammit! and thats how I treat it, like it was my life preserver and I had just jumped a sinking ship with it!

meanwhile, back to more mundane things (like the upcomming events in april for Arizona).

Hi Hans

I have a Yeasu FT-100D in my little Chevy Metro and it works great. I have also used the Icom 706 on Field Days. Both are good working radios and could compete with the big rigs. One thing about the 100d is that it draws 20 plus amps on transmit and I don't think a motor bike would be able to put out that kind of power. One other thing about the 100d is that it needs the AM filter. If you do look at Yeasu for your bike make sure that it will take the ATAS antenna system and that would give you full courage from 40 meters to 70 cm and is self tuning.

A friend got to see something of this sort about 20 years back, at one of the federal labs (Berkeley or Livermore) in California.

The campus had a big ring of 3-phase HV distribution lines, with feeders out to xfmrs for each building. When Ethernet came along, some bright spark laid it in the same ring.

So here are these two Very Large 1-turn transformers, one turn being as much as 33KV (or so) away from ground and carrying Lots Of Current. Mostly the phases are balanced so not much current gets induced in the other turn.

Until, that is, one phase of the 33KV faults to ground and the currents get Extremely Unbalanced for a few hundred milliseconds, and most or all of the Ethernet adapters get tested for 33KV tolerance.

Fire came out of lots of equipment.

it won't be any worse than the hits that modems already take from phone lines, or that cable modems get from their systems, or that computers without surge protectors get hit with now... it may even be better as they are likely designed with that in mind anyway. the one that will be more fun will be to watch the bpl tech try to diagnose a problem in the neighborhood

Similar issues with dial-up modems on the phone line have existed for years. Lightning gets on the phone line also. Besides a spike that can blow up a BPL modem would likely fry the PC power supply anyway.

The RFI from thunderstorms should make life interesting for BPL users....

Lightning is non-discriminatory. ANYthing that's plugged into a power outlet during a lightning storm stands a good chance of getting fried from a near or direct strike.

Personally, I'm waiting for the first incidence of BPL interfering with HF communications from FEMA, the Coast Guard, the FAA, ARINC, or other federally-related HF/VHF radio services.

It's only going to take one failure to get a VIP's message through to shut the whole thing down cold, methinks.

In other words, just give it time. I think the whole BPL thing's going to blow up in Michael Powell's face, and I sincerely hope someone catches a nice photo when it does.

That would work for me but my bet is that the shutdown of BPL will come via it's economics and it'll become a latter-day Nasdaq dot.bomb.

I'm not certain, maybe just a coincidence, but there's a Tom Gibson I know/met who's has some ties to Montana. He may have worked up there for some time. This fellow was also a maritime operator and is currently (I hope!) an officer on the museum ship John Brown (Liberty Ship in Baltimore). Last time I saw Tom was aboard last year. Might this be the same person?

You just don't get it, do you Oxendorf ? You have to be one humongous ass...
plain & simple !

The crap you keep posting in Misc.Transport.Trucking doesn't apply to me, either..... yet you keep posting it.

Soooooooooo.... using your principles & the way you constantly TROLL MTT with your bullshit, my post's would be accurate. With the way you stereotype truck drivers & their radios..... my stereotyping child molesting ham

Heck, after all, it's in the report from the F.C.C., you should know, you keep posting the reports..... you sexual deviant !

can you quote the actual statistics for that? or are you just pulling a

FYI, pedophiles exist at all layers and in all walks of life in all countries. Fact is, ham radio has a lot less of the deviants than the statistical norm for a population of a given country. Care to explain that

THE BPL FIGHT: ART BELL W6OBB VS. BPL.

If it did not know before, a large portion of the American public is now keenly aware of the danger that Broadband Over Powerline Internet access poses to the nation's emergency communications infrastructure. And you can thank radio talk show host Art Bell, W6OBB, and ARRL President Jim Haynie, W5JBP, for bringing it to everyone's attention. Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, had an opportunity to speak with the internationally famous radio talker and has the rest of the story:

From the high desert in the great American Southwest, a call to arms has been sounded.

From his home base in Pahrump, Nevada, W6OBB - better known to millions of commercial radio listeners as Art Bell - has called on America to stand up and fight what he charges is the greatest threat to the nation's security - Broadband Over Powerline.

Bell charges BPL will cripple the nation's emergency communications backbone - striking at the heart of homeland security.

Bell picked up the charge against BPL during his radio show broadcast Saturday, March 20 in which he introduced ARRL President Jim Haynie, W5JBP to his audience.

Haynie and Bell pointed out the BPL interference threat extends far beyond the amateur bands. Both Haynie and Bell warned that many police and fire companies, federal disaster agencies and the FBI and the military would be rendered helpless if BPL is rolled out across the nation.

Bell says he's especially worried about the potential of another major attack against the United States and what BPL would do to our nation's ability to communicate.

"The emergency communications, my God, aircraft, amateur radio, FEMA, any other emergency agencies that are going to have to rely on HF communications," Bell says.

"We certainly can't depend on satellites. As a matter of fact, if we should get into a conflict, some sort of major conflict the satellites will be the very first thing that will go. And minus satellites for communications, we're dependent on the good old-fashioned shortwave bands, VHF, UHF, the whole schmear to keep our nation talking. And in a time of national emergency we need to be able to talk to each other."

Bell says he's appalled at the behavior of the Federal Communications Commission. He says they're acting like cheerleaders instead of regulators. He charges corporate greed is driving BPL and ignoring the studies showing the technology - as proposed on the HF bands - won't work without causing massive interference.

"I've always had the deepest respect for the Federal Communications Commission," he says. "However, I think in recent years, there've been a lot of changes at the FCC that include the fact that there aren't so many engineers at the commission any longer, but there are a lot of bureaucrats."

Bell says he believed after reading the Federal Emergency Management Agency's assessment of BPL that the findings would have been enough to shut it down.

"The FEMA filing was very strong," Bell says. "They essentially said, 'Look, our receivers and transmitters are not going to be able to function with BPL in place.' And, they specified the power levels they would have to go to continue to communicate and suggested the taxpayers can't, wouldn't be able to afford such changes.

"So, with that kind of filing, frankly when it came out I thought BPL was dead. Boy was I wrong!"

After doing more research, Bell says he decided to take the case to his listeners. And he says the only way to do it is to point out the risk to their safety.

"I don't think we're going to combat it by saying, 'Save ham radio." The public doesn't care enough and I'm sorry to have to say that, but that's what I believe," Bell says.

"I love ham radio. It's been my life. I've been a ham since I was 12. But the greater, larger American public just doesn't care enough about ham radio.

"And if they think they can plug in their computer to the wall and have instant internet, that's a more attractive idea to them than the guy down the block with a tower in the air."

Bell says his mission is clear: "I do a radio program on 500 radio stations nationwide, including the top 50 markets in the U.S., " Bell says. "And I'm going to do everything I can to drive this home as hard as I can that communications, and certainly ham radio is part of that emergency communications chain, there's no question about that.

"But emergency communications across the board are threatened by BPL."

Bell says all hams need to wake up and heed his call to action.

"We have to get to the larger media in America and, as hams, we have to make the general public, underline the word general public, aware that our emergency communications are threatened," Bell says. "The American public remembers 9-11. The American public knows what the continuing threat is.

"We've declared war against terrorism and why would we want to turn around and cripple our effective ability to wage war? And that's exactly what BPL is going to do."

Bell says if energized with information about BPL's risks to national security, millions of Americans can quickly become allies.

"We need to get the word out to the general public and begin to have them write to their congressmen, their senator," Bell says. "And that's the only approach that I see at this point with the juggernaut that is presently underway from the Federal Communications Commission and the (BPL) industry, the only way we're going to stop it is to make the general public aware of the threat."

Bell says there are other issues, including interference to TV channels 2 through 6, residual noise to the AM radio bands and virtual loss of CB bands used by the many truckers who listen to his show. He says there are also privacy issues, especially the potential of the government and large companies to track people and their habits and choices on a BPL system.

Bell currently hosts the weekend edition of the Coast to Coast AM. He also indicates that his presentation on Saturday, March 20th was only round one. He is lining up other guests to talk about the BPL issues in the near future. To find out when, keep checking the shows website at www.coasttocoastam.com. (ARNewsline(tm))

THE BPL FIGHT: HAM RADIO VS. THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

Meantime, a story in a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal about Amateur Radio’s stand against BPL is raising the eyre off many in the nations ham radio community. The item appears to take the position that radio amateurs are alone in opposing BPL. Also, that their doing do is holding back the flow of progress in technology.

You can judge for yourself by taking your web browser to http://tinyurl.com/357ye. That is if its still there by the time this newscast goes to air. (ARNewsline(tm))

RFI: ELECTRIC BLANKETS - A NEW CHAPTER FOR AN OLD PROBLEM

As if BPL was not enough, now there's another source of RFI to worry about. Its things that keep us warm.

According to Roy Trumbull writing in the CGC Communicator, RF interference from electric blankets is another problem that can be added to a history of similar events. The ones caused by heating pad thermostats and the class of transformers used for door bells. Turnbull says that RFI from these devices can affect AM reception for quite a distance from the source.

Turnbull also adds this interesting aside concerning electric blanket safety. He says a little noted change in product design took place when there was that firestorm some years ago over magnetic fields from power lines. The electric blanket makers got a jump on things by switching to twisted pair wiring. This says Turnbull solved the problem of the significant magnetic fields that were produced by the earlier blanket design. (CGC)

RESCUE RADIO: REACT AND THE AMBER ALERT PROGRAM

Ham radio appears to be leaving itself behind in the area of responding to notices of kidnapped children called Amber Alerts. Meantime REACT and other citizens radio organizations are taking the point position in spreading word of these vital searches. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, takes a look at how REACT has gotten involved:

Nobody seems to know why hams appear to have no interest in the Amber Alert program, but other civic minded radio services are not standing still. And the April issue of Popular Communications magazine is highliting REACT as being one of those jumping in to providing communications for these alerts and searches.

The magazines Info Central column highlights the activities of REACT teams across Ontario Canada and the northern United States. This, as they responded to an Amber Alert issued by the Ontario police after Cecelia Zhang was abducted in Toronto.

Ron McCracken who is past President of REACT told Pop Comm that they were given details of the alert and were asked to broadcast it on C-B channel 19 to truckers passing along the highways. The alert included details of the kidnap vehicle and the victim along with the suspects.

The broadcasts began at about 5:30 in the evening and went on through midnight. McCracken says that CB radio was combined with computers and e-mail to spread the word far and wide in a very short time. This allowed truck drivers all along the border to keep an eye out for both the little Cecilia and her abductor.

According to McCracken, this was REACT’s first response to an Amber Alert and in his estimation it went very well. You can read the full story starting on page 5 of the April issue of Popular Communications magazine.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I’m Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, reporting.

The Amber Alert was created in 1997 as a tribute to 9-year-old Amber Hagerman. She was kidnapped and brutally murdered while riding her bicycle in her hometown of Arlington, Texas.

If you want to know more about how you can start an Amber Alert Plan in your area and involve your radio hobby, it can be found by taking your web browser to www.missingkids.com. Then click on the words Amber Plan. (PopComm, ARNewsline(tm))

RESTRUCTURING: SAN MARINO AND NORWAY EXPAND 40 METERS

Two more nations have gained spectrum at 7 MHz. Both are in Europe. Jeramy Boot, G4NJH, in Nottingham in the UK has more:

Two more European countries have gained access to the 7100 to 7200 kHz segment of the 40-metre band. San Marino, T7, has authorised amateur radio operation in the 7100 - 7200 kHz band on a Secondary non-interference basis, with effect from the 25th of February.

The Norwegian Post and Telecommunications Authority has also announced that Norwegian radio amateurs can use frequencies in the segment 7100 - 7200 kHz with secondary status starting from the 1st of April.

This is in addition to the existing segment 7000 - 7100 kHz where radio amateurs have primary status. The maximum transmitter output power in the 7100 - 7200 segment will be 100 watts in Norway, and the maximum bandwidth 6kHz.

Jeramy Boot, G4NJH.

Croatia was the first European country to expand its 40 meter band. That happened last December. (GB2RS)

RESTRUCTURING: ARRL AND NCVEC PETITIONS ASSIGNED RM’S

Here in the U-S, our FCC has assigned rulemaking numbers to separate petitions for license restructuring and changes in code requirements filed by the ARRL and the National Council of Volunteer Examiner Coordinators. The ARRL petition has been designated RM-10867 while the NCVEC petition is now RM-10870.

Two other petitions were released for comment at the same time - RM-10868 was filed by the Radio Amateur Foundation, and RM-10869 by Ronald Lowrance of Georgia. Both also seek changes in amateur licensing requirements, particularly with relation to the code exam.

All petitions are available online via the FCC's Electronic Comment Filing System website. The comment deadline on all four petitions is April 24, with reply comments due 15 days later. (CQ, W2VU)

ENFORCEMENT: WARNINGS TO TWO TRUCKING FIRMS ABOUT 10 METER OPS

The FCC has warned the owners of a Bristol Pennsylvania trucking company to get their personnel off of the 10 meter Amateur band or face some expensive consequences. In a letter to Cassidy's Express the FCC says that it has information that one of the company’s tractors pulling a "CAI" trailer on Interstates 476 N and 76W in Pennsylvania, was the source of unlicensed radio transmissions on the 10 meters.

The incident took place last October 9th between 8 AM and 8:30 AM local time. The Commission has informed Cassidy's Express that operation of radio transmitting equipment without a license is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act. That it could and will subject the operator to fine or imprisonment, as well as seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment.

For those not aware, unlicensed operation carries a fine of $7,500 to $10,000 for each instance charged. A similar letter was sent to CLR Transport of Saluda, North Carolina warning of unlicensed 10 meter operation from one of their trucks on Interstate 85 between Gastonia and Kings Mountain, North Carolina on July 14, 2003. THE CLUB SCENE: USS HORNET ARC NOT DISBANDED

Contrary to rumors, the Amateur Radio club that supports museum ship U-S-S Hornet has not been disbanded. This, according to Tom McGlinn, KO6HA who is the trustee for the NB6GC callsign and the new president of the USS Hornet Amateur Radio Club.

Writing on the QRZ.com websire, McGlin says the original story of the club being dissolved is untrue. He says that the group is still active and aboard the USS Hornet and that all QSL requests will be handled as in the past. Please direct any inquiries concerning the USS Hornet ARC QSL program to ko6ha@earthlink.net (QRZ.com)

ON THE WEB: BIG UPGRADE AT QRZ.COM

The servers that provide you the QRZ.com website have been relocated to the company's hosting facility in Phoenix, Arizona. The new location affords QRZ.com with 24 hour a day, 7 days a week backup power and a very fast 10 Megabit connection directly to the Internet backbone.

QRZ.com owner and administrator Fred Lloyd, AA7BQ, gave special thanks to Chris Radicke, N7TWW and Mark Krotz, N7MK, who assisted him in transporting the computers, building the cabinet shelves, pulling cables, and in generally making the transition go as smooth as silk. Lloyd says that thanks to some great prepatory work QRZ.com was out for no more than 2 hours during the location changeover. (QRZ.com)

CONVENTIONS AND HAMFESTS: ARRL AT NAB IN APRIL

Turning to the ham radio social circuit, the ARRL will be visible at the upcoming National Association of Broadcasters convention. Amateurs visiting the exhibits at the Las Vegas Convention Center are invited to stop by Lobby Booth 9 where the ARRL will be exhibiting its latest publications and other materials related to the hobby.

The booth will be staffed by ARRL national officers and volunteers from the Las Vegas area headed up by Bill and Carolyn Cornelius. They are K8XC and K9XC respectively. The booth will also be able to provide information on the April 21st NAB Ham Radio Reception sponsored by Heil Sound.

Bill Cornelius does have a limited number of complimentary VIP Exhibits Passes. Requests for them go by e-mail to k8xc@aol.com. (K8XC)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: PROFESSOR SAYS ISP’S SHOULD POLICE CONTENT

A new cyberspace business plan from a legal scholar says that Internet Service Providers should become cyber cops and force everyone to pay a royalty fee for every song, movie or book they download to their personal computers. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, has the details:

Lon Sobel is a professor at Loyola Law School and an expert on copyright and entertainment law. He says that Internet service providers such as America Online and Earthlink must become digital police and send customers monthly bills based on how much copyrighted material they download.

Under Sobel’s plan, consumers who download expensive software such as Adobe Photoshop could pay as much as $600, while someone who grabs a single song could be charged as little as 49 or 50 cents. These charges would be in addition to the usual dial-up or broadband monthly connection fees.

Critics of the plan include computer experts, Internet service providers and -- believe it or not -- the entertainment industry. Bob Blakley, a computer scientist and security expert at IBM, says that a clever hacker could write computer code that would attaches itself to every piece of copyrighted content on the Internet. Then it could funnel some of the cost of the download to the hackers personal bank account.

Blakley and others say peoples attitudes is one of the biggest challenges in digital rights management . That an entire generation of consumers has become used to free music and other content posted on the Internet. He says that they will do anything it takes to get content for free. This includes breaking the law to avoid paying $10 to $20 for a compact disc, DVD or electronic book.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF

A senior executive at Verizon Communications is quoted as saying that Internet service providers will reject the plan noting that few companies could keep track of every downloaded item or determine the value of every file passing through their system. (Published news reports)

THAT FINAL ITEM: A HAMVENTION 2004 RADIO ROAD INFORMATION SERVICE

And finally this week, if you plan to drive to this years Hamvention, there will be a special service to make your trip a bit more pleasant. This as Information Radio in Dayton, Ohio announces plans to provide Road to Hamvention announcements on Highway Radio 1610 AM. As you might expect, 1610 Kiloherrtz is the frequency and the person behind the idea is Norm Schrein, KA8PGJ.

Schrein" "For Hamvention, we are planning on putting some information in regard to directions to the Hara and hours of the hamfest itself. People coming into town can obviously get information via the ham repeaters, but we may be hitting people who aren't hams at all or who do not have Amateur Radio equipment but who will pick this up in the loop and take in the hamfest."

--

Information Radio is a service provided by the Emergency Communications Center Incorporated. This is a not for profit organization with which Schrein is associated. He says that stations like this are a lot more common than many people realize:

Schrein: "530 Khz is where to find a lot of the stations like this and then about 1610 through about 1700 Khz you will find a lot of these travelers information stations as well. A lot of them tend to be site specific. That is, if you go through Pennsylvania, you may hear something about one of the state or national parks or involving the roadways if its run by the Dept. of Transportation. Where ours is a little unique is that it is kind of all encompassing. It covers everything happening in the Dayton area from local parks and recreationb to people having a parade to events like the Hamvention."

--

Schrein says that anytime you are headed to the Dayton area be sure to tune your car radio to 1610 kilohertz. Whether its trying to find your way into town or heading to the HARA Arena for Hamvention 2004, Information Radio will be there to serve you.

More information on information radio stations can be heard on this weeks Rain Report. Its at www.rainreport.com or landline at 847-827-7246. (ARNewsline (TM))

This is a joke, right? How in the hell would you know anything about the incidence of sexual deviants in the ham radio population? Are you telling me that someone has the statistics on the matter--that sexual abnormalities, if any, among ham radio operators has been studied and the results compared with the general population. What a crock. There's no such study and you know if. Oh, wait a minute! Maybe I'm wrong! I'll stop laughing if you'll provide some citations to the studies. Meanwhile, the yuck continue...

I am trying to get amateur radio programs like Echolink and InterAce to run behind the Windows XP Home Edition firewall. No luck and I am not the only individual with this problem. I have spoken to several individuals on Echolink that must turn off the firewall in order to function. One individual uses the Zone Alarm firewall. Using two firewalls seems a bit redundant. Has anyone out there in amateur radio land solved this problem?

1582. HELP with Kenwood TH-28A Mod

I have a question about a mod I have been trying to make to my Kenwood TH-28A. If anyone can help me please reply!

I contacted Kenwood and asked them how I could get my TH-28A to allow me to transmit in the 155.000 range. I am a local police officer and would like to use my own radio on duty because the portable radios we carry are horrible, and our town refuses to buy us a repeater. I know my Kenwood has better range than the ones we are issued at work.

I have read about the same mod from several different locations. It says to remove diodes D8 and D10 and install one of them in D14. I have done this and it opens up some new frequencies in the 340.000 range for Rx. That is only one of the supposed outcomes of this mod. The mod is also supposed to open up extended Rx/Tx from 136.000 to 178.000. I need to transmit on 155.070 but the radio still will not let me.

Has anyone had any luck with this mod? Or know of a different way I could get my desired result? Any help would be much appreciated.

To disable the XP firewall:
1. Left-click 'Start'
2. Left-click 'My Computer'
3. Right-click 'My network places'
4. Right-click 'Properties'
5. Right-click 'Local area connection'
6. Right-click 'Properties'
7. Left-click the 'Advanced' tab
8. Un-check 'Firewall'
9. Left-click 'OK'

If your using an anti-virus program that has its own firewall, you can always leave the XP firewall off.

1587. MFJ-434 Voice Keyer and Icom radio question

Hello,

I have been thinking about purchasing the MFJ-434 voice keyer to use for contests, Field Day, and I had a few questions for anyone who may own one. I downloaded the manual off of MFJ's web page and it mentioned that you need to set the internal jumpers for the proper voltage for your tranceiver's microphone if you are using any transceiver other than a Yaesu. I recently purchased a used Icom 720A that is currently being repaired by MTS in Washington state. The radio didn't come with the HM-7 hand mic, so I am probably going to have Scott Malcolm at MTS just put together another mic on the radio for me that has a pre-amp built into it that will work with the 720A. I was wondering if anyone knows what the proper voltage is for this microphone? The 434 listed voltage jumpers of something like 0, 2.5, and 5 Volts, but I'm not sure what the proper voltage for my mic would be, or even how to find out exactly. I have a VOM that I can use if I knew what I need to do to determine the mic voltage from the transceiver. Has anyone used the 424 with an Icom rig, or even with 720A, and can you tell me what I need to set the voltage jumper for? Is the 434 a good keyer, given MFJ's reputation, and where is the best place to buy one? I live about a two hour drive from Ten-Tec, so I was thinking about buying one from them in case I had a problem with it and had to return it. Can anyone help me with this one? Thanks for the help!

Just wondering if anyone else caught the mention on Headline News on Saturday about the addition of the "@" symbol to International Morse Code? They mentioned the ARRL and ham operators who still use Morse Code to communicate and the fact that the "@" symbol allows people to now add their e-mail address when the mcommunicate via code. It was sure neat to see ham ops get a mention on national news.

Hi,
I am beginner .. sorry if some of this seems like stupid question(s):

I have installed a ICom F2010(2020) into my Jeep.
The radio unit itself is installed in the back where the CD changer was, the antenna cable is a bit too long, so it is stored in a loop.
Control unit is seperated with 8 meter cable from main unit and is mounted underneath the ashtray (so basically it is sitting above the gear box).

The antenna is mounted on the roof the car:
A GME 409L (ground independend), mounted on a spring S004

Frequencies used are in the 460Mhz-490Mhz range.

The problems I am experiencing now:
- Whenever the unit is Rx ... I can hear a whisling sound, which is only audible if I accelerate (there seems to be a relationship to the RPMs ?)
- If the car is stationary I can Rx ok, once the car is moving (maybe 50 kmh) the Rx is braking up

Is above normal, if not .. any ideas how to fix it ?

I am aware that I should shorten the antenna cable, rather than looping it.
Could the transmition be causing the whisling noises ?
Is the antenna I am using a piece of s(*^&(^ and should I use a different one ?
Thanks, D.

Using my radio on that freq would be a temp. fix until I can get some equipment that wouldn't put my life in danger everytime I'm trying to serve the public. If you are really that concerned about it I suggest you contact your local police department and make sure they have all the equipment and resources they need to properly and effectively protect you and your family. If they don't, then when it comes to election time support your police and vote for someone who won't cut half a million dollars from the police budget so they can lower taxes and be popular.

The only "stupid" question is the one you never ask.

> Frequencies used are in the 460Mhz-490Mhz range.

Since the 2010/2020 series are FCC Part 90 type accepted, this is a good match.

> The problems I am experiencing now:
> - Whenever the unit is Rx ... I can hear a whisling sound, which is > only audible if I accelerate (there seems to be a relationship to the > RPMs ?)

Alternator whine. Very common. You need to check that all your radio and antenna ground connections are clean and solid, that the body of the car is well-bonded (electrically speaking) to the engine block, and hence to the negative battery termimal, AND you should purchase and install an alternator whine filter.

> - If the car is stationary I can Rx ok, once the car is moving (maybe > 50 kmh) the Rx is braking up

That's "breaking," BTW. Possible antenna problems. You should check the forward and reflected power with a good-quality thruline RF wattmeter, such as a Bird 43 series or a Telewave.

Also, the antenna's outer shell conductor may not be well grounded to the frame of the vehicle.

If any or all of the above sounds unfamiliar or overly complex, I would strongly recommend that you seek professional assistance from whatever amateur radio club or two-way radio shop is local to your area.
You cannot properly troubleshoot things like antenna problems without the proper test equipment.

> Is above normal, if not .. any ideas how to fix it ?
> I am aware that I should shorten the antenna cable, rather than

Antenna cables should be cut to length unless the manufacturer of the antenna explicitly states otherwise in their printed instructions (which should have been included with the antenna).

> Could the transmition be causing the whisling noises ?

No. That's "transmission," BTW.

> Is the antenna I am using a piece of s(*^&(^ and should I use a > different one ?

No idea. Antennas are pretty simple devices. If the one you have is built for the frequency range you're using, I don't see why it would not work if it was properly installed.

4X/4Z, ISRAEL (Attention Contester and Award Chasers!). You may want to mark your calendar for this one. Moshe, 4X4PG, wants to remind OPDX readers that the "2004 Holyland Contest", organized by the Israel Amateur Radio Club, will be held on Staurday, April 17th from 0000-2359z, on both CW and SSB. It will provide a good opportunity to work many 4X/4Z stations towards the "Holyland Award". Full details are available on the Web page (under contests) at: http://www.iarc.org
The Contest Manager is Mark, 4Z4KX (E-mail: 4z4kx@iarc.org).

DXCC NEWS. Bill Moore, NC1L, ARRL DXCC Manager, reported that the following are approved for DXCC Credit:
Myanmar - XZ1DA
XZ6ST
Operations from February 23 to March 10, 2004

EN35, UKRAINE. Nikolay, UX0FF, was active over the past weekend in the CQ WPX Contest (as SOSB 15m) using the special callsign, EN35F, to commemorate his first QSO 35 years ago. He is expected to use the special callsign again during the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th). QSL via UX0FF, by the bureau or direct to: Nikolay Lavreka, P.O.Box 320, Izmail, 68609, Ukraine.

FT1Z, AMSTERDAM ISLAND (Attention 6m Ops!). Sebastien, FT1ZL, has been active on 6 meters over the past week. Watch on or around 50110 kHz between 0900-1000z and 1530-1730z.

GACW DX CONTEST. Raul, LU6EF, GACW Coordinator, wants to remind everyone that the GACW World Wide DX Contest will be held during the third weekend of April (17-18th). Complete details and rules are available on the GACW Web page at: http://gacw.no-ip.org

HN0, IRAQ (Attention Prefix Hunters!). Kaspars, YI9ZF (YL1ZF), was active during the CQ WPX SSB Contest this past weekend as HN0Z. If you missed him using this new prefix that has NEVER been issued before, you will have another chance. Look for him to be active again as HN0Z during the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Single-Op/All-Band/Low-Power entry.

QSL via SM1TDE.

IOTA NEWS.....
AS-147. By the time you read this, Samy, JR8KJR, should be active as JR8KJR/8 from Rishiri Island (JIIA AS-147-007) now through March 31st. Activity will be 80-15 meters SSB and SSTV. QSL via his home callsign, direct or via the bureau.

NA-219. The C6DX crew has cancelled their operation from Cay Sal Banks due to bad weather.

OC-033. Masayoshi, JF1UIO, will activate some of the islands in the Loyalty Islands group from New Caledonia. Look for him, May 2-4th, from Ouvea Island and May 4-7th from Lifou Island. His callsign will be FK/JF1UIO. Activity will be on 40-10 meters CW/SSB. QSL via his home callsign, by the bureau or direct (QRZ.com).

SA-008. Members from the Radio Club Rio Grande (LU2XX) will activate Tierra del Fuego from March 28th to April 2nd. QSL via LU8XQB. Their Web site is: http://www.qsl.net/lu2xx/

J42, GREECE. Members of Northern Greece Contest Team (NGCT) were active again using the special callsign J42T as a Multi-Operator/Single-Transmitter in CQ WPX SSB Contest. QSL via SV2BFN. According to their Web page the NGCT will be active again using their special callsign in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th). For more info and their online log, visit the NGCT home page at: http://www.qsl.net/sv2ngct

J69, ST. LUCIA. Bill, WB5ZAM, plans a very low key DXpedition here, May 2-16th. He will use the callsign J69/WB5ZAM. OPDX asked Bill what his activity will be and he said, "We'll be local mostly on VHF/UHF and trying the 'link' that they have set up between the islands. I have several contacts there and will try to do some work from one of the ham's places there, probably 40 meters. Primarily a real vacation and operating on the side. Not a Dx-pedition per se."

KH4, MIDWAY ISLAND. Jeffrey, KA1GJ/V73GJ, informs OPDX that he will be operating as KA1GJ/MM from April 16th through May 12th, and is expected to be on Midway Island from April 23-25th. He will be active as KA1GJ/KH4. QSL via V73GJ: P.O. Box 1050, APO AP 96555 USA.

LX, LUXEMBOURG. Operators SP5HNK, SP5MBQ, SP5UAF, SQ5IRO, SP6T, SP7NJX and SP7VC will be active as LX/homecall from Wiltz, April 1-6th. Activity will be on 160-2 meters. Operations will be on CW, SSB and RTTY (also possibly PSK31 and SSTV). QSL via SP Bureau or direct via their home callsigns. The group also plans to participate in the SP DX Contest as LX5A (QSL via LX bureau).

P4, ARUBA. After 2 years without a tower and antennas, Emily's, P43E, new QTH has a station again. Antennas are TH7 and a dipole for 160/80/40 meters. Look for him to be active again in contests. He was heard this past weekend in the CQ WPX SSB Contest. Over the past week, Emily was heard on 20 and 15 meters CW/SSB. Watch 14190 (or possibly 14010 kHz) after 2330z and 21015 kHz after 1715z. QSL via the buearu or direct to: Emily Thiel, P.O.Box 614, ARUBA. Visit his Web page at: http://www.qsl.net/p43e

QQP WEEKEND. Radio Amateurs du Quebec Inc., the provincial organization of amateur radio operators, is very proud to announce the creation of a new annual amateur radio contest: the Quebec QSO Party. The Quebec QSO Party wishes to invite all amateur radio operators across the world to participate on June 19th (2004) from 1700-0300z. The contest is held every summer on the Saturday immediately preceding June 24. The Quebec QSO Party has a site on the Internet containing rules and other related information. The site is located at: http://www.raqi.ca/qqp Radio Amateurs du Quebec Inc, who sponsors the event, sees the Quebec QSO Party as an unique opportunity of the amateur radio community to showcase their technical prowess, allowing all regions of the province to be on the air for this event. For further information: Me. Guy Lamoureux, VE2LGL, General Director, Radio Amateur du Quebec Inc.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
NEW QSL ROUTE FOR 5A1A. Abubaker, 5A1A, has changed his address. His new address is: Assid, WG 305, Am Ostfriedhof 10, 33098 Paderborn, Germany.

The German DARC QSL Bureau does not forward any QSLs for a German club station-callsign (that is DA0, DL0, DF0 ...) - regardless what anybody else is giving or announcing! This is what Ric, DL2VFR, informed OPDX. However, the QSL is forwarded always to the club station's responsible operator holding that club callsign.

QSL FM5FJ via KU9C. Operator Gilbert was active in the CQ WPX Contest this past weekend as a Single-Op/Single-Band (10m) entry.

QSL II1D via IZ1CCE. Activity was in the CQ WPX SSB Contest this past weekend. Operators were IZ1CCE, I1RB, IK1MJG, IK1QLD, IZ1CQY, IK1ZNN, IZ1ESH and possibly others.

Ron, AC7DX, informed OPDX that he is the QSL Manager for LO2F which was active during the CQ WPX SSB Contest this past weekend.

QSL info via PA3GIO. Bert, PA3GIO, informs that for Bureau cards, you can now use the QSL request form on the QSL info page on his Web sites at: http://www.pa3gio.nl/
North America: http://www.qsl.net/pa3gio/
Also, please visit these sites for details regarding direct QSLs.

Berkin, TA3J, reports that he sent out QSL cards for TA3YJ, TA3YJ/0, TA3YJ/3, TA3YJ/3 (LH), TA3YJ/4, TA3YJ/4 (LH), SV1/TA3YJ, LZ2/TA3YJ, TA3J, TA3J/0, TA3J/1, TA3J/2, TA3J/3, TA3J/3 (LH), TA3J/4, TA3J/4 (LH), SV1/TA3J, LZ1/TA3J, LZ2/TA3J, YM3BU, YM3ATA, YM3SV, YM75TA, YM21TA, YM3LZ/WPX2000 and YM3LZ/WAE2000 to the QSL Bureaus of Andorra, Argentina, Austria, Australia (VK3, VK4), Belarus, Bosnia & Herzegovina, Brazil, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada (RAC National Incoming QSL Bureau), Chile, Costa Rica, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Dominicana, Ecuador, Estonia, Faroe Islands, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Kazakhstan, Kuwait, Latvia, Lebanon, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Moldova, Morocco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Oman, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic Of Macedonia, Romania, Russia, Serbia & Montenegro, Slovakia, Slovenia, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Ukraine, United Kingdom, U.S.A. (K0, K1, K2, K3, K4, KK4, K5, K6, K7, K8, K9, KH6, Puerto Rico) and Venezuela direct on March 25, 2004.

QSL V26DX via KU9C. Activity this past weekend in the contest was by Jim/K6JAT and Don/W6ZO.

QSL VE6PT/T9 via direct to VE6PR. Operator was Doug in the CQ WPX SSB Contest this past weekend.

QSL ZL6QH via ZL2AOH. This Multi-Multi New Zealand station was active in the CQ WPX SSB Contest this past weekend. Operators were ZL2BSJ, ZL2III, ZL2AMI and ZL1CT.

SPDX CONTEST. Robert, SP5XVY, would like to invite everyone to participate in the 2004 SP DX Contest (April 3-4th, 1500-1500z). He also wants to inform you that the contest has new rules and a new Web site at: http://www.contest.spdxc.org.pl
In this year's contest they have a little surprise. For each station outside of Poland that can obtain the criteria for two Polish diplomas, "POLSKA" (you need only 16 QSOs) and "SPPA Powiat", the diplomas will be sent for free. The rules for the diplomas can be found on the Web page at: http://www.pzk.org.pl

T33, BANABA ISLAND. Just a little reminder that the T33C operation is scheduled to possibly start on April 4th (or 5th) and last until 16th. There will be 19 operators. To get yourself prepared, visit their Web page at: http://www.dx-pedition.de/banaba2004/

V31, BELIZE. Alan, WQ5W, announces his upcoming DXpedition to Placencia, Belize (Grid Square EK-56), April 22-29th. The Belize Public Utilities Commission has issued him the callsign V31RR. Alan says "I realize that V31 is probably not high on anybody's most-wanted list, but I hope to be able to help DXers out with needed band/mode countries to fill in V31 for their DXCC single band or mode or DXCC Challenge Awards on HF. I will also be emphasizing 6m and hope to catch some early-season E-skip openings!" This operation will operate 160-6 meters, CW/SSB/RTTY/PSK/WSJT, but will emphasize the WARC bands (mostly on CW) and the digital modes like RTTY and PSK-31. Alan will have a dedicated radio listening constantly for openings on 6m. Meteor scatter via WSJT will also be attempted and schedules can be set up prior to the expedition by E-mailing Alan at: v31rr@hotmail.com
This DXpedition will be fully compatible with the ARRL Logbook of The World (LoTW). Logs will be uploaded to LoTW throughout the expedition and immediately following its conclusion. Paper QSLs will also be available via WQ5W. Alan has set up a Web page with complete details. Pictures and news from the trip will be updated throughout the DXpedition. The Web page is at: http://www.qsl.net/v31rr

VK9L, LORD HOWE ISLAND. Look for Skip, JE2HCJ, to be active this week as VK9LU from March 31st to April 9th. Activity will be on 160-6 meters mostly CW. QSL via JE2HCJ.

VP9, BERMUDA. Lou, K1YR, will be active as VP9/K1YR in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Single-Op/All-Band/Low-Power entry. QSL via K1YR.

ZL7, CHATHAM ISLAND (Update to OPDX.653). Both Franz/ZL2III/DK1II and Dom/DL5EBE, members of the "Rhein-Ruhr DX Association" (RRDXA) and "Radio Telegraphy High Speed Club" (HSC), have informed OPDX that they will be active from Chatham Island over the Easter Holidays from April 7th (arrival) until April 14th (departure). They plan to be active on all bands, mainly CW and SSB and also digital modes (PSK31 and RTTY). They will have linears and a kite supported verticals / delta loops for 160 and 80 meters. Their callsigns are ZL2III/7 and ZL7/DL5EBE; however, they have applied for a special callsign which will be announced after it is granted. QSL via DL5EBE, using the callbook address.

Alternator noise. Rock on down to your local car radio shop and buy a noise filter for the alternator.

Where are you getting the power from? The battery direct, or from a receptacle?
Sounds like you are getting alternator whine, or ignition noise.
Probably alternator. You can try directly hooking the power direct to the battery. Both positive and negative wires, "use both + and - fuses at the battery". Or go to rat shack and buy a noise filter. I think they still sell them. It's possible to need the filter even with a direct battery connection in some cases I bet. MK

Any official dealer should have the software. Unless you are licensed for extra freqs, most will not program transmit freqs....just receive.
Like police UHF.

What you're hearing is alternator whine. I'm curious how you hooked up the power leads. If you did the one through the fuse panel, another to ground you're going to get noise.

The way you should install amateur radio gear is a positive and negative lead connected to the battery, being sure to put suitable fuses on both.

I've used this method on half a dozen vehicles over time and never had a problem. But it's very important to fuse both leads.

Can you really prove that statement or are you just blowing farts, than most of the healthier hobbies. (But I'll admit that it's just a

If your THAT upset about the radio they issue you, buy a Bendix,Vertex or other COMMERCIAL radio and put it on your dept's channel. A 1 thru 4 channel handheld is not that expensive.You have purchased a "Second Chance" vest, a reliable firearm and other equipment? Why scrimp on the radio?
Your a "public servant" in the public eye. DO IT RIGHT. If your "Issue" radio is a piece of shit, take it back to the kitroom and "BO" the damn thing.You would do that to your "G-Ride" if it ran bad or was dangerous right?
What if you get into something that goes "Sideways" and theres an investigation? What if its found you were using a "ham rig" instead of a "issue" radio? People (like Internal Affairs) just LOVE that shit.
Get the APPROVED commercial radio..be safe, be happy....Eddie

He's quite right, Dee...The last three documents I received from Uncle Charlie were not very professional looking. I think it's embarrassing when a federal agency cannot print a neat document when any high school graphic arts student can do it after 2 days of class!

I had the same problem but with a PRM8010,
On Transmit you could hear an alternator noise, so all i need is a noise filter?
Where abouts can i get one and how much??

Jimmy,
just picked one up from SuperCheapAuto (or something like that) ... there is one for AUD 10 and one for AUD 30.

Will put it in tomorrow and see how it goes

thanks ...
alternator whine ... makes sense ... I split of the + from an accessory outlet in the boot (yes .. the cables are rated with enough AMPs), which comes from the fuse box ... picked up a noise filter today .. will put it in tomorrow ... sure it will work grounding .. just double checked everything .. seems to be ok .. I think the only way to achieve a better grounding would be to put a cable directly to the engine block, rather through the frame ;-) regards the 'breaking' .. it only happens with certain TXs, not all do the 'breaking-thingy' (hope that is the correct technical term) professional assistance .. nah .. don't think so .. this is a hobby .. so I shall learn and learn and learn until I know and can do it myself spell-checking .. if you can get me the partnumber I order a spell-checker with ICom .. called them today to order one.. they asked me to spell spellchecker .. but I didn't have a spell-checker-speller .. so .. need your assistance here .. thx

Thanks,
D.

Hi all,
I got my hands on a Diamond CP5 vertical, but it's all in bits and pieces ;-) I need a copy of the assembly instructions.

Anyone knows where to find it, is there a pdf on the net somewhere?
Maybe you have a papercopy that you can scan or fax to me?

While I think (hope) his intentions are honorable I for one will be hesitant to donate any gear to any so called 'ham' charity for a tax write off.

A ham club I was a member of once did this "tax write off donation" thing a year or two ago and only one-quarter of the donated radio gear (from 3 estates) were kept for the club.

The rest of the gear was pared-off between Club Officers and Directors, who then mostly sold it on e-Bay and a significant personal profit or quietly kept it for their home/personal use.

Moral of the story: Tell the XYL that your ham gear is not to be donated to a club after you go SK.
The many vultures will likely try and grab and profit from it. Have a trusted ham sell it for fair profit to the estate, or box it up in taped-up sealed non-descript cardboard boxes and put em outside on the curb the morning of trash day so the bastards won't scavenge it either. (I've seen some bastard hams actually drive by homes of recent SK's on successive trash nights hoping the XYL would put the radios out on the curb)

When they knock on the door askin if they would like to "part with" that old "radio junk", tell em the trash man took it last week and it sounded and felt REAL NICE when the hydraulic jaws of that trash truck crushed and smashed that Yaesu and Henry to SCRAP IRON out in the street a little earlier.....(trust me, I did this once to a ham vulture whom I knew would knock on the door of the XYL of some SK ham I knew. The look on their face of the guy was absolutly priceless* when she told them, as I coached her to do, that the big amplifier he wanted for $50 was crunched in the back of the trash truck a few hours earlier....)

I'm so glad you cross-posted this crap in several of the amateur newsgroups, DouGay Adair N8WWM of Toledo, OH. Now everyone can see what a fruitcake you are. As usual, all you can do is broadcast your own perversion and lamely attempt to project it on others.

Heck, you couldn't even answer an innoculous question about Grounding an antenna, fer cryin' out loud. And you're (allegedly) a licensed ham? No wonder nobody will talk to you on the air. LOL!!

Hello Paul,

Sorry to hear you had so much trouble with prior donations to other groups.
I too have seen the SK feeding frenzy you describe.

My ARES/RACES/Skywarn crew are not vultures.

Anything donated that works will go into the motorhome or if not practical will be used to build up battery powered field units or if AC only used in our Net Control Radio room.

Anything that is totally not useable by my group will be offered to surrounding ARES groups.

Like so many other public service amateur radio groups we lack significant corporate or government financial sponsorship.

I'm trying to pull the group out of the 1980's and at least into the late 1990's.

If not practical to donate to my group please consider looking around your immediate area for a worthy group.

Thanks,
Steve

Surrrrrrrrrrrrre, and we all all believe the Easter bunny is about to arrive too! As one poster noted, I've seen more of these "so called" charity donations end up in the private shacks of the guys running the "so called" charity drive and/or being sold for cash.
Go sling your bullshit some place where people will be stupid enough to believe it.

I've actually given up on this. I found the mod (Kenwood supplied me with a website that explained it) and I made the modification to my radio. It did not work. I then read the nice reply from that other polite gentleman who pointed out to me that what I was trying to do was illegal. I am not familiar with all of the federal communication laws and assumed that since I legally own the radio, have a license to use it, and was trying to use it on a frequency that I have a legal right to be using (through my department's license and call sign), I did not think there would be a problem. Obviously that guy thinks I'm trying to abuse my powers in some way. I'm simply trying to ensure my safety.

Thanks anyway, but the mod (that I have found in about a dozen different websites) doesn't work. Unless I did something wrong... but I don't think I did. I guess I'll just have to wait until someone gets hurt or worse so my town will finally buy us new radios or a repeater.

1629. Morse Code (audio) to text converter for Pocket PC - Beta Testers?

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc
Date: 2004-03-30 23:07:19 UTC
From: julian@bofinit.com

I have a beta version of a utility for the Pocket PC (2003 and Windows Mobile) that converts Morse code to text. The Morse code is picked up by the Pocket PC's built-in microphone, which needs to be in proximity to the radio's speaker(or could be electrically connected to the radio in the case of Pocket PC devices that have a headset jack). A simple DSP algorithm then identifies the code stream and converts it to text.

My initial tests show good recognition for Farnsworth rates from ~5 to 20 WPM, independent of the carrier tone.

The text is shown in a scrolling window, and can be saved to a file on the Pocket PC.

I'm looking for a few Beta testers who would be interested in trying this out "in the field" and providing some feedback. I'm by no means an expert (i.e. I'm a complete novice) in SW or listening to Morse, so have no idea if this utility is really useful or of interest to people who are keen SW/shortwave types.

Please contact me if a) you'd like to try the software and b) you have a Pocket PC device. I'd also be interested to hear from people who would like a Windows version of the software (rather easy to do).

Thanks,
Julian

I am interested in a BETA test for a windows platform. I run 98 and have the sound card interfaced to the computer. I am also quite good at Morse, so I could give you a good test out.

The man said "PocketPC 2003", not win 98. Completely different. Apples and oranges. There are plently of morse decoders for regular PC's, dating back to like 1992. Get yerself a pocketpc, Dan. Get rid of that old win 98 dinosaur desktop.

Deryk you'll find lots of fear mongers in the group (and in life) I never let them discourage me from bettering myself or trying something different.
Your reasoning is correct. As long as you are a police officer, your modifying the radio is inconsequential. You are obviously allowed to receive and transmit on the frequencies by virtue of your job.
Email me off list and let me know what you have done so far and we will see if it can be worked out. If I can't figure it out I'm sure I can put you in touch with someone that can.
I'll go read up on the mod for that radio and see if I can get up to speed on it.
Take care

If you mean DTMF codes for autopatch etc -- these are usually for members only and available thru the repeater club autopatch guru.

If you mean PL (CTCSS) codes to access a Ham repeater -- Try artsci for your area at URL:
http://www.artscipub.com/repeaters/

Incognito By Necessity (:-(

If you can't convince them, confuse them.

I am a DJ who works full time and goes to school part time. I want to expand my audience with a broadcast (either internet or home radio). I understand that for internet broadcasting I would need a DSL or cable modem, but I wasn't sure which software was best (reliable and user-friendly).
For home broadcasting, which licenses would I need to apply for and what equipment is needed? I really don't know where to start for any of this.

Any advice or a push in the right direction would be much appreciated.

First you need to know the difference between amateur radio, which this newsgroup is about, and broadcast radio, which is what you are interested in.

There's a whole newsgroup devoted to broadcast radio, rec.radio.broadcasting which is a much better place than here.

Unless you have money, and even then it's not easy, radio broadcasting isn't an option for the individual.

You poor Texas guys sure are bitter.

As for me, after I'm dead I plan not to worry too much about old ham gear. If I wanted to "invest" for my wife and children then using ham gear to do it would be a very stupid choice. That's not to say that I want my widow to be cheated. But I don't plan on burdening her with the crown jewels of ham radio. And if I did, I would plan a way to have it managed without additional stress.

Anything I've left can be given away to someone who is interested in using it... or selling it, if they are kind to my family and considerate when they come and get it.

So if a ham says, "give it to the club" why do you care?

Bah! There are some of us who didn't buy completely into the Microsoft paradigm. The Palm OS works pretty well too.

Granted, most of the Palm variants don't have the feature set a Pocket PC does. My Win CE Uniden PC-Pro has all the bells and whistles (audio in/out, a modem, etc.) but it eats batteries for lunch.

Power hungry devices, that's what Pocket PC's are.

Only when she deserves it, like when she doesn't clean out the toilets

Poor N5CEC. Looks like he is the latest penis envy of the two drunk losers N9PGE and K9BSD. At least Mike has a wife. Maybe N9PGE and K9BSD could ask him how to keep a woman since they don't know how! Staying out of the gay bars would probaly be a good start!

Sorry for any confusion: I have versions for Pocket PC and for

RESCUE RADIO: VK HAM BRINGS BOAT TO PORT SAFELY - BY RADIO

A pair of Australian and American hams are credited with being a lifeline to a storm damaged boat with six people on board. The Australian was at his home QTHand the American was at sea on the stricken ship. Q-News Robert Broomhead, VK3KRB, in Waverly, Australia picks up the story from here:

Bernie VK2ABN on March 4 was in QSO with VK2ABT/VK3ACA and heard a weak and distorted signal, KA7MWL Shawn, who was aboard a Ukrainian registered schooner sailing from Wellington NZ to Sydney Aust., sails had blown out and they were making slow progress just on 4 knots.

At that speed they had calculated that they would run out of fuel before reaching port. Bernie VK2ABN ascertained 6 people were on board, BUT NO EPIRB! All this information was relayed to Sea Safety Canberra.

With the schooners satellite communication system also out of action, the Ham aboard, Shawn KA7MWL operating around 5 watts on 7070 Khz was the only contact.

Sea Safety Canberra QSY'd from 8176 kHz to the 40 meter band but as their transmitter was in Charleville, SW Queensland, no contact could be established.

Bernie arranged a for sked in 24 hours time, this time things a lot better, radio and safety wise, the schooner expected in Sydney ahead of previously estimated time.

As Bernie said: "I hadn't realised you can now call MAYDAY on the various DISTRESS frequencies but nobody is listening any more. Since the advent of GMDSS a computer scans the frequencies looking for encoded tones. If it finds one it attracts human intervention."

VK2ABN Bernie says " It was a bit like the Tony Hancock Radio Ham Sketch in retrospect, anyway that's what his wife thought and our telephone sure ran hot for a couple days!"

According to Q-News, the Sydney Australia Water Police stayed in contact with VK2ABN to keep abreast of the situation. With no High Frequency facilities that could hear the stricken craft, they were totally reliant on ham radio. (Q-News)

THE BPL FIGHT: CLARIFYING FEMA'S CLARIFICATION ON BPL

The debate surrounding Broadband Over Powerline Internet access has taken a new twist. Opponents are now raising fears about the contents of a letter recently released in the FCC's BPL public comment files. It was sent by the Federal Emergency Management Agency's top administrator to FCC Chairman, Michael Powell. Opponents say the letter clearly shows FEMA is now reversing course on its vehement opposition to nationwide BPL deployment. Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz NT3V has the very latest

The letter was written by Michael Brown, Undersecretary of Emergency Preparedness and Response in the Department of Homeland Security. That's where the Federal Emergency Management Agency was placed in President Bush's restructuring of agencies related to the security of the United States.

Brown's letter to Powell actually was briefly mentioned in February articles on the FCC's BPL action that were written for two nationally-circulated computer magazines. But it apparently got little notice and its contents were not fully detailed.

Now that the letter is part of the FCC BPL file, its contents are in the public arena.

Brown tells Powell in the letter dated January 8 that FEMA wants to clarify its December filing so it is "not misunderstood or misconstrued."

Brown goes on to say FEMA is aware that some of what he labels "distinct approaches" to BPL may cause interference to FEMA's H-F emergency communications network.

But then, and this is the section that has BPL opponents worried, Brown writes: "However, we continue to study the BPL proceeding and have not concluded there is a material interference problem or that all of the distinct technological approaches to BPL pose risk of interference."

Compare that to the language in FEMA's December 2003 filing on BPL with the commission prepared by Barry West, FEMA's chief information officer.

West writes: "FEMA has grave concerns regarding the interference that likely would be caused to government communications by unlicensed BPL systems."

Or this comment: "This interference will severely impair FEMA's mission-essential HF radio operations in areas serviced by BPL technology."

In an interview with a Philadelphia radio station, a FEMA spokesman insisted there is no material change in the agency's position.

The spokesman says Brown's letter was sent to Chairman Powell to clarify that FEMA is still studying the issue and recognizes and supports the FCC's desire for a greater broadband capability for the nation.

The spokesman says Brown wants to see more studies on the interference issue and is working with other federal agencies.

However, the FEMA spokesman emphasized that any deployment of BPL should not pose an interference threat to the agency's H-F emergency communications network.

Those close to the BPL debate say Brown's letter, has only muddied the agency's position and sections could be embraced by both sides.

We'll let you decide.

Come to our website: www.arnewsline.org and click on this week's script and select the Text script and scroll to this report to find the internet U-R-Ls leading directly to Brown's letter and FEMA's original December filing.

references to the FEMA position for now in any BPL discussions or comments. (ARNewsline(tm))

THE BPL FIGHT: BIG NOISE IN MANASSAS

BPL has come to Manassas, Virginia and the hams there say that its not fun to listen to:

--

BPL audio

That's the racket being created by the latest of three Broadband Over Powerline or BPL installations opened in Manassas. This, as provided in a sound file on the www.W4OVH.org website, courtesy of George Tarnovsky, KE2AM. The interference level appears to be such that it would be all but impossible to hear a radio signal through it.

The kicker here is that this is reported to be an underground electrical feed that utilities claim are far less noisy than overhead wiring. However, having the wires underground does not seem to reduce the interference. At least not in this case.

And if you want to know more about the BPL hazard to America's communications, go get a copy of the of CQ. Joe Lynch, N6CL has an excellent analysis article in his "VHF Plus" column in the just out April issue of that magazine. (VHF Reflector, PR Reflector, W2VU)

THE BPL FIGHT: SOUTHERN OREGON GOES GLASS

Meantime, to the West in Oregon there's some good news on the BPL front. It comes from southern Oregon where the obnoxious radio pollution of BPL has lost out to quiet fiber optic delivery.

According to Doug Beck, K6ZX, in the town of Merlin, a private company, forming public and private partnerships with local government has wired the city of Ashland with what's called the Ashland Fiber Network. It has also extended fiber to the city of Medford with some 74 miles of glass cable connecting all schools to provide VOIP audio and video conferencing.

But that's not all. The partnership is also in the process of connecting to Grants Pass and will wire all the local schools and government offices as well. The best part is that all excess bandwidth is being made available to local citizens and wireless last mile technology is being explored to connect rural users.

Beck says over the VHF Reflector that the area is aiming to have a broadband connection available to all rural users without any Broadband over Powerlines in the area. (VHF Reflector)

RESTRUCTURING: SWEDEN GOES CODE FREE

It now looks likely that Swedish radio amateurs with a Class 2 license which is the equivalent of our code free Technician class, will be allowed to operate on the High Frequency bands as of early April. The decision to drop the Morse code requirement for an HF bands license in Sweden had been postponed from the 1st of January. A note in the March issue of QTC, the Swedish national society's magazine, suggested that on or about April 1st is when the change will be made. (GB2RS)

ENFORCEMENT: NO "DELIVER IT" ON 2 METERS

Using an illegal long range cordless telephone to deliver culinary delights is going to cost a New Jersey Chinese restaurant a good part of its profits. This, after the FCC levies a $10,000 against the eatery for operating transmitting equipment on 2 meters without a license. The FCC's Daryl Duckworth, NN0W, has more:

Duckworth: "A Notice of Apparent Liability to Monetary Forfeiture in the amount of $10000 went to Best Wok of Westville, New Jersey. An agent of the Philadelphia office had DF'd the signal on 145.8376 MHz and inspected the base and mobile units. The restaurant manager stated that he had purchased the long range cordless telephone system in another country and brought it to the United States to operate at the restaurant."

--

The FCC citation issued to Best Wok indicated that the telephone in question is not FCC Part 15 certified and is illegal to use in the United States. (FCC, RAIN)

ENFORCEMENT: IT AIN'T USER RIGHTS

A California ham is the latest to be told by the FCC that if he wants to challenge a repeater operators authority to kick him off a system, he will have to do it elsewhere. That the FCC will nor reconsider the matter.

The situation involves Mark A. Glover, KE6TTL of Garden Grove. Apparently, Glover has complained to the FCC about his being banned from using a repeater owned by the Catalina Repeater Association with the apparent blessing of the FCC. This in a letter from the regulatory agency to Glover back on February 2nd.

In responding to Glover's February 26th complaint, the FCC says that its letter of February 2nd explained the right of the repeater association to make such a request. Also, if Glover has an objection to the decision of the repeater owner, that he is free to pursue legal action locally. But says the FCC it won't be involved. There are no Commission hearing procedures are provided in such matters. (FCC)

ENFORCEMENT: TWO PEOPLE - ONE CALL

The actions of a New York ham in obtaining a call sign have come under FCC scrutiny. Again, the FCC's Daryl Duckworth, N-N-Zero-W:

Duckworth: "A letter went to Frank C. Richards, KG2IJ, of Moers New York concerning an application filed in 1995 where he requested the call KB4VU be changed to the next systematically assigned, to change his address to New York, and to renew the license. Frank C. Richards of Ft. Meyers, Florida, claims that he is the real licensee of KB4VU, and filed no application for a call sign or address changes and has never lived in New York."

--

The FCC says that this raises questions about abuse of the licensing system and the agency is investigating. It has asked the New York Richards to provide documented information on where he previously lived in Florida, when he moved to New York and all FCC Amateur Service licenses that he previously held. (FCC, RAIN)

HAMFESTS: GAITHERSBERG - RIP

Some news from the hamfest circuit. After struggling to rebuild attendance from two moves the past four years, organizers in Maryland have canceled the 2004 descendant of what was once the popular "Gaithersburg Hamfest." This was a show that dated back to the 1950s. Amateur Radio Newsline's Newsline's Paul Courson, WA3VJB reports from Annapolis:

--

"There appears to be no support for this event from the member clubs of the Foundation or their respective members," according to Dan Blasberg, KA8YPY, president of the Foundation for Amateur Radio (FAR).

The group consists of a coalition of ham radio clubs in the Maryland, Washington, and northern Virginia region, and has used hamfest revenue to fund scholarships. In recent years it co-sponsored the event with one of its member clubs, the Columbia Amateur Radio Association (CARA).

Expressing his dismay that only two people had stepped forward from FAR to help stage the hamfest that had been scheduled for Sept. 11th and 12th Blasburg, said the lack of volunteer help is "not fair" to "carry the burden of a project of this magnitude and scope."

Blasburg concluded "it has been decided by the leadership of FAR and CARA to cancel Fall-Fest 2004 (due) to lack of volunteer participation." His note initially went out on an email reflector and since has circulated widely.

Blasburg this past week was hopeful his note would prompt people to step forward to help, but then, on March 27th, hamfest officials were openly talking about the cancellation and the withdrawal of the site reservation in West Friendship, Maryland.

What used to be the popular Gaithersburg Hamfest relocated to a parking lot outside a baseball field in Bowie Maryland in 1999, struggling as a local fleamarket no where near the size of the original site. A move to the Howard County Fairgrounds in 2002 did not help matters much, with attendance gaining marginally.

With the old Gaithersburg Hamfest now GONE, the successor as the largest in the mid-Atlantic region may now be the Timonium Hamfests at the Maryland State Fairgrounds north of Baltimore, where two clubs

sponsor a Spring and a Fall Timonium

Paul Courson, WA3VJB, Annapolis reporting for Newsline.

Thanks Paul. (ARNewsline(tm))

HAMVENTION 2004: THE FCC WILL BE THERE

Some much more positive news comes from Dayton, Ohio. This with word that two of ham radio's most popular speakers will be back at Hamvention 2004. Of coarse we are talking about the FCC's chief ham radio rules enforcer Riley Hollingsworth, K4ZDH, and FCC rules man Bill Cross, W3TN.

The two were missing from last years Hamvention due to a scheduling snafu. As planners put together this years outing, the duo was among the very first scheduled in. You will find them holding forth from on Saturday, May 15th from 10 a.m. to noon in Hara Arena Meeting Room 1. If you want to know exactly what's happening at the FCC and how it will affect ham radio, this is the event to be at. (ARNewsline (tm), Hamvention(r))

HAMFESTS: THE URUNGA RADIO CONVENTION

And speaking about hamfests, heres on that's a bit unusual. Its the annual Easter Convention scheduled for Saturday the 10th and Easter Sunday the 11th of April at the Senior Citizen's Hall in the city of Urunga, Uganda. Events include a 3.5 MHz mobile hunt, pedestrian on 2 meter T-Hunt, a 2 meter mobile multi transmitter hunt and lots more. Sunday will feature the famous Urunga scramble. A mini contest to see who can make the most contacts in 30 minutes. Its a great show, if you happen to be in Uganda an Easter weekend. (Q-News)

HAM HELP: GET WELL WALLY

Unless you live in the American West where this newscast is produced, you are not aware of the contributions of Wally Foster, N6CDJ. Those who do know that Wally has been a huge contributor to ham radio in the state of California.

Over the years, N6CDJ has been responsible for thousands of hours dedicated to installing the region's packet radio system. He has also introduced many to packet and APRS and volunteers a lot of time to emergency services, fundraising, climbing towers and doing a first-rate job with repeater and station installations.

Wally's in a tough personal battle right now. Please drop him a QSL with a "get well Wally" message top help keep his spirits up during a trying time. You can send your wishes to N6CDJ at his callbook address. (AA6JR)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: MESH NETWORKS RADIO RELAY SYSTEM

On the emerging technology front, Mesh Networks, whose emergency-response devices communicate through each other rather than through a centralized command is expanding its technology. This, to work on other kinds of wireless equipment including radios used by emergency service communicators. Rick Johnson, KA9VZD, has more:

Originally developed by the U.S. military, Mesh system of networking lets individual radios serve as repeaters and relay points. This means that a firefighter too far inside a building to reach his command post can communicate with a nearby firefighter, whose radio will then repeat the conversation to the next closest radio. This is similar to hams using a programmable mobile radio to extend the hand of their 2 meter or 70 centimeter H-T..

And just like hams have been experimenting, Mesh networks can transmit video, data and position information in addition to audio. But heres the departure fronm what radio amateurs are doing. The Mesh technology also has the ability to create super-sized Wi-Fi hot spots. This in itself gives the system wide utility in public service applications.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Rick Johnson, KA9VZD, reporting.

Mesh Networks says that it is recognized as the leading developer of high performance and scaleable mobile ad hoc networking technology. More about the company and its products is on-line at www.meshnetworks.com. (Press release)

If you are age 18 or younger, a licensed radio amateur and have been dreaming about going on a D-X contest, listen up. This next story is for you.

For the second year in a row, a competition has been announced for keen young contest operators with just such a dream. The winner gets an all-expenses paid trip to the Turks and Caicos Islands to operate with the VP5X Contest Group in the CQ World Wide DX phone contest this October.

Applicants must send an essay of 500 words or more telling how they got started in ham radio. It also must describe the person who helped them get started in the hobby and why you should be selected for this contest DX'pedition to VP5.

The winner must have his or her parents' written permission to make the trip on their own. Parents may accompany the winner at their own expense. All entries should be sent by e-mail to contests@vp5x.com by the 31st of August. (GB2RS)

HAM AWARDS: 2004 YHOTY NOMINATIONS BEING SOUGHT

And while we are at it, its time to announce the opening of the nominating period for the 2004 Amateur Radio Newsline Young Ham of the Year Award. This program is open to any FCC licensed youngster age 18 or younger residing in the contiguous 48 states. One who has made a significant contribution to the community, the nation or ham radio though the United States Amateur Radio Service.

As we have said in years past, this award is not a contest for a prize. The person selected "Young Ham of the Year" is judged on his or her contributions to society through Amateur Radio. By way of example, a youngster whose only claim to fame is that of being licensed as an Extra at age four would not necessarily be judge as having made a significant contribution to the Amateur Radio service. On the other hand, a 14 or 15 year old Novice or Technician running a net during a major disaster or crisis would definitely be given consideration.

More information and a downloadable on-line nominating form is at our website. That's in cyberspace at www.arnewsline.org. The cutoff for nominations this year is midnight on Tuesday, June 31st. (ARNewsline (tm))

DX

In D-X, W3EF reports that the 3B9C dxpedition has already made over 110,000 contacts and with any luck will soon be the biggest dxpedition in history. He says that besides the sheer volume, this has also been a carefully planned and executed operation with strict attention to details such as propagation on all bands to all regions. W3EF says it has been an absolute blast with a wonderful team from all over the world. At airtime the 3B9C operation continues. (W3EF)

In other D-X news, word that K5CM, N5KW and W5AO plan to operate portable VP5 from North Caicos island through the 7th of April. The island counts as NA-002 for the IOTA awards. (GB2RS)

Also, F8DVD, will be active slash JW from Svalbard on 80 to 10 meters to the 10th of April. He says that although it will be very hard to make contacts on 80 meters due to the very short night, he will make several attempts to do so. (GB2RS)

Lastly, PA9JJ will be active as C56JJ from Gambia until the 5th of April. Look for him especially on the WARC bands and on RTTY and PSK 31. For all these operations, QSL as directed on the air. (GB2RS)

THAT FINAL ITEM: FCC MAY MANDATE IONESPHERIC DELAY

And finally, a little-known provision of a bill to crack down on indecency on the airwaves may directly affect Amateur Radio. It went into effect at 00:01 UTC on April 1st. Roving reporter Pierre Pullinmyleg, F0OL, reports:

Echolink and ATV on The ISS project

ARISS teams from around the world met in Noordwijk aan Zee, Netherlands from 25 March to 27 March to review progress of the programme, determine future steps, and to review projects submitted to the organization for future use. Various committees updated the international team on their progress, while Chariman Frank Bauer presented an overview of the current status of the programme and previewed the Roy Neal certificate from the special event held late last year. (Certificates will be sent out shortly.)

Projects submitted for consideration include Amateur Television on the International Space Station. This project would allow for the possibility of mounting an ATV camera on the outside of the station.

A proposal was also made to incorporate the Internet Radio Linking Project and EchoLink into school contacts. Further information on this technoligy can be found at www.echolink.org.

Aside from accomplishing general administrative tasks, this meeting gave team members the first opportunity in over a year to meet face to face and discuss the programme. The next meeting will be held in Alexandria, Virginia in October. It will be held just after the AMSAT general meeting on 10-13 October. All interested parties are welcome to attend.

If you would like to propose a project for the ARISS team, please contact Mike Miller at ka5sma@a... for further information.

From a review of the book....
"In 1902 Thomas A. Edison's book "Telegraphy Self-Taught" was published by Frederick J. Drake & Co. in Chicago. It was written with the philosophy that "it is not the speed at which the letter is sounded that perplexes the learner, but the rapid succession in which they follow each other." (This is identical with the so-called Farnsworth method today.) The book was accompanied with a small hand-crank-driven tape puller and a set of paper tapes with the code characters punched in them. The tapes were designed to start out with very wide spacing between characters, and as the student progressed these spaces were reduced to normal. The goal was a practical working speed of 25 wpm. The actual speeds, of course, would depend on how fast the student turned the crank on the machine. "

BTW the book was bought from me by a collector in Italy, for the same price as it's listed in at a US bookseller.

That is why I was surprised when the seller said that the first name of Edison was "Theodore" and not "Thomas". And that is why I made the comment that "it's just not the same guy."

For you guys whose mailers split URLs across lines like that, give this a try:

http://www.tinyurl.com

You enter the long URL, and out comes a short one that you can post.
For example, the one that you tried to post, turns into this:

http://tinyurl.com/358s5

Give it a try.

3B9C RODRIGUES ISLAND DXPEDITION (Update). As this was being written on Sunday morning, the 3B9C team has hit over 126,000 QSOs. Remember, you still have a little over a week to work them. Their activity will last until April 13th, so who can guess what their total QSO count will end up as. According to the updates on their Web page, the team will now move more into the U.S. general parts of the bands. Look for more RTTY and PSK activity (over 3500 QSOs have been made so far). 6 meters and EME activity will continue. They have made four EME contacts on 70cm and one on 6 meters. QSL via the RSGB QSL Bureau or direct to: FSDXA, PO Box 73, Church Stretton, SY6 6WF UK. For more information and updates about the DXpedition (plus online log and a form to request bureau cards), please visit the 3B9C Web page at: http://www.fsdxa.com/3b9c/

7P, LESOTHO. Bernie, ZS4TX, has made an early announcement that he will be active as 7P8Z during the CQ WW DX SSB Contest (October 30-31st) as Single-Op/All-Band/High Power entry. QSL via ZS4TX. Visit his Web at: http://www.zs4tx.co.za/7p8z.htm

7Q, MALAWI (Update/Reminder). Steve, G4JVG, reminds OPDX readers that the UK Malawi DXpedition is only 2 weeks away. The callsign to be used by the UK Malawi DXpedition between April 18th and May 1st will be 7Q7MM. Operators will be Mark/G4AXX, Dick/GU4CHY, Steve/G4JVG and Rich/M5RIC, and they will be active on all bands from 160-10 meters on CW, SSB, RTTY, PSK, and possibly 10 meters FM (subject to demand and propagation). Activity is likely to be limited on April 18th and 19th while the stations and antennas are being built. The operation is expected to start in earnest on April 19th or 20th. Updated detailed propagation predictions to nine locations around the world were uploaded to their Web site at the beginning of April. Logs will be uploaded to the Web site and updated regularly during the DXpedition. Two high-power stations will be on the air as close to 24 hours a day as possible. A third station at 100W will be in use during peak hours of propagation. QSL via G3LQP direct (Roger Brown, 262 Fir Tree Road, Epsom KT17 3NL, England) or via the bureau. The UK Malawi DXpedition Web is available at: http://www.malawi.digital-crocus.com

DXCC NEWS. Bill Moore, NC1L, ARRL DXCC Manager, advises, "The DXCC Branch recently received a letter from Robert Felicite, 3B9FR, indicating that he has not sent any logs to F6FNU since 1999. Robert asked us to pass this along to the DX community. While we continue to receive these cards, the DXCC Branch will no longer issue 3B9FR credit for F6FNU-confirmed contacts made after 1999. Requests for QSL cards for 3B9FR should be sent direct to: Robert Felicite, P.O. Box 31, Citronelle, Rodriguez Island, REPUBLIC OF MAURITIUS, Indian Ocean."

EN60, UKRAINE. Seven stations from Odessa will be active using the EN60 prefix from April 3-17th. Here is a list of stations that will be active with their QSL routes:
EN60FJ - Sam, UT9FJ - QSL via home callsign to Bureau or direct to:
Box 100, Odessa, 65065, UKRAINE.
EN60FT - Vlad, UT0FT - QSL via home callsign
EN60FEL - Alex, UR5FEL - QSL via home callsign
EN60FHY - Vlad, UX5HY - QSL via home callsign
EN60FEO - Serge, UR5FEO - QSL via home callsign

EN60FA - Serge, UT2FA - QSL via home callsign
EN60FY - Eugene, UX0FY - QSL via home callsign

FO/M, MARQUESAS ISLANDS. Look for Hiro/JI1JKW and Ari/JI1WTF to be active as FO/JI1JKW and FO/JI1WTF, respectively, from Hiva Oa (OC-027) from April 28th to May 2nd. Activity is planned for 160-6 meters on CW/SSB/RTTY. A 6 meter beacon will be on 50110 kHz. QSL via their home callsigns, direct or by the bureau.

HOW'S DXING IN 2004? (by Joe Reisert, W1JR) Joe, W1JR, sent the following E-mail to OPDX and we thought it would be of interest to the readers: "People are always complaining about the POOR propagation conditions. Let this note be an exception.

Yes, conditions are poor but we have to adapt to them. If you think things are poor now, wait until this time next year!

Anyhow, just to let you know that since January 1st, 2004, W1JR has worked over 240 DXCC using all modes. The split is about rather even with over 210 on each of phone and cw and over 125 on digital modes. So, the bottom line is that the DX is out there. We just have to work a little harder than usual!

Believe it or not, I have missed about 20 other entities that I either heard or missed for one reason or another!" 73, Joe, W1JR

HR1, HONDURAS. Mark, W4CK, announced that he will be back in Tegucigalpa this summer from July 8-15th. He plans to be active as HR1/W4CK from his hotel. Activity will be CW only, and he will make a push for the WARC bands if there is interest.

IOTA NEWS.....
AS-036. Operators JA1KJW, JJ1JGI and possibly 9 others will operate as homecall/6 from Tsushima Island (JIIA AS-036-022) from April 16-18th. Activity will be on the HF/VHF/UHF bands and on CW/SSB. QSL via their home callsigns direct or by the Bureau.

AS-043. Operators Mitsuo/JA1UNS, Suehiro/JI1PLF, Hisashi/7N1GMK, 7L4PVR and 7N4VPS will activate Hachijo Island (JIIA-AS-043-003) between April 23-26th. The operators will sign homecall/1 and will be active on 160-10 meters CW, SSB, RTTY and PSK31. QSL to their home callsign, direct or via the bureau.

OC-228. Peter Forbes, VK3QI, announced last week that the operators who activated OC-251 in September 2002 and OC-261 in April 2003 plan to activate Baudin Rocks (aka Godfrey Island) in the South Australia State East Group, over the Easter long weekend, commencing Thursday, April 8th and concluding Monday, April 12th. Peter's press release states: "This will be a special event, commemorating the 200th anniversary of the death of Captain Nicolas Baudin, the French explorer, who died in September 1803 on the island of Mauritius during his return to Europe from exploration of the Australian coastline. Baudin Rocks, which is located 8 kms north of the seaport of Robe in south-eastern South Australia, was named by Captain Matthew Flinders after his famous encounter with Baudin in 1802 off the South Australian coast. Baudin Rocks is a closely protected Conservation Park and a permit has been obtained for 4 operators to land and operate for a limited period. Operating dates are very much dependant on weather conditions, which can be very unpredictable. Expected operators are Peter/VK3QI, Keith/VK3FT, Jack/VK3WWW and Tony/VK3TZ. Usual IOTA frequencies will be observed, both CW and SSB. Emphasis will be on 30 and 40 CW and 20, 17 and 15 SSB. Long Path to Europe around 0500-0800z will also be emphasized. OC-228 has only been activated once before in April 1999, by Martin (G3ZAY) as VK4CAY/5 for a limited number of hours, making it a relatively rare group. A special commemorative callsign has been issued, VI5BR, and we are particularly interested in having contacts with as many French stations as possible. The callsign will be announced closer to the date. QSL details are as follows: via VK3QI direct (any callbook) or via VK3 QSL Bureau." If you have any questions about the proposed operation, please E-mail them to Peter Forbes, VK3QI, at: prforbes@bigpond.net.au

SA-021. Look for operators Osmar/LU8DWR (Team Leader), Carlos/LU7DSY, Carlos/LU4ETN, Gabriel/LU8EBJ, Dario/LU4DRH, Walter/LU5DRV, Hugo/LW9EVA, Gabriel/LW9EAG and Emmanuel/LU9ESD to activate Wood Island for the first time starting Friday, April 9th through Sunday, April 11th. Activity will be on all bands and modes (including WARC bands and digimodes) depending on propagation. There will not be a special callsign used; the operators will use their own callsign "/D" (Buenos Aires Province). A special FULL COLOR QSL CARD will be printed. QSL Manager is LU7DSY: Carlos Almiron, P.O. Box 709, 8000 Bahia Blanca, Argentina. For QSLing direct, please send 2 USD or 2 IRC.

JW, SVALBARD. Francois, F8DVD, is now active as JW/F8DVD. Activity will last until April 10th (Refer to OPDX.653). Activity will be on SSB 80-10 meters. He was heard over the past weekend between 14190-14200 kHz. QSL via F8DVD to the French Bureau or direct.

KH4, MIDWAY ISLAND (Update to OPDX.654). Jeff, KA1GJ, updated OPDX on his possible band activities from KH4-land. He states, "I am trying to determine if the KH4 club antennas are still up and operational. If so, I will be on all bands that I can --- otherwise, I am carrying a 10/12/15/17/20 meter vertical which I will put up after I land." (ed. Does anyone know if the antennas are still up at the club station? I will pass the word onto Jeff... TNX). Remember, Jeff will be operating as KA1GJ/MM from April 16th through May 12th, and is expected to be active as KA1GJ/KH4 on Midway from April 23-25th. QSL via V73GJ, P.O. Box 1050, APO AP 96555 USA.

LOTW CONTINUES TO GROW! According this week's ARRL Letter, the "Logbook of The World" (LoTW), ARRL's electronic awards credit system, is closing in on 40 million separate Amateur Radio contacts. ARRL Special Assistant to the CEO David Patton, NN1N, states, "Right now there are 39.6 million QSOs entered into Logbook, with 1.18 million matched contacts." There are 7000 distinct registered users of the system, holding 9000 authenticated certificates, Patton added. Users may have more than one registered certificate, reflecting operation from home, changing callsigns, operations during DXpeditions, or portable station operation each sporting a separate callsign. To read the complete article, read The ARRL Letter (Vol. 23, No. 14 -- April 2, 2004).

P4, ARUBA (OOOPPPSSS!). In last week's bulletin we called Emily, P43E, as a "him" (OM) instead of a "her" (YL).... SORRY Emily! Anyway, OPDX would like to welcome Emily back to the airwaves again. She was heard this past week on on 20 meters SSB. Activity was on 14192 kHz (and 14217) between 0030-0345z. QSL via the buearu or direct to: Emily Thiel, P.O.Box 614, ARUBA. Visit her Web page at: http://www.qsl.net/p43e

QSL INFO AND NEWS.................
4N800H and YU800G QSL INFO. Sinisa, YU1RA, informs Zik, DL/VE3ZIK, that he was active with these two callsign between December 1998 and March 24th 1999 on 160 meters. Also, he still has some cards and the complete logs. So if somebody didn't receive a QSL card for these two callsigns on 160m, send him an E-mail at: yu1ra@EUnet.yu
He will be glad to help you.

NOT THE QSL MANAGER. Joe, W3HNK, reports that he is receiving lots of mail for C4M, and he is NOT the QSL Manager for this station. This station was active during the CQ WPX SSB Contest weekend, and the operator was RW3QC. The correct QSL route is via Alex, RW3RN. Visit Alex's QSL Service Web page at: http://www.tmb.ru/~i011f/service.html

QSL INFO FOR THE CQ WPX SSB CONTEST. Zik, DL/VE3ZIK, informs OPDX that he has posted the latest QSL info for this contest on his Web page at: http://www.contesting.info

Alex, CO8KA, who has been quite active on HF bands (mainly on 80 meters), now has a QSL Manager. His QSL Manager is Steffen, DL4ALI.

QSL the Cuban contest station, T48K, via Erhard, DK1WI. This is the same QSL route for Raul/CO8ZZ and his wife Del/CO8DRG.

QSL COLLECTION. Jean Michel reports that they have nearly 1900 old QSL cards on display in six different galleries on the Les Nouvelle DX Web site at: http://LesNouvellesDX.free.fr
Some of the cards on display include QSLs from each of the 58 deleted DXCC entities, QSLs from the Antarctic bases, QSLs from the Terres Australes and Antarctiques Francaises (TAAF), QSLs dated before 1945 (which includes French and other entities) and QSLS with old obsolete prefixes. Several QSL cards are still needed for their collection, and they are looking for your participation in their search to find them. Please visit their Web and send any comments to: LesNouvellesDX@free.fr

CY0DX QSLS. Nenad, VE3EXY, reports that while CY0MM cards are coming out smoothly, both direct and via the bureau, there are still some people who are struggling with receiving CY0DX (1997) QSL cards. Please be advised that the QSL Manager is VE3NZ not VA2EU. Nenad states that the VA2EU callsign (original QSL route) has been re-issued to another owner in 2001, and he is NOT handling CY0DX QSL cards. The original QSL Manager is now licensed as VE3NZ. All VE/VA addresses can found at: http://www.rac.ca
Please update your QSL DataBases.

QSL ER0FEL via Alex, UR5FEL. Alex was using this callsign in last weekend's CQ WPX SSB Contest.

Graham, M5AAV, reports that he is now handling all QSL cards for Maurice, Z21KF. He adds, "The Postal Service in Zimbabwe is 'highly suspect', and many requests have gone astray." Graham prefers direct cards, but will accept cards via the RSGB Bureau.

SECOND NOTICE FOR DAYTON TOPBAND GATHERING. George Taft, W8UVZ, states, "STILL TIME TO SIGN UP! All 160 meter enthusiasts are cordially invited to the Topband dinner on Friday night of the 2004 Dayton Hamvention. This annual event brings together 160 meter fans from around the world for food, drink and camaraderie." The event will be held May 14th, at Neil's Heritage House Restaurant (2323 Schantz Avenue, Dayton). Important times: 6:30 PM (Social Hour with Cash Bar) and 8:00 PM (Dinner). Tickets are: 28.00 USD each (includes complete dinner, taxes and gratuity). For more details, contact George Taft, W8UVZ, by E-mail at: w8uvz@arrl.net
Reservations must be paid by May 1st.

SPECIAL EVENT. It was announced this past week in "ARRL Special Bulletin (ARLX001)": "The Hiram Percy Maxim Memorial station at ARRL Headquarters, W1AW, will sign with a special designator - /90 - through the rest of 2004. The callsign reflects the 90th anniversary of the League's founding by Maxim and Clarence Tuska in 1914. Operation as W1AW/90 will begin April 3rd. W1AW Station Manager Joe Carcia, NJ1Q, said he will encourage guest operators to use as many modes as possible, including RTTY, PSK31, Satellite and Hellschreiber. 'Plus, we're going to try for SSTV WAS,' he added. 'It'll be tough, but we can do it.' Special QSL cards will be available for W1AW/90 contacts, and Carcia noted that self-addressed, stamped return envelopes should accompany all QSL requests. All contacts with W1AW/90 will also be uploaded to Logbook of The World."

T33C BANABA DXPEDITION. The international team of 19 operators are now on the island. Activity seems to have started early Sunday, April 4th, on 20 meters CW. The DXpedition is expected to last until April 16th. As this was being written Sunday morning, activity was mainly 20 meters (probably because the rest of the team is setting up the other stations). Watch for updates on their Web page. The Web page for the operation is at:
QSL via F5CWU: Flo Moudar, 25 Rue du Castel Salis, 37100 Tours, France.

VP8, SOUTH ORKNEY AND SOUTH GEORGIA ISLANDS. "The Daily DX" is reporting that Mike, GM0HCQ, is heading to Signy Base, South Orkney, and might operate as VP8SIG (possibly for 1 day) between April 10-12th. Also, he may operate as VP8SGK from Bird Island, South Georgia, between April 14-19th. Mike is currently active as VP8CMH/MM from the ship "James Clark Ross". He was heard this past weekend on 30/20/17/12/10 meters CW between 1300-2030z. For more details on his trip on the "James Clark Ross", please visit Mike's Web page at: http://www.gm0hcq.com

VP9, BERMUDA (Update to OPDX.654). Lou, K1YR, provided OPDX with more details on his upcoming activity from Bermuda. He informs us that he plans to operate the CQ WPX CW Contest from Ed's, VP9GE, QTH. Lou states, "As I have to work that Friday (May 28th), my XYL and I are catching the last plane out to VP9 as the contest begins. I hope to be on about four hours after the contest starts. I'll try to put in the full 36 hours that Single Ops are allowed. If I have any gas left, I'll try the WARC bands and/or 80 and 160 after the contest. We leave early Monday afternoon, so it's not a very long trip. Callsign will be VP9/K1YR and QSL is via my home call."

ZS4, SOUTH AFRICA. Bernie, ZS4TX, has made an early announcement that he will be active in the CQ WW DX CW Contest (November 27-28th) as as Single-OP/All-Band/High-Power entry. QSL via ZS4TX. Visit his Web at: http://www.zs4tx.co.za/

Darn! Was hoping you had a DOS version for my AT system that uses CT-8 and EQF-9 for contests and logging. It may be old, but never needs re-booting when the contests are going on.
I do retreat to a Windows ME machine for the Cabrillo conversions. K4YKZ

Subject: This was a real event 11:12 pm tuesday night on I-75
Date: Wed, 31 Mar 2004 01:47:46 -0500

Hi all

did I have a fun time driving last night on the way home,,,,,,,,,,,, NOT!

I left the work QTH and headed North on I-75 and got on the hi way heading home from Atlanta, it just finished raining a light shower. Anyhow, I got on the hi way and was in one side from the fast lane got just before N.park way and the G.A Uni and there was a car diagonal parked in the car pull lane and another car in front of it with its hazards lights flashing in the hard shoulder

I'd thought maybe some one was injured or needed help so I stopped, bearing in mind I am still in a security uniform, anyhow put my lights on, checked out every thing and asked the guy what happened and he had no idea? gave me his phone number and drove off ?

I went over to the car blocking the car-pull-lane and looked in to it and saw no one , thought ok, while I dialed 911, about 2 min's later some woman pulled up in a bronco II and told me that this car side swiped
a 18 wheeler truck bounced of it then hit the medium and nearly hit the bronco, I was thinking to my self wow and no one got hurt?

Anyhow much to my thinking I went back to my truck and grabbed a flash light put all my light's on my car including my patrol light/becon and walked back to this deserted car about 30 yards I walked down the hard shoulder on I-75 flashing the flash light at other on coming traffic in the same lane as the parked car, trying to warn them and slow them down, a biker saw me to late and smacked in to the rear end of the parked car in the pull lane, he was ok but then as I was helping him, a car smacked into the parked car that was in the pull lane, then
I saw out of the corner of my eye another car heading in the same path
I jumped out of the way trying to get him to slow down but to late SMACK 3 cars and a bike

I stood there waiting for EMS to turn up, still flashing my flash light at yet still on coming cars, still standing there as they hopfuly see me waving with my arms in the air and my flash light about 5 min's later EMS and A.p.d was on the sean I stood there and told them what I saw and how it happened about 15 min's later I was ok to go...

The police officer said thank you for doinging what you did you did a good job god knows how many people we saved last night but it must have been a few !!!!!!!!!!!!

This was a real event 3/30/04 @ 11:12 pm tuesday night on I-75

Just got an older Kantronics KAM ver.4.00.

What connector on the back of 440 does this wire to, the `remote' or one of the ACCs?

Want to use it to copy and send RTTY and CW.

Frank,

1. No, "Windows" or "Linux" (Mac?)will not have fast enough switching times to allow sound card use of any Pactor mode. Hamscope and MixW will allow receive of some Pactor signals but not transmit. I think there is a lot of discussion about this fact. Search www.google.com on "Pactor".

2. Pactor III is licensed by SCS and you need a license from SCS to use it: http://www.scs-ptc.com/pactor.html

Music Rotation System 2.5b with Radio DJs on Mind!

Greetings: My name is Norberto and I am a Radio DJ.

I created a Music Rotation System for my own benefit and my audience. I thought the following information might be of interest to your staff in specific Radio Disc Jockeys (DJ's).

Music Rotation System (MRS) version 2.5b is an software application developed using MS Access 2000 and Visual Basic. It was developed with Radio DJ's in mind.
Specially, those who originates their own programming as Radio DJ's in Community or Public Radio Stations do.

Our intent was (and still is) to assist in the preparation of radio shows taking into consideration factors such length of shows, tracking of the played music (avoiding unnecessary repetitions), and assisting the DJ in the organization of the musical material; e.g., introducing the song: authors, bands, solos, music tempo, notes about the songs. It works great when you want to research your notes and prepare special shows for your audience.

Now, MRS 2.5b has evolved in a way that it could be used for the listening enjoyment at home. We have accomplished all this and still giving the Radio DJs great flexibility to mold their taste and personal choices into a rotation system using artificial intelligence. In other words, facilitating all the functions of today's Radio DJs.

If you think this might interest you or your staff, click below to obtain more information and/or download this great application.

http://www.geocities.com/norberto95aolcom/MRS.html

PD - I would appreciate if you may print this email and post it into your bulleting board.

Thanks.

HOW YOU COULD TURN $6 INTO A FORTUNE!! READING THIS COULD CHANGE YOUR LIFE! MAKE THOUSANDS WITH JUST $6! REALLY WORKS! THIS REALLY CAN MAKE YOU EASY MONEY!! IT WORKS!!! BUT YOU HAVE TO FOLLOW IT FOR IT TO WORK!! A little while back, I was browsing through newsgroups, just like you are now, and came across an article similar to this that said you could make thousands of dollars within weeks with only an initial investment of $6.00! So I thought," Yeah, right, this must be a scam", but like most of us, I was curious, so I kept reading. Anyway, it said that you send $1.00 to each of the 6 names and address stated in the article. You then place your own name and address in the bottom of the list at #6, and post the article in at least 200 newsgroups. (There are thousands) No catch, that was it. So after thinking it over, and talking to a few people first, I thought about trying it. I figured what have I got to lose except 6 stamps and $6.00, right? Like most of us I was a little skeptical and a little worried about the legal aspects of it all. So I checked it out with the U.S. Post Office (1-800-725-2161) and they confirmed that it is indeed legal! Then I invested the measly $6.00. Well GUESS WHAT!!... Within 7 days, I started getting money in the mail! I was shocked! I figured it would end soon, but the money just kept coming in. In my first week, I made about $25.00. By the end of the second week I had made a total of over $1,000.00! In the third week I had over $10,000.00 and it's still growing. This is now my fourth week and I have made a total of just over $42,000.00 and it's still coming in rapidly. It's certainly worth $6.00, and 6 stamps, I have spent more than that on the lottery!! Let me tell you how this works and most importantly, why it works.... also, make sure you print a copy of this article NOW, so you can get the information off of it as you need it. STEP 1 Get 6 separate pieces of paper and write the following on each piece of paper "PLEASE PUT ME ON YOUR MAILING LIST." Now get 6 US $1.00 bills and place ONE inside EACH of the 6 pieces of paper so the bill will not be seen through the envelope to prevent thievery. Next, place one paper in each of the 6 envelopes and seal them. You should now have 6 sealed envelopes, each with a piece of paper stating the above phrase, your name and address, and a $1.00 bill. What you are doing is creating a service by this. THIS IS ABSOLUTELY LEGAL! Mail the 6 envelopes to the following addresses: #1Nichelle N1819 West Harmon Rd. Lodi WI, 53555 #2] Marisa W13400 Lake Drive Lodi WI, 53555 #3] Merissa Cook 715 8th St. Prarie Du Sac WI, 53578 #4] Sabrina Guger 785 Prairie St. Prarie Du Sac WI, 53578 #5]Aaron Martin PO Box 184 Merrimac, WI 54561 #6]Mittzi b 596 hyden branch Van Lear, KY 41265

STEP 2 Now take the #1 name and address off the list that you see above, move the other names up (6 becomes 5, 5 becomes 4, etc...) and add YOUR Name and address as number 6 on the list. STEP 3 Change anything you need to, but try to keep this article as close to original as possible. Now, post your amended article to at least 200 newsgroups. (I think there are close to 24,000 groups) All you need is 200, but remember, the more you post, the more money you make! ---DIRECTIONS-----HOW TO POST TO NEWSGROUPS---------- Step 1) You do not need to re-type this entire letter to do your own posting. Simply put your cursor at the beginning of this letter and drag your cursor to the bottom of this document, and select 'copy' from the edit menu. This will copy the entire letter into the computers memory. Step 2) Open a blank 'notepad' file and place your cursor at the top of the blank page. From the 'edit' menu select 'paste'. This will paste a copy of the letter into notepad so that you can add your name to the list. Step 3) Save your new notepad file as a .txt file. If you want to do your postings in different sittings, you'll always have this file to go back to. Step 4) Use Netscape or Internet explorer and try searching for various newsgroups (on-line forums, message boards, chat sites, discussions.) Step 5) Visit these message boards and post this article as a new message by highlighting the text of this letter and selecting paste from the edit menu. Fill in the Subject, this will be the header that everyone sees as they scroll through the list of postings in a particular group, click the post message button. You're done with your first one! Congratulations...THAT'S IT! All you have to do is jump to different newsgroups and post away, after you get the hang of it, it will take about 30 seconds for each newsgroup! REMEMBER, THE MORE NEWSGROUPS YOU POST IN, THE MORE MONEY YOU WILL MAKE!! BUT YOU HAVE TO POST A MINIMUM OF 200 That's it! You will begin receiving money from around the world within days! You may eventually want to rent a P.O. Box due to the large amount of mail you will receive. If you wish to stay anonymous, you can invent a name to use, as long as the postman will deliver it. JUST MAKE SURE ALL THE ADDRESSES ARE CORRECT. Now the WHY part Out of 200 postings, say I receive only 5 replies (a very low example). So then I made $5.00 with my name and address at #6 on the letter. Now, each of the 5 persons who just sent me $1.00 make the MINIMUM 200 postings, each with my name and address at #5 and only 5 persons respond to each of the original 5, that is another $25.00 for me, now those 25 each make 200 MINIMUM posts with my name and address at #4 and only 5 replies each, I will bring in an additional $125.00! Now, those 125 persons turn around and post the MINIMUM 200 with my name and address at #3 and only receive 5 replies each, I will make an additional $626.00! OK, now here is the fun part, each of those 625 persons post a MINIMUM 200 letters with my name and address at #2 and they each only receive 5 replies, that just made me $3,125.00!!! Those 3,125 persons will all deliver this message to 200 newsgroups with my name and address at #1 and if still 5 persons per 200 newsgroups react I will receive $15,625,00! With an original investment of only $6.00! AMAZING! When your name is no longer on the list, you just take the latest posting in the newsgroups, and send out another $6.00 to names on the list, putting your name at number 6 again. And start posting again. The thing to remember is, do you realize that thousands of people all over the world are joining the internet and reading these articles everyday, JUST LIKE YOU are now!! So can you afford $6.00 and see if it really works?? I think so... People have said, "what if the plan is played out and no one sends you the money? So what! What are the chances of that happening when there are tons of new honest users and new honest people who are joining the internet and newsgroups everyday and are willing to give it a try? Estimates are at 20,000 to 50,000 new users, every day, with thousands of those joining the actual internet. Remember, play FAIRLY and HONESTLY and this will work. ALSO REMEMBER : : SEND YOUR $1 OUT TO EVERYONE ON THE LIST, : : EVEN IF THEY ARE NOT FROM THE U.S. : : WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR??? : :

Anyone have a problem with the the swr indicator being hard to set in the calibrate position? The calibrate pot seems to be VERY touchy to get the meter to hold at full scale, and changing the meter to a 0 to 1ma shows the same problem.(With a kilowatt input) I went back to the 100 ua meter and now I am wondering if it is the pot. Of course the 0 to 1 ma meter has a hard time getting to calibrate with 100 watts into the tuner so I can't see the same effect because I dont get to the same area on the pot.

The tuner works great otherwise..

Amateur Radio Newsline™ Report 1391 – April 8, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1391 with a release date of Friday, April 9th, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T. It’s ham radio versus BPL in upstate New York. Hear the racket for yourself on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1391 coming your way right now.

THE BPL FIFGHT: HAM RADIO VS. BPL IN PENN YAN N.Y.

If you have been wondering what Broadband over Powerline interference will do to your ability to communicate on the high frequency bands, here is a very graphic illustration. Take a listen:

--
Penn Yan NY Audio - BPL Noise
--

That recording of the 15 meter phone band was recently made by Dave Hallidy, K2DH, operating mobile in Penn Yan, New York and posted to the Rochester VHF Society website. It was made the weekend of the CQ WPXSSB Contest using a Yaesu FT-100D transceiver, a Tarheel Screwdriver antenna and recorded at a time when the band was loaded end to end with high power contest stations. And while you cold detect a few of them, the majority were covered up by the BPL grudge.

--
Penn Yan NY Audio With Signals Covered Up
--

In an Internet posting Mark Hoffman, K2AXX, who is Chairman of Rochester group described it as frightening to hear. He encourages all ham radio clubs and other organizations to contributed to the ARRL BPL Defense Fund as a way of fighting this threat to the ham radio bands. (K0BC, K2AXX, K2DH, QCWA)

THE BPL FIGHT: TIME TO GO TO COURT?

And Hoffman is not alone in his concern. Others on the Internet are circulating a more drastic approach. Some hams advocate taking the matter to court and try to have the interfering BPL providers charged with being a public nuisance or as a threat to our national security. (Various Internet Posts)

ENFORCEMENT: UTILITY WARNED TO CLEAN UP RFI

An electric utility has been told for a second time to locate and fix an interference problem to a ham radio operator. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6ZW, has more:

The FCC has sent a second letter to an energy provider warning it to clean up interference to a ham or face punitive action. The notice was sent directly to Wayne H. Brunetti who is Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer of Xcel Energy based I n Minneapolis, Minnesota.

In his letter the FCC tells Brunetti that the agency notified him back in December of 2003 that it has received complaints of harmful radio interference possibly caused by equipment operated by Xcel Energy. That this interference has been reported by a ham living in Wellington, Colorado and that Xcel had been given 60 days to let the FCC and the ham know what steps were being taken to resolve the problem.

The FCC says that while Xcel did comply with its directive to respond, but as of the date of the latest letter the harmful interference reported to its office still remains unresolved. So the FCC told Brunetti that the company had 30 days to let the regulatory agency know what action Xcel has taken, or intends to take, in order to identify and correct the source of these radio emissions if they are being caused by its equipment. If Xcel fails to comply it could face enforcement action.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, reporting.

As we go to air there is no word if Xcel's Burnetti has responded to the FCC. (FCC, RAIN)

THE BPL FIGHT: OPPOSITION GOES PUBLIC IN SOUTH AFRICA

BPL is also a big concern in South Africa and that nations national ham radio society has voiced its concern to the public about the introduction of Broadband over Powerline Communications in that nation. SARL -- the South African Radio League did this during the program "Technologic" which aired on Africa's D-S-T-V Business Channel.

Society president Graham Harlett, ZS6GJH, was interviewed at the National Amateur Radio Center. He said that the SARL is opposed to Power Line Communication because of its inherent interference to High Frequency radio communication. He noted that the interference is not limited only to frequencies used by Radio Amateurs. That it includes the military, civil emergency agencies and some broadcasting stations as well.

Harlett, says that extensive tests carried out in Europe, the USA and Japan has clearly shown this. A transmission line that carries power will become like an antenna at higher frequencies and render the high frequency spectrum unusable.

Harlett, who is a managing director of a South African consulting company voiced another concern as well. One that has not really been talked about in the United States. That of ingress to Broadband over Powerline systems from other radio spectrum users including hams. Harlett says that radio transmitters in close proximity to users of BPL are likely to cause interference to them because of the antenna effect of the long, unshielded powerlines.

Technologic was broadcast on Monday March 29th and has been repeated twice since its initial airdate. (Q-News)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: SOLVING HAM-SAT INTERFERENCE

Meantime, the subject of interference to ham radio satellite was one of the topics at the recent meeting of the IARU Region One VHF Managers held in Vienna. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, reports:

As a result of research performed by OZ1MY, it now been shown that QRM that is occurring to ham radio satellites. Its primarily but not exclusively to 145 MHz satellite uplinks and mainly occurs when the birds are flying over Africa and the Middle East.

According to AMSAT, IARU Region 1 has a Monitoring Service which has been active for some years but which has, up to now, concentrated on frequencies below 30 MHz. In view of the wide area of QRM that can be caused by satellites and their ability to relay signals across international borders, the monitoring team has now agreed to scrutinize the satellite subbands as well.

Right now, what is needed are regular reports detailing instances of interference to the ham-sats along with audio files to back up each claim. The audio files will enable more precise identification of accents and dialects of those heard interfering. Hopefully, this will be a first step in getting those causing the interference off the satellites and off the ham bands as well.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I’m Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, in Los Angeles.

The IARU Region One Monitoring Service team is said to have good contacts which are used daily to remove intruders from the High Frequency bands. Hopefully they will be able to do the same on VHF and UHF as well. (AMSAT, Others)

ENFORCEMENT: FCC INVESTIGATES "PERFECT FIT"

Back here in the United States, the GCC Communicator reports that the FCC has launched an investigation into mattress warmer switching power supplies manufactured by Perfect Fit Industries. According to CGC, these supplies were never Part 15 RFI tested and have been shown to create large amounts of problems to radio reception. (CGC)

CB NEWS: VK CB TELNET NODES ON THE AIR

Some interesting news about C-B -- Citizens Band radio -- down-under. Unlike the United States where C-B operation is hap-hazard with no structure, Australia has a CB Packet Radio System that rivals anything that ham radio has ever set up. And now, it is being linked over the Internet to C-B operations in other nations including many Europe. This is making it possible for Australian C-B'ers to connect with numerous other C-B stations throughout the world using radio and Telnet. Q-News Graham Kemp, VK4BB, has the nodes and the frequencies:

AUS002 Warren reports in Australia there are so far several CB Packet Radio Nodes and BBS's. These are AU4BNE Node 27.225 Usb Brisbane Q'ld, AUS011 BBS 27.225 Usb Brisbane, AU6PER Node 476.950 Fm Perth W.A and AU6BBS BBS 476.950 Fm Perth.

So if you are scanning the 11 meter Citizens Band and hear digital signals, now you know exactly what they are. (Q-News)

RADIO LAW: CABLE MAKES DECENCY OFFER

The cable television industry says that it will provide free equipment to allow subscribers to block unwanted channels. This in reaction to efforts on Capitol Hill to curb indecent programming.

Robert Sachs, president of the National Cable and Telecommunications Association, announced the plan at a recent gathering of cable industry executives. The offer is directed to about half the nation's 70.5 million cable subscribers who don't have cable boxes that can be programmed to block certain channels or programs.

The companies agreeing to the plan include the 10 largest in the country and reach 85 percent of all cable subscribers. (Published reports)

RADIO ON THE MOVE: WWVA MAY LEAVE WEST VA

Famed AM broadcast station WWVA in Wheeling, West Virginia may soon be heading to a new QTH. This, as Clear Channel Communications confirms that the company has filed an application with the FCC to move long-time 1170 KHz Wheeling radio station out of the state of West Virginia.

According to a report in the Wheeling News-Register, Clear Channel Communications Wheeling Vice President Scott Miller said the company has submitted an application to move the radio station to Stow, Ohio. This is a town located just north of Akron. Miller said it has not been determined whether WWVA will actually be leaving Wheeling, and noted that approval of such applications are extensive.

Broadcast pioneer John Stroebel brought WWVA on the air on December 13th, 1926 using home built 50 watt transmitter set up in the basement of his Wheeling home. By 1929 WWVA had increased power to 5000 watts and became one of the most listened to stations in the East. And, for many years before Clear Channel Communications bought it, WWVA held the honor of being one of the last clear channel coast to coast broadcasters left in the United States. It also helped to make the city of Wheeling famous, worldwide. (Listener reports confirmed by NRCDXAS)

HAMFESTS AND CONVENTIONS: VISALIA INTERNATIONAL DX CONVENTION

On the convention circuit, the 55th Annual International DX Convention sponsored this year by the Southern California DX Club will be held April 23 to the 25th. This is the worlds premiere gathering of hams interested in DX and DXing on any band from DC to light. A show that attracts attendees from Asia, Europe, Africa and Oceania as well as from across the United States.

Scheduled events include a contest forum, antenna forum, DX forum along with seminars for everyone from the newcomer to DXing to the seasoned pro. The top of the line manufacturers will be there on their own display midway where you can talk to the people who design and use the best of DX equipment made.

As in previous years, the venue is the Holiday Inn in the city of Visalia, California. For full details visit www.scdxc.org/visalia/ on the World Wide

Web. (SCDXC)

HAMVENTION 2004: AMSAT EVENTS

Two more special events timed to coincide with Hamvention 2004 to report this week. The Third Annual AMSAT "Pizza 'n' Suds" party will be held Thursday evening May 13th. Again this year the venue will be Marion's Pizza at 1320 North Fairfield Rd. The party will begin at 1830 and go until the last pizza is gone! Food will be ordered from the menu and drinks are available at the bar.

Also, the AMSAT Banquet will be held Friday evening at 1800. Location is the Amber Rose Restaurant at 1400 Valley St. in old north Dayton. As with past years the meal will be a buffet with a price of $25.00 per person. Reservations are required and the banquet is limited to 90 people maximum. Please contact Nancy Makley for reservations. Her e-mail is KC8GYW@amsat.org. (N8NUY)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: ECHO STILL NEEDS $48,000

Turning to ham radio in space, AMSAT reports that as of March 30th it has raised $61,988 of the $110,000 needed to launch the new Echo ham radio satellite. That leaves about $48,000 still needed before the current target launch date of this coming June 29th. Go to www.amsat.org to find out how to donate to this very worthy project. (AMSAT)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: PC-SAT 2 READY TO FLY

Also word that PCSAT 2 has passed its final outgassing tests putting it one step closer to launch. These outgassing tests are some of the most stringent in the space program. They are designed to protest crew members from fumes that might arise out of materials used to construct anything going into space.

Commercial manufacturers who spend millions of dollars to develop space safe materials might want to take a lesson from the hams. All the parts in PCSAT 2 are off-the-shelf ham radio items. The new bird uses Kantronics TNC's and Hamtronics transmitter and receiver boards that include all of the original plastic parts.

PCSAT 2 will go into orbit on the first shuttle when they return to flight next year. Additional information about the PCSAT 2 mission is available at http://www.ew.usna.edu/~bruninga/pcsat2.html (ANS, WB4APR)

THAT FINAL ITEM: HAM RADIO AND THE AMBER ALERTS REVISITED

And finally, an update to our story two weeks ago about AMBER Alerts. We mentioned that for the most part ham radio seemed to have little interest in this important public notification system designed to help find the victims of kidnappings. Now we learn of at least one Amateur Radio club that's at work preparing to handle AMBER Alerts. It's located in Eastern Pennsylvania where our own Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, is based:

Mel Salzman, W-3-M-E-L is the force behind the Dauberville DX Association in Reading, Pennsylvania, getting connected to the AMBER Alert system.

Salzman, Dauberville's president, says he first became interested in AMBER Alert about a year ago and began searching the Internet for information. The system enables law enforcement to issue bulletins to the public about missing or abducted children.

In some states, messages are transmitted by commercial radio stations similar to an Emergency Broadcast System message. AMBER Alert also relies on highway message boards and cable-television systems to get out information.

Its goal: To enlist thousands of pairs of eyes - whether they be motorists or truckers or neighborhood and community residents - to be on the lookout for the kidnapper of a child.

Salzman says he convinced the Dauberville group to put up a "ticker" or scrolling message on the club's website - D-D-X-A dot o-r-g, to display AMBER Alert information.

Salzman also says he has his home computer hooked up to receive instant AMBER Alert notifications, paying particular attention to Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Salzman says his next step in connecting the Amateur Radio service to this effort was getting clearance from the club and the blessing of the FCC to transmit AMBER Alert information as a Q-S-T over the Dauberville group's repeaters.
"We have three repeaters," Salzman explains. "We can link all three repeaters if necessary and actually read the description, license plate number, whose been taken, what the guy looks like, whatever information comes through on my e-mail. That's what I'll put out on the air."

Salzman says the instructions are clear to any ham operator receiving the information and making a possible sighting.

"Call your local police, call 9-1-1 and give them the information," Salzman says. "If you happen to see that car or whatever description is out there, the car, what the driver looks like, call the police immediately."

Salzman says the Dauberville club has a modest, active membership, but many others in the region as well as those passing through the area use its repeaters and are supportive.

"We do have an active membership of, I would say, 20-25, and then people that they talk to," Salzman says. "You know how that could just snowballs. Like I said, the more people hear it, the more people are going to be looking, too."

Salzman says he hasn't publicized the Dauberville club's involvement with AMBER Alert. But Salzman says he's now preparing to reach out to other local clubs in the region as well as the Berks County ARES/RACES unit.

Salzman says he's also working to contact local law enforcement officials in greater Reading area to let them know ham operators are prepared to help by relaying AMBER Alert information.

So far, he says, the AMBER Alert system hasn't been activated much in this region. Salzman says that's a good thing. But, he says, the hams are ready if needed. Salzman says February's abduction and murder of 11-year-old Carlie Brucia in Sarasota, Florida affected him and others. Auto mechanic Joseph Smith is awaiting trial in connection with her death.

"I'd just like to really see this get going because it is extremely important. It just tears your heart out when you see these kids being abducted, especially with Carlie (Brucia), like when you find them and they're gone already. So, the more people involved, the better the results are going to be."

AMBER Alert was created seven years ago in memory of Amber Hagerman of Arlington, Texas. The 9-year-old was kidnapped while riding her bicycle near her home and later found murdered.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia.

--

If you want to know more about how you can involve the Amateur Radio service in your area in America's Missing: Broadcast Emergency Response - what AMBER stands for - take your web browser to www.missingkids.com. Then click on the words AMBER Plan. Getting a ham-radio assisted AMBER Alert plan started in your town could eventually save a child's life. (ARNewsline(tm))

Poor K9BSD and N9PGE. Pathetic drunks without families. Nothing for them to do on a holiday but be their stupid drunken selves.

I passed my Advanced class some 15 years ago, now motivated to get the Extra while the code is still 25wpm (no problem).

Will there be questions from the General and Advanced question pools in the Extra exam, or just from the Extra class pool of questions??? Just so I know what to review.

I strongly recommend getting the latest Extra class study guide. Each class of license has its own pool of questions. The Extra class exam will only have questions from the Extra class pool. However since the Advanced class was closed, the Extra pool has been expanded to include that material. Not only that there is additional, new material that was not on the Advanced or Extra exams 15 years ago such as RF safety and the station RF survey, etc.

In your case, since you already hold an Advanced license and would have been through much of the material, I would recommend the study guide from W5YI. It gives each question, answer, and brief explanation. For those who go from General to Extra, I normally recommend the ARRL publication since its explanations are more in depth and I think that is important for someone who hasn't previously addressed significant parts of the Extra class exam material.

Things have probably changed significantly between the time I got my Extra and now. Back then element 4A was the Advanced, and 4B was the Extra, now I think it's combined.

If you've already got your Advanced you should probably remember much of it (Remember phase angles?) but it wouldn't hurt to get a current study guide and review.

From what I recall of the extra, most of it was regulatory and examiner typed questions, no real theory that I can recall.

Looks like they've met up with that child molesting drunk Oris Grimm, he couldn't keep his wife either, after she found out he molested his two kids.

I hate to break it to you...but..the code speed never was 25 (it was 20), and it is presently 5wpm. So you won't have to take a cw test in any case.
You will have to settle for the extra light. Thats all there is.

We have been down this road before.

U.S. troops sent to war half a world away. American foreign policy controlled by an arrogant elite, bent on projecting military power around the globe. A public misled into supporting an unconstitutional war founded on deceit and fabrications.

As the death toll mounts, we hear claims that the war is nearly won, that victory is just around the corner. But victory never arrives.

As the public loses confidence in the government, the government questions the patriotism of any who express doubt about the war.

When a presidential election arrives, both the Democrat and Republican nominees embrace the policy of continued war.

The military draft comes to dominate the lives of America's young, and vast numbers who believe the war to be a senseless blunder are faced with fighting a war they do not believe in, or facing exile or prison.

The year was 1968. Because voters had no choice that November, the Vietnam War continued for another six years. Hundreds of thousands of Americans like you died, were maimed, or suffered from diseases like malaria. A far greater number of Vietnamese died.

Today, the war is in the quicksands and alleys of Iraq. Once again, under the pressure of a determined resistance, we see an American war policy being slowly torn apart at the seams, while the candidates urge us to "stay the course" in this tragic misadventure. Today's Presidential candidates are not Nixon and Humphrey, they are now Bush and Kerry.

Once again, there is one overriding truth: If war is the only choice in this election, then war we will have.

Today enlistments in the Reserves and National Guard are declining. The Pentagon is quietly recruiting new members to fill local draft boards, as the machinery for drafting a new generation of young Americans is being quietly put into place.

Young Americans need to know that a train is coming, and it could run over their generation in the same way that the Vietnam War devastated the lives of those who came of age in the sixties.

I am running for President, and have been against this war from the beginning. We must not waste lives in order to control and waste more oil. Stand with us and we may yet salvage your future and Americas' future from this looming disaster.

Sincerely,
Ralph Nader

Friend of mine got his license class upped to Extra when the highest code speed was 13WPM. He had already taken element 4B but didn't want to do the element 1C test and so waited it out. In the end, he got his Extra when they watered down the code requirement.

I rattle him about this any chance I get. Having done the full route (1A-1C) it give me a legitimate gripe.

3B9C RODRIGUES ISLAND DXPEDITION (Update). As this was being written on Sunday morning, the 3B9C team hit 150,000 QSOs at 1113z. Even with the poor propagation the 3B9C team continues to be active until April 13th.

According to the updates on their Web page, the team has begun (on Friday, April 9th) to take some antennas down. They also make note that there has been some pirated operations, especially on RTTY (as well as CW and SSB). Check your QSOs on their Web page. QSL via the RSGB QSL Bureau or direct to: FSDXA, PO Box 73, Church Stretton, SY6 6WF UK. For more information and updates about the DXpedition (plus online log and a form to request bureau cards), please visit the 3B9C Web page at:
http://www.fsdxa.com/3b9c/

6Y5, JAMAICA. Riccardo/IZ5EBL and Rossella/IZ5BRO will be on the air as 6Y5/IZ5EBL and 6Y5/IZ5BRO from April 11-19th. Activity will be on 40-10 meters SSB/CW/PSK31. QSL via their home callsigns.

7Q, MALAWI (Update/Reminder). OPDX reminds readers that the UK Malawi DXpedition will start this coming Sunday. The callsign to be used by the UK Malawi DXpedition between April 18th and May 1st will be 7Q7MM. Steve, G4JVG, has updated the list of operators, and they will be Mark/G4AXX, Dick/GU4CHY, Steve/G4JVG, Steve/G4EDG and Rich/M5RIC. For more details, please refer to OPDX.650 and OPDX.655, or visit the UK Malawi DXpedition Web page at: http://www.malawi.digital-crocus.com
QSL via G3LQP direct (Roger Brown, 262 Fir Tree Road, Epsom KT17 3NL, England) or via the bureau.

A22, BOTSWANA (Last Call!). Frosty, K5LBU, announced this past week that it looks like the trip to Botswana is not going to happen. He states only one person has stepped forward and said he will go. Frosty says, "So unless I hear from at least 4 more.... It will be a no go this year. Will try next year for the IARU contest." K5LBU's E-mail address is: frosty1@pdq.net

CROATIAN ISLANDS AWARD (New Rule). Kresimir, 9A7K, informs OPDX that after many suggestions from E-mails he received from many radio amateurs from all over the world, the Executive Committee of Croatian IOTA Hunters Group has decided to implement a new rule. From now on, the Croatian Islands Award (CIA) can be also obtained by the activators. To read the complete rules as well as viewing a picture of the CIA award, please visit the Award Manager's Web page at: http://www.qsl.net/9a7k

DXCC NEWS. Bill Moore, NC1L, ARRL DXCC Manager, reports the following operation has been approved for DXCC credit:
IRAQ - YI9MD (Operation effective February 17, 2004)

FIRST ALBANIA DX CONVENTION (JUNE 19-20th). Martti Laine, OH2H, sent out the following press release this past week and has invited DXers to "Make a Trip of Your Lifetime to the Land of the Double Headed Eagle". The press release states: "Have you ever visited a country that was once the rarest of them all but then became another household name in DX? That's Albania. Meet your ZA contact and help new ZA amateurs get operational. Share your views with them and enjoy amateur radio at its best. Operate ZA and be part of a great fun weekend in this sunny Balkan country. Monitor www.za1a.com for further details.
You are expected to arrive no later than Friday, June 18, and the festivities are scheduled to finish by Sunday evening. The actual DX convention will be on Saturday afternoon, with a gala dinner and Sunday morning program. Sightseeing will be organized after lunch on Sunday. Your gateways to Tirana, Albania are Budapest in Hungary, Milan in Italy and Vienna in Austria. The following carriers serve these cities even from New York: Malev Airlines, Austrian Airlines and Alitalia. See their respective websites.

Timing is such that by the following weekend you can end up in Friedrichshafen, Germany and experience Europe's No.1 ham radio exhibition.
Further details are available at:

Martti Laine, OH2BH, Project Goodwill Albania, email: oh2bh@sral.fi
PS: All Project Goodwill Albania 2003 QSL cards, will start going out over Easter by mail but they can also be collected as 'personal gesture' by OH2BH, OH2PM and SM0WKA and other Project Goodwill Albania participants at the Yaesu booth in Dayton."

FO/M, MARQUESAS ISLANDS. Hiro, JA0SC, informs OPDX that he will be active from Nuku Hiva Island in the Marquesas Island group, April 13-18th. His callsign is not in hand yet, but he will be receiving one once he arrives in Papeete, French Polynesia. His activity will be mostly on the digital modes, especialy SSTV, on the 20-10 meter bands. Hiro will be using a 200 watts rig and a 2 element HB9CV tribander Yagi beam. QSL to his home callsign, JA0SC, direct only (QRZ.com address).

HB0, LIECHTENSTEIN. Operators Gerry/IZ1DSH, Giovanni/IK1WEG and Riccardo/IW1FWI will be active from Gaflei, May 1-2nd. Callsigns were not provided (probably HB0/homecall). Activity will be on 80-6 meters. QSL via their home callsigns.

INTERNATIONAL DX CONVENTION (Update). James, N6DHZ, reports: "The 2004 International DX Convention is pleased to announce that the program schedule is now available on the web. Along with the program schedule we are also announcing this year's participants in the 'Vendor Showcase'. Several manufacturers will be announcing new products at the vendor showcase so be sure to check the vendor showcase page to see what is new for 2004." IOTA NEWS.....
AF-018. Martin, OL5Y, will be active as IH9/OL5Y or IH9P from the African Italy Island of Pantelleria during the CQWW DX CW Contest (November 27-28th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (80m)/ High-Power entry. QSL via OK1MG.

AS-NEW. (OP Cancelled!) Word from Japan is that the JS2VAE/6 operator(s) departed from Ishigaki Island earlier noon, April 8th for Senkaku Island (Uoturi-shima -- The last unnumbered IOTA for JA). However, operator(s) were turned back about 60km from Uoturi-shima due to the weather deterioration. Landing will be scheduled again in the future.

EU-038. Dennis, PA7FM, is expected to activate this IOTA group starting April 23rd. He will sign PA7FM with 100w into a vertical antenna. QSL via CBA.

NA-039. Scott, K7ZO, will be operating from Adak Island as K7ZO/KL7, May 16-20th. Operation will be on 20 meters SSB with 100w into a vertical or dipole. Specific operating times are uncertain. QSL via K7ZO.

NA-184. (OP Cancelled!) Ed, K0NW, informed OPDX that he is sorry to report their planned activation of St. Georges Reef (and the Lighthouse ARLHS USA 793) in May, by Laurence/WA6LUT and him, has been cancelled for this year. Coordination with the lighthouse administration is very difficult. Ed state, "Maybe next year."

OC-144. Operator Stan/YB0AJR (OK1JR) was expected to activate Bangka Island this past weekend between April 9-12th. He will sign YB0AJR/4 and will be active on 40, 15 and 10 meters CW/SSB.
QSL to OK1JN. Suggested frequencies are:
SSB - 7055, 21260 and 28560
CW - 7025, 21040 and 28040 kHz

SA-021. (OP Cancelled!). Activity from Wood Island was cancelled due to weather. However, the team did activate Bermejo Island (also SA-021). A new date for the activation of Wood Island will be announced soon.

IR4, ITALY. The IR4A contest team will be on air during the ARI International Contest, May 1-2nd. The team will consist of: IK4MSV, IK4SWX, IK4IDS, IZ4COT, IZ4AFP, IZ4DIW and IZ4AGI. QSL via the Bureau (preferable) or direct to: ARI P.O. Box 178, 42100 Reggio Emilia, Italy.

JW, SVALBARD. Lars, LA5LJA, will be active as JW3R during the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th). Operating class is not known. QSL via LA3R, by the bureau or direct with 1 IRC or 2 USD.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
Dennis, PA7FM, informs OPDX that the 9U5M photo QSLs have just arrived from the printer. He will try to answer all the direct QSLs in the next 2 weeks before he leaves for a small holiday (see EU-038 above).
After he answers the direct QSLs, Dennis will start answering bureau requests as they arrive. He mentions that he is still receiving many direct requests with insufficient return postage or even without SAE.
They will be answered by the bureau.

Jan, PA4JJ (ex-PA9JJ), reports that the QSL cards have been received from printer and the online logs of the C56JJ DXpedition can be found on: http://www.qsl.net/c56jj/html/2004_log.html

QSL SO5O via SP5KVW by the Bureau or direct to: RadioKlub SP5KVW, P.O. Box 56, 07-410 Ostroleka, POLAND. The club's E-mail address is:
sp5kvw@wp.pl
Their Web page URL address is: http://sp5kvw.webpark.pl
On the Web page, details can be found on the upcoming SP DX Contest and a SO5O picture gallery.

RARE COUNTY TO BE ACTIVATED. Attention county hunters! It was announced this past week that the rare county of Kalawao (Kalaupapa, Mokokai Island in Hawaii) will be activated this week. Word has it -- "People are allowed in by invitation ONLY". This will be a "limited" HF SSB operation starting on Tuesday, April 13th to early Sunday, April 18th. The callsign AH6NF and AH6RH will be used to activate this rare county as time allows (fitting radio operations around a daily work schedule). Most operating will likely take place in the evening and nighttime hours (Hawaii time). Suggested frequencies are: 7088 (split), 14200, 21250 and 28495 kHz. QSL information was not provided, so listen for the operator instructions.

SILENT KEY. It is with great sadness to report that well known contester
Bill J. Fisher, W4AN (ex-KM9P), of Alpharetta, Georgia, died unexpectedly April 4th, at the age of 41. According to the ARRL's W1AW Bulletin and the ARRL Letter: "Fisher was the founder of the "Contesting.com" Web site.
During the 1980s and 1990s, he contributed more than a dozen articles to the National Contest Journal. He was a member of the South East Contest Club, the South East DX Club, the First-Class CW Operators' Club and the A-1 Operator Club. In addition to being a ham radio contester, he was an avid bicycle racer. Fisher was founder and Vice President of Concentric Systems Inc and he also established and served as president of Akorn Access Inc, an Internet service provider and consulting company." OPDX and its readers would like to send out our deepest sympathy to Bill's family and friends.

SPECIAL EVENT (HS on the WARCs). The Radio Amateur Society of Thailand (RAST) has applied for a special licence to celebrate Her Majesty, the Queen's 72nd Birthday and the PTD issued the callsign HS72B. At the same time, the RAST asked if they could use the WARC bands during this special occasion. The administration has agreed. The use of this licence and this callsign has to be strictly controlled by RAST, and will not be available for general use. The first event will be an operation from Koh Chang Island (AS-125), in about a week's time and will be followed by operations from the new club station HS0AC and for use by SEANET Control, and the SEANET convention in November. There will be one QSL Manager for all HS72B operations, and this will be announced soon. Details of the Koh Chang AS-125 operation will be announced very soon.
 LAST MINUTE UPDATES JUST BEFORE GOING TO PRINT ****
Ray/G3NOM/HS0ZDZ informs OPDX of the following two updates:
1) Look for HS72B to be activated by the members of the RAST April 12-17th from Koh Chang (IOTA AS-125). There will be activity on the WARC bands. Operators include E21LSE, E20NTS, HS1CKC, HS0GBI and HS6NDK (XW1N). QSLs for "ALL" HS72B operations until 31st December 2004 to E20NTS: Mr. Supote Saripan, P.O. Box 5, Klongtanon, Bangkok, 10222, Thailand. The DXpedition leader HS1CKC says "This will be a low profile operation with two budget transceivers and vertical antennas". The special permission was granted very quickly and took everyone by surprise.

2) Arrangements are also being made to use HS72B at the new HS0AC Club Station which is scheduled to start operations on 1st May 2004 by Ray, HS0ZDZ, for SEANET net control and 40m net control, in addition to the SEANET Convention in November 2004. Sequential operations by other Thai stations will be announced in due course.

SPECIAL EVENT. On May 1st, Poland will become a full member of the European Union. To celebrate this event, look for the special callsign SP0EURO. Activity will take place between April 28th and May 3rd. Activity will be on 160-10 meters (including the WARC bands), 145 MHz and 435MHz. Modes will be: CW, SSB, FM, PSK31 and SSTV. QSL via SP9PKZ.

ST, SUDAN. Magdi, ST2M, was heard active on 12 and 17 meters this past week. Watch around 24940 kHz after 1200z and 18150 kHz after 0900z. If you still need ST2 on 20 meters, watch 14200 kHz after 0330z and the Arabian Knights Net on 14252 kHz after 0630z.

T33C BANABA DXPEDITION. The international team of 19 operators are now active until April 16th. As this was being written Sunday morning, their Web reports 36,000 QSOs on Friday, April 9th. QSOs were split between CW/SSB. Watch for updates on their Web page, and they do have online logs, but there has been some reports of errors in the online log. The Web page for the operation is at: http://www.dx-pedition.de/banaba2004/
QSL via F5CWU: Flo Moudar, 25 Rue du Castel Salis, 37100 Tours, France.

XU, CAMBODIA. Jaak/ES1FB and Oleg/ES1RA will be active from here as XU7ACE and XU7ARA, respectively, from May 7-19th. An IOTA operation is also planned from Koh Pas (AS-133) using the callsign XU7ACV. QSL via their home callsign (Bureau is OK). XU7ACE will also be on the LoTW.

ZK1, SOUTH COOK ISLANDS. Harald, LA5UF, will be active as ZK1UFF from Rarotonga (OC-013), now through April 16th. QSL via his home callsign.

ZL7, CHATHAM ISLAND. Franz/ZL2III/DK1II and Dom/DL5EBE are now active as ZL7II until April 14th. The duo have been very active on all bands, mainly CW, but there has been some SSB and RTTY. QSL via DL5EBE.

ZONE 2. Fred, K2FRD, will once again be active as VO2/K2FRD. He informs OPDX that he will be conducting another mini-DXpedition to VO2 Zone 2 Labrador this summer from June 1st until about September 7th. Activity will be on 160-6 meters. However, he states that he plans to work the Maximun Useable Frequency as much as possible. So look for him to be on 20 and 17 meters more than the other bands, but he will try 15/12/10 meters if open. Fred states that 40 meters is difficult due to QRM and he will doing some 30 meter CW. He will put up antennas for 160/80 meters, but he thinks he will not have any success on those bands. Operations will be mainly SSB with some CW and PSK31, and possibly some RTTY. For more details, visit his Web page at:

http://homepage.mac.com/k2frd/Labrador2004.htm

ZS8, MARION ISLAND. ZS8MI has been active during the past week. However, activity has been on a net. It is recommand to start listening to 14245 kHz around 1400z. QSL via ZS6M. Visit the Web page at:
http://www.hartrao.ac.za/geodesy/marionweb/main.html

Though this might be of interest. It is the new Dummies book for entry level hams...a study guide with much additional and useful infomation from the same folks who produce the series of bright yellow "dummies" books.

Well worth the time to check out.

As long as we are telling stories, I have a friend who went in for her Tech, when it was 5 wpm and half of the General written. She passed the code test, but with a twist: she was convinced to sit in and try the 20

WPM, just to get acclimated, so that when the 5 WPM came along in a half-hour, it would seem slow.

She passed the multiple-choice 20 WPM code test! So she spent the next 12 months studying the theory, passing her Tech (that day) her General a few months later, her Advanced, some months after that, and finally her Extra, all within the original 12 months. Now she is just about the best volunteer examiner you could ever have: she encourages people to succeed.

I think you can accidentally pass a multiple-choice 10-question test on code reception, but what she did for the written was a true test of wanting to be a ham.

Names withheld to protect the innocent, or course.

Do you?

Hey, they've got a Homebrewing For Dummies, too. Probably has a chapter on building a QRP rig that fits in a beer-bottle cap.

I told 'ya it's been a long time since I've thought about these tests. :^]

I read the first couple dozen questions from the ARRL website, then started taking the QRZ sample test ... no problem.

I should have done this years ago.

Ten Tec started it with the Orion introducing it but not having it available for almost two years. Icom got on the bandwagon last year at Hamvention with their IC-7800 which may or may not be availble any day now. Yaesu just introduced their unavailable FT-DX-9000. But what I want to know is when is Kenwood going to get on the bandwagon and announce a radio that isn't going to be available?!

I'm in Montreal despite my posting from the Ottawa Freenet.

The Montreal Amateur Radio Club is having their annual fleamarket on Saturday, April 17th, just in case you want to make the drive.
I haven't been in a few years. It is a rather small space; they had to move because they weren't filling the old space.
http://www.marc.qc.ca/fest/fest.html

There were a couple in the Montreal vicinity in March, but I know nothing of them except that they were held. There is a fairly large one in the fall on the South Shore. I haven't seen a date set yet, but I'd expect it on October 23rd.

There are definitely some fleamarkets in Ottawa, though the only time I've been to any there was a couple of times thirty years ago. There is one that takes place in late August or early September.

To find an extensive list, check the Radio Amateurs of Canada website at http://www.rac.ca There is a list of upcoming hamfests, and there's bound to be something in Ottawa. Maybe some of the other hamfests will fit your sense of reasonable distance.

Of course, one can also see a list of upcoming hamfests at the ARRL site, http://www.arrl.org

The RAC site will either have a list of local clubs, or you should be able to find them by emailing the RAC.

Of course, a transmitter isn't particularly userful unless one has a license.

Specifically, Staten Island, NY. On 462.600 MHZ in the GMRS band, there is a repeater group that calls themselves Blue Com or Blue Communications. They sound like an emergency service or response group, though usually only idle conversation is scarcely heard. Thoughout the day and night especially, the repeater sends time checks, automated call signs and the national sercurity level. They seem to have fairly wide coverage. The repeater states that it has been in service since 1997. I'm wondering if anyone has come across this group and could shed some light. Does anyone have anything on this? Thanks.

Anyone know where a guy can get his mits on a 155Mhz an/or a 460 Mhz Helical resonator?

I got an old commercial one give to me from a fella that used to run a 2-Way radio shop here in South Dakota out of the front-end of an old Motorola Radio.

Pickin's are pretty slim these days. I'd pay cash for a couple.I'm designing a front-end on a police scanner radio, wanna tighten it up. Thanks!

There are several inquiries about this group on several Yahoo groups, bulletin boards, and other GMRS-related venues. They claim to be good guys who are serving their community, but no one knows how they serve and who they are. They use bluecomm at yahoo as their email address, and queries to that address get replies from different people using aliases because of their line of work, whatever that is.

My impression is that it's some guys who have a fantasy about community service, but who do nothing.

The instrument maker is a bloke in Nottingham. He's a radio ham, sadly a g7 who took the multiple guess exam.

He has made all sorts of stuff engineering wise. I've known him since he started makng different musical instruments.
A copy of a dobro metal guitar in stainless steel (he used two stainless steel sinks and soldering/welding (out of my depth here) the stainless was problem getting the right flux). Being the pedantic everything got to be right kind of bloke, (I'm a try this does it work , yes that'll do) He experimented with trying to put a transducer/pickup to amplfy the thing.

He bought some really expensive transducers and i loaned him one that was from maplins for 99p. There are two miracles here
1 it worked brilliantly
2 Maplins had some in stock.

I enjoy trying to play music but i have van goffs ear for music. (and stevie wonders eye for spelling)

Keep the good work.

Regards Ron

Call for an Impeachment Inquiry of Bush and Cheney, Get Congress to Take Action

Sign our online Petition and read below for more information:

HEY DUDE WHERE'S MY BUDDY!!!???
COME BACK HOME MICHAEL!!!

Ok Michael, you've had your realpolitik fling with ex-General Wesley Clark. Your endorsed Presidential candidate in the Democratic Primaries has withdrawn. It is time for you to come home, to join your buddies and resume your only genuine role which is that of defiance and resistance. Compliance and assistance with the Democrats does not accord with your past, your character, your bold writings and, most memorably, your long corrosive assaults on the Party that betrayed the working classes and plunged our country into corporate globalization. Remember, Michael, you're the flinty man from Flint, Michigan. You've never forgotten your roots. The heady Hollywood, Manhattan scene with the celebrities and Academy Awards have never gotten to your head but rather have gotten into your deserving pockets. How we all recall your standing before one billion people in Los Angeles at the televised Academy Awards in 2003 and, breaking the customary cant of the awardees, throwing the gauntlet down to George W. Bush and his "fictitious" war mongering.

Now the War has become a quagmire, with both Republicans and Democrats complicit (check the votes in Congress). The Draft may be on the way. So what are you doing going on the Al Franken Show very nearly breaking down when Al Gore (he of the pro NAFTA/GATT, anti-worker, regime-change, Iraq-bombing, lethal sanctions on half a million children Administration) called and thought you were apologizing. You have nothing to apologize for, Michael. Gore has a lot to apologize for-blowing the election he won in Florida and the country as a whole and for blowing, with Bill Clinton, the many opportunities the rich-booming Nineties and the collapse of the Soviet Union gave this country to turn a peace dividend into a pro-worker, pro-environment, pro-consumer and anti-poverty resurgence.

Come back and join our Presidential campaign, Michael. Talk to those "Reagan Democrats"-those 35% of union members who still vote Republican and against their own interests-as only you can. Michael, if you go pumping for the Democratic Party this year, just what are you going to say to the unemployed steelworkers near Sparrows Point in Maryland? To the megathousands of laid off textile and furniture workers in North and South Carolina? To the abandoned auto workers waiting and waiting near their empty factories that went to repressive countries? To the millions of blue-collar workers, who fought our wars, only to learn that the two parties won't fight for their company pensions and health insurance? Are you going to tell them how the Democratic Party pushed through the WTO, let their pensions erode or disappear, were too busy collecting checks from the corporate bosses to pay attention to the corporate crime wave that looted and drained trillions of dollars from millions of workers, their retirement and small investments? Will you tell them that the cowardly Democrats, who couldn't win the fewer elections they are now not losing without the labor vote, won't even mount a determined drive to repeal the notorious, union-blocking Taft Hartley Act?

How can you be free to be what you are, or to depress Bush's vote, to jolt into consciousness the moribund Democratic Party?

Hey Dude, join your real buddies! The ones you may be thinking about just don't fit either your message, your vision, or our website VoteNader.org.

Come back home Michael. The workers and the youth of America are looking for you.

Best regards,
Ralph Nader

P.S. Will you put this invitation on your website and see how your fans react to Michael Moore returning to the Nader 2004 presidential campaign? Patti Smith will reserve a big singing spot, for you, on the stage for the customary finale, PEOPLE HAVE THE POWER.

Join the Call for an Impeachment Inquiry of Bush and Cheney Help us Get Congress to Take Action

You can help the call for an impeachment inquiry of President Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney. Sign our online Petition.

http://www.votenader.org/get_involved/impeach.php

George W. Bush and Dick Cheney should be impeached for two reasons:

They led the United States into an illegal, unconstitutional war in Iraq.
They misled the Congress and the American people with five falsehoods that led to war.

All it takes is one Member of the House of Representatives to call for an Impeachment Inquiry to start the process to investigate the two grounds. If the House then votes by a simple majority for Articles of Impeachment, the Senate would then undertake a trial of the President and Vice President. They would only be convicted, and impeached, if two-thirds of the Senate agrees.

He can use the Yellow paint,

That's a good thick hard wearing paint, that should do the job very well.

Iï¿½ve just started a new Yahoo group called RadioPriceFinder. The purpose is to share information on who has the best prices for Scanner, SWL, Ham Radio equipment and accessories.

Are you in the market of buying a new Scanner? SW Receiver? Antenna? Then post a question to the group such as ï¿½who has the price on the new Uniden XYZ scannerï¿½. Hopefully others will respond with prices theyï¿½ve recently seen or paid online. This should save many hours of websurfing to find the lowest prices.

Have you made a purchase and received bad customer care from the business you dealt with? Please LET everyone know so we donï¿½t fall into the same trap and buy from a bad business.

For more information on this group or to join you can go here: http://groups.yahoo.com/group/radiopricefinder.

To scribe you can simply send an email to: radiopricefinder-subscribe@yahoogroups.com

Thanks,
George

Amateur Radio Newslineï¿½ Report 1392 ï¿½ April 16, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1392 with a release date of Friday, April 16th, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T. Iraqi hams put out a plea to keep ham radio alive in that war torn nation and the ARRL asks the FCC to extend the filing deadline on B-P-L. Find out the details on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1392 coming your way right now.

A PLEA FROM A WAR ZONE: PLEASE HELP HAM RADIO SURVIVE IN IRAQ

Even as the bloodshed continues, hams in Iraq are asking their counterparts world-wide to keep Amateur Radio alive in the war torn nation. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW has more:

A widely publicized e-mail from Laith Adhary, YI1SRA, in Baghdad asks the worlds radio amateurs for support in keeping ham radio a part of a new Iraq. This, as the June 30th date for handover of the government to local authorities approaches.

Adhary is a member of the Iraqi Association for Radio Amateurs and works at the University in Baghdad. He says that it is urgent that Iraq establish a viable ham radio program in the country before the shift of governing takes place. To accomplish this, Laith and Iraqi Association for Radio Amateurs president Diya Sayah, YI1DZ are asking hams around the globe to and their national societies to a letter of support for the future of the hobby in Iraq.

Both men indicate that this is a time sensitive issue and request support right away.

With thanks to Ian Abel, G3ZHI, for passing the information along,
I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, reporting for the Amateur Radio Newsline.

--

The best way to make sure your letter of support arrives is to send it by E-mail We have two addresses. Sayah can be reached at

THE BPL WAR: ARRL ASKS FOR FILING DEADLINE EXTENSION IN BPL NPRM

Back here in the United States, the ARRL has asked the FCC to extend the deadline for comments and reply comments by 45 days in the Broadband over Power Line Notice of Proposed Rule Making. Thats E-T Docket 04-37.

The ARRL filing says that it anticipates the National Telecommunications and Information Administration report on B-P-L to go public on or around April 16th. Also, that the current deadline would allow only a couple of weeks at best to evaluate the study's results and incorporate its findings into comments in the proceeding.

Although the FCC does not routinely grant such extensions, the ARRL says that it is important to allow time for the N-T-I-A to conclude its study at B-P-L field trial locations. Unless the extension is granted, the last day to file comments is May 3rd and reply comments is June 1st. (ARRL Bulletin)

THE BPL FIGHT: SWL'S VS. BROADBAND OVER POWERLINES

Short-wave listeners can complain to the FCC if a Broadband Over Powerline installation interferes with their reception, but there are some caveats. Amateur Radio Newsline's Gary Pearce, KN4AQ, has the rest of the story:

Progress Energy has made a concerted effort to move BPL signals out of the ham bands in their trial areas near Raleigh, North Carolina. But the systems, which are governed by FCC Part 15 and are prohibited from interfering with licensed services, are still radiating signals across much of the rest of the short-wave spectrum. That's leading short-wave listeners to ask if they have "standing" to complain to the FCC, since they don't have licenses themselves.

The - General Council Chris Imlay W3KD says they do, if the BPL signals are interfering with international shortwave broadcasts from other countries, but not if they are trying to listen to domestic shortwave broadcasters. Replying to an e-mail inquiry, Imlay adds that "One does not have to be a licensee of a transmitter in order to receive harmful interference."

ARRL Chief Executive Officer David Sumner K1ZZ noted that the US is a member of the International Telecommunications Union, whose Radio Regulations require member nations to protect HF communications from harmful interference.

RR 15.12 reads, "Administrations shall take all practicable and necessary steps to ensure that the operation of electrical apparatus or installations of any kind, including power and telecommunication distribution networks, do not cause harmful interference to a radiocommunication service operating in accordance with the provisions of these Regulations."

Reporting for Newsline, this is Gary Pearce KN4AQ, in Raleigh, North Carolina.

The bottom line: If you are trying to listen to Radio Netherlands and a Broadband Over Powerline installation covers the station up -- complain to the FCC. (KN4AQ, ARNewsline(tm))

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: EXPEDITION 9 HEADED TO THE ISS

The International Space Station's next set of ham radio residents will arrive this month. Expedition 9 Commander Gennady Padalka and Flight Engineer Mike Fincke are slated to launch to orbit from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan on April 18. They will arrive at the I-S-S on April 21 to replace Expedition 8 explorers Mike Foale, KB5UAC, and Sasha Kaleri, U8MIR.

Padalka is a space flight veteran having spent 198 days aboard the Russian Mir space station in 1999. On the other hand, Expedition 9 is Fincke's first trip to space. Both are hams. Fincke holds the call sign KE5AIT and Padalka is RN3DT.

European Space Agency Astronaut Andrï¿½ Kuipers will also travel to the Station with Fincke and Padalka and return to Earth with Expedition 8 about nine days later. Padalka and Fincke will then spend about six months on-orbit. Their tasks include maintaining ISS operations, continuing science operations, conducting two spacewalks and operating the ham radio station as time permits. Their tour of duty is scheduled to end in late October when the Expedition 10 crew rockets up to replace them. (ANS, ARISS, MAREX)

RESCUE RADIO: PHONE TUNNEL FIRE BRINGS HAM RADIO CALLOUT

Raynet -- the United Kingdom's version of RACES -- was called on as March drew to a close. This, as fire rips through a tunnel carrying telephone lines across a wide area. Jeramy Boot, G4NJH, is in Nottingham, with more:

--

Raynet groups in Cheshire, Greater Manchester and Derbyshire were put on standby following a fire in a BT underground tunnel in central Manchester in the early hours of Monday the 29th of March. The fire disrupted more than 130,000 telephone lines in Lancashire, Merseyside, Derbyshire and further afield. Cheshire Police were concerned about the effects on communications, and via the Cheshire Emergency Planning Department requested the availability of Raynet operators to cover the affected area.

The Greater Manchester ambulance service lost landline and radio communications with their vehicles, but were able to use mobile phones as a means of contact. Other difficulties included a loss of 999 calls and disruption to the broadband data network. Large areas of the High Peak area of Derbyshire were without landlines or mobile phones.

Jeramy Boot, G4NJH.

--

The majority of Raynet members were dismissed by the evening of March 29th, but the Cheshire Group and County Controllers were on call through Wednesday afternoon the 31st. Thats when the emergency call in 999 service was finally restored to the worst-affected area of Cheshire. (GB2RS)

RESCUE RADIO: TV CHANNEL 16 GOES TO PUBLIC SAFETY AGENCIES IN NYC

On this side of the Atlantic pond the FCC has permanently reallocated 482 to 488 MHz in the New York City metropolitan area to the land-mobile service. This, for public safety communications.

482 to 488 MHz which is also known as UHF television Channel 16 has been used in New York for that purpose since 1995 when the FCC issued a Conditional Waiver of its rules to permit the initial operation.

RADIO RULES: BY-BY FORMS

And a change of forms at the FCC. Effective with Monday, May 3, the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau will dismiss any applications filed on an FCC Form 605 issued earlier than December 2003.

Form 605, the Quick-Form Application for Authorization in the Ship, Aircraft, Amateur, Restricted and Commercial Operator, and General Mobile Radio Service, is the hard-copy version of the Amateur Service application. The FCC has been accepting both older and current Form 605 applications that included room for a Taxpayer Identification Number or a Social Security number. The FCC would then issue the applicant an FCC Registration Number or F-R-N without additional paperwork.

All amateur service applicants must have and use an F-R-N when filing an application such as Form 605 with the FCC. The change does not affect applicants filing on-line with the Universal Licensing System. (ARRL Bulletin)

ENFORCEMENT: NEVER UNDERESTIMATE THE VALUE OF CB RADIO

Turning to the enforcement arena, never underestimate the value of an 11 meter Class D C-B radio set in catching a bad guy. Even when the alleged perpetrator happens to be the C-B operator at the controls. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, has the details:

According to the CGC Communicator, complaints about interference from a citizens band radio led police to the home of one Vernando Malone of South Bend, Indiana. When they searched the premises they found more than $20,000 worth of Nextel cellular telephones and another $20,000 in Motorola phones. Also located was a computer that Malone allegedly used to activate the phones

Malone has now been charged with forgery and theft. This, in connection with what police claim was scheme to fraudulently order large numbers of cell phones, activate them with a home computer, and then sell them on the street at discounted prices.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, in Los Angeles.

TECHNOLOGY: KNRC AM IN COLORADO TURNS OFF IBOC

A broadcaster has shut down its A-M stereo system to avoid interfering with listeners of another near-by station. KNRC A-M on 1150 kHz in Littleton, Colorado, turned off the I-B-O-C or High Definition Radio encoding equipment in response to listener complaints of interference to the signal of KJJD, on 1170 kHz in the town of Windsor.

Rodger Tighe writing in the CGC Communicator calls this is a second adjacent channel situation. He reports that part of the decision to silence I-B-O-C was based on the thinking that interference to a small mom & pop station like KJJD was totally unwarranted since consumers have so few H-D radios in their hands at this time.

Tighe is the Chief Engineer of KNRC. He says that the I-B-O-C encoding equipment is still in the racks and the whole issue could be revisited at a later date. (CGC)

THAT FINAL ITEM: WORLD CLASS T-HUNTING - PART 1

And finally, a question. Have you tried ham radio's version of fox hunting? It's not hard and you might win yourself some medals. Newsline's Joe Moell K0OV has the story of the next Amateur Radio direction finding championships:

--

Most hams know that in Amateur Radio, the term "foxhunt" doesn't have anything to do with horses or hound dogs. Our foxes are radio transmitters and the object of the hunt is to find them with radio direction finding equipment. But what many hams don't know is that the equipment for hunting radio foxes can be very simple and inexpensive. For a two-meter foxhunt in the park on foot, you can do very well by augmenting your handi-talkie with a simple yagi antenna made out of a steel measuring tape and some PVC pipe from the hardware store. For closing in, build an offset-type RF attenuator for about 15 dollars worth of small parts. Plans are on the Web, so warm up your soldering iron. Then maybe you could be like Newsline's Young Ham of the Year Jay Thompson W6JAY, who has won a place on our country's team to the World ARDF Championships. You don't have to be a super-athlete, just reasonably fit.

To see the USA's best on-foot foxhunters in action, to learn from them, and to try it for yourself, make plans to come to southern California this June. The Fourth USA ARDF Championships get under way on June 16th, with practice sessions, a big two-meter hunt, and another hunt on 80 meters. Come out the weekend before, and you can take part in an optional intensive training camp. It's all being put on by the Santa Barbara Amateur Radio Club and it's open to anyone at any foxhunting skill level, with or without a ham license. If you're a senior, don't worry about trying to compete with W6JAY. Equal medals will be awarded in five separate age category for OM's from under 18 to over 60. There are four similar age categories for the YLs.

For everything you need to know about the Championships, including schedules, registration forms and equipment ideas, point your Web browser to www.homingin.com. That's HomingIn, as one word, homingin.com. I hope to see you there. Next week, I'll tell you about a way to get the foxhunting fun going in your own home town. From southern California, this is Joe Moell Kay-Zero-Oscar-Victor for Amateur Radio Newsline.

You can try asking in the alt.ham-radio.vhf-uhf news group. Also does it have to be one antenna? A 6m quarter wave is going to be at least 5 feet tall. That puts a lower limit on the size of any multiband antenna that inclues the 6m band. Some people have had good luck using two antennas. One for 70cm, and a 5/8 wave for 2m. The 5/8 wave 2m antenna will work on 6m, its close to a quarter wave lenght, if you don't mind the some what poor match you get.

Hi Dan.

I took the liberty of forwarding the message to rec.radio.amateur.antenna. It is a better group for this subject.

Your question is a little broad. I'm not sure of the application, base or mobile, or if you would like a multiband or what.

If you want a good general purpose antenna, there are multiband 2m/70cm ones out there. Single band antennas work well also. I've made a ground plane for the house, and the mobile antennas use the car body for the ground plane, although I've heard some discussion to the contrary. A number of people like J-pole antennas, I've just built one for 2 meters, and am evaluating it now.

If you want more "gain", you might look into one of the multi-element antennas. These are a good deal more expensive, and need a rotator, as the gain in one direction is offset by a null in the opposite direction.

But so much depends on what you want to do. If repeater operations are your main interest on the higher frequencies, then the ground plane/jpole approach is better IMO, unless you are on a fringe area and need the gain just to hit the repeater.

On six meters, there are a number of options, from dipole to the multiple element antennas also. The same ideas apply.

Hope this helps, but if you like, you can give us a few more details.

I agree that the fee just barely covers all the costs. Also keep in mind that the FCC sets an upper limit on that fee to prevent abuse. The limit is periodically reviewed and adjusted.

If one were to consider what "labor" costs are, even at minimum wage, it isn't worth the thought when it comes to VE testing. A handful of examinees couldn't possibly produce enough income for someone to be suspicious about - someone "making" anything. As has been stated, you're not permitted to charge over what the FCC has allowed. Given the VEC gets most of the fee, there is little left. Out of that, is copying fees which range from 5 cents per page to 25 cents per page if you're not able to get it done free. Add to that the postage, and we're not even counting "man hours" for the team or the VE Coordinator who does a final check to make sure all is ok before submission. There is very little chance for "money" or let's call it a "profit" as some seem to suggest - to be made. IF we did have any funds left over, it went towards any supplies needed. Pens, pencils - since many forget to bring them and usually walk off with them, paperclips, coffee for the test sessions (to help calm the jitters) - whatever. And most of the time, most of that was donated by one of us as well. This misconception that someone is making a buck, cracks me up. That is a statement made by Wayne Green years ago and that is exactly what got me to never read his magazine again. If you're not involved, then you have no clue. As down in the numbers as testing is today, you're lucky to clear enough to cover the copies and postage. IF anything, it barely supports itself. The VEC who gets most of the fees, are the ones "making" anything if you really want to see where the cash is going. The FCC doesn't get any of it either, at least they're not "supposed" to be according to the systems set up.

The ONLY testing where you're allowed to "make" money as a profit - is Commercial testing. And I highly doubt there is much of that going on since they've taken the bite out of the license anyway. Unless you plan to work onboard a ship or aircraft, you don't really need one. I don't know many who want to pay $35 or more for a license which means hardly anything. I'd love to see the stats on recent licensing both amateur and commercial. I bet the numbers are way down..... Even at the cost of doing commercial exams, you have to do a room full to make a tickling of money in your hand. One or two, or even a half dozen, just doesn't cut it.

Make a profit on exams? GET REAL. It's more a labor of love. There's no "pay" there. I am/was the VE team leader for a few years. Had exams every month. Walk-ins were accepted. When VE testing first started, we were packed - then it died. We've stopped. Same for Commercial. It just isn't worth it.

Yeah, I'm getting real rich off of this... NOT. As I said, it was a labor of love. You couldn't pay me for all the hours I put into taking care of the advertising, paper checking, printing exams (as the VEC only gives you one copy of each), answer sheets (they give you a sample), signs, etc. ALL was either donated or done out of pocket. Testing couldn't begin to reimburse for those expenses. Then you got to print or buy more CSCEs. ALL of this costs MONEY.
It isn't given to us. And the VEs who traveled no less than 5 miles one way to come help with the exams - with the cost of gas now days - get paid enough of out that money? OK, let's divide left over money after copies, postage and such. 3 guys minimum.... gas at 37 cents a mile, an hour of labor. What does that come to? $11.10 for gas. It just doesn't work. It boils down to someone wants something for nothing - or pure jealousy. Afraid someone else is making out. But I bet, those who bitch about the $12 would be the last to want to take an hour of their time - FOR FREE to help others. Nothing worth having is ever without a cost. Free lunches are a thing of the past. I'm a born volunteer. I volunteer about 100 or more hours a month. Am I bitching? NO. But it kicks me in the ass when others do - about those who do, for which the whiners are getting help from. If you're not willing to do the same, quit your bitching.
Be glad some one found it within them to offer you a service.

Lou

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

3B9, RODRIGUES ISLAND. The 3B9C operation went QRT on April 12th with a little over 153,000 QSOs.

5N, NIGERIA. Vlado, ZS6MG, is expected to be active this week as 5N0DKV/6. He is here on a business trip between April 20-30th, so activity will be limited due to his work schedule. It is suggested to look for him after 1600z possibly on the HF bands or 6 meters.

7Q, MALAWI (Update/Reminder). By the time you read this, the UK Malawi DXpedition should have started. As this was being typed Sunday morning (1530z), the UK team was not active. The callsign to be used by the UK Malawi DXpedition between April 18th and May 1st will be 7Q7MM. For more details, please refer to OPDX.650 and OPDX.655, or visit the UK Malawi DXpedition Web page at: http://www.malawi.digital-crocus.com QSL via G3LQP direct (Roger Brown, 262 Fir Tree Road, Epsom KT17 3NL, England) or via the bureau.

8Q, MALDIVES. Pierre, HB9QQ, is now active as 8Q7QQ from Velighoo (North Atoll) until April 27th. He has been hitting the WARC bands (30/17/12m) a lot. QSL via his home callsign.

9M2 & V8, WEST MALAYSIA AND BRUNEI (Borneo IOTAs). Ian, 9M2/G3TMA, informed OPDX that Derek/G3KHZ, Maurizio/IZ1CRR and he will activate a couple of Borneo IOTAs during the next couple of weeks. Look for the following:
OC-184 (Pulau Muara Besar, V8) - Operation will start on April 21st.
OC-165 (Pulau Satang Besar, 9M8) - Operation will start around April 28th.
QSL both activity via G3KHZ.

AM6/AN6/ED6, SPAIN (Attention Prefix Hunters!). Julio/EA3AIR, Wolf/OE2VEL and Juan/EA5BM will activate the EA6IB station during the CQ WPX CW Contest as a Multi-Single entry. The prefix of the station will be AM6, AN6 or ED6IB (probably this last one) during the contest. QSL via EA6IB's CBA address.

DXCC NEWS. Jan, PA4JJ, announced this past week that he received an E-mail from Bill Moore, NC1L, that the C56JJ DXpedition is approved for DXCC.

ELECTED OFFICIALS FOR 2004-2005. The following were re-elected for another term of office as Northern Ohio DX Association officials:
President : Tedd Mirgliotta, KB8NW
V. Presidient: Dwaine Modock, K8ME
Secretary : Ron Borkey, K8VJG
Treasurer : Mary Michaelis, N8DMM
Newsletter Editor: David Autry, WD8IOU

EW, BELARUS. Andrei NP3D, will be visiting his homeland from April 17-27th, to see his parents and friends. He will be active from there using his home callsign EW1AR on all modes and bands. Also, look for him to be active in the SP DX RTTY Contest as Single-Op/All-Band/Low-Power entry. QSL via W3HNK.

FRENCH NEWS AND ACTIVITY. There seems to be plenty of French special events and activities (some for D-Day) in the coming weeks and months. Look for the following to take place:
TM60VS - From the Vercors area, will celebrate the 60th anniversary of Isere liberation by partisans on June 6th. QSL per operator's instructions.

TM6OGM - From the Sarthe area (near Le Mans), look for Jean-Marie, F5NLX, plus other ops and SWLs, to be active on CW/SSB, especially on 80, 40 and 20 meters, from June 3-7th. QSL via F5NLX, either the bureau or direct (SAE+postage).

TM6SME - From the Normandy, Sainte Mere Eglise, "Omaha and Utah Beach areas", Michel, F6IPS, will be active on all bands CW/SSB from June 6-20th. QSL by request only to F6IPS direct (SAE+postage) or via the bureau.

TM7HAM - From HAMEURO, this Ham show happens on June 13th in Longlaville (Northeast of France not far from Nancy). The F6KWP ARS will air this special callsign from June 5-19th. Their Belgian friends will also air at the same time with the callsign ON4HAM. QSL both callsigns via F6KWP ARS, direct (SAE+postage) or via the bureau.

TM7OAA - For the 70th anniversary since the French Air Forces were founded, the 128th French Airborne ARS, F6KAT, will air this special callsign from June 6-20th. Activity will be on all bands from 160m to 70 cm, all modes. QSL via F6KAT by the bureau or direct (SAE+postage).

TM8MAI - For the 59th anniverssary of the end of WWII, the F6KWP ARS will air this special callsign on May 8-9th, from the Maginot Line and on the 16th from the Mai Lorrain d'Ugny. QSL via F6KWP ARS, direct (SAE) or via the bureau.

GB0, SCOTLAND (Special Activity). Members of the West of Scotland ARS and Scottish HAM Portal team will be active as GB0SHP to present the new "Scottish HAM Portal" on the air. The station's QTH: Hardgate, Clydebank, West Dunbartonshire; QRA Locator IO75TW and WAB NS47. The dates of their activity: April 19-25th (2004). Pertinent equipment available to their station: Transceiver Kenwood TS-940S, Amplifier SB-220. The antennas are: Cushcraft X7, Delta Loop 80 m, Delta Loop 40 m, and a number of portable antennas. Contacts will be carried out on all HF bands, CW, SSB and Digital Modes. A special QSL card will be issued. Any operator is welcome to the club's shack to operate as GB0SHP. Further information will be presented on the Scottish HAM Portal Web page at: http://www.scotham.net
The Web page has info on: Scottish Islands, DX News, IOTA, Scottish & DX Awards, Equipment, Antennas, DX Forums, HAM Calendar, Pictures, DX Georaphy, Contests, DX Stories etc.... QSL cards for contacts with GB0SHP should be sent via RSGB QSL Bureau or direct to: P.O. Box 7469, Glasgow, G42 OYD, Scotland, U.K.

INTERNATIONAL MARCONI DAY (IMD). This annual event day will take place April 24th to celebrate the birth of Guglielmo Marconi (April 25, 1874). The Cornish Radio Amateur Club (G4CRC) organizes this event each year and will be active as GB4IMD. Also, look for other special event stations to be active from historical Marconi sites during IMD. For more details on IMD as well as awards and a listing of participating station in this year's event, please visit the Web page at:

http://www.gb4imd.co.uk/index.htm
Also, visit the Cornish Radio Amateur Club's Web page at:

IOTA NEWS.....
NEW IOTA DIRECTORY. The 40th Anniversary Edition of the IOTA Directory is expected to be published around April 19th and will be available from RSGB HQ shortly afterwards. For details, please visit the RSGB Web page at: http://www.rsgb.org/shop/
The new directory is larger than ever with 136 pages.

AS-067. Operators Joe/JA4PXE and Kou/JH4WXV are expects to be active as JA4PXE/6 and JH4WXV/6 from Uji Island (JIIA-067-009), April 29th through May 2nd. Look for them to be on CW/SSB on 160-6 meters. QSL to their home callsigns either direct or via the JARL Bureau.

EU-031. Looking for members of the Vesuvio DX Team to be active as IC8/homecall from Procida Island (I.I.A. NA-002, I.T.A. H072, and D.C.I. NA-053), April 24-25th. Operators are: IZ8DDG, IZ8DQH, IZ8FAV, IZ8FDH, IW8DON and IZ7ATL. Activity will be on HF, 6 and 2 meters CW/SSB. QSL to their home callsigns.

EU-129. Look for German operators Axel/DL8RL, Klaus/DL8DZL, Falk/DF3UFW and Joerg/DL2DSL to be active from Usedom Island (O-13 for the German Islands Award), April 23-30th. The team also plans to activate Schlossinsel (O-31) and Grosser Wotig (O-35). QSL via the Bureau.

EU-148. Members of the Castres DX Gang will once again be active as homecall/p from the Fort Brescou Island (DIFM ME001), from May 27-31st. The gang will also be active as TM5B in the CQ WPX Contest CW Contest. Outside of the contest, look for them to be on all modes on HF/VHF. Other references are: WWLighthouses WLH 500 and French Castles DFCF 34001. QSL via Bernard, F5XX.

EU-177. Kent, SM0ELV, will be active as SM0ELV/5 from the Island of Lilla Olson. Activity will be on 80-10 meters CW and SSB, maybe also digital. There may be a possibility of 6 meters. He will also be an entry in the RSGB IOTA Contest (July 24-25th). QSL via his home callsign.

OC-NEW/
OC-071. Alan, VK4AAR, informs OPDX that operators Wally/VK6YS, Dan/VK8AN, Bruce/KD6WW and Ron/VK8NRI are still on track for Viney Island, Bonaparte Archipelago (OC-???) starting April 23-24th for 4-5 days as well as activity from Long Island (OC-071) from April 27-28th through May 2nd. They will be signing VK6AN from Viney Island and VK6LI from Long Island.

Depending on the limited availability of transportation, they will have two transceivers and vertical antennas with the possibility of a tribander for 10, 15 and 20 meters.
Plans are to operate CW, SSB and PSK31 and to work "very hard at making as many NA and EU operators as happy as we can". QSL both operations direct to VK4AAR: Alan Roocroft, P.O. Box 421, Gatton, QLD 4343, Australia.

JT4/JU4/JV4, MONGOLIA (Attention Prefix Hunters). Look for the following three special event stations to be active until May 15th to celebrate the 45th anniversary of the Dornod Radio Club (JT2KAA) (the second amateur radio club in Mongolia). Stations active will be JU45D and JV45D (from Ulaanbaatar), and JT45D (from Choibalsan, Eastern Mongolia). QSL via JT2AN: P.O.Box 94, Dornod, Mongolia.

JW, SVALBARD. Manuel, CT1BWW/OK8BWW, and possibly others (according to the following Web pages) will be active as JW/CT1BWW form June 7-14th.
There will be three stations active on 160-6 meters on CW/SSB/RTTY/PSK31/SSTV. QSL via CT1BWW. For more details, visit the following Web pages at: http://www.geocities.com/ok8bww

NEW BOOK ("Ham Radio for Dummies" by Ward, N0AX). Details from a press release: "FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE -- Every new ham has the 'What do I do now?' feeling after passing the exam. Similarly, how can a prospective ham find out about the great things ham radio has to offer and how to participate? Addressing these issues is why I wrote 'Ham Radio for Dummies', available on April 12th. The book is designed to make ham radio easier to understand whether you have a license or not.
(Its ISDN number is 0-7645-5987-7.)
There are 384 pages of explanations, tables, graphics, photos, and links to on-line resources. It can be read from cover to cover or used as a 'get in, get out' desk reference. My goal was to produce the book I wish I'd had when I was just starting out - a Desktop Elmer, so to speak. If you're interested, just enter the title into a Web search engine and find your favorite bookseller. The Wiley site has a sample chapter to browse, as well as a Bonus Content link to a detailed guide to operating a radio that would be a good review for many hams. I hope the book will help us attract more people to ham radio and also help those that have passed the exam stay active in the hobby..... 73, Ward, N0AX"

QSL INFO AND NEWS.............

GERMANY. Also, "most" logs are available online at:
http://www.qsl.net/dl7afs

FM/T93M QSL requests. Boris, T93Y, would like to remind the DX community that the QSL Manager for Danny's recent FM/T93M operation is Mario, DJ2MX and direct requests should be sent to: Mario Lovric, Kampenwandstrasse 13, D-81671 Muenchen, Germany (instead of Danny's "home" address listed on QRZ.com). However, all envelopes received in Sarajevo will be forwarded to Mario from time to time, and operators who sent QSLs this way should expect some delay in processing their requests.

QSL HS72B via E20NTS: Mr. Supote Saripan, P.O. Box 5, Klongtanon, Bangkok, 10222, Thailand. Activity this past week (April 12-17th) was from Chang Island (AS-125). Operators were: E21LSE, E20NTS, HS1CKC, HS0GBI and HS6NDK (XW1N).

Berkin, TA3J, reports that he sent out QSL cards for TA3YJ, TA3YJ/0, TA3YJ/3, TA3YJ/3 (LH), TA3YJ/4, TA3YJ/4 (LH), SV1/TA3YJ, LZ2/TA3YJ, TA3J, TA3J/0, TA3J/1, TA3J/2, TA3J/3, TA3J/3 (LH), TA3J/4, TA3J/4 (LH), YM3LZ/WPX2000 and YM3LZ/WAE2000 to the QSL Bureaus of Germany, Denmark, India, ITU (International Amateur Radio Club) and Spain direct on April 16, 2004.

John, K9QVB, informed OPDX that all the VP5K, VP5/AG9A and VP5/K9RS cards which were received have been answered. There has been some confusion about the QSL Manager. The proper QSL Manager for these stations is K9QVB. If you have not received a card, please send another card or E-mail John with the QSO info, and a card will be put in the QSL bureau. John's E-mail address is: k9qvb@arrl.net

Z2 CAUTION. Graham, M5AAV, informs OPDX readers that any mail to Zimbabwe which indicates anywhere on their envelope that either the sender or the recipient is a Radio Amateur is being opened, and IRCs/Greenstamps...etc are being removed then envelopes resealed with scotch tape.

T33C BANABA DXPEDITION. The T33C team arrived safely back on Tarawa on April 17th after a successful eleven day operation from Banaba Island. The complete log of 75,000 QSOs will be available to view on-line by April 18th. Direct QSL requests should go to F5CWU. The T33C team encourages all bureau QSL requests to be submitted by the O(nline) Q(sl) R(equest) system. OQRS information is available on the expedition Web site at: http://www.dx-pedition.de/banaba2004
They would like to thank their sponsors for financial support and loan of equipment. The DXpedition team is also grateful to the people of Banaba, The Banaba Council of Elders, The Banaba Council, and amateur radio operators throughout the world. An expedition video will be available in the future as well as articles in many amateur radio publications.

WERE YOU ACTIVE APRIL 18TH? Just a reminder! If you were active April 18th, you can apply for the "World Amateur Radio Day 2004 Award". The WARD 2004 Award is designed to commemorate the "World Amateur Radio Day" celebrated by IARU on April 18th each year. The Award is issued by the MK QTC, Polish Amateur Radio Journal, with support of PZK (The Polish Amateur Radio Union). The WARD 2004 will be granted for at least the following numbers of contacts: either 10 QSOs on HF bands, or 5 QSOs on VHF+ bands. All contacts must be made between 0000 and 2400z on April 18, 2004. Send a standard application form (log extract), including the list of QSOs, to: Redakcja MK QTC, ul. Wielmozy 5b, 82-337 Suchacz-Zamek, Poland (on or before May 31, 2004). The price of the WARD 2004 Award is 10 IRCs or 5.00 USD or 5.00 EURO. It is a full color award, size: 210 x 297 mm. The WARD 2004 Award is also available to SWLs for the same numbers of reports.

WP2, U.S. VIRGIN ISLANDS. Bill/N4ES and Rich/N4ESS will be active as WP2Z during the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Multi/One entry. QSL via KU9C. The two operators will be active from May 26th to June 1st. Outside of the contest, they will be active mostly evenings and early morning hours on CW with some SSB. They will set up on 160-10 meters, but depending on propagation their activity will primarily be 40 meter CW.

YA, AFGHANISTAN. Johnny, YA8G (LA5IIA), continues to be very active on various bands, usually after 1130z for about an hour and again at 0030z for a few hours. Word on the "TOPBAND Reflector" is that YA8G is on almost every day at 0030z on 1815 kHz listen up 2 kHz. QSL via LA4YW. The online logs are updated 2-3 times per week at: http://www.qsl.net/la8g/YA8G.htm

ZM6, NEW ZEALAND. Tony, ZL2AGY, informs OPDX that various club members from the ZL6CL Wairarapa Branch (46) of the NZART will operate the callsign ZM6CL until the end of May from their home stations. The CW operation will be done by Tony, ZL2AGY, and the other members may operate SSB from time to time. The use of the ZM6 prefix is to celebrate their town of Masterton's 150th anniversary. QSL via the NZART QSL Bureau or direct to: Box 860 Masterton, New Zealand (This will require a SASE with one IRC or two USD to cover the postage cost. Any cards received direct but without this will be QSLed via the bureau).

Ah! Thanks a lot! Actually 2 Meters is really the ONLY one I'm wanting to be using. I have a new Icom T90A, and just want a nice car antenna for talking on 2 meters. It's an HT. I have an actual Icom V8000 rig, but that's for indoors. (Got a beautiful Diamond X-50 for that, and I get repeaters all over the place here in the sierra foothills. Though I have to get to work on my coax, which is damaged, but ... Got the new coax and connectors, and will be dealing with that after I move to Indianapolis.)

For now, I want to operate with a reasonable degree of effectiveness from inside my vehicle with my HT. It's a fine, fine HT. My biggest concern is 2 meters, and whether or not it comes with the coax I'll need to put on my car. Again, I am VERY new to this hobby, having only gone on the air a dozen times (since moving has taken all of my energies) and I want something to use in the car. I have a mag mount, but it has the bayonet style connector. I'll need an adapter, but I ALSO want to get a good antenna. My radio only puts out 5 watts max.

I wouldn't mind being able to test out some 6M, but 2M is most important for me. Thanks so much for your help and interest in helping.

Okay, now we have something to work with. I'm using a 5/8th wave antenna on my car. It works pretty well. I'd suggest one of those. The brand is MFJ. Some don't like them, but it has performed well for over 3 years now. It has a small bottom loading coil. If you can spare the height, a full length version should perform a bit better.

Most come with coax.

Then you have to deal with mounting. I use a mag mount, and can run the cable between the doors of my Cherokee and it looks good. If that doesn't work for you, you can possibly run the cable down the back and into the trunk, then back up.

You can also use a trunk lip mount and do the same.

If you are really brave, you can body mount the antenna, but that is quite a project.

I don't recommend glass mount antennas for 2 meters.

After mounting the antenna, get a bnc or sma adapter, according to your needs, give the swr a check, and there you go. The big thing to look out for on installations is to avoid crimping the coax between doors, trunk lid, etc. That can create a swore problem.

I used a HT in the car for quite a while. (FT-50) Worked just fine. You should be happy with it. With a decent antenna and 5 watts, it is impressive how well it works.

You want a mag-mount 5/8wave Larsen... it's a nice 1/4wave on 6m, too. Get the Larsen mag mount, too... your present mag-mount (probably BNC, with a duck on it) is insufficient... BNC connectors are not rated for outdoor exposure.
Just run the coax in the passenger side, via the rear door's front edge, down the center post, and under the rocker panel to the dash.

ARLB013 FCC okays RF identification tags at 433.5 to 434.5 MHz

ZCZC AG13

ARRL Bulletin 13 ARLB013

To all radio amateurs

SB QST ARL ARLB013
ARLB013 FCC okays RF identification tags at 433.5 to 434.5 MHz

The FCC has adopted a somewhat limited proposal to permit deployment of RF Identification (RFID) tags on the 70-cm band at much greater duty cycles than current Part 15 rules permit for such devices.

Among other applications, RFID tags are used to track shipments and packing containers. A Third Report and Order (R & O) in ET Docket 01-278--approved April 15 but not yet released--follows a 2000 petition by SAVI Technology to revise FCC Part 15 rules to accommodate such devices in the vicinity of 433 MHz. The ARRL has consistently opposed the proposal, but the FCC just as unfailingly has gone along with it. FCC Office of Engineering and Technology (OET) Chief Ed Thomas said RFIDs provide important public benefits.

"This device is designed to increase homeland security at ports, rail yards and warehouses," Thomas told the FCC open meeting. "It will foster the development of more powerful and advanced RFID systems that can identify the contents of shipping containers and determine whether tampering has occurred during shipment." Thomas said the devices also would increase efficiency in shipping operations and inventory control.

In requesting Commission adoption, OET's Hugh van Tuyl provided the broad strokes of the Part 15 rule changes, which, he said, would apply specifically to shipping containers "in commercial and industrial areas." In certain cases, he asserted, current Part 15 requirements aimed at preventing interference to licensed services "may unnecessarily constrain the operational range of RFID systems as well as the speed and quantity of data that can be transmitted."

The Third R & O would increase the maximum radiated field strength permitted for such devices as well as the maximum permissible duty cycle--from one second to one minute. The longer duty cycle would allow an RFID to transmit the contents of an entire shipping container, van Tuyl said. "We therefore believe there will be no significant increase in the potential for interference to authorized services," he concluded.

The Third R & O reflects certain accommodations to the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA), which expressed "grave concerns" about the proposal in 2002. The R & O limits the operating band for such RFID tags to 433.5 to 434.5 MHz, instead of the 425 to 435 MHz SAVI originally asked for. It further prohibits operation of RFID tag systems within 40 km (about 25 miles) of five government radar sites. Manufacturers of 433 MHz RFID systems would have to register the locations of their system base stations to aid in interference resolution.

Since SAVI first approached the FCC in 2000, ARRL has maintained that the RFID tags the company proposed would represent a significant source of potential interference to sensitive receivers and be incompatible with ongoing requirements of incumbent services.

More than 130 amateurs filed comments in opposition to SAVI Technology's RFID tags proposal, and most supported the ARRL's position that the proposed rules were flawed and should not be adopted.

SB QST @ ARL $ARLB012
ARLB012 FCC proposes wide-ranging changes to Amateur Service rules

ZCZC AG12
QST de W1AW
ARRL Bulletin 12 ARLB012
From ARRL Headquarters
Newington CT April 16, 2004
To all radio amateurs

SB QST ARL ARLB012
ARLB012 FCC proposes wide-ranging changes to Amateur Service rules

The FCC has released an "omnibus" Notice of Proposed Rule Making (NPRM) that seeks comments on a wide range of proposed Amateur Service (Part 97) rule changes. The FCC also denied several petitions for rule making aimed at altering portions of the Amateur Radio regulatory landscape and ordered minor changes in Part 97. The NPRM is a result of a dozen petitions for rule making, all filed more than a year ago and some as long ago as 2001.

Comments on the proposals put forth in WT Docket 04-140 are due by Tuesday, June 15, with reply comments by Wednesday, June 30. Among other changes, the FCC has recommended adopting the ARRL's "Novice refarming" plan, which can be seen on the web at, http://www.arrl.org/announce/regulatory/refarm/.

"Because the ARRL petition addresses the operating privileges of all classes of licensees on these Amateur Service bands, we believe that the ARRL petition provides a basis for a comprehensive restructuring of operating privileges," the FCC said.

The ARRL referenced its Novice refarming proposal in its recent Petition for Rule Making, RM-10867, which, along with three other petitions remains open for comment until April 23.

The FCC also has proposed essentially eliminating its rules prohibiting manufacture or marketing of Amateur Radio Service power amplifiers capable of operating between 24 and 35 MHz. The current rules "impose unnecessary restrictions on manufacturers of Amateur Radio equipment and are inconsistent with the experimental nature of the Amateur Service," the FCC said.

The FCC proposed amending Section 97.201(b) of the rules to permit auxiliary operation on 2 meters above 144.5 MHz, with the exception of the satellite subband 145.8 to 146.0 MHz, in addition to frequency segments already authorized.

The FCC proposed extending the bands available for spread spectrum experimentation and use to include 222-225 MHz as well as 6 and 2 meters. Current rules limit SS emissions to frequencies above 420 MHz.

Among other things, the FCC also proposed to prohibit acceptance of more than one application per applicant per vanity call sign; permit retransmission of communications between a manned spacecraft and its associated Earth stations, including the International Space Station; allow current amateurs to designate a specific Amateur Radio club to acquire their call sign in memoriam; eliminate Section 97.509(a) of the rules, which requires a public announcement of volunteer examiner test locations and times; and add to Section 97.505(a) to provide Element 1 (5 WPM Morse) credit to any applicant holding a Technician license granted after February 14, 1991, and who can document having passed a telegraphy examination element.

The Commission ordered some changes in Part 97 without requesting comment. It ordered, among others, the revision of the definition of an "amateur operator" in Section 97.3(a)(1) to reflect that entry in the FCC Universal Licensing System (ULS), not a license document, determines whether a person is an Amateur Radio operator.

The FCC adopted a technical change to specify that the mean power of any spurious emission from a new amateur station transmitter or amplifier operating below 30 MHz be at least 43 dB below the mean power of the fundamental emission.

Among other petitions, the FCC turned down a proposal to establish distinct CW and phone segments in the 160-meter band. Also denied were petitions that would have imposed restrictions on the time, length or transmission frequencies of bulletins or informational transmissions directed at the amateur community and a request to add to the special event call sign system certain call sign blocks designating territories and possessions that lack mailing addresses.

The FCC Notice of Proposed Rule Making, on the web at, http://hraunfoss.fcc.gov/edocs_public/attachmatch/FCC-04-79A1.doc, in WT Docket 04-140, is available on the FCC Web site.

As soon as the document has been posted, comments on the NPRM may be filed via the FCC Electronic Comment Filing System at, http://www.fcc.gov/cgb/ecfs/. Click on "Submit a filing." To view filed comments, click on "Search for filed comments." In either case enter the NPRM number in the "Proceeding" field as "04-140" (without IIRC, 434 MHz is in the middle of an ATV channel, not the repeater sub band. Part of me would be willing to concede (on a 2nd or 3rd basis) 434 for a horse trade deal to avoid BPL. But there is also the aspect of the camel's nose getting inside the tent....

(I also realize that the RFID people are not the same as the BPL people).

There are airport radars at around 445MHz that look for wind shear. The government IIRC did go out of their way to avoid interference to the ham repeaters in the area at each such equipped airport.

Well the freqs being used for the RFID tags are not in the FM segement. But I do agree with your point.

We have three strong and high repeaters in my immediate area. Hardly any activity at all.

Oh - those are the Doppler radar units, particularly the one in Chatham in my area, although I'm on the southwestern fringe of it.

And all they did was create quiet zones around many of them, for a radius of 30mi. in some cases.

i had a guy send me an email with the typical diamond email scam "hi im joe african" and my (insert false name of relative here) died recently he had a huge reserve of diamonds and i need your help to get them, and will be willing to share 10% of millions with you. i emailed the guy back saying i wanted to help him and make lots of money! he replyed back and i have been jerking him around for several days acting interested so he will play his scam with me.
EVENTUALLY HE IS GOING TO ASK ME TO PUT UP SOME MONEY>>>

>heres his first email....

Dear sir,

I know that this proposal letter might be a surprise to you, but do consider it as an emergency.In a nutshell,I am Mr.SAMSON KONATE MANI,from the republic of Sierra-Leone in west Africa,now seeking political asylum in Dakar Senegal under the (UNHCR).I got your contact from a reliable chamber of commerce.

My (late)father (Dr.MUSTAPHA MANI) was the managing director of Rainbow Gold Diamond Mining company in (KEN EMA) Sierra- Leone.But was killed during the longing civil war and all his properties was totally destroyed.However, we managed to escape with some of my father's precious Diamonds which is presently deposited safely in a security and finance company here in Dakar.

Now we are saddled with the problem of securing a trust worthy foreign personality to help us transfer the diamonds over to his country pending my arrival to meet with him.Furthermore,we only want this done this way because your country is politically stable for any profitable investment and if you accept our proposal,you will serve as the beneficiary of the diamonds.

I am giving you the offers as mentioned with every confidence on your acceptance to assist us,we have decided to give you 10% out of the total money generated from the sales of the diamonds.Secondly,we shall mapped out 2% for any miscellaneous expenses that you may incur during the transferring of the diamonds over to your country. Finally,the diamond weight in question is 42.550 Carats.Conclusively,i wish you send me a reply immediately as soon as you receive this proposal, so that we shall arrange on how to lift this consignment out of Dakar Senegal to your country.

On commencement,this transaction will take (7) working days to be accomplished.A certificate of ownership, and the Lab-test result certificate of the diamonds would be fax to you immediately i receive your urgent and positive reply.Until then,i remain with the best regards. My alternative email address is (samson.mani@caramail.com) Regards.
SAMSON.

---
heres my email to him...

hello, i would like to help you, how can i do so?

bill

---
his reply....

Dear Jack Smith,
Thanks for your email received and well noted,i have equaly discussed with my mother regarding your interest to transact this business with us,she was glag and hope to talk with you in due time.

For more introduction,i live in a refugee camp,but i rented an apartment for my mother and younger sister in the surbub.as we corresponds,i will send you my family photos as a way of building a strong family ties between us.

IN DETAILS, we wish to have you as a partner,your role will be to assits us transfer these diamonds to your country,or any where you have connection to sale it, and also to direct us in any profitable investment after the sales of the stones.The diamonds is still in a storage house where we deposited it for safe keeping,and it worths approximately twenty million US dollars,as extimated by the OPERATIONAL DIRECTOR of the storage company,out side africa,it may be more than this,so we are offering you 10 PERCENT FOR

YOUR SERVICES AND EXTRA 2 PERCENT for any expensis you may incur in the process of transfering it to your position,which woun't be much.Making it 12 percent from the net total money generated from the whole sales. I want us to have a comon understanding before we proceed.

But if you would prefare to buy the stones yourself, then we will be happy to invite you to senegal,as you know it is a peaceful and democratic country,we meet face to face,you see the qualities,carats,sizes etc,then we can have full discussion. I want you to undersatnd that we acquired this stones legaly,the attached photo is our diamond minning feild,which still belong to us till date, after the date of my father,and all his properties distroyed,we have nothing left accept this stones, since then we have surfered much pains and hardship taking every risk to escape with it out of sierraleone.as such we are keen in finding a trust worthy person,with the fear of GOD.Your coresponding e-mails will clearify things.

Provide me with your phone and fax numbers.I will fax the necessary documents covering this stones to you.
Regards,
SAMSON.

---
my reply to him

hi samson,
thank you for replying, im sorry to say i dont have a fax machine and i dont have a phone, i use my local internet cafe, i live in a small town that does not have much communication, so everyone uses the internet cafe to surf the web and email while having dinner.

i hope your mother is fine, and it is good that you have set her up in an apartment, that is so kind of you.

i would sugest this, can you email me the forms as an attachment to an email, then i can send it back to you as an attachment, it will be very quick.

also please let me know what else to do, i want to help....

i enjoy looking forward to helping you, and making alot of money!

jack

samson replied with 2 emails with attachments, both attachments were scans of diamond certifications and company ownership heres some key words i can read off the scans, signed by the regional authority of KENEMA and also signed by THE HONORABLE MINISTER OF MINERAL RESOURCES (does that sound fake or what?) it also states the owner of the Rainbow gold and Diamond mining company of sierra Leone is DR. MUSTAPHA l. MANI the other scanned document is a diamond certification sheet from SO.DE.MI Compagine Accreditee Laboratrie in Senegal.
this certificate indicates that there are 8.98 Kilograms of diamonds, of a quality of H-VS1 and H-VS2, 42.550 Karats with an address of 15 Marimathamous Street freetown sierra Leone

he also had the following text in the 2 emails that contained the documents

Dear Jack,
I have scaned and attached the necessary documents.
1) The certificate of ownership.
2) The lab test certificate (EGL)
3) The lab test certificate conducted in senegal.
4) The stones were kimberly certified , but we lost the certficate in our rush out of freetown.

You will notice two lab test results certs, the lab test result (egl) was found in my father's belongings, i do not think that it covers all the stones, so i took another lab test in senegal (3).

In my next email i will send you photos of some diamonds, kindly let me know if the photos are very clear.
With regards,
SAMSON.

---
i want to lay it on thick and make it sound like im really interested in him, i want more info about his "FAMILY" so i can have more info to cross check on the usenet, all will be posted here..

my reply to his last email sending the scans...

hi samson,

yes i got 2 scans, the diamond certification, and the ownership certification, if you sent a 3rd i did not get it.

ok, send me more information and let me know how to help you, i want to know you better, so heres some information about my family, my moms name is janet, and my sisters name is kelly, and my dad is john.

what was your moms name and sisters name?
and share with me more about what life is like for you there, it is sad, but interesting, and helps me to know you better.

hope to hear from you soon,

Hello, Dan

It really depends upon your area whether you'll find a lot of use or very little. Someone in North Dakota might not even have a repeater available, yet if he fires up on 75 meters in the evening - wow! It's busy! Likely no one is near him, he simply hears a ton of stations via F layer reflection.

Rochester, NY, is hardly Chicago or NYC, but I've filled my limited memories on my HTX-404 (10 memory channels plus 3 priority channels) - every one of them usable. I've chatted at 3:00 am with a trucker in Toronto via the Toronto repeater (linked to the Rice Lake repeater in Canada which I can use very well). I've chatted locally at 2:00 am with a professor from the University of Rochester. Usually, there is some activity on 440 almost every time of day (with the exception that it does get quiet between midnight and 5:00 am LOL).

We have a ton of repeaters (I can use more than the 13, but that is the limit of memory on the old Rat Shack HT) around here. One of the repeater systems has ports on every band from 10 meters to 1.2 GHz (including 900 MHz). I've chatted with Australia and England via the 10 meter port (whilst I was on one of the 440 ports). It really all depends .... ;)

I'm afraid I don't follow you.

At any rate, I'm more curious about the submit or forward time requirements. VEC/VE's should be accountable for all applications in their trust, and ten days seems like plenty of time. Are there other controls in place to prevent pigeonholing applications?

Not rare, but harder than hell to confirm. I have worked 7Q7BP multiple times and 7Q/ZS6GH with no success on QSL's. I haven't been able to copy the current operation yet here in Tennessee.

Nader: Iraq an Unconstitutional, Illegal War

Based on Five Falsehoods:
CONGRESS SHOULD BEGIN IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY OF BUSH AND CHENEY

"All public policy should revolve around the principle that individuals are responsible for what they say and do." -- George W. Bush, 1994.

Washington, DC:
Building on his call for the impeachment of President Bush and Vice President Cheney, Independent Presidential candidate Ralph Nader today is calling on Members of the House of Representatives to begin an impeachment inquiry to investigate two distinct impeachable offenses.

An Impeachment Inquiry is the first step toward considering Articles of Impeachment. During an Impeachment Inquiry the House would investigate whether there are potential impeachable offenses.

Impeachment Inquiry and the Process of Impeachment

While the Constitution is clear in granting the impeachment power to the House, it leaves the development of mechanisms for exercising the power to the House. As noted by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York in "The Law of Presidential Impeachment By the Committee on Federal Legislation" (see: http://www.abcny.org/presimpt.htm):

"A variety of methods have been employed to institute impeachment proceedings: Charges may be made orally on the floor by a Member of the House; a Member may submit a written statement of charges; one or more Members of the House may offer a resolution and place it in the legislative hopper; a presidential message to the House may initiate proceedings. The House has also received charges from a state legislature, from a territory, and from a grand jury. Finally, there may be a report of a committee of the House which may submit facts or charges that will lead to impeachment. Under the rules governing the order of business in the House a direct proposition to impeach is a matter of highest privilege and supersedes other business. Similar privileged treatment is given to propositions relating to a pending impeachment."

The purpose of the Impeachment Inquiry is to have a Committee develop a report for the House which then can be considered for the purpose of determining whether to proceed with impeachment proceedings. The House determines whether to impeach based on a majority vote. It is important to remember that impeachment does not mean conviction - that is left to the Senate. Impeachment is the equivalent of an indictment, making formal charges, which the Senate then considers. Conviction requires two-thirds of the Members present in the Senate to vote for conviction.

Two Potential Articles of Impeachment that Should be Part of an Impeachment Inquiry

The Impeachment Inquiry should focus on two areas involving President Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney.

The unconstitutional war in Iraq.

"The Inquiry should examine whether President Bush and Vice President Cheney have gone beyond the bounds of the Constitution, defied the rule of law, and if so, whether impeachment is the appropriate constitutional punishment," said Nader. The United States Congress never voted for the Iraq war. Congress voted for a resolution in October 2002 which unlawfully transferred to the President the decision-making power of whether to launch a first-strike invasion of Iraq. The United States Constitution's War Powers Clause (Article 1, Section 8, Clause 11) vests the power of deciding whether to send the nation into war solely in the United States Congress. This can only be changed by a constitutional amendment.

"Our founders had seen what could occur when the power to declare war was vested in one person, a King or a Queen, so they took clear steps to ensure no one person could declare war for the United States. As James Madison wrote: "In no part of the constitution is more wisdom to be found, than in the clause which confides the question of war and peace to the legislature, and not to the executive department," noted Nader.

Five Falsehoods that Led to the Iraq Quagmire:

Making matters worse in this situation, the illegal first-strike invasion and occupation of Iraq was justified by five falsehoods. Nader calls for a second area for Impeachment Inquiry to examine: the "five falsehoods that led to war." In 1994 George W. Bush said: "All public policy should revolve around the principle that individuals are responsible for what they say and do." In 2000, he ran as the "responsibility " candidate. Manipulation or deliberate misuse of national security intelligence data, if proven, would be "a high crime" under the Constitution's impeachment clause. Article II, Section 4 of the Constitution provides: "The President, Vice President and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors."

WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION.

The weapons have still not been found. Nader emphasized, "Until the 1991 Gulf War, Saddam Hussein was our government's anti-communist ally in the Middle East. We also used him to keep Iran at bay. In so doing, in the 1980s under Reagan and the first Bush, corporations were licensed by the Department of Commerce to export the materials for chemical and biological weapons that President George W. Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney later accused him of having." Those weapons were destroyed after the Gulf War. President Bush's favorite chief weapons inspector, David Kay, after returning from Iraq and leading a large team of inspectors and spending nearly half a billion dollars told the president :We were wrong."

See: David Kay testimony before Senate Armed Services Committee, January 28, 2004.

IRAQ TIES TO AL QAEDA:

The White House made this claim even though the CIA and FBI repeatedly told the Administration that there was no tie between Saddam Hussein and Al Qaeda. They were mortal enemies - one secular, the other fundamentalist.

SADDAM HUSSEIN WAS A THREAT TO THE UNITED STATES:

In fact, Saddam was a tottering dictator, with an antiquated, fractured army of low morale and with Kurdish enemies in Northern Iraq and Shiite adversaries in the South of Iraq. He did not even control the air space over most of Iraq.

SADDAM HUSSEIN WAS A THREAT TO HIS NEIGHBORS:

In fact, Iraq was surrounded by countries with far superior military forces. Turkey, Iran and Israel were all capable of obliterating any aggressive move by the Iraqi dictator.

THE LIBERATION OF THE IRAQI PEOPLE:

There are brutal dictators throughout the world, many supported over the years by Washington, whose people need "liberation " from their leaders. This is not a persuasive argument since for Iraq, it's about oil. In fact, the occupation of Iraq by the United States is a magnet for increasing violence, anarchy and insurrection.

Nader urges the Congress to investigate the illegal nature of the war, and how the five falsehoods became part of the Bush Administration's drum beat for war, in a formal Inquiry of Impeachment.

I am fully aware of that. There 'used to be' a LOT of 2 meter activity around here. It all died away. There are 300 licensed hams in Calhoun That's ten percent, that's not bad at all. But it depends on the regional population density which varies enormously across the country. We have individual suburban townships which have as many as 200 ham residents here in the Delaware Valley region of the NE corridor. This county alone has 43 municipalities, etc. We still have the old 2M packet spots system up and running from Virginia well into New England.

I have no idea what the actual numbers are but it's probably safe to assume that most of the repeaters in this region have hundreds if not thousands of potential users each. If even ten percent of 'em got on the machines there would be complete chaos never mind what would happen if the whole pack fired up and "got active". My point being that activity levels in terms of perceptions of activity levels varies all over the map. Literally. e.g., this patch ain't Calhoun County!

A couple trends I think I'm seeing here at least on 2M are movements back to FM simplex ops and a noticeable growth in the use of SSB which is being fueled by the availability of affordable multimode rigs like the 706 and the 817. Might be that after 35 years or so of repeaters dominating VHF/UHF ham comms they've run their course for a number of reasons, the costs of acquisition, installation, maintenance and operation being what they are.

Another piece of this discussion I think involves what I call the "Nocode Bubble". We all know that in some huge number of instances these folk have come into the hobby, jacked up the total head counts by very large percentages and have left never to be heard from again. But they're still taking up space on the FCC license servers and skewing the real-world data by inordinate amounts. Pull the nocode data out of the mix when talking about activity levels vs. raw head counts and you get a whole different and much more realistic picture of ham radio as it really exists in this country.

1846. Power cable routing, Ford Taurus

I am in the process of mounting my old Yaesu FT-4700 in my 2000 Ford Taurus station wagon. The biggest problem encountered is running the power cable. As many others do, I prefer running directly to the battery. The problem with the Taurus, as with many other recent vehicles, is that there are no spare holes in the firewall---at least not that I can find.

So, I went this morning and talked to a local Ford salesman that I happen to know personally (of course buying our last 4 cars from him certainly helps) and asked him how to do it. He didn't know, but took me to talk to one of their mechanics (you've seen the type---middle age, hair starting to grey, grease on shirt---the kind thats been working on cars since he was 15). Evidently this guy also does radio installations for some of their dealer vehicles.

The grass roots, doen in the trenches answer is this:

1. Locate the rubber boot around the steering column, here it goes through the firewall. Using a screw driver or similar tool lift up the edge of the rubber boot and shove your cable through. Seal around it with RTV.
2. Remove the glove box (he assured me that this is easy to do). There is an unused grommet behind it, left over from when the car radio antenna was mounted up front (at least on the Taurus).
3. Drill a hole in the firewall and mount your own grommet. Or use a bunch of RTV.

His only other comment was to stay away from the exhaust manifold, as it would melt the insulation. I might also add to stay away from moving parts, too.

Had the same problem with my Taurus...I said "forget it" and went along the

Also did the same method on my current Olds Intrigue.

The thing I don't like about this method is it puts your primary heavy current wire (which I would hope would be fused), in direct contact with a metalic edge. After awhile, with road vibration, the insulation will wear through to the wire and short out.

This would be a good choice if the wire routing would be away from hot manifolds, etc. I also like to use some wire loom when routing my wiring. This give it added protection.

I have done this a few times and again, as long as you stay away from hot manifolds, moving parts, etc., its perfectly fine.

Well, he also mentioned the possibility of poking a hole in the steering column boot. That may not be too bad, as there seems to be a lot of room there.

Just for kicks, I write them back and say something like.....OK, tell ya what. You box up $10,000 worth of them diamonds (lol), and send them to me.
Then I'll have them appraised, and then we'll talk.

They never answer back!

Okay, what I ended up getting was a Larsen... A 5.8 wave... I'm using a diamond mag mount (pinched my fingers on that sucker... Good magnet!) Had to get a SMA adapter... I told the guy to include it, and he didn't... Good guys at HRO though... No shipping at least.
Fast delivery. Can't ask for more than that, really...

I look forward to giving it a test flight tomorrow. Thanks for the information folks! It really helped.

I have done that and that is not a bad method as long as you don't get too close to the steering column or the other edge. When I used that method it is, "inspect, measure, reinspect, remeasure, re-reinspect, re-remeasure" to make certain I am not getting into anything on the other side of the bushing or getting too close to the column or the firewall.

I usually send them an EXE with the reply that all relevant bank info is in there and I send a password. As soon as the silly ape inserts the password and clicks ok.
It says "ait while I decode the information."
It wipes the boot sector and deletes windows.
That's the only way to treat those apes, punish them.

Hi,

Good info, just like to add this tip:

Most cars the hood release cable runs past the battery on the way to the hood latch up front.

You can run your cables along the same route, throught the firewall with the hood release cable.

ICOM-751 dead, help

I was using my radio just fine, than I unplugged it and moved it a few feet and now it is almost dead. I can hear a relay engage when I first turn it on and fall off about 10 seconds after I turn it off.
What happened?

-The batteries backing up the SRAM holding your transceiver's operating system went dead; you will need to send it back to ICOM for reprogramming.

Or, if you're lucky, one of the replacement boards offered by third parties come with preprogrammed software.

The reason? For some strange reason, ICOM decided to keep the OS in SRAM, which loses its contents if power is removed. Probably, SRAM chips were a few cents cheaper than a similar-sized EPROM. Tough luck.

Do a google search on "ICOM 751 SRAM battery backup board" or something to that effect, and you should find a solution.

Myself, I modified the original board so that two battery cells were connected in parallell, separated by a schottky diode. That way, I can simply change one battery at a time without losing the data which keeps my rig ticking.

The Glen Dale Tunnel started off as a mine shaft in the early 1800's, but then quickly turned into a convenient method for the Underground Railroad to spirit slaves from the plantations of Glen Dale, West Virginia to the free areas of Squirrel Hill Pennsylvania. Today, that original portion of the Underground Railroad is simply known as the Glen Dale subway.

It has fallen upon economic hard times in recent years.

Local officials fear for its financial viability, prompting a group of local ham radio operators to undertake a charitable effort to rescue both the subway its associated historical tunnel from oblivion.

So, yes, the site is an historical one.

It is my pleasure to report to you that a philanthropistic amateur radio operator, known only as "Mr Woger" has spearheaded a grass roots effort to save the Glen Dale subway, its tunnel, and its associated toll booths.

Let us all wish him well in his efforts to preserve Glen Dale history and do what we can to aid him. Perhaps the Shipwreck Lounge could be enlisted to put on a Saturday night benefit party, rather than its usual blinds-peeking contest, and we could all either find time to attend or else to make donations (just a thought).

Trust me pal.......most hams I know are the cheapest, most sour-assed tightwads I have ever met in my life. (apart from the goofballs I see at the occasional model train show that is)

Most hams won't even spring 4 the money for postage to africa

Shottky (hot-carrier) diodes are not particularly expensive and they are ideal in this application because of their low forward resistance.

Most modern HF rigs above the "entry level" price point use dozens of Shottky diodes for front end switching and T/R switching applications, due to their speed and high PIV.

Open House At Alpaca Farm
Glendale, WV - The shearing of the alpacas is just one event visitors may see during the second annual open house at Wiseman Farms, Glendale, WV on May 1.

Called the "spring fling", the farm will be open to the public from noon to five p.m. This free family event allows visitors to observe alpacas, watch the shearing, view the skirting tables (the first step in determining whether to shave them or have sex with them), enjoy refreshments, purchase alpaca products and learn about alpacas from Roger himself, a renowned authority in sheep matters.

The farm is located one-half mile south of the Glendale Tunnel at 610 Glen Haven Avenue, Glendale, West Virginia, 26038-1302.
Directions and reservations are available by calling 1-304-845-0109. You can also Email Roger Wiseman at ab8mq@stratuswave.net or ab8mq@arrl.net

Hi Jack

Check out the LDG tuner,

\http://ldgelectronics.com/rt-11_description.html

I have one hooked to my 706IIG and works fine.

SGC also makes one,

http://www.sgcworld.com/products/239/239.html

Of course Icom has the AT-180, kind of pricey though and it has a much narrower tuning range than the LDG or SGC.

I'm sure there are others which i don't know about.

I think the current AH-4 is the replacement for the AH-3. The AH-4 seems to work fine with my IC-706MkIIG, but they're not cheap even in the USA, and probably still more in VK.

You're talking about Shottky barrier diodes, devices which are Shottky diodes in name only. Yes, those pseudo-Shottky diodes are cheap to make, ever since the Asian barrier fabrication plants came on line, but they aren't quite the real thing.

heres a 3rd email i forgot to put in that samson wrote,

Dear Jack,
thanks so much for your information, it's good to know more about ourselves as you rightly said, well you know my name, my mother is Janet and my sister is Dora.

I sent you two laboratory documents, one is (EGL) conducted in europe and the other one is conducted in senegal, it's written in french language so let me know which one you have got so that i will know the one to send you.

LIfe generaly as you in africa is difficult, although senegal is a peaceful and democartic country but it is a poor country and no work oppurtunities, i live in a refugee camp as you life is difficult here, lack of pipe born water, good foods, advanced medical facilities etc.

We maped out two options regarding how you can assists us transact
this business, let me know the one that is convinient for you.
1) If you can come to senegal and buy the stones from us or bring a buyer
here, we are going to sale at a very good prices that will suits you.
2) But if you can not come or send a buyer down here, then i can arrnged and transfer the diamonds to your position pending my arrival to meet with you for the sales. My travelling documents are under preperation by the UNHCR and will soon be out. It is important to note that you will assists us in payning the minor espensis that may occure in the process of transfering the stones to you end, and before then i shall seek for a legal practioner to draft us an agreement document protecting both parties interests.

Let me know is you have any qeustion.

hi samson, i looked further, it was attached 2 in one email, so i have all 3 ok, i understand.

as for the option to help you, i cant come to where you are at, i could do option 2 then. but want to know you better, you said you would send pictures of your family, i would like to see you, and your mom and sister as we have been talking of to know you better.
you also said you would send me a picture of the diamonds, that would help me to know they exist, to trust you.

say hi to your mother and sister and let them know i am wanting to help.

i live in united states, georgia, and my time zone is eastern as of typing of this email it is aproximately 8:pm

you want to talk to me, that is good for building a bond also, i want to talk to you too.

i dont know how to figure time zones where you are at, so i hope you can determine the difference in time...i can be available between 6pm and 10pm most evenings, ecept tuesdays.

let me know if you determint what time that is for you and what time i would need to wait by the pay phone and i will, once you figure out the time, i will walk to the phone and get the number from it and email it to you.

talk to you soon,

No: 24A Idrisa Road,
Baghdad.
Republic of Iraq.
Salam
Greetings to you in the name of our Allah i got your e mail through the help of my nurse who scanned the internet and gave me your mail.
I am Mrs Mariam Khalid a devoted muslim,a new muslim convert of 74 years old after being converted from a christian family by my husband.
For quite a good number of years now,I have been suffering from cancer of the breast and fibroid of the womb which has for a long time now affected my health and from all indications my condition is deteriorating by day and by my doctor's prediction I have less than six months to live.

My husband who is now late was killed during the US/British attack against the president of my country (Sadam Hussain).My late husband was a member of the contract award committee of the republican ministry of petroleum and resources of Iraq under the regime of Sadam Hussein

Throughout the period of my marriage with my husband,all efforts to bear children proved abortive because of my poor state of health.My husband was a very wealthy and influential man during the post war Iraq.
After his death,I inherited all his wealth since he has no other next of kin.

Since it is now obvious that I may not survive my poor state of health, I have deemed it necessary to leave a legacy on Earth and give a positive account and justification of the life I lived on Earth before the Almighty Allah.
This I want to achieve by committing part of this wealth in all sincerlity to fund , Islamic orphanages,widows and the less priviledge peoples all over the world. I know that afterdeath, I will be with ALLAH the most beneficent and the most merciful.
Please, note that this sum(us$35 Million) was securely deposited in a security/financial company overseas in my name by my husband . I have highlighted my attorney on the said sum and all the possible assistance he would render to you on the documents covering the money so as to enable you receive it as I cannot follow it up because of my ill health,this e mail is being written for me by the nurse in my private h ospital.Presently, my attorney is in Europe waiting for anybody willing.

I will also issue you a letter of authorization to anable the money be paid to you.I want you and the Muslim community and all servants of the almighty where you reside to always pray for me .It does not matter your religion or wether i trust you but do actualize my dreams with this money for the sake of the almighty.My happiness is that i lived a life of a true devoted life worthy of emulation.

Lastly, I honestly pray that this money when remitted to you will be judiciously used for the said purpose and you will take 10% as a compensation for your assistance in carrying out these humanitarian services.

Whoever wants to serve God must serve him in truth and in fairness. Please always be prayerful all through your life. Any delay in your reply will give me room to source for another person or a devoted muslim f or this same purpose.Until I hear from you, my dreams will rest squarely on your shoulders. May the almighty ALLAH continue to bless you

Best regards.
Hajia Mariam Khalid.

HI,
Much as I would like to see you but sorry to tell you that I live here in the Phils. That's the main reason why me and that guy from eharmony are having problems it's because of the distance. He requested me to get a passport so I can be with him in California and he started to become irritable when I haven't gotten one yet. I will still be able to get one on May. But then we have to go through another process that is for him to obtain for a Fiance Visa.
He wants to open his door to other options for he is afraid that he can't be with me. He said that I am competing with other women out there in California who are business owners, professional careers etc. They have better chances for they are there and I am here. So I told him I am giving him the freedom to do the things he wants to do. He emailed me back and told me if I have done something to process my passport faster.
Do you think this man really likes me? I want your opinion.
Betina
Enclosed is a pic of mine. I am the smallest in the group. With me are my co employees at the hotel where I worked. The shot was taken at the hotel lobby.

I did the same thing in my new Ford Explorer ... I first carefully scoped out BOTH sides of the boot, looking for "interference" issues, then I took a long, thick needle (a test pick/probe with about 3" of needle in about 5" of nylon handle) and carefully poked it through the boot in the target area to double check.

When all looked good, I removed the needle and used a sharp xacto knife to make an X cut, through which I pushed the red/black #10 "zip-cord" power cable (I used cable I bought from PowerEx along with some Andersen "PowerPole" connectors).

Some sealant (non-corrosive - don't use the "RTV" stuff that smells like vinegar - it contains acetic acid) was then applied carefully around both sides and the cable was fitted with the split, "corrugated" plastic cable sleeving that you can buy at most auto parts stores.

Remember to fuse BOTH pos and neg leads AT THE BATTERY with suitable fuses (PowerEx has fuse holders for the new automotive type fuses). You want to be SURE that the leads between the battery connection and the fuse holders are short enough and anchored well enough that no matter what you can't get a short from the positive lead to ground - otherwise, major fireworks could occur.

Good luck.

decided to contact you through this medium .
As you read this, I don't want you to feel sorry for me, because, I believe everyone will die someday.
My name is Shadak Shari, a merchant in Dubai, in the U.A.E. I have been diagnosed with prostate and esophageal Cancer that was discovered very late due to my laxity in caring for my health. It has defiled all form of medicine and right now, I have only about a few months to live according to medical experts.
I have not particularly lived my life so well, as I never really cared for anyone not even myself but my business. Though I am very rich, I was never generous, I was always hostile to people and only focus on my business as that was the only thing I cared for. But now I regret all this as I now know that there is more to life than just wanting to have or make all the money in the world. I believe when God gives me a second chance to come to this world I would live my life a different way from how I have lived it. Now that I know my time is near, I have willed and given most of my properties and assets to my immediate and extended family members and as well as a few close friends and Schools in the UAE. I have decided to give alms to charity organizations, as I want this to be one of the last good deeds I do on earth. So far, I have distributed money to some charity organizations in the U.A.E, London and Ireland. Now that my health has deteriorated so badly, I cannot do this my self any more. I once asked members of my family to close one of my accounts and donate the money, which I have there to charity organization in Bulgaria, they refused and kept the money to themselves. Hence, I do not trust them anymore, as they seem not to be contended with what I have left for them. The last of my money which is the huge cash deposit that I have with Financial Firm Abroad .I will want you to help me collect this deposit and dispatched it to charity organizations and let them know that it is I Shadak Shari that is making this generous donation.
```

I am writing this from my laptop computer in my hospital bed where I wait for my time to come. I pray that God uses you to support and assist me with good heart

God be with you.

1890. Icom 730 Preventative Maintenance Questions

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc
Date: 2004-04-25 16:50:59 UTC
From: Michael Brown <mabrown@qx.net> Message-ID: <c9CdnY5CJ9fCcRbdRVn-hQ@qx.net>
Source record: 58333

I recently purchased an Icom 730 HF radio. This is my first HF rig evn though I have had my Extra class license for about 2 years now. I noticed on the Icom web page that there are several preventative maintence tasks that they recommend performing on the IC-730 due to the age of these rigs.
I am looking for anyone that may have performed these tasks on the IC-730 that might be able to give me a basis walk-through of how I need to go about taking the panels off the radio to gain access to the RF unit in the radio.
Here is what is listed on the Icom web page that they reccomend doing to the radio:
1.) On the RF unit, resolder the J2 and J3 connectors. Due to the relatively thick coax cables on the connectors, these solder joints tend to crack with age and cause intermittent transmit and receive problems.

2.) Make sure the receiver preamp works. If inoperative, replace relay RL1 on the RF unit. Install the factory update to prevent relay failure.

3.) Check transistor Q5 on the RF unit. If it is a 2SC945Q, replace it with the improved 2SC2878B to prevent spurious output from the transmitter and failure of the driver transistors. If Q5 is a type 1636, it doesn't need to be replaced.

4.) Clean the RIT pot and switch with tuner cleaner. These controls are usually noisy and erratic, making the RIT hard to use.

5.) Tighten the chrome-plated PC board mounting screws. The screws and spacers tend to come loose if the radio is used in a high-vibration, mobile environment. Don't forget to tighten the screws on the logic and IF units located beneath the main unit.

6.) Check the bandwidth coupler for proper tightness.
Tighten as needed.

I'm sure the first step of re-soldering the J2 and J3 connectors on the RF unit I can probably handle if all this involves is desoldering the connectors and resoldering them. I'm not so much concerned about the receiver preamp working, but does anyone know if Icom still stocks parts for the Icom 730? The third step reccomends swapping out the Q5 transistor on the RF unit if it is a 2SC945Q transistor and replacing it with a 2SC2878B

transistor to prevent spurious output from the transmitter and failure of the driver transistors. How hard would it be to replace this transistor? I would assume it would involve desoldering the transistor and replacing it with the new transistor. Would I just need to get a 2SC2878B transistor and some heat sink compond to replace this transistor? Where would get the 2SC2878B transitor? Can I order one for Mouser, or would this have to be ordered directly from Icom? Step 4 involves cleaning the RIT pot with some tuner cleaner, probably the easiest step. How do I locate the RIT borad to clean the pots? I would assume here too that all I need to do is to spray a shot of contact cleaner in the holes of the pot and switch on the RIT unit? Step 5 reccomends tightening all of the screws on the PC board. Hopefully I can handle this step if I can get access to all of the srews to tighten them. Step 6 reccomend checking the bandwith coupler for proper tightness and retightening it if needed. Where is the bandwidth coupler located inside the radio? What tools would I need to tighten it?

I thought I would post these questions on the newsgroups to see if anyone that is a little more technical-minded than me could walk me through performing these tasks. I have downloaded an instruction manual and service manual for the IC-730, but I thought maybe someone who might have a 730 and has performed these tasks could tell me how do them a little easier. The last thing I want to do is screw up a good radio. Thanks for reading my long post. Please e-mail me if anyone can help me out with this. Thanks!

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

3B9, RODRIGUES ISLAND. NODXA member Robert, 3B9FR, was heard this past Sunday morning on 10 meter FM. He was heard on 29600 kHz between 1200-1400z working Europe.

3W9, VIETNAM. Jurgen, 3W9HRN, was active this past Sunday on 15 meters CW/SSB. Watch between 21015-21020 and 21223 kHz starting around 1400z (also report at 0145z). QSL via DL1HRN. Also, look for Eddy, XV1X, who was active this past weekend on 40/20/17 meters CW between 1400-1800z. QSL via instructions on his Web page at: http://www.xv9dt.com

7Q, MALAWI (Update). The UK Malawi DXpedition continues to be active as 7Q7MM until May 1st. According to their Web page, pile-ups are awesome, and they have uploaded some 10400 QSOs on Friday to their Web page. Their main supply of power is unstable, so please forgive them if they disappear on the air. The team was participating in the SP-DX Contest this past weekend. For more details, please refer to OPDX.650 and OPDX.655, or visit the UK Malawi DXpedition Web page at:
http://www.malawi.digital-crocus.com
QSL via G3LQP direct (Roger Brown, 262 Fir Tree Road, Epsom KT17 3NL, England) or via the bureau.

A6, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES. Operators Roger/G3SXW, David/K1ZZ, Robert/K3EST, Atilano/PY5EG, Tine/S50A, Robert/S53R, Charles/W6OAT, Bruce/W6OSP and possibly others will be active as A61AJ in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Multi-Multi entry. IMPORTANT: QSL to K2UO (U.S. Stations) and DJ2MX (non-U.S.).

ALL-AUSTRIAN-CONTEST (AOEC). Tom, DL8AAM, informs OPDX that once again the Austrian Telecommunications Authority gave a special permit for non-amateur radio stations from the public service (military, police, customs, red cross, NGO, State Department etc.) to take part in the "domestic" ALL-AUSTRIAN-CONTEST (AOEC) on May 1st (held each year on May 1st) at 0500-0800 and 1400-1700 UTC. This interservice-part of this contest is to train operators from all radio services to interact in case of an emergency situation and to understand the shortwave conDX. The interservice part takes place on 80 and 30 meters, as both bands are allocated to the fixed service. Also, simplex QSOs are possible, not like the crossband operations of the Armed Forces Radio Day of the U.S. (May 8-9th). The official rules of this contest can be found on the Web page of the National Austrian HAM Society, the OeVSV, at:
http://www.oevsv.at (under Contest)

Callsigns / Prefixes are: OEC - State Department
OEY - Military (e.g. OEY632)
OEH - Red Cross, etc. (e.g. OEH6101)
OEP - Police (e.g. OEP213)
OEN - Customs (e.g. OEN6000)
For some examples of QSLs (received via the OE bureau) and more informations about this annual event, please check the Web page at:
http://people.freenet.de/troesne/index.html (->Amateur Radio -> Interservice)
PLEASE NOTE! (per Tom, DL8AAM)
NOTE 1: As this an emergency communication exercise; the operations on SSB on 30m are OK with the IARU rules!! Please do not QRM them as in the last years. Tom states that it seems that many operators do not know the IARU-rules or do not understand what happens when they listen to a SSB-Contest on 30m!

NOTE 2: This is a domestic contest, which means all no-OE operators can only act as SWLs, but even then a good chance to log and QSL some really interesting callsigns. Also, this contest may be an idea for other countries to organize such an event??

AP, PAKISTAN. Bob, AP2JZB, was heard this past weekend on 12 and 17 meters SSB. Watch 24955 kHz after 0930z and around 18110 kHz after 1445z. QSL via direct.

CASTLE NEWS.....
On May 16th, between 0600-1600z, look for many stations to operate from Fortresses and Castles in France, Belgium, Italy, Spain and Portugal, and participate in "The European Castles Day". For more details on information about castles awards programs, please visit the F6FNA's Web page at: http://perso.club-internet.fr/f6fna/

Next Saturday, May 1st, Francois/F5JNE and Maurice/F5IYU will be active as F5JNE/P from the Castle of Pancy Courtecon, near the town of Chamouille. References are: Castle DFCF 02022; Canton Laon - 0212; Department - Aisne, 02; and Province - Picardie. Activity will be on 40 meters CW starting around 0630z. QSL via the Bureau.

EP, IRAN. Three stations were heard this past week: EP3PTT, EP4HR and EP4SP. EP3PTT was mainly active on 15 meters CW starting a little after 0900z. QSL via OK1LO. Hamid, EP4HR, was active on 15 meters SSB starting 1530z. QSL via I2MQP. Yar, EP4SP, was active on 21236 kHz around 1530z and then on 20 meters CW starting around 0000z.

Euradio (European Union Radio Amateur Celebration). The following event is sponsored by the Irish Radio Transmitters Society (IRTS) on the weekend of May 1st and 2nd. The IRTS will celebrate the accession of ten new states to the European Union by sponsoring ten special event stations over the Accession weekend. Each station will be twinned with one of the accession countries. Look for the following special event stations:
Special Event Country Being Special Event Country Being

Or contact Steve Bolia, N8BJQ at (937) 788-2803 or send an E-mail to: n8bjq@erinet.com

HAMVENTION(r) ANNOUNCES THAT AWARDS PRESENTATION WILL BE COMBINED WITH SUNDAY PRIZE DRAWING: The planners of the Hamvention(r) 2004 say that they have a unique new way to present this year's Hamvention awards. It is now part of a combined and expanded "Award Ceremony and Prize Drawing" on Sunday afternoon, May 16th.
As in years past, at the close of business hours on Sunday, attendees will be directed to the 7000+ seats in the grandstands in the Main Arena for the drawing of the remaining hourly prizes and the big grand prizes. Before the first numbers are pulled, the crowd will get a chance to meet the three Hamvention(r) award winners, find out why they were chosen and get to be a part of this very special award presentation ceremony.
As previously reported, this year's winners are Barry Sanderson, KB9VAK, who is getting the "Technical Excellence Award," George Wilson, W4OYI, who is the "Special Achievement Award" winner and David Kopacz, KY1V, named as "Radio Amateur of the Year." They will be joined by the President of the Dayton Amateur Radio Association and members of the Hamvention(r) planning committee to make this a special afternoon for the winners and everyone else on hand.
Hamvention(r) is sponsored by the Dayton Amateur Radio Association. Now in its 53rd year, Hamvention(r) is slated for May 14-16 at the HARA Arena in the Dayton suburb of Trotwood, Ohio.

HB0, LIECHTENSTEIN. Klaus, DL7NS, will be active as HB0/DL7NS from June 19-25th. His activity will be on CW using an IC-718 and linear. QSL via the bureau.

NEW AWARDS MANAGER. Effected immediately, The British Amateur Radio Teledata Group (BARTG) has a new Awards Manager. Phil Cooper, GU0SUP, has now taken over this post from Nigel, G4KZZ, and will handle all BARTG awards, which includes the well-known QCA (Quarter Century Award), plus the various Continental awards. For further details on the awards, please visit the Web page at: http://www.bartg.demon.co.uk

NEW MORSE CHARACTER BECOMES OFFICIAL MAY 3RD. Effective May 3rd, the new Morse Code ITU character "@" symbol (known as the "at" sign by many and use in E-mail addresses) will be an official character by sending the letters "A" and "C" together. Example: .__._. (dot dash dash dot dash dot)

OH0, ALAND ISLAND. Operators Christian/DC7VS, Andreas/DC7ER and Tom/DL7NJ will be active as OH0/homecall, from July 10-24th. Activity will be on SSB, CW, SSTV and PSK31. This will be more of a holiday style operation. QSL via the Bureau. Visit the Web page at: http://www.oh0.de

PROJECT GOODWILL ALBANIA 2003 (More Signals from ZA). Jarmo, OH2BN, sent out a press release stating, "The success story of Project Goodwill Albania 2003 on boosting activity in Albania by some 40 new licensees and integrating amateur radio into the official course offering at the Technical University of Tirana marked the highlight of historic happenings on-site as well as on the air last fall. All ZA QSL cards are going out as we speak." Over the past week, both Martti/OH2BH and Pertti/OH2PM return to Tirana on Tuesday for a one week stay to launch several new ZA stations on the bands based on equipment kindly donated by the DX community. However, Jarmo states, "But more (equipment) can be used, and another trip is planned for June, combining the First Albania DX Convention and the launch of a second wave of stations on the bands." See the following Web page for more details at: http://www.za1a.com
If you have any functional old gear not needed at your station, please consider being part of this worthy project. You can contact any of the program liaisons listed in the "How to Help" section of the ZA1A Web site. Donors will be displayed in the new club station (ZA1UT) Honor Board as part of the station inauguration in June. We hope you were able to work Martti and Pertti this past week on the bands from a variety of stations. They are committed to making this project a success. How about you?

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
3B9RF QSLS. Dave, WW2R, informs OPDX that after returning from the 3B9C trip, he carried home around 50 QSL cards responses from 3B9FR for NA stations. Those QSLs have now been posted and mailed.

QSL T49C via K8SIX. Please spread the word that SM5KCO is NOT the QSL Manager for the T49C operation in 2004. He is only the QSL Manager for T49C in 1997.

Jim, AA0MZ, informs OPDX that Dragan, Z32XX, has moved to the United States and has a new address for QSLing: Dragan Davkovski, Box 2, Wetmore, KS 66550 (Please QSL direct with SASE). His U.S. address is current on the Buckmaster and QRZ.com Web sites. Mail sent to his address in Macedonia will be forwarded.

VP5/VQ5, TURKS AND CAICOS ISLANDS. David/W5AO and Kirk/K4RO will be active as VQ5V in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Multi-Single entry. QSL via Box 88, Morris, OK 74445-0088. Operators W5AO and K4RO will be active from here between May 26th and June 1st. Activity will be on all bands 160-10 meters including the WARC bands before and after the contest as VP5/W5AO and VP5/K4RO. QSL via their home callsigns (CBA).

recent happenings on the 640 repeater

Hello All,
This mailing is to let some of the users of the 64 repeater know of the changes to the repeater group website and our Echolink status...

As of last week our website domain (www.the64machine.org) was rescinded.The guys in our group that were responsible for buying that domain are no longer going to sponsor it due to a conflict of interest.Also I have been told that the person responsible for adding content to it is no longer interested in doing so. So although the 64 website is still available on the internet at the moment it will not be there forever...I have been told that web domain companies will allow sites to stay up for a while so someone else can buy the domain and the site will not be lost...

There is a few people in our group that are interested in starting a new site with a different domain name. So all is not lost. I will keep everyone posted on what happens ...

As to our Echolink link...

The same person who has been running our website has been running our Echolink computer and link... The computer was borrowed from Richie Rich,KF4GAH and he needs it returned to him for another project and the link has been shut down. Efforts are underway to replace this computer and radio and the link should be back up in a few weeks... We just need to find a new home for the equipment with a high speed internet connection.

Just thought I'd pass this info along...

Subject: FCC Frequency Proposals

Hi Mark,
Thought you might want to pass this one along,

We like to see what new proposal the FCC has in mind around 80 meters...wireless internet access for rural areas, but not BPL. Wonder what interference this will cause??? I wasn't aware that all the rural farmers on "Green Acres" was causing such a demand for high speed internet access! I guess "Bessie" the cow is tired of dial-up. See below:

FCC proposes spectrum for rural broadband

Network World - April 16, 2004

The U.S. Federal Communications Commission Thursday kicked off a process that may open up more radio frequency spectrum for high-speed wireless services in rural parts of the country.

The FCC proposed allowing unlicensed devices to operate in some or all of a frequency band between 3650 MHz and 3700 MHz, while also seeking comment on licensed use of the band or segmentation of the band for both types of use, according to an FCC statement.

Wireless ISPs want to use the spectrum to economically deliver broadband to individual customers and Internet gateways in sparsely populated areas, the FCC said.

Either licensed or unlicensed users would have to avoid interference with fixed satellite service (FSS) earth stations that already use spectrum in that range, the FCC said, while noting that those earth stations are located primarily on the east and west coasts. To prevent interference, the unlicensed devices would have to meet a set of requirements the agency laid out in the statement.

Among these is a requirement that unlicensed gear for fixed wireless services would have to be professionally installed. The need for professional installation has stymied some deployments of fixed wireless services because of high per-installation cost, according to Phil Redman, an analyst at Gartner.

Such fixed wireless devices also could not be set up within a protected zone around each FSS earth station. Mobile unlicensed devices would have to detect an FSS base station and use a "listen-before-talk" rule to prevent interference, and also would have to emit an identifying signal so they could be located if interference occurred, according to the statement.

Licensed services could use technologies similar to those to prevent interference, the FCC said.

You need to read a little closer here.... this is not 80m.. it's just below the C-Band satellite frequencies.

As has been cussed and discussed here and on the air lately, ARRL has petitioned FCC to reduce the number of license classes from six down to three, namely Novice, General, and Extra.

If you haven't read the entire petition (it runs somewhere around 35 pages, each page laden with microscopic-print footnotes) you may have missed the fact that there will actually be 5 sub-classes of General.

One-Star General - Post 1987 Technician given a complimentary convenience-of-the-ARRL field promotion to General

Two-Star General - Previous Conditional given humanitarian promotion to General

Three-Star General - Pre 1987 Technician given posthumous promotion to General

Four-Star General - General who took an actual General examination in modern times at a VE session

Five-Star General - General who took an actual General examination in front of a steely eyed FCC official in a noisy drafty government office in downtown Fargo and had to walk uphill (both ways) through 10-foot snowdrifts on Good Friday 1954.

I suppose you're going to tell us that Advanced class licensees who get a free pass to Extra privileges will be called Commodores? :> In that case, those of us who survived the 20-wpm confidence course in an FCC office 30 years ago should be named Secretaries of Defense. Move over, Rummy.

Don't get that long, white beard caught in your straight key, OM. :> Yeah, the definition of "old timer" sure has changed. I just joined OOTC; I figure QCWA is for kids. I'm 57, but over the weekend, someone at a hamfest referred to me as a "young man," which was chronologically logical in his case.

Which points to the aging problem I perceive in ham radio. I'd say 95% of the people I saw at this hamfest were older than 55. In another 20 years, FCC will be able to assign 1X1 calls to every ham. All Hiram's horses and all Hiram's men (and women) can't seem to get enough youngsters interested to offset the attrition.

I purchased a vx-2r, plus the external speaker/mic and mobile DC adapter. Basically, I don't like the HT itself, although the mic is quite nice and the speaker has good sound quality.

My gripe is that the HT has bad ergonometric design. It is very difficult to hold the rig in your hand while transmitting and not accidentally squeeze one of the many buttons on the unit. That can get you into some weird situations with the state of the internal microprocessor, and I've been forced to reset the processor more than once (all memories and special settings lost). Since the vx-5r is very similar, and seems to have exactly the same layout of buttons, I know that I'd not "upgrade" in that direction myself.

My vx-2r is currently sitting on the shelf until such time as I can take the HT to a ham fest and sell it. If cell phone manufacturers can make tiny cell phones that don't suffer from those problems, I would hope that HT makers could do the same thing. So far, the Yaesu units have disappointed me in that regard.

Attention: Sir/Madam

REQUEST FOR ASSISTANCE IN A FINANCIAL TRANSACTION.

I am interested in your partnership in business dealing. This business proposal I wish to intimate you with is of mutual benefit and it?s success is entirely based on mutual trust, cooperation and a high level of confidentiality as regard this transaction.

I am representing the board of the contract award and monitoring committe of the Zambian Ministry of Mining and Resources. I am seeking your assistance to enable me transfer the sum of US$25,500,000.00 (Twenty-five Million, Five Hundred Thousand United States Dollars) into your private/company account.

The fund came about as a result of a contract awarded and executed for and on behalf of my Ministry. The contract was supposed to be awarded to two foreign contractors to the tune of US$180,000,000.00 (One hundred and Eighty Million United States Dollars). But in the course of negotiation, the contract was awarded to a Bulgarian contractor at the cost of US$144,500,000.00 (One hundred and Forty-four Million, Five Hundred Thousand United States Dollars) to my benefit unknown to the contractor.

This contract has been satisfactorily executed and inspected as the Bulgarian firm is presently securing payment from my Ministry, where our Board is in-charge of all foreign contract payment approval.

As a civil servant still in active government service, I am forbidden by law to operate an account outside the shores of Zambia. Hence this message to you seeking your assistance so as to enable me present your private/company account details as a beneficiary of contractual claims alongside that of the Bulgarian contractor, to enable me transfer the difference of US$25,500,000.00 (Twenty-five Million, Five Hundred Thousand United States Dollars) into your provided account.

On actualisation, the fund will be disbursed as stated below.

1. 10% of the fund will be set aside for expencise.

2. 20% of the fund will be for you as beneficiary.

3. 70% of the fund will be for Us.

All logistics are in place and all modalities worked out for a smooth actualisation of the transaction within the next few working days of commencement. For further details as to the workability of this transaction, please reach me as soon as possible for further clarification.

Thank you and God bless as I await your urgent response.

Yours Sincerely,
Kelly Chimba.

Apparently, no one ever taught you to look before you leap. Now that your foot is planted firmly in your mouth, let me quote the following from Encarta:

---
ergonometric adjective of ergonomics: relating or conforming to ergonomics

ergnometrically adverb

If Senator Howard Heflin, upon seeing pictures of a Ted Kennedy "at play with a YL" on the hull of a sailing boat, comments: "I do believe the Senator is involved in offshore drillin' " then what George Green says is likely true. That roue,Kennedy is noted for frequently making "waitress - sandwiches" with a fellow colleague in a private room at a DC restaurant.

OOPS, you are correct, MY BAD :)

activity this evening on the 146.640 tampa bay repeater

N9EE ron and KG4COQ don, were talking about some kind of email coded conversation, about emails, but weren't specific.
KD4NWL got into thier conversation asking if don was still looking for someone with a broadband connection.

KG4YMB jumped in briefly talking to ???
KG4WLI was talking to KG4YMB about school and upgrading licenses.
they were also talking about the hooters gettogether coming up

KG4OGN was on the repeater this evening talking to DON KG4COQ, don was telling people that he was cleaning up the shack.

WA8JSC was on earlier today, talking to KD4NWL, about emailing eachother and johns recent DIVORCE to a woman with BIPOLAR-DISORDER and urged JIM to never date a woman with BIPOLAR DISORDER, jim replied he knew exactly what NWL was talking about, and apoligized for the divorce.

Anyone with CW should lose their license. No-coder suck. Ham radio was screwed the minute they lowered the code to 5wpm. Everyone can "buy" a license now. And N9EE is a lamer... and his repeater controller suck ass. Can we all say JUNK!

Subject: [TCDXA-list] BPL Comments of President Bush im
Minneapolis on April 26th

The following is from the President's speech in Minneapolis on April 26, 2004. Note the last line of paragraph four.
Particularly note the comment "(s)o technical standards need to be changed to encourage that."

"Now, the use of broadband has tripled since 2000 from 7 million subscriber lines to 24 million. That's good. But that's way short of the goal for 2007. And so -- by the way, we rank 10th amongst the industrialized world in broadband technology and its availability. That's not good enough for America. Tenth is 10 spots too low as far as I'm concerned. (Applause.)

Broadband technology must be affordable. In order to make sure it gets spread to all corners of the country, it must be affordable.
We must not tax broadband access. If you want broadband access throughout the society, Congress must ban taxes on access.
(Applause.)

Secondly, a proper role for the government is to clear regulatory hurdles so those who are going to make investments do so.
Broadband is going to spread because it's going to make sense for private sector companies to spread it so long as the regulatory burden is reduced -- in other words, so long as policy at the government level encourages people to invest, not discourages investment.

And so here are some smart things to do: One, increase access to federal land for fiberoptic cables and transmission towers. That makes sense. As you're trying to get broadband spread throughout the company, make sure it's easy to build across federal lands.
One sure way to hold things up is that the federal lands say, you can't build on us. So how is some guy in remote Wyoming going to get any broadband technology? Regulatory policy has got to be wise and smart as we encourage the spread of this important technology. There needs to be technical standards to make possible new broadband technologies, such as the use of high-speed communication directly over power lines. Power lines were for electricity; power lines can be used for broadband technology. So the technical standards need to be changed to encourage that.

And we need to open up more federally controlled wireless spectrum to auction in free public use, to make wireless broadband more accessible, reliable, and affordable. Listen, one of the technologies that's coming is wireless. And if you're living out in -- I should -- I was going to say Crawford, Texas, but it's not -- maybe not nearly as remote. (Laughter.) How about Terlingua, Texas? There's not a lot of wires out there. But wireless technology is going to change all that so long as government policy makes sense.

And we're going to continue to support the Federal Communications Commission. Michael Powell -- Chairman Michael Powell, under his leadership, his decision to eliminate burdensome regulations on new broadband networks availability to homes. In other words, clearing out the underbrush of regulation, and we'll get the spread of broadband technology, and America will be better for it. (Applause.) "

I thought you would be interested. Perhaps you might think about expressing your views on the BPL issue to President Bush. You may want to check the ARRL Website on this. I expect Jim Haynie will be sending a letter to President Bush on behalf of ARRL. The mail and email address for the President should be available on the Web page.

Yes, the technical standards need to be changed to allow BPL: require

A friend of mine, K0TO, said If this wasn't the same Man who declared that he was going to start a program to go to Mars, the he was going to build an anti-missile system, that he was going to..... he would be more worried. It is an election year(has been for more than 36 months) and the objective is to promise everything and anything in a way the makes some other group of people responsible for its failure, not you. [This is political party independent by the way -- all of them utilize the same methodology].

Most fibre optic cables use railroad right of ways. The railroad already exists and has direct paths from one city or town to another, and is one entity for the firbre company to lease from. And the railroads like having the extra income.
They bury the cable off to one or both sides of the tracks and railroads are used to heavy equipment work being done. Railroads need communications for their signals and keeping track of where the trains are and such anyway. So they throw in extra fibre for that when installing the other fibre. And from those towns fibre is strung along telephone poles to reach that place out in the sticks.

Yeah, BPL serving an entire remote town will give individual users service that will make 300 baud modems seem fast. How much stuff can you multiplex on one set of power cables feeding that town? Else you'd be talking about microwave freqs to get enough bandwidth.

An increasing amount of fiber is being buried on (or under) highway right-of-way. I know; I work for a state department of transportation, and we worked deals to get some very nice free bandwidth out of the fibers along some Interstates. I expect we'll be able to do the same for fibers buried along federal and state highways, once the carriers recover from the dot-bomb and start building bandwidth out again.

This was done five or ten years ago in New York -- I worked at the place that managed the fiber for the state. The fiber was laid along the NYS Thruway, which passes through the nine largest cities in NY and within some short number of miles of a large percentage of the state population. Much of that fiber was dark last I heard.

The idea of buried fiber along every two-lane road in the country may be a fantasy, but laying cable along every Interstate is certainly doable with the resources available. Of course, who will run this true "information superhighway" is the next debate...

Ten-twelve years ago I was up in northern Minnesota deer hunting. Got up to my stand way back down a township road, 5 miles from the nearest dwelling, at zero-dark-thirty and waited for Bambi's dad to show up with the sunrise. Just in time for morning colors (0800) I start hearing this awful racket off in the distance, like a farmer might be buring drainage tiles or something, except this part of Minnesota hasn't seen an agricultural plow since the depression. Finally got curious (and cold) enough to go investigate. Here, out in the middle of absolute nowhere, is a contract crew burying a 144-fiber cable big as your wrist, and another spare alonside of it. Every half-mile they put in an above-ground service loop, and the next day another crew came behind and plonked down a splice-and-access pedestal at each loop waiting for the subscribers to show up. The pedestals are still there, some kinda shot up, but no customers on the horizon. I bet the local Podunk Power Cooperative is getting ready to roll out BPL in the same manner!

1938. Baker to Vegas Challenge Cup Relay Race

Well, this weekend was the baker to vegas run, and a great time was had by all.

This special event is a 120 mile marathon relay race for members of law enforcement, and drew 200 teams from all over the world. Teams were present from as far away as Berlin and Australia.

The race is run through the Mojave desert of California and Nevada and takes 24 hours to complete. It starts in Baker California (about an hour or so east of death valley), and winds through the mountains of California state route 127 to Pahrump Nevada, where it continues down Nevada state route 160 to Las Vegas. There are twenty relay stations manned by race volunteers, and ham volunteers. These stations are used as comfort/medical stations and relay points (a baton is passed to the next runner in the team).

Hams provide official timing and rule violation notification as well as setting up and manning a communications net to cover the broad expanse of the desert used for the race. APRS was used with some race teams that were interested in its use.

Hams are also used for "early warning" - that is, to alert a team at a station that their runner and chase vehicle is one mile out and approaching the station, so as to allow the runner taking the next leg of the race to be ready when the present runner arrives. Hams are positioned on the course one mile from each station to read off the team number of the runners as they go by, transmitting this information to the next station. Hams on motorcyles patrol the route alert for any situation that might pose a safety hazard, or to call in medical assistance should it be needed.

This was my first year working this special event, although I had heard of it for many years. I was fortuanate to be placed at a station with a wonderful group of hams who made me feel very welcome even though I was a newcomer to their rather seasoned group. It was wonderful, and I look forward to participating in this and other special event activities every year.

best regards,

Mathew

Hello, Hans

My gut feeling is that if someone is out in the boonies and they really want high speed internet, they could go for satellite and have a decent system. Yes, $50.00 per month is not as cheap as you can get cable or DSL (at least in some areas), but it is doable and I doubt too many ISPs are going to try high speed service where, even if they could subscribe everyone, the average population density is 10 per square mile or less ;)

I suspect that BPL will go the same route; they'll try, perhaps, but it will be in the cities and suburbs where they can make money (and they will have competition and cause a lot of qrm). The low population density areas will still not be served (except by satellite or, perhaps, dial-up).

As for president, I still like Ike!!!

I agree with this, except that a satellite link has too much latency to support VPN, so some of us rural folk are still stuck with only dialup (and I$DN). There is an outfit in town that's putting up terrestrial microwave links in the area, but they claim the County is stalling on the approval for the tower they need to service my area. Grrrr!

I give BPL little chance of success in my neighborhood - the PG&E lines around here generate so much hash that it would never fly. Had PG&E come out once to look at it aan it went away for awhile, but now that the hot weather's back so's

The ones under ground and under water already are.

The problem will be when every house in your neighborhood is a big #&%(& radiator. Or even worse when your KW wipes out the entire Internet service in a few square miles.

I'm a rural customer of an electric cooperative. (I happen to use them for my dialup ISP also)

A couple of years ago when I was having a bout of power line interference I happened to talk to their VP for new technology, engineer to engineer.

Among other things he told me that reading meters was a big expense since their service area is huge, covering good parts of three counties, one of which is the size of Connecticut. They (we, I'm a part owner) have 29,000 customers and 2,400 miles of lines.

So they (we) tried a system of reading the meters remotely, using (very) slow-speed data on the power lines. They couldn't even solve the technical challenges of doing this and wound up changing out most of the meters to ones with built in transmitters that can be interrogated by a guy driving around in a pickup truck.

If they can't read my meter remotely how in the hell are they going to supply me with high-speed data transmission? BTW, I've strongly suggested that they don't try.

I've done the same with our cooperative here.

Personally, I think attempts to fight BPL through the political system are a waste of time. The amateur radio community doesn't have the financial resources to outbid the utilities for legislation.

What will stop BPL is economics.

Many of the expenses of offering broadband communications are independent of transmission technology. Obtaining a backbone connection, providing mail & web servers, customer support & billing are all expenses that are the same whether you're providing BPL, DSL, or cable modem service.

BPL has the additional disadvantage of requiring well-trained personnel with expensive safety gear to maintain the infrastructure. Most cable and DSL maintenance can be done on the ground.

BPL is at an advantage ONLY in very rural places, too small for cable and too far from the CO for DSL. Such places don't have enough customers to pay for the fixed infrastructure.

IMHO a few utilities will try full-scale rollouts of BPL - and will find it doesn't sell enough to pay the expenses. It'll go the way of the picturephone.

==========

If that doesn't work, we can tell the freeband community what's wiping out 26-29MHz, and post a few photos of the BPL access equipment, and then be sure to not get anywhere near a power pole without a bulletproof vest<grin>...

....the NTIAyesterday (4/27/2004) released a paper which argues AGAINST relaxing Part 15 (see below). Full NTIA report at http://www.ntia.doc.gov/ntiahome/fccfilings/2004/bpl/index.html

"Critical review of the assumptions underlying these analyses revealed that application of existing Part 15 compliance measurement procedures for BPL systems results in a significant underestimation of peak field strength. Underestimation of the actual peak field strength is the leading contributor to high interference risks. As applied in current practice to BPL systems, Part 15 measurement guidelines do not address unique physical and electromagnetic characteristics of BPL radiated emissions. Refining compliance measurement procedures for BPL systems will not impede implementation of BPL technology because BPL networks reportedly can be successfully implemented under existing field strength limits.

"Accordingly, NTIA does NOT recommend that the FCC relax Part 15 field strength limits for BPL systems. Further based on studies to date, NTIA recommends several "access" BPL compliance measurement provisions that derive from existing Part 15 measurement guidelines. Among these are requirements to: use measurement antenna heights near the height of power lines; measure at a uniform distance of ten (10) meters from the BPL device and power lines; and measure using a calibrated rod antenna or a loop antenna in connection with appropriate factors relating magnetic and electric field strength levels at frequencies below 30 MHz."

Hi, GET NJ,

First, after using the VX5R for 5 years now (US-version, bought in San Diego HRO), I can assure you of buying the right thing. I use either the VC-25 Headset including VOX (this allows you handsfree operation, though quite difficult in noisy environment like a car. I prefer to use the PTT-feater of the headset instead), as well as the MH-34 Speaker/Mike, which has an earphone plug included. The audio on the TRX itself is great for MW, SW and FM Radio reception, even music sounds good. This good audio is also heard from the two accessories described.

Mounted on a simple cell-phone holder, and supplied with power from the battery (directly via two inline-fuses), you can almost use it like a mobile, when you aquire a brick-amplifier available from different sources to give you sufficient power output. As antenna I use a magmount dualband for 2m/70cm.

With the same setup and powerd by a 20 A PS, I use a dualband vertical atop the house and run it as a base station.

Be sure to have a cooling fan sitting nearby the TRX, and dont touch it, when running long transmissions. Due to its MilSpecs its enclosure is made of cast aluminum, an you could burn your fingers. As far as I learned, an internal thermal fuse helps you to prevent from blowing the finals caused by overheating.

Drop a line, if you need mor info on the neat little peace. BTW, I paid 358 Dollars back then.

73 and much fun de

Tell me about it. Another thing that hasn't been considered is the condition of these lines. I have been fighting for 5 years here in Alabama to get the 20/9 noise level (at times past) fixed. Two years of that was educating the fools what to do about it.

Can you imagine how much trouble its going to be getting BPL through that noise?

not neccessarily.
its a known fact that even though they made the no-code tech license, not all the fould mouth punks decided to move up to ham vhf and above. in fact, a large number of them remained right where they were because they didn't want to have "big brother" staring over their shoulder at anything they did.

I personally started out on CB, but decided that ham was a better opportunity for me to make new friends and speak with new poeple. I also got tired of all the games and other such non-sense that took place down there.

unfortunately, there are some on the simplex frequencies right ere in phoenix who must continue to plays these games, even though they are considered to be very bad form!. one comment made last night by an unidentified individula stated this "you mean you need a license to operate this thing?" I know it was sarcastic, and it got completely ignored by those of use who were conversing on the frequency at the time This is the proper proceedure when dealing with unlicensed fools!).

just my opinions.

Rumor has it that Joe Sixpack now resides in the town of Cedartown, Georgia.
Joe is jobless, has no real property, no bank account, no credit, and drives a vehicle that may or may not make it to next week. Joe is unemployed but he is looking. Rumor has it that Joe has an application in at the local Wal-Mart, K-Mart, and MacDonald's pending the passing or failure of the required drug test.
Joe refused to piss in a bottle while others were obvserving, thus eliminating the outside chance that he could introduce a pee sample from a "clean" source.
Joe prefers to maintain his unemployed status, telling others that he is "between jobs" but has prospects.
Joe is a man of many talents, but his work record is dismal.
Joe is currently a "man of leisure" and prefers to be addressed as "Mister Joe".

What the heck...who knows? Maybe next month he will find a job.

Ok I guess you guys have problems also, but is there any place where I can buy used equipment other than Ebay, we tried that and bought junk.
Some links to other places......

a local hamfest or 2 couldn't hurt (do you have those where you are?).

also, check the local papers for estate sales of SK hams. it also isn't a bad idea to check in rec.radio.amateur.swap as well.

Unlikely. It is more likely a transformer would explode before you would see any home damage. How many times has lightning hit close to home with the worst effect being a blackout and no fried home electronics? In addition, most homes that have surge suppressed power strips serving entertainment centers probably already have enough protection to prevent this scenario. These power strips are cheap and common. Specialized computer surge suppressed, noise filtered strips, like the kind commonly used for computers, provide even more protection than their wimpier cousins serving power to the family VCR. Finally, any BPL modem that gets deployed will most certainly have lightning protection built into it in one form or another for the simple sake of the companies investment.

I agree that a standard and general non liability clause will appear in the paperwork somewhere, as a matter of routine. However, I think the rest is a bit of wishful thinking. Besides, Ford makes a hell of a truck :-)

I think simple economics will be the death of BPL. Cable Broadband, and DSL are getting cheaper and cheaper, and for the first time DSL is actually cheaper in some markets than Cable broadband. Broadband can now be had for what a dialup line cost just a few years ago. The newest contender, and the one I think is going to kill BPL in the long run, is satellite internet. The price is a bit high right now, but no more so than DSL was a short time ago. I predict that it will be coming down fast, and satellite internet will be the provider of the future because it can be had as a package with digital satellite television, and provides service to anywhere in north America with a clear view of the southern sky. No miles to source limits, no load balancing, no landlines, no muss, no fuss. I just don't believe BPL can catch up with the economics of its competitors who have been at it alot longer.

satellite may be ok for the REALLY remote place that wants to surf the web and download email, but it has serious drawbacks for anything more than that. the delays up and down are so long that real time games are worthless. the split ip system messes up some business vpn uses. the uplink bandwidth from the user is SLOW (read 56k or less in most cases).
the downlink bandwidth is limited and in the one i looked at they reserved the right to throttle you back if you were using too much... remember, the downlink is shared just like cable broadband, so one hog slows it down for everyone else. they also did not like streaming video and prohibit servers. and it is not a do-it-yourself installation, it must be installed by trained techs. fiber to the curb, cable broadband, and improved dsl with extended range is more likely to be the common mechanism... some of the terrestrial wireless systems are also making inroads in medium density areas.

In most of the U.S., perhaps. People living in Florida should not count on even the best surge suppressors to protect their computers or other sensitive electronic devices from lightning-induced damage. Trust me on this, I've tried it at home. :> Of course, that doesn't mean BPL equipment is any more or less susceptible to damage. In Florida though, it is a good idea to unplug equipment when it isn't in use, especially during peak thunderstorm season, which is approaching. If you hear the sound of distant thunder, disconnect in a hurry. If you must leave the computer plugged in, use an APC UPS. They offer a substantial guarantee that will pay for the new motherboard and power supply.

> the economics of its competitors who have been at it alot longer.

As the population ages and moves into condos, satellite access is going to have less appeal. Wireless, OTOH, could be used anywhere. The countryside is already littered with cellphone towers.

There's another problem with DSL in particular: Aged, inadequate telephone delivery conductors. This may not be a problem in 6-land, but it is in other parts of the country. The phone companies have been getting by with antiquated wiring for decades. Or you have the 'distance from switching center' problem. WRT keeping up with the times, the cable companies have done a better job, because they had to, to compete with the satellites for television service. Cable comes with its own set of problems, though. IMO, instead of inflicting another system on consumers, FCC would have better served its role by working to improve what we already have. I would say that BPL is sort of like reverse psychology: Use BPL to threaten DSL and cable providers, so they improve their service; but I don't think Powell is that smart.

A Hamfest would be nice I have heard of those but not sure if there is such a thing in the Kingston Ontario Canada region, when I went to school 25 years or more ago there was this one follow who could have helped was into this and even had the kids get there licenses, if I remember his call sign was VE3 IDW, Ron Walsh I think his name is could any of you guys give him a call and maybe ask him where we might find a hamfest or places or links?. As I do not and will not turn on a HAM radio without a license to broadcast.

Thank you very much in advance.

Amateur Radio Newsline(tm) Report 1394 - April 30, 2004

A Very Important Note: We urge all readers of this report to also download the audio version of this report at http://www.arnewsline.org/quincy and listen to it. Please pat special attention to the words of ARRL President Jim Haynie, W5JBP, and the urgency in his voice as he discusses the latest developments in the fight to keep Broadband Over Powerline technology from encroaching into the Amateur Service bands. There is no way to express in print the very grave nature of this situation. Only by listening for yourself can you truly understand the extreme gravity of the circumstances that our service faces if BPL is introduced nationwide.

The ARNewsline Production Team

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1394 with a release date of Friday, April 30th, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T.

The ARRL takes on the White House over BPL, a power provider says BPL interference to mobile operations has to be tolerated and a ham radio name change. Its called the Dayton Hamvention once again. Find out the details on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1394 coming your way right now.

THE BPL FIGHT: PRES BUSH VS. PRES HAYNIE AND THE ARRL

The ARRL and its president has expressed what they call deep concerns about a speach by United States President George Bush. One where where the leader of the free world says that standards need to be changed to encourage the delivery of Internet access using Broadband Over Poweline technology. Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, is here with more:

--

In the boldest and most dramatic move yet in the BPL debate, the ARRL's president Jim Haynie W5JBP, directly appealed to President Bush to abandon his support for BPL technology.

Haynie says Bush's speech last week during the American Association of Community Colleges convention in Minneapolis prompted him to action. In that speech, President Bush stated directly:

"...power lines can be used for broadband technology. So the technical standards need to be changed to encourage that."

"I faxed a letter to the White House cause I wanted to make sure they got it and we followed it up again with the regular U.S. Mail," Haynie says. "And, it'll be curious to see what kind of reaction that we get. I think, like I said, it's ill-advised.

"It's so much hype that the broadband industry has been putting out and I'm sorry to say it looks like the president has been suckered into it a little bit."

Haynie says amateur radio has reached a defining moment in its history and he is issuing a call to arms.

"This is the time that amateur radio is going to have to pull together and speak with one big voice," Haynie says. "And, on our website, we put the contact information and I want everybody to go there and look at it (www.arrl.org) and you can write the president, you can write your congressman, you can write your senators you can call 'em.

"Anything like that is helpful because amateur radio has been around for a lot of years and I'd hate to see it end based on a technology like this that any engineer worth their salt would be able to say, 'Well, this sounds fun but it's just not going to work.' "

Haynie says he wasn't blind-sided by President Bush's remarks, but has questions about his fellow Texan's true understanding of the issue.

"If you go back and read his speech he made in New Mexico, I think it was Albuquerque, he alluded to broadband then just as a general term," Haynie says. "Since that time, the actual term broadband over power line has come into his speech and I know he doesn't write his own speeches, other people do."

Haynie says its likely Bush administration advisers believe BPL is an issue that may have some mileage.

"This is an election year and anything that would seemingly stimulate the economy and create jobs is going to be a real political football and this has just got caught up in it," Haynie says.

Haynie says he is now working with the ARRL's Washington staff to arrange a personal meeting with President Bush to lay out the issue for him. And Haynie says he's hopeful that if Bush sees the damaging effect BPL has on radio spectrum - occupied not by just amateur radio - but police, fire, and government services - he may reconsider.

Haynie says he'll also go in with the findings of the National Telecommunications and Information Agency - the president's own advisory arm on radio frequency spectrum management - to make his case.

"When you get into the actual and engineering report, there's some good stuff there," Haynie says. "And I'm glad to see it. I'm also glad to see that they corroborated a lot of stuff that we said in our data.

"And, it gives us more credibility because NTIA has quoted ARRL in there a number of times in this report. But some of their measurements were even more - for lack of a better word - devastating to the industry than ours. They're talking as much as 200 meters. That's a long way!"
Haynie says BPL threatens the future of amateur radio as we know it and it's time to step up and be counted:

"I've been a ham for 32 years, 33 years or something like that and this is the worst, most difficult situation I've ever seen amateur radio in," Haynie says. "And I think whether you're interested in licensing restructuring or you're interested in somebody not identifying every 10 minutes on 75 meters or whatever the case, that all pales. It is insignificant to this particular issue.

"So we need to set all these differences aside in the amateur radio community and come together. This is the time."

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia.

--

Since before the first test installations went into operation, the ARRL has been warning the public about the potential for massive radio disruption to vital radio communications that BPL has the potential to cause. More information is on line daily at the ARRL website at http://www.arrl.org (ARNewsline(tm))

THE BPL FIGHT: NTIA RELEASES ITS BPL IMPACT REPORT

The National Telecommunications and Information Administration has issued its long-awaited report on the interference potential of Broadband over Power Lines. Despite a generally-glowing news release, the report itself identifies significant interference risks from BPL and concludes that the methods currently used for measuring BPL noise levels are inadequate and that more study is needed on such areas as ionospheric propagation of BPL signals.

The full report may be downloaded, either in full or chapter by chapter,from the NTIA website at http://www.ntia.doc.gov/new.html (CQ)

POWER PROBLEMS: INVESTIGATION INTO BLACKOUT FAULTS ENERGY COMPANIES

Power companies may be interested in reeping huge profits by selling high speed Internet access using BPL technology, but a report says that they disregarded voluntary rules that were intended to ensure the flow of electricity. This is what opened the way for last summer's blackout in eight states and Canada, the report says.

The investigators who prepared the report say that there was a clear understanding long before the blackout last August that the Ohio region was highly vulnerable to power distribution grid instability. Ohio is where the problem began.

The report continues that had the situation been properly addressed, the cascading blackout that sped across states from Michigan to New York and into Canada probably would have been averted. In fact, investigators said that something as simple as shutting off 200 megawatts of power an hour prior to the blackout might have kept the problem from spreading.

This is the final report by investigators who looked into the cause of last summers electrical breakdown. They are urging Congress to impliment strict government standards to ward off future outages. (Published reports)

THE BPL FIGHT: NC POWER COMPANY MAKE INTERFERENCE CLAIMS

Meantime, a North Carolina power company says that the interference coming from its BPL system is not harmful to ham radio operations. As reported last week, Progress Energy claims it has solved almost all of the problems to the Amateur bands created by its test installation near the city of Raleigh. But local hams have a different view. Newsline's Gary Pearce, KN4AQ, takes an in-depth look at the claims being made by Progress Energy and what the ham radio community has to say:

The FCC has received its first reply from a BPL system operator to a complaint about BPL interference. Progress Energy, which operates three BPL trials near Raleigh, North Carolina, says that they are in full compliance with Part 15. Their letter attempts to set a mark for "harmful interference" to home stations, and makes a claim that BPL doesn't cause harmful interference to mobiles because they drive by so quickly.

When the Progress Energy trial began in January, Amperion, the equipment vendor, set the hardware up with signals on the overhead lines that covered the 10 and 12 meter ham bands, and most of the spectrum in between. The signals appear as a series of carriers, 1.1 kHz apart, covering 6 MHz of spectrum for each 2000 feet of power line.

Hams complained to the FCC, and Amperion moved the spectrum used. They attempted to operate in spectrum between the 20 and 15-meter bands, with a notch blocking BPL signals across the 17-meter band. They missed the mark a little, with BPL signals starting at 14.3 MHz, 50 kHz inside the 20-meter band. And while the notch at 17 meters did reduce the signal strength, the BPL carriers were still audible, and might be heard by home stations for a block or two, if there were any hams living in the trial area_ but there are no hams living there.

In addition, the BPL signals don't end with a "brick wall" filter at the edge of their spectrum block. They trail off slowly. And those "fringe" signals were still falling inside several ham bands, again expected to be audible to a ham within a block or two of the power line.

After giving Amperion time to correct the apparent errors, hams complained again to the FCC. The result was a meeting between Raleigh hams and a Progress Energy engineer in the trial area on April 6th to review the complaint and the spectrum used. Bill Godwin, the Progress Energy engineer, had arranged to be able to talk to an Amperion technician to make adjustments to the spectrum used in real time - but, the technician was a no-show on the telephone.

On April 13th, hams checked the spectrum used again, and still no changes had been made.

On April 20th, Len Anthony, Regulatory Affairs attorney for Progress Energy, sent e-mail to the James Burtle, Chief of the FCC's Experimental Licensing Division, claiming that after moving the BPL signals off the ham bands, their system "is not causing any harmful interference and is in full compliance with the FCC's Part 15 rules."

Referring to the April 6th observation with Bill Godwin, Anthony says, "These tests revealed a small level of interference at the fringes of certain frequencies. Since that time, further modifications have been made to address this fringe interference. It is Progress Energy's position and interpretation of the FCC's rules with regard to `harmful interference' that any interference that may still exist is not `harmful' as that term is defined by the FCC's rules. This level of interference does not seriously degrade ham radio operation or transmissions or cause repeated interruptions. Importantly" he continues, "since Progress Energy can make modifications to completely eliminate any interference with fixed ham operators, the only impact of any kind upon ham operations is upon mobile operators."

As for mobiles, Anthony continues, "Given that any interference experienced by a mobile operator only occurs within close proximity to the BPL facilities, such interference would be very short lived. Thus, Progress Energy is not causing any harmful interference and is in full compliance with the FCC's Part 15 rules."

An observation of the trial area on April 21st, the day after the e-mail was sent to the FCC, revealed that there had been no changes to the spectrum used. The overhead line was still emitting a full-strength signal on the top 50 kHz of the 20 meter band; signals were still audible in the notch at 17 meters, and the "fringe" carriers were still encroaching on the bottom 50 kHz or so of the 15 meter band.

This is the first claim by a BPL operator that weak BPL signals do not create "harmful" interference by the FCC's definition, interference that "seriously degrades, obstructs or repeatedly interrupts a radiocommunication service." Ham operators, of course, routinely tune through quiet spectrum looking for weak signals, and a series of carriers one kHz apart covering the band might be considered to seriously degrade, obstruct or repeatedly interrupt that activity.

And a mobile driving 35 miles per hour along a BPL-carrying power line can be in the interference zone for a minute or more - and much longer in stop-and-go traffic, waiting at signal lights, or stopping in a driveway or parking lot.

Frank Lynch W4FAL, an ARRL Technical Specialist for North Carolina who has been concentrating on the Progress Energy BPL trial, says that he will be filing another complaint with the FCC, responding to the Progress Energy e-mail. He also says that hams are not opposed to BPL per se, just the interference it causes. And he notes that it should be easy to clear up interference in a small trial area. It's BPL signals buzzing around every power line in town that have him worried.

Reporting for Newsline, this is Gary Pearce KN4AQ in Raleigh, North Carolina.

Once the new interference complaint is filed it will be up to the FCC to investigate it and to take whatever action it deems necessary. (ARNewsline(tm), KN4AQ)

RADIO LAW: PETITION TO PROHIBIT BUSINESS COMMUNICATIONS ON FRS FAILS

A Petition for Rulemaking to prohibit daily business communications in the Family Radio Service has been dismissed by the Commission. Amateur RadioNewsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, has more:

--

On August 22, 2002, the Industrial Telecommunciatons Association, Inc. -- or ITA -- filed a petition for rulemaking requesting that the Commission amend Section 95.401(b) of the Commission's Rules. This, to prohibit daily business communications on the Family Radio Service frequencies.

In making its case for the prohibition the ITA said that it was concerned about the unlicensed mix of business and personal users. The ITA said that traditional businesses were using FRS units for daily business needs and thereby limiting the ability of others to engage in the personal communications that the Commission envisioned for FRS.

One of those challenging the ITA petition was the Personal Radio Steering Group. This is an advocacy group for General Mobile Radio Service users who share part of the spectrum with the Family Radio Service. According to the PRSG filing, the FCC specifically indicated in the Regulatory Flexibility Analysis for creating the Family Radio Service that small businesses may use the FRS to conduct their affairs. Also, while FRS congestion does exist in and near sports and recreational facilities, theme parks and shopping malls, little of this congestion is attributable to recurrent business or commercial communications.

Based on this and other information provided by the public, the FCC has concluded that day to day business communications is a valid use of the Family Radio Service. That this was intended in the Report and Order creating the service and that there is little merit to the Industrial Telecommunications Association rules change request.

Reporting for the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, in Los Angeles.

In other words, it is okay to continue to use FRS channels for routine business as well as personal communications needs. The full story is on-line at http://hraunfoss.fcc.gov/edocs_public/attachmatch/DA-04-1035A1.doc (CGC, FCC)

ENFORCEMENT: OFFERING NON CERTIFIED CB'S FOR SALE BRINGS CITATION

The FCC has gone after yet another purveyor of non certified CB radio gear capable of operating in the ham radio bands. The agency's Daryl Duckworth, NN0W, explains:

Duckworth: "The FCC's Altanta Office has issued a citation to Jim Norton, the owner of CB Sales and Service in Anniston, Alabama for the sale of non certified CB equipment. Noted in the citation were six different models of non certified exquoipent, five of which had been modified to transmit on Amateur frequencies."

--

The FCC alleges that an investigation by its Atlanta Office revealed that on March 11, 2004, Norton offered for sale at his retail store up to eight models of non-certified Citizens Band transceivers all bearing the Galaxy trade name. According to Commission's records, none of these devices have received an FCC equipment authorization which is required for Citizens Band transmitters marketed in the United States. CB Sales was charged with violation of Section 302(b) of the Communications Act, and Section 2.803(a)(1) of the F-C-C's Rules. (FCC, RAIN)

RESCUE RADIO: CA HAMS SUPPOERT MS WALK

Members of the Huntington Beach California Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service supported the early morning 2004 MS Walk event on Sunday April 18th. The Huntington Beach volunteer radio operators were on hand at each rest stop along the five and 10 kilometer courses, to provide communications and assist state beach rangers and event management in case an emergency occurred.

There were over 1200 walkers on the beach path taking part in the fund raisuing event. Peter Shores, AD6TN, brought his communications van that is fully equipped with communications gear and emergency supplies. It served as a mobile command post. Another volunteer patrolled the entire course on bicycle.

The communications effort continued until about noon. There were no incidents or injuries reported during the event. (KH6WZ)

HAMVENTION NEWS : DARA RETURNS TO THE DAYTON HAMVENTION NAME

When thousands of hams return to Dayton, Ohio for Hamvention 2004, they will find that the "Dayton" has returned to the Hamvention. This, with word that the Dayton Amateur Radio Association which sponsors the yearly event has again remamed the gathering the Dayton Hamvention.

According to General Chairman Gary Des Combes, N8EMO, the change is in keeping with the Hamvention's 'going back to the future' theme. It also goes along with the pledge made to return Hamvention to its roots as the biggest and friendliest hometown hamfest, found anyplace in the world.

Des Combes says that for more than half a century the event has been known to the world, and to the world of Amateur Radio as the Dayton Hamvention. He says that Hamvention's ties are to the entire Dayton metropolitan area, to its economy and to the ham radio community of the region.

The 33rd annual Dayton Hamvention opens on Friday, May 14th and runs until Sunday 16th. During those three days the event is expected to draw about 25,000 people from around the world and bring millions of dollars of sales and business to the Dayton area. (Dayton Hamvention)

HAMVENTION NEWS: THE HAM RADIO TOWN MEETING

And since we are talking the Dayton Hamvention, let me take a moment to invite you to join our producer Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, and an all-star group of guests as we take a trip through time to look at the "traditions" that have made Amateur Radio the great hobby and service that it is today. This, as we at Amateur Rasdio Newsline present the 6th annual Dayton Hamvention "Ham Radio Town Meeting."

This years topic is "IT'S MORE THAN RADIOS -- Keeping The Traditions of Amateur Radio Alive." Bill will be your host and moderator. Joining him will be a whose who group including our leynote speaker Bob Heil, K9EID, of Heil Sound Ltd. Other presenters include Radio School's Gordon West WB6NOA, Worldradio Magazine Editor Nancy Kott WZ8C, Producer/Director Dave Bell W6AQ, Philadelphia newsman Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, to name only a few. Also, if time permits, we will present a screening of the 1990 Icom produced motion picture titled "More Than Radios." This is the story of an "old time ham" who rather reluctantly becomes the Amateur Radio "Elmer" for a teenager thrust into his life on summer.

The festivities begin at 1 P.M. EDT on Saturday, May 15th in Hara Arena Meeting Room 3 and as usual we will have lots of door prizes. If you have the time, we promise you a most entertaining and illuminating two hours reliving the traditions of the hobby and learning that being a ham truly is a lot more than radios. HAM RADIO IN SPACE: CREW CHANGE ON THE ISS

For a time last week there were five astro-hams on board the International Space Station. This as Expedition 9 crew members Mike Fincke, KE5AIT, and Gennady Padalka, RN3DT, arrived at the space outpost on April 21st The trip was made to the Iss using a Russian built Soyuz launcher.

Making the voyage with them was European Space Agency explorer Andr, Kuipers, PI9ISS. The three joined Expedition 8 crew members Mike Foale, KB5UAC, and Sasha Kaleri, U8MIR, who along with Kuipers are on their way back to Earth as this newscast goes to air.

Kuipers may have only spent a bit more than a week on-orbit, but he wasted little time in getting on-the-air. PE1SCW in Deventer in the Netherlands reported hearing PI9ISS in QSO with PI9ESA at 7:50 hours UTC on Saturday May 24th. Bas says that Kuipers signal was very strong signal that was reading 40 db over S-9. A few minutes later Kuipers was in range of Francisco Costa, CT1EAT, in Beja, Portugal. He said that he heard PI9ISS in a scheduled ARISS QSO also at well over S-9.

During their six-month stay on the ISS, Russian Cosmonaut Padalka will serve as the ISS Commander while Fincke will be the science officer and flight engineer. Both are expected on the air before they return home in late October. (ARISS, VHF Reflector, published news reports)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: K6DUE ISS OPERATING EVENT CERTIFICATES

Certificates for those who took part in the K6DUE International Space Station Commemorative Operating Event held earlier this year have been distributed to the international delegates at the ARISS Meeting in the Netherlands on March 26th and 27th. Those picking them up were to forward the certificates to their national Q-S-L distributors who would then distribute them locally.

ARISS International Chairman Frank Bauer, KA3HDO, says that approximately 130 hams will be receiving certificates. The event was held to honor the memory of the late Roy Neal, K6DUE who founded both the SAREX and ARISS programs. Neal, who also served as the Vice President of Amateur Radio Newsline and as a frequent news anchor passed away last August due to complications following heart valve replacement surgery. WORLDBEAT: NEW ZEALAND TO ARGENTINA COMMEMORATIVE ZL1AWW is working on plans for a commemorative station to celebrate the 80 th anniversary of the first New Zealand to South America two way contact. This, by Ivan O'Meara Z2AC and Carlos Braggio, RCB8.

The proposed date is May 22nd or 23rd. This original 10,300 kilometer Morse code conversation took place in 1924 and established a world distance record for two-way radio for that era. (GB2RS)

DX

In D-X, word that the Rodrigues Island 3B9C operation finally went QRT on Monday, April 12th. In their time on the air, the operators racked up a very impressive 153,000 QSO's. QSL this one as you were directed on the air. (OPDX)

THAT FINAL ITEM: THE NAB 2004 HAM RADIO RECEPTION

And finally, as most of you know, it was Heil Sound Limited hosted the National Association of Broadcasters ham radio reception on Wednesday night April 21st. It was literally a star studded event. Newsline's Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, and his tape recorder were there:

When Bob Heil, K9EID, and his wife Sarah throw a party, everyone with a ham radio license shows up. And thats exactly the way it was on Wednesday, April 21st when Heil Sound Limited hosted the annual National Association of Broadcasters Ham Radio Reception at the Hilton Hotel in Las Vegas, Nevada. There was food music and lots of prizes. Some were even personalized:

--

Bob Heil Audio: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org

--

That was Bob Heil presenting only one of over a hundred prizes given out over the three hours of the gathering. We finally were able to corner Bob Heil and we asked him how this all came about:

--

Bob Heil Audio: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org

--

Somewhere between 800 to 900 radio amateurs attending the National Association of Broadcasters Convention literally had a hamfest of their own thanks to Bob and Sarah Heil. Thats up by an estimated 40% over past years. Sarah Heil says that for her husband, putting this reception together was a labor of love:

--

Sarah Heil Audio: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org

--

The 2004 NAB Ham Radio Reception sems to have set several records. More important -- a good time was had by all.

Reporting from near the Convention Center in Las Vegas, I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, for the Amateur Radio Newsline.

--

For those not aware, the annual Natrional Association of Broadcasters Convention in Las Vegas is the largest gathering of broadcasting and teleproduction professionals in the world. (ARNewsline (tm))

hey, EAM
you spend alot of time running people down, does that make you feel like your a big man/woman? ham radio is alot of things to alot of different people, your opinion is very narrow. your comment " Ham radio was screwed the minute they lowered the code to 5wpm" that statement is so narrow minded. if everyone felt the way you speak, there would only be a handful of eliteists left in the hobby and that feel they are better than everyone else. (i could apply the penis comment to the elieteists, but i wont) EAM, help others be good hams, encourage, be patient, be understanding, those are good traits of a ham radio operators.
you are always going to have jammers, no matter how strict and military you want ham radio to be.

Ron Wright is such a scum bag and a disgrace to the ham radio hobby.
Ron left a message on the digital repeater voice recorder repeater id that runs every 8 min. the recorning in rons voice and says " wanna have a good time with some good women then come to hooters saturday night all are invited this is the n9ee repeater" like any hooters girl wants to have a good time with his greasy /

Hello All,

It has been brought to my attention that the information I sent most of you concerning the 64 website and the echolink connection on the 64 was not very accurate. The info I received did not reflect the entire story and I did not know this at the time. The source of my information did not let me know or perhaps did not know themselves the entire story.

Thus, I am sorry for the misinformation.

From what I am being told now KE4YDH,Chris, is going to retain the Echolink link and He is going to retain and web host the 64 website .However, the website will have a new address.Everything should be back to normal within a few weeks as the link equipment and website in place.

Hope this settles everything down.

hi samson,

i would like to help, but i can not call out to international numbers on this payphone, it is my only way to communicate with you if you wish to use the phone. i am willing to work with you by waiting by the phone, but that is what i can do to talk to you on the phone.

i want to help you and your mom, but the phone presents a difficult hurdle,

as with hurdles they can be overcome, but it takes determination.

take care,

<snippety-two>

Unrelated to BPL, but I'd like to say that this is not near the barrier it once was. Here in WA, at least, Qwest (formerly USWest, aka USWorst) has been installing curbside DSLAMs, known as 'Stingers,' to help combat against both problems.

I can tell you from direct experience that the Stingers work very well indeed. You would not be seeing this message now, and my 'net-based side business would have folded long ago, if it were not for the presence of the thing. Prior to the installation of the thing, I was getting -maybe- 384K downstream on a good day, thanks to being nearly 18,000 wire-feet out from the CO.

When they swung my circuit to the Stinger, things changed overnight. I was less than 2,000 wire-feet away from the terminal, and my downstream quickly topped out at 768K, and it has remained there ever since.

> done a better job, because they had to, to compete with the satellites for > television service. Cable comes with its own set of problems, though. IMO,

Cable service has many problems, not the least of which is that it's a "bus" topology instead of the "star" configuration of DSL. This means that the available bandwidth is first-come, first-served. If you're trying to get your E-mail, and the nutcase down the street is already trying to stream a high-bandwidth porno video, or transfer a stack of MP3's, guess who's going to get short-shrifted?

Another thing to consider: Some people (myself included) are self-hosted for their 'net presence. This means they're running their own servers. This makes anything but DSL (or a T1, which I can't afford just yet) utterly unsuitable, unless the cable company involved is willing to give me six static IP's and let me do the rest (including authoritative DNS for multiple domains). I very much doubt BPL systems will be any different, in terms of permitting this sort of thing (I don't know of any cable company that will allow it).

As for BPL itself: I predict an early death for it. The minute it starts interfering with military, FAA, or other federal government stuff, there's going to be a huge outcry. I think said outcry is going to be enough to silence the whole thing permanently.

How to prove prior ham license ??

Herbert Fischer would like to show that he held a valid ham license (WN1UYH) in 1954 that required the 5 wpm code proficiency. Without the actual license, is there a way to prove he held the license? (Maybe a copy of the old CallBook page with his call would work?)

All suggestions welcomed.

Good question Hans .... I go really for the opportunity to meet with the fellows one on one ....It is good to see fellow ops in person and the fests provide that ....however most of the fests are on Sundays and I am tied up with teaching Sunday School ....you know the job you get asked to take only for one year in 1974. I find that if I do go later most of the guys leave early as they snag the "needs" of the day.

I guess I'd have to say B if I had to just answer from your list.

But I don't have a problem with some decent computers showing up at hamfests. My shack has three of them in it, and they are an integral part of it.

Problem is that too many hamfests appear to have the computers I put out on the sidewalk for riffraff day.

So I'm really a lot closer to your A answer. I'de really like a lot more ham related stuff, and less computer junk and Ginsu knives.

Hello,
I need some help in figuring out how to properly use a Spec. Analyzer. I have done several hours of research online now, and have somewhat of an idea of what I am doing, but I just can't get down one piece of the puzzle. In my line of work, we use simple devices that give us the noise floor level in dB. I (stupidly) expected to be able to get this same information easily out of a SA. As you may have guessed by now, I ran into a problem when switching the RBW value. After much... much reading, I fully understand WHY it changes (Filters increasing in size cause a greater internal noise level, etc.) but I can't figure the best way to get a "base" noise level reading. And as much as I would like to fully understand the theory, what I really need is a few more examples... IE: If you are looking a 100 MHz span and your RBW is 1MHz simply ___Fill in the Blank____ to find the base noise floor. To further explain what I am trying to do, we are setting up a link that requires a SNR of at least 6dB... I need to get the noise floor level to compare with my projected signal strength for this link.

Please be nice... This is my first post <grin>

Thank you! Thank you!

X B. I like the current hamfests, but I'd support one like you describe too.

Trouble is, you'd be driving two hours each way to spend one minute at the hamfest. I think eBay has been the kiss of death for hamfests.

It's not clear to me what noise you're trying to measure. If you're trying to measure the thermal noise of a good resistor, you're SOL -- anything you try to measure it with will add its own noise, which you'll end up measuring instead. You can easily calculate the thermal noise, though. If you're trying to measure the internal noise of the spectrum analyzer, the answer is on the screen and, as you've found, it's a function of the filter bandwidth. If you're trying to measure the noise coming from a receiver, it has to be considerably greater than the SA's internal noise, or you'll never see it. That means you'll have to amplify it until you can see it, with an amplifier that's quiet enough that the noise it adds isn't significant. The noise figure of the SA itself is typically much worse than a decent receiver -- it's been traded for dynamic range.

Once you get whatever noise you're trying to measure up to the level you can see it on the SA, you'll find that its magnitude also varies with the SA filter bandwidth, if the noise is broadband. You can get any S/N ratio you want, if you can tolerate an arbitrarily narrow bandwidth. A real receiver has some particular bandwidth to accommodate the incoming signal. It's usually this bandwidth at which the S/N ratio is measured.

Hi Bill,

Welcome to the wonderful world of posting.

I'd expect noise levels to be specified in (nano)volts per sqrt(Hz), or (femto)watts per Hertz. This can be experessed in dBm, too, of course. If you know the noise bandwidth of the filter the SA is putting the signal through, then you just take the measured noise floor and adjust it by the ratio of that bandwidth to 1 Hz. So if it were a 10Hz noise bandwidth, the noise per Hz would be 10dB below what you see. If the filter is 100Hz, it would be 20dB below. Now, is the noise bandwidth of the filter the same as the resolution bandwidth? Not necessarily, but it should be fairly close, generally within a few percent. We build FFT-based spectral analysis equipment, and have to document the noise bandwidth of the effective filters, but we also generally have a way to directly display "noise density" which is already in v/rt(Hz) or w/Hz or dBm -- so it's worth looking to see if the analyzer MIGHT have such a function. -- It's worthwhile because of the variation from measurement to measurement to use as much averaging as is convenient. This might be called "video filtering", but is done after the signal filtering and detection. Lessee...what else. Normally, the base level noise of the analyzer would be measured with the input terminated in its input resistance, usually 50 ohms.

Footnoote about the bandwidths: the noise bandwidth (or noise power bandwidth) says if you have an input signal of, say, 1.000 picowatts per Hz, and it's uniform power density per unit bandwidth (a flat, broadband noise), and you measure 12.345 picowatts coming through your filter, then the noise bandwidth is 12.345Hz. That may differ from the -3dB bandwidth of the filter, though generally not by a huge amount. With analog filters, it's probably expecting a lot for it to be really the same from analyzer to analyzer of the same model, but with digital filters (not necessarily even FFT-based), it should be spot-on the same from one to the next.

Cheers,
Tom

What is the "Bandwidth" of the "stuff" you are trying to measure?
You could set the analyzer to that or a little less, and then use relative measurements.
You may need more gear if you are trying to measure a very low noise wideband preamp.
Depends on what you are trying to measure.
Bigger bandwidth=higher noise floor, simply kTB. and it is a ratio if you change kTB1/kTB2= B1/B2 (10 log it of course)

If you have the analyzer on, then connect the gizmo without signal and the noise floor rises up 10 dB or more, you could probably ignore calculating what the SA contributes. just add signal and it should be 6 dB or more above noise floor established by your gizmo.

If not, then It is possible to calculate almost exactly the noise floor on the analyzer to verify what is displayed is good, but you need a number or two from the MFGR of the analyzer, which takes into account the filter shape of the analyzer. (0.8 ot 1.6 something like that)

SAs are cool! What type do you have, makes a big difference, (depending on what you are trying to measure) Some will not do it.

There was a story many years ago. A buyer for a major cigarette distributor was in North Carolina buying several box car loads of Raleighs. The fellow representing Raleighs shook the buyer's hand and said, "You won't be sorry. Our formula now calls for 5% tobacco mixed with 95% horseshit."

The buyer looked surprised.

"Heck, give me six more box car loads. I never knew there was any tobacco in the damn things."

That is just about where the hamfests around here are. We're at 5% and barely holding. Ham radio related stuff has been diluted to the point that it is no longer visible without the use of long range optics.

"Unlikely. It is more likely a transformer would explode before you would see any home damage."

I disagree with this statement for the following reason. The flavor of BPL that allows the outlets in your home to be the internet connection, through the BPL modem, requires that the step down transformer from the 4 KV to 13.8KV lines be BYPASSED, primary to secondary, with capacitors to let the HF BPL signal around it. Guess what this will do. This implementation of BPL will let HF noise along with the BPL signal on the lines into your home, including all that lightening energy. This may actually help protect the transformer while the energy is directed into your home! Not all BPL equipment companies are going this way though.

The nice ladies selling adjacent to us at the last hamfest I went to were flogging embroidery and such like. They gave up after the first day. It was a few more bucks for the club hosting the event, and maybe somebody bought a doily to set his HT on at home. I don't think they'll be at the next one.

K�HB, I have to agree with you that most "hamfests" in my area (upper Midwest) are more like "junkfests" or "fleamarkets" these days and I don't attend as often as I used to. It would be nice if they were to advertise these as such so at least you would know what to expect. I have not seen any major equipment dealers at any of the local fests, however, if you need parts or batteries or the like they are good for that. So, I would have to say my answer to your poll is A.

DXCC NEWS (Logbook of The World to Inaugurate DXCC Credits Sysytem!).. Excerpts from "The ARRL Letter" (Vol. 23, No. 18, April 30, 2004), states that the ARRL's "Logbook of the World" secure contact database is to debut its DXCC credits system Wednesday, May 5th. ARRL Membership Services Manager Wayne Mills, N7NG, says the long-awaited LoTW component will permit users to apply contact "matches" in Logbook's 41.4 million QSO and growing database to their DXCC records. To date, Mills reports, more than 2.5 million QSO matches already exist in the system. "It's a pretty straightforward process," Mills said of crediting LoTW QSO matches to DXCC. "What participants need to do first is go to the LoTW site and read the instructions." Information available will include a list of frequently asked questions--FAQs. Before doing anything else, LoTW newcomers will have to obtain a Logbook of the World digital certificate and download the software. Since LoTW launched last September, it has validated nearly 10,000 digital certificates from approximately 7000 individual users. Obtaining a digital certificate, which authenticates each user under a particular callsign, is free. For more details, please read this week's "The ARRL Letter" and visit the following Web page at: http://www.arrl.org/lotw

EO59, UKRAINE (Special Event). Operators Igor/UR3GM and Andy/UR5GAR will activate special event station EO59G from May 5-9th. Activity is to commemorate the 59th anniversary of Victory in World War II. QSL via UR5GAR: Bureau - Box 56, Kiev 01001, UKRAINE Direct - Pulin, Box 23, Kherson 73022, UKRAINE.
QSLs can be requested by sending an E-mail to: ur3gm@tlc.kherson.ua

ET3, ETHIOPIA. The E.A.R.S. club station, ET3AA, has been pretty active lately. Operators Abiy, Mima and Kokobe have been active on 20/15/10 meters SSB between 1200-1600z. QSL via Box 60258, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

FO, FRENCH POLYNESIA. According to "La Gazette du DX", Yves, F6CTL, will be here during May and plans to activate three atolls in different island groups. Activity will be on 40-10 meters using a vertical and long wire antennas.

FO (FO/A & FO/M), FRENCH POLYNESIA, AUSTRAL AND MARQUESAS ISLAND (Update). Gerard, ON4AXU (ex-PA3AXU, 3D2XU, T30XU, C21XU, A35XU, 5W0GD, ZK1AXU [N/S]), informed the DX community that he will be active on 160 meters during his operations from these Pacific islands. His schedule for these Pacific islands were listed in OPDX.643 and operations will take place between May 13th and June 13th. Also, visit his Web page for more details at: http://www.qsl.net/on4axu

FO/M, MARQUESAS ISLAND. Arihide, JI1WTF, is now active as FO/JI1WTF from here. His length of stay is not known yet. Most of his activity has been on CW/RTTY on 40/20/15 meters. QSL via his home callsign.

FY, FRENCH GUIANA. Didier, FY5FY, will be active in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Multi-Op/All Band/High Power entry. QSL via FY5FY

GB, ENGLAND (Special Activities). The following list of operations will take place to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the Liberation of Paris and Guam. The operations are as follows:
GB4OL - To celebrate the 60th Anniversary of Operation OVERLORD (D-Day, June 6, 1944), this special event station will be active between June 3-7th. Also, this station will be on air from another location between July 1-28th. The station will operate CW/SSB on various bands at 21 Signal Regiment (AS) Colerne. Please advise them at the time of the contact if a card is NOT required. For further information, contact GW4XKE at: johnny-e@ic24.net

GB60OL - To celebrate the 60th anniversary of Operation OVERLORD (D-Day, June 6, 1944), look for this special event station between June 1-7th. The station will operate CW/SSB on various bands at 21 Signal Regiment (AS) Colerne during sociable hours and at the discretion of the O/C Training Wing and his staff. PLEASE QSL via the usual Bureau (RSGB RSARS RNARS RAFARS). For a DIRECT QSL, a stamped, addressed return envelope is essential. All stations worked will be sent a special card -- though it would be appreciated if they were told at the time of the contact if a card is NOT required. For further information. contact GW4XKE at: johnny-e@ic24.net

GB6DD - To celebrate the 60th anniversary of D-Day, look for this special event station to be active from June 1-28th. For further information, contact G4OHX at: samg4ohx@btopenworld.com

GB6LOG - To celebrate the 60th anniversary of the Liberation of Guam, look for this station to operate on all modes, starting July 21st for 4 weeks. Your QSL card will be required beforehand in order to receive the special QSL from this station. PLEASE QSL via the RSARS QSL BUREAU. For further information, contact G0SWY at: G0swy@aol.com

GB6LOP - To celebrate the 60th anniversary of the Liberation of Paris, this station will operate on all modes, starting August 25th for 4 weeks. Your QSL card will be required beforehand in order to receive the special QSL from this station. PLEASE QSL via RSARS QSL BUREAU. For further information, contact G0SWY at: G0swy@aol.com Additionally a special certificate is available on request if you work any of the 5 stations listed above (GB6DD, GB6OL, GB6LOG, GB6LOP, GB60OL and GB4OL). This has mainly been created at the request of several American radio amateurs, but they are available worldwide. If you would like a certificate then follow these procedures: if in UK send 2 x 2nd class stamps or an A5 stamped S.A.E. with 1 x 2nd class stamp, or £1.00; if outside of the United Kingdom then 1 USD or 1 AUD or 1 Euro with QSL to G0WY: 4 Bluebell Road, Bassett, Southampton, Hampshire SO16 3LQ (and NOT to the QSL Bureau). If you cannot do any of the above, a cheque made payable to RSARS for £1 will suffice. The Certificates are basically akin to this and of course tailored to each of the station callsigns.

GM, SCOTLAND (Many Scottish Islands To Be Activated!). Andre/GM3VLB and Alex/GM0DHZ plan to activate many Scottish Island in IOTA EU-008, EU-010 EU-111 and EU-123 in the coming weeks and months. Their planned schedule is as follows:
1st DXpedition: IOTA EU-008 (Inner Hebrides)
May 17-19th, Coll (SCOTIA DI12)
May 19-21st, Tiree (SCOTIA DI10)
May 21-23rd, Gunna (SCOTIA DI11) This is a NEW ONE!!
May 23-24th, Tiree (SCOTIA DI10)

2nd DXpedition: IOTA EU-010 (Outer Hebrides)
In June they will activate another "new one", Burns Island (HI26). This will be activated, together with Scarp (HI24), Chaluim Chille (HI25), before heading to the Uist Island Group (EU-010) from where they hope to activate the Monachs EU-111 (DI22) as well as Kirkibost (HI12), Eriskay (HI05) and probably several more such as HI15, HI13, HI10, HI08, HI11, HI06 and perhaps HI03 and HI04 etc.....as in the past, plans are very much "time and WX-dependent".

3rd DXpedition: Andre and Alex will (in June? July?) "complete" the Skye area (EU-008) islands. They have the permission for Rona (DI27), Scalpay (CN18), Longay (CN19), Wiay (CN21), Soay (CN16), Crowlins (CN20), Staffin (DI28) and Flodigarry (DI29).

4th DXpedition: Andre and Alex "may" activate IOTA EU-123 where they have permission to land and to operate on Ailsa Craig (DI01) and on Lady Isle (DI02) at the end of the bird breeding season. This will be around the end of July/beginning of August.

ADDED NOTES: Andre states that they are also planning a return visit to the Shiants (EU-112) either on the Hebridean trip or the Skye expedition. Also, St. Kilda (EU-059) is looking less and less likely. Andre feels that without support, this one will become an increasingly rare IOTA. QSL all activity via their home callsigns. Full details of the islands and the "Scottish Island Award" program (SCOTIA) are available on, and can be downloaded from, the following Web site at: http://www.gm3vlb.com

HAMVENTION DX HAPPENINGS.....
* DX FORUM
Jay, K4ZLE (Moderator 2004 HamVention DX Forum), announced that the program for the 2004 HamVention DX Forum has been finalized and it will be a good program this year with something of interest to every DXer. If you will be at the HamVention, mark Saturday, May 15th, from 1230 - 1515 for the DX Forum. It is scheduled for room 4 in Hara Arena. The program is as follows:
1) A special program on DXpeditioning in the 1960's. Last year the SW Ohio DX Association was given access to some 16mm film of the first (1965) San Felix operation, CE0XA, as well as a VHS tape of converted 8mm films for the same operation as well as the KS4FW, Serrana Bank, and HK0AB, Bajo Nuevo, 1962 expedition. Even as this is being promulgated, work is being done to prepare a historical presentation on these operations. In the interest of time, SWODXA will probably only show the CE0XA portion at Dayton.

2) 35 Plus Years of DXing from Central and South America by Dr. Rick Dorsch, NE8Z, HC2MC, etc. You may have read the recent article in World Radio Magazine by Rick. He will have time to expand upon the subject and provide more data at the DX Forum.

3) Ham Radio in Iraq a la 2004 by Fred Matos, W3ICM, YI3DX. Until last month Fred was Director, Spectrum Management, Coaliltion Provisional Authority Ministry of Communications in Iraq. Part of his role there was issuing amateur licenses.

4) The 3B9C Story by one of the team members, Ivan Davies, G3IZD. If you are following recent activities, you know this operation was completed only a few weeks ago. It is Jay's understanding that HamVention will be the first venue for the after action show. Be among the first to see the pics and hear about 3B9C from those who made it happen.

5) DXCC announcements and updates by Wayne Mills, N7NG. Wayne will talk about the latest info on the DXCC program from ARRL HQ.

* DX HOSPITALITY SUITE
The Northern Ohio DX Association (along Janeen Hire, W8ZET) will once again sponsor a Hospitality Suite at this year's Dayton Hamvention. It will be in Suite 1011 on the 10th Club Floor of the Crowne Plaza Hotel (old Stouffers) on Friday and Saturday evenings (possibly late Thursday evening -- Look for signs!). All DXers/Contesters are welcome. Munchies and refreshments will be avaialble. Come and meet the members and friends of NODXA.

IOTA NEWS.....
AF-014. Operators Antonio/CT1EPV, Luis/CT1AGF, Hermann/CT3FN (HB9CRV), Jose/CT3MD, Toni/HB9EBV and Juergen/DJ2VO (reserve operator) will be active as CT9P from Porto Santo Island. Activity will be from the Lighthouse of Ilheu de Cima (LH 0830/FMA01) between July 16-19th. Operation will be on CW, SSB, RTTY and PSK31 on 40-10 meters. They will have 2 stations active (where one station is reserved for the digital modes). They plan to use a spider beam for 10/15/20m and a 40m delta loop. The Ilheu de Cima has no permanent inhabitants. The equipment, food, water etc.. must be carried 111m up from the landing point. Therefore, they are very happy that they can use the lighthouse facilities and that they don't have to carry a generator, fuel, tents etc..... QSL Manager is Kim (daughter of Steve, N3SL) via N3SL CBA or QRZ.com.

AF-014. Operators Antonio/CT1EPV, Luis/CT1AGF, Hermann/CT3FN (HB9CRV), Luis/CT3EE, Jose/CT3MD, Juergen/DJ2VO, Derek/G3KHZ, Toni/HB9EBV and Rejean/VA2AM will be active as CT9X from Porto Santo Island during the IOTA Contest (July 24-25th). Activity will be from the wooden house and shack of Hernani/CT3BX on Porto Santo. They will enter the contest as a Multi-Single CW/SSB entry. QSL Manager is Kim (daughter of Steve, N3SL) via N3SL CBA or QRZ.com.

AS-135. A group of BG4s led by BA4RS and Michael/BD5RV from the Jiangsu DX Club were expected to be on Cheniushan Island as BI4Q, May 1-3rd. They planned to operate SSB and CW on 40-10 meters on the regular IOTA frequency. Yagi and power amplifiers were taken with them. QSL Manager is BG4RQP: 102, NO.1 Street of Nanhu, Nanjing, Jiangsu Province, CHINA.

EU-030. A group of 6 German operators will be active as OZ0MS from Bornholm Island, June 10-22nd. Operators mentioned are: Ernst/DF2EA, Oliver/DH8BQA, Oliver/DL1EJA, Dietmar/DL2BZE, Uwe/DL3BQA and Guenter. They will be active on HF (160-10m) as well as VHF (6/2m) and UHF/SHF (70/23cm). Activity to be +/- the usual IOTA frequencies on CW and SSB with 500 watts and probably beam antenna. The group is also keen to activate all those small lighthouses on the island. Operation from the base station will be done using the special callsign OZ0MS, for lighthouse activities OZ/homecalls will be used (all QSLs via DH8BQA). For more information feel free to visit their Web page at: http://www.necg.de/bornholm

KH2, GUAM. Nao, JK1FNL, will be on the air as NA8O/KH2 from May 5-9th. He will operate with a portable transceiver and a simple antenna. QSL via JK1FNL (see QRZ.com for the details). PLEASE NOTE: NEVER send QSL to U.S. District #8 bureau or his NA8O address in the USA.

LX, LUXEMBOURG. Operators Ivo/ON6UM, Frans/ON4LO and Rob/ON6QX will be active from here May 15-17th. The trio of operators will sign LX/homecall. Activity will be on all bands SSB/CW/Digital. QSL via their home callsigns.

OH0, ALAND ISLANDS. Ari, OH5DX, will be active as OH0Z from May 28th through June 4th. Activity will be all bands, CW/SSB with a Single Band entry in the CQ WPX CW Contest. QSL via OH5DX (ex-OH1EH).

OJ0, MARKET REEF. Operators Ingo/SM5AJV, Peder/SM0GNS, Jonas/SM5HJZ and Anders/SM0HPL will be active as OJ0SM during the CQ WPX CW Contest as a Multi-Single entry. QSL via SM5HJZ.

OX25, GREENLAND. Look for OX stations to use the special prefix OX25 followed by their own suffix between June 1-30th. This special event is to celebrate the 25 years of home rule/goverment in Greenland.

OY, FAROE ISLANDS. Operators Kevin/ON5DRE and Erwin/ON4QJ are expected to be active now through May 13th. Activity will be on 160-2 meters, with an emphasis on 80/40/17/2 meters.

QSL INFO AND NEWS..................
QSL 3V8BB via I5JHW for activity in the 2004 A.R.I. International Contest (May 1-2nd). Operator was Giovanni, I5JHW.

A61AJ. Just a reminder! When QSLing the upcoming A61AJ CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) contacts, please QSL to K2UO (for North/South America) and DJ2MX (for Europe/Asia/Africa/Oceania).

QSL KY4DX via K4WW. Members of Derby City DX Association (DCDXA) activated KY4DX in commemoration of the 130th Running of The Kentucky Derby. An 8X10, full color, suitable for framing, certificate is available. U.S. stations please enclose 2.00 USD, DX stations 3.00 USD, along with your QSL card. SASE IS NOT REQUIRED!! Repeat, SASE IS NOT REQUIRED!! Certificates for DX stations WILL NOT be returned through the ARRL outgoing QSL bureau. QSL INFORMATION: Shelby Summerville, K4WW, 6506 Lantana Court, Louisville, KY 40229-1544 USA.

Berkin, TA3J, reports that he sent out QSL cards for TA3YJ, TA3YJ/0, TA3YJ/3, TA3YJ/3 (LH), TA3YJ/4, TA3YJ/4 (LH), SV1/TA3YJ, LZ2/TA3YJ, TA3J, TA3J/0, TA3J/1, TA3J/2, TA3J/3, TA3J/3 (LH), TA3J/4, TA3J/4 (LH), SV1/TA3J, LZ1/TA3J, LZ2/TA3J, YM3BU, YM3ATA, YM3SV, YM75TA, YM21TA, YM3LZ/WPX2000 and YM3LZ/WAE2000 to the QSL Bureaus of Germany, Greece, Japan and Romania direct on April 28, 2004.

TP7CE, COUNCIL OF EUROPE. Francis/F6FQK (TP2CE Liaison Officer) informs OPDX that the last valid TP7CE activity for the "Council of Europe Radio Club Challenge" will take place May 5th (for RTTY) and May 7-9th (for RTTY/SSB/CW). Deadline to send QSOs list: June 30th, 2004. Rules and details for the Challenge can found on the following Web in six different languages at: http://ewwa.free.fr

V31, BELIZE (Also, IOTA Op). An Uruguayan-Argentinean team are planning a joint DXpedition venture to Belize between May 5-14th. Operators will be Mario/CX4CR, Carlos/LU2NI and Bert/CX3AN. The team will operate from a site in Placencia South Belize (V31MD's Shack). Activity will be on 160-6 meters CW/SSB/Digital with a special emphasis on the Lower/WARC bands. On 6 meters there should be a single rig on for continous listening on 50.110 MHz. QSL Manager is LU2NI. Callsigns will be issued after their arrival. ADDED NOTE: During the team's last 4 days, they will activate South Water Cay (IOTA NA-180).

V63, MICRONESIA. Sho, JA7HMZ, will be active as V63DX from Pohnpei Island, May 24-27th. Activity will be 40-10 meters CW/SSB. QSL via JA7HMZ.

XU, CAMBODIA (Update). Jaak, ES1FB (who will be active with Oleg, ES1RA, as XU7ACE and XU7ARA, respectively, between May 7-19th) states that they will be active during the IOTA Contest (July 24-25th) as XU7ACV from Koh Pas (AS-133). QSL XU7ACE and XU7ACV via ES1FB. QSL XU7ARA via ES1RA. Visit the following Web page at: http://www.hot.ee/xu7ace

Ebay has hurt hamfests recently for sure. Presumably this will be eased when the buyers come to their senses, as the sellers are happy to sell items for more than what they cost new. The bubble will eventually burst, or we will have proven that inbreeding is more widespread than we thought.

In the meantime, buy new! It's often cheaper than ebay, and you get a warrantee!

B. I like the current hamfests, but I'd support one like you describe too.

I have friends who have gotten interested in amateur radio from going with me to hamfests because they were into computers.

One of the more amusing stories I have heard regarding hamfests. it is rumored to have happened at the Fulton County Hamfest in Wauseon Ohio.
It seems a lady saw the sign, pulledin and payed the entrance fee, then asked, "whats with all the junk I see people selling, I'm hungry where is the ham".

Thank you so much for all your help (Crazy George, Roy, Tom, John)!! Per Crazy George's suggestion, I am picking up some books tomorrow at Borders <grin>. However, the posts that I received were very helpful. Let me explain a little more what I am trying to do, just to see if I am even close to the right track. We have a Microwave link that operates at 5 GHz... specifically one sides transmits between 5.25-5.25GHz and receives at 5.725-5.825 GHz. The product we are using for this link is a Stratum 100 (http://www.commputercations.com/products/wsstratum.htm - The only datasheet I could find). This link went down hard a few days ago, so we switched polarization (From Horizontal to Vertical). Things got much better, but we still were taking corrupt packets. So, we went out there with an Advantest R3465 SA (http://www.ntecusa.com/graphics/pdf/WE106.pdf), an Omni antenna, and 10 degree directional dish, with the hopes to (1) look at the "same" noise floor that the Stratum sees and (2), try to track down any single direction (And hopefully antenna) that is causing interference. Now, I thought I knew this stuff <grin>, at least enough to retrieve somewhat accurate results. Boy was I wrong! I scanned the receiving frequencies using the following settings:

Start Freq: 5.725GHz
End Freq: 5.825GHz
Span: 100MHz
RBW: 5 MHz
VBW: 1 MHz
Sweep Time: 50ms
ATT: 10dB
REF: 0.0dBm (10dB/)

Knowing what I know now, I would have kept the RBW value MUCH lower (Like 10kHz). But what I saw was a "noise floor" - Which I was assuming to be (I believe) the Thermal noise floor which I now know to be the Filter Noise Floor, peaking out at about -64dBm. Now our receive strength when the radio is on is -65dB... So I figured "Hey, there is our problem... the receiver in the Stratum unit is seeing the noise floor so loud that it can hardly see the actual signal". What makes this even more believable is that these readings were taken in the middle of Boston on the 26th floor roof. So I packed up and went home... Then I tried the same test at my fairly isolated house... and got the same results!

Now I know there is at least one answer to how to avoid this embarrassing situation in the future... read a book (Which I will start tomorrow)... however, I really would like to get this link up in short order and need to know these numbers. Am I correct in saying that I need to (1) contact the manufacture of the Stratum unit, and find out what their Bandwidth filter looks like and then (2), Set my RBW to the same or lower setting as their radio and do the test again?

If the above two steps are correct than great... I can do that... but I really would like to make use of the measurements I already took if possible.

Again, I really appreciate the comments from before. While I don't yet understand all of it, these really point me in the right direction, and I will keep reading/researching until it all comes together.

Thank you,
Bill B. - N1SNI

KK9G is a fucking coward. Refer to http://www.donkboy.com/kk9g

He is a has been. A wannabe that really has no skills, just what he reads. He is NO hacker. He is a coward. He picks on people when they dont bow down and kiss his ass.

Dan Dews, KK9G, is good friends with W4AMP, W4SEX, AB8MQ, in fact, others report that Dan was seen in Glendale, WV at the home of Woger Wiseman attending the monthly lavender lads meeting. Dan is running for VP next term.

Sources also report Dan has been involved in NUMEROUS illegal activities including, but not limited to, ATM knockoffs, theft, credit card fraud, international wireline fraud, and many other crimes. He also broadcasts a pirate radio station on Russian military freq's at odd hours, and has been linked to the numbers stations comming from Iraq. That 20WPM CW really does come in handy doesnt it???

Is the end coming near for Amateur Radio Station KK9G? Will Dan be in prison soon? Will the FCC get him before the FBI, CIA, FTC, DEA, STD, KKK etc etc???

Find out in our next report coming your way to USENET very soon!

I assume these unit are the unlicensed variety and use spread spectrum technology (frequency hopping)? If interference is the cause, it may be hard to find since you probably don't know the discreet frequencies used in the hops. If I am understanding you correctly, you are looking for the ambient level of noise coming down your coax to the radio? I know just enough to be dangerous as far as spectrum analyzers go. We just plug the coax into the analyzer and see where the "fuzz" is located at the bottom of the display, i.e. -108 dbm.

I am not familiar with the radio you are using, but if it like the ones we use, can you swap frequency bands such as Band A or Band B? We have some Lynx and Tsunami 2.4 GHz T1 radios where the back filter unit comes off and we invert it to select another band of frequencies. Might be worth a shot if you can do it (to both ends of course!)...

Good luck! Let us all know what you find!!

2076. Re: How to prove prior ham license ??

All the information you need can be found on the ARRL web site http://www.arrl.org/news/restructuring/faq.html
I copied the section on old license proof for you below.

Bruce Anderson
W1LUS
5. What do I need for "documentary proof" of having held my Technician license before March 21, 1987?

Obviously, if you have an original or a copy of your Technician license issued anytime prior to March 21, 1987, that would suffice. Other documentary evidence could include an original CSCE for Element 3 issued prior to that date; an FCC verification letter of having held a Technician license prior to March 21, 1987; a document from the FCC's contractor, ITS Inc; or possibly a Callbook listing dated prior to March 21, 1987, indicating your license class as Technician.

6. I've lost my old license and didn't keep any copies. How do I get verification from the FCC that I held a Technician license prior to March 21, 1987?

The FCC says to send any requests for verification of a pre-March 21, 1987
Technician license in writing to FCC, 1270 Fairfield Rd, ATTN: Amateur Section, Gettysburg, PA 17325. The request must include name, address, telephone number, date of birth, call sign issued at that time, and when the Technician license was granted (if exact date is not known, give the approximate timeframe). The FCC asks those inquiring to include any information that may be helpful in researching these requests, but it does not need to know details of the examination session, such as where the test was administered or who gave it. "These requests must be researched on microfiche, so they will be very time-consuming," an FCC spokesperson said, adding that no one should expect an overnight response.

You also may contact ITS Inc. For a fee, ITS will research prior licensing records and should be able to provide you with the necessary documentary proof. ITS recommends calling them at 717-337-1433 to place an order for "verification of a pre-March 21, 1987, amateur license." E-mail requests are not recommended. The verification letter you receive will be on FCC stationery and stamped with the FCC seal. The ITS Web site is http://www.itsdocs.com/.

2077. Navy Radiomen

Radiomen
---
by Bob 'Dex' Armstrong

In the old gravel-gut boat service, your only link with the civilized world was via the radio shack. A cubby hole on Requin aft of the scope wells in the control room... It was the home of the spark shufflers.

If you were in tight with a radioman, you could get ball scores. Sewer pipe sailors lost touch with the teams they followed... A hazard common to submarine sailors and people who take a moon walk and miss the ride home.
Actually, we lost touch with just about everything. In the war movies when they come across some guy who claims to be an American, they ask him questions only an American could answer. If they had picked me up and asked me anything but (A) The names of Roy's and Gene's horses (B) Who won World War II and (C) Blaze Starr's bust size, I would have been one 'up the creek' sonuvabitch. Hell, we didn't know Jack Kennedy was the president until we snorkeled a day later.

Only a complete idiot would make a bet with a radioman. Chances were, the radioman had the final score before you tossed your wampum on the mess table.

I remember one great night brought to us by the spark pushers in the radio shack.

We had finished whatever nonsense they sent us out to do and were making turns for home. The Old Man opened the showers... Guys were bumming razor blades and rooting around in side lockers for something that would pass for a towel. Next thing you know, the foo-foo juice came out. Now there's a myth that all smoke boat sailors eventually bought into, sooner or later...
Aqua Velva was never meant to disguise poor personal hygene. No matter how much of the stuff you poured on a dungaree shirt you had been inside of for two weeks, you were still one disgustingly foul smelling sonuvabitch. You could spray French perfume on an engineman with a fire hose and buzzards would still circle around the bastard when he went topside. But I digress...

A group of us were sitting around in the crew's mess drinking coffee and ragging guys heading fore and aft. A radioman came in and told us we were in for one helluva good laugh. He monkeyed around with the RBO and patched it into something in the radio shack.

For those of you who never had the pleasure of riding diesel boats or other seagoing steel-hulled garbage scows, I must explain something here.

You could make phone calls from a ship at sea. Here is how it worked. The radioman would raise someone ashore called a 'marine operator'. Then the radioman would give the marine operator the name and phone number of whoever the bluejacket aboard ship wanted to call. The marine operator would then place a collect call and when the party answered and accepted the charges, the marine operator would form a radio link with the ship and 'Bill the Bluejacket' could talk to his sweetie.

From sweetie to the marine operator was private and confidential... From the marine operator to Barnicle Bill, it was up for grabs... Great evening entertainment.

"Poopsie, is that you?"

"Yes ducky doo, it's me."

"You miss me, peach blossom?"

"Oh yes... YES, darling!"

"Miss me a lot?"

"Oh, I miss you soooo much I can't wait to hold you and..."

"Okay darling... Are you going to meet the ship?"

"No sweetheart, I parked the car in the pier head lot... Keys are under the mat."

"Why aren't you meeting the boat, sweetheart?"

"Oh, it was supposed to be a suprise... If you must know, the kids are spending the night with the Webbers. I bought a new nightie and I figured we'd break it in tonight."

The animals would cheer,

"LET'S HEAR IT FOR MAMMA AND HER NEW NIGHTIE!!"

And so it went. Bluejackets phoning in after six months in the Med... Great entertainment.

"Darlin' can't wait... Just you and me and a can of Crisco!"

We heard it all... It was great... Laugh after laugh. A very memorable evening... Best and cheapest fun we ever had on Requin.

There were times... Moments that we took for granted and that passed with little notice. It's funny how they come back late in life when you have the time to reshuffle your memories... The collected moments that constitute your life.

Radiomen linked us with the world. Another thing we just took for granted and that was so damned important looking back. Never thanked them... Should have.

Great guys, all of them.

Your Software Must be robust enough to accept, reject and process corrupt packets as you will Always get them with wireless, always. --You will ALWAYS have bad/corrupted packets with any wireless system.-- The 5 band antennas have very splintered patterns, and ducting from point to point. and you will have +20dB one second and -20 the next second, your firmware, and software must handle this stuff, RF cannot do it alone. Mother nature set the rules on this one.

The MFGR will tell you the max range, and the dishes to use, rain degrades the signal, as well as heat (ducting) The big boys use 4 dishes for a link ATT @ 11 Gigs two on each side spaced vertically some so when ducting occures, the other dish picks it up. If the cost is low enough, you could put in another entire link as backup. Also % of packets getting though is an indicator of SNR, but that can depend on how you have the link hooked up, as a LAN extention, you have timing constraints, and so on. 90% or better is great. Less than 20% you may have a link or LAN timing problem (path too long, pointing is off, ducting, SW lame).

On a roof in Boston, your 5 gig unit may be susceptible to radio and TV interference, the scan may be detected on a junction in the unit. Signal blasts through the case and so on. Urban RF is a dirty world, and we can't see it either!

Assuming classical "noise" as we are all probably thinking...
First, a minor correction to the above "considerably greater", Roy. If the EXternal noise is just 6dB above the SA's INternal noise (I guess 4 times can be considered 'considerable'), then the resulting displayed value will be only 1 dB higher than the incomming noise actually is. Noise power (when combining in one receiver) simply adds. To see the math, think this way. A 1 dB increase amounts to 1.25 times the power. That extra 25 percent is one fourth the original power. 25% of the power is 6dB down from the original. SO adding some power which is -6 dB (or 25% the original) will raise the total 1 dB.

However, The poster used the term "noise", but doesn't know the source of his problem. His data hits can be caused by other than what we are thinking is noise. It can be (sounds like since it recently started) spurious signals in his channel OR it could be IM being caused from strong signals getting into his receiver. The spurious in-band stuff could be narrow signals or wideband. Typical CDMA signals behave much like simple wide-band noise as we think of noise. A narrow band signal/spur is different.

From a later post I see that he is trying to measure some junk that has appeared on the link frequency causing interference. In any case, the front-end noise floor (noise figure) of the SA will determine how far down you will be able to see and if it is not low enough, then you won't see the interference. I can not comment on the Advantest sensitivity. If you have access to a low noise amplifier of the type used in your system, it can be used in front of the SA and MAY raise the sensitivity (lower the noise figure/floor) enough to see yout interference.

Good luck. We've had a strange low level (around -123 dBm)spur on our repeater input since last fall and can't locate it...wish I had lotsa time.

As we aged we moved OUT of a condo. Too small for our needs and too many restrictions, although I was able to put up 4 vhf/uhf verticals and a 200-foot long wire.

Young thirty-something family members, though, moved into a rental condo and one of their conditions was an internet connection "in the wall" - no problem finding it in any place that they looked.

Finally, installation of small-dish satellite antennas for delivery of broadcast and video services (including internet) has better legal pre-emption than we hams have with PRB-1.

Haha!

If you fall for this, you got what you deserved. LOL! Of course, it is just best to ignore it. Sometimes it is fun to jerk their chains a little.
I send 'em an email something this:

"I understand your plight and would be willing to help out.

I will send you an account # into which to deposit the funds. When the certified check arrives, I will instruct the bank to place a freeze on the account until it clears. Two weeks after it clears, you may give me instructions on the disposition of these monies. This will be a new account with no withdrawal privileges except for me. This means that my personal accounts cannot be touched or accessed in any way or form. If you trust me so much as to email me out of the blue (yeah, right), then you will trust me to administer these funds in such a way that no one gets hurt.

Sincerely,

blah, blah
\

PS: I wasn't born yesterday"

How come they never contact me again ;) (wink, wink)

Dear Jack,
Thanks for your pictures, it's a surprise you are still asking for my family photos because i sent some yesterday to you.
Attached is my parents.
My sister Dora.
And myself.

You can see our family house before the war broke out.
On monday i will seek for a legal practioner to draft us an agreement document protrecting both parties interests, the draft will be send to you for your sturdy and signing after which i will retrieve the stones from the storage house for shipment to your given contact address pending my arrival to meet with you.

If you have a lawyer friend ,it will cost us nothing to draft the contarct pappers, or you can get a lawyer over there because it will cost up to $150 dollar to draft it here.
Have a nice weekend.

The most important thing is that i will be transfering our family remaining cuts diamonds weighing 3.89kg (42.550)carats to your given contact address pending my arrival to meet with you in your country for the sales and investing the money realised from the sales.

1. You are not aloyed to conduct the sales without my present or authorisation.
You are collecting as comission 12% of the sum total realised from the sales.

There may be some other informtion to be included but allow me to discuss with my mother .
I will email you back later today.

Dear Jack,
You must have been expecting my reply, it was delayed due to the fact that my mother wanted to get an advise from one of the christain mothers who have been surporting us finacialy regarding feeding.

We would like the contract pappers to be drafted here in dakar. My mother's friend know a very good lawyer who can always advise us.

Please send us one hundred US dollars. The money is the lawyer's consultation fee.
If you can send the money today, then the draft will be ready tomorrow morning. I will emil you a copy for your sturdy and opinion before apending signature.
Wire the money through western union money transfer.

hi samson, i thought you gave me the option to have a lawyer here draw up the forms?
i have contacted phillip and he said he would be willing to do it.....
why do you change your mind? please justify this....

(WE WILL SEE WHAT SAMSON COMES UP WITH, I DONT THINK HE EXPECTED ME TO COME BACK SAYING I KNEW A LAWYER) :)

Hello,
I'm thinking of creating an online radio program that would showcase music by independent, self-produced musicians; but I have a couple of legal questions I'd like to ask:

- How to protect myself against the possibility of someone sending me copyrighted music, not belonging to them, but pretending it does? It is obviously impossible to check that such or such song was not actually recorded or written by someone else...
- Is there a standard contract enabling an artist to allow a broadcaster to use their music free of charge (knowing in this case that the artist, through the promotion, is very much the beneficary, and knowing that the program itself is non-profit making)?

thank you

Guillaume.

You're in the wrong newsgroup.

This one is about amateur radio, ie licensed two way communication, not broadcasting.

You need to find a newsgroup that relates to broadcasting, and likely there must be a newsgroup specific to "internet broadcasting".

The 2004 Oregon QSO Party will take place this Saturday, May 8, from 1400 to 0200 UTC. Sponsored by the Central Oregon DX Club, the object is (of course) to work stations in Oregon, and for Oregon stations to work the world.

For full information select the Oregon QSO Party link on the CODXC web page: http://www.codxc.org.

We have commitments to have all 36 Oregon counties on the air.
It's not too late for Oregon hams planning to be active to register their operation through the website.

If you're in any kind of big city, just solicit 'on the air'.

A number of years ago, analog cell days, a friend called me and started to talk on his cell about something that should have been kept secure.

I told him to stop, and he asked why. I told him there could be eavesdroppers. He said no way, the cell phone company told him people couldn't listen.

So we made a bet.

He gave his office number out 'over the air' in the call, and we asked any listeners to call it and leave a message that they were out there. And we made a bet on it. Sam Adams at the time...

As soon as we did that, he told me he was going to hang up and call his office to make sure the phone messages were clear and he'd call me back.

I waited and waited. Finally he called. His office number was BUSY and he couldn't get through to his voice mail. When he finally did, he had a number of messages, seven if I recall.right, of people listening. One guy even left a message with a signal strength report and he obviously had a beam
as he reported 'direction' as my friend was driving...

Mr. Glenn A. Baxter
RR 1 Box 776
Belgrade Lakes, ME 04918

RE: Amateur Radio license K1MAN

Dear Mr. Baxter:

This letter explains in what ways your Amateur station has come into compliance with Commission rules since our letter to you of January 29, 2002; and notifies you of two areas of operation that, if not corrected, will lead to enforcement action against your license and/or designation of your renewal application for a hearing.

By letter dated January 29, 2002, the Commission notified you that your understanding of various Amateur Radio Service rules was incorrect. We outlined your apparent misconceptions regarding station control, publishing a transmitting schedule and how that related to interference, threats made to licensee complainants, including threats made with so-called "felony complaint affidavits", broadcasting and broadcasting of tape recordings and telephone conversations.

The January 29 letter detailed complaints received by the Commission, and explained that your method of station control, i.e., "a timer from Radio Shack", did not achieve compliance with the Commission's Rules when you were not present at the control point for your station and, therefore, did not satisfy the Commission's Rules regarding automatic control of a station. We explained to you that to comply with the Commission's Rules you must be at the transmitter, or at the transmitter control point, every moment your station is transmitting when your station is locally or remotely controlled; and that if the station is controlled by telecommand from the control point using a radio link, the frequencies used for telecommand must comply with the Section 97.201 requirements for an auxiliary station (may transmit only on the 1.25 m and shorter wavelength bands, except 219-220, 222-222.150, 431-433 and 435-438 MHz segments).

By letter dated March 4, 2003, the Commission's Boston Office notified you that Commission monitoring and numerous complaints filed with the Commission indicated that the problems outlined in January 2002 had not been corrected. The letter stated that your Amateur station was apparently being used for broadcasting various programs having nothing to do with Amateur Radio; and that transmissions from your station were being used for deliberate interference and for communications in which you apparently had a pecuniary interest. The Boston Office letter stated that transmissions started and ended erratically, were sometimes repetitive and abruptly ended with no identification as required by Commission rules, and that such operation indicated that the transmissions were not under proper control of a licensed operator. The letter noted also that you continually broadcast notices of so-called "felony complaint affidavits " that you claimed to have filed with the United States Justice Department against other Amateur Radio licensees whom you perceived to have interfered with your broadcasts, or refused to relinquish their operating frequency to you.

The Boston Office's letter stated that transmissions from your Amateur station included references to a degree program and directed listeners to your website that advertised an "American Radio School Technician Degree in Electronics" for "$299.95". On that web site you solicited donations for radio equipment, advertised a credit card, and solicited donations and advertised for "IARN" and "AARA". The letter from the Boston office pointed out that such use of your station was in apparent violation of Section 97.113(a)(3) of the Commission's rules, which prohibits "Communications for hire or for material compensation, direct or indirect...." and "Communications in which the station licensee or control operator has a pecuniary interest..."

The letter from the Boston Office requested that you provide substantial additional information about the operation of your station, including submission of a log detailing the information on a weekly basis until further notice. In January 2004, the Boston office notified you that you could discontinue the log submissions, and referred the case to this office.

We have reviewed the information you submitted, as well as numerous complaints filed against your station. Additionally we have reviewed tape recordings made by Commission personnel of your transmissions at various times during 2003 and 2004 subsequent to the Boston Office letter of March 3, 2003.

It is the finding of this office that you are, with some exceptions, generally in compliance with the Commission's rules in the Amateur Service related to broadcasting and information bulletins, and we explain as follows. Broadcasting is prohibited in the Amateur Radio Service, with some exceptions. Section 97.3(a)(10) defines broadcasting as "transmissions intended for reception by the general public, either direct or relayed." One-way transmissions are limited in the Amateur service, but an exception is allowed in Section 97.111(b)(6) for "Transmissions necessary to disseminate information bulletins."

Information bulletins are defined by Section 97.3(a)(26) as messages "directed only to Amateur operators consisting solely of subject matter of direct interest to the Amateur service." There are no specific time limits placed upon information bulletins by Commission rules. A review of your programs at random times since March 3, 2003 indicates that your transmissions were directed to Amateur Radio operators, not to the general public, and that the individual bulletins were related to the Amateur Radio Service. The only notable exception was the offering of a reward for information leading to the identity of parties making threatening telephone calls to you.

The station control problems outlined to you in warnings from the Commission appear, with minor exceptions, to have been corrected. During the monitoring period your station abruptly ended transmission with no identification in one instance, and started transmissions in mid-sentence in another instance.

There are, however, two areas in the operation of your Amateur station that must be corrected in order to avoid enforcement action and/or a designation of your renewal application for hearing to determine if you are qualified to remain a licensee. These are: 1) deliberate interference resulting from your commencing operation on top of ongoing communications, in violation of Section 97.101(a) and (d); and 2) use of your Amateur station for pecuniary interests, in violation of Sections 97.113(a)(2)and (3).

Regarding deliberate interference, we receive continuing complaints, and our monitoring verifies, that your transmissions start up on top of existing communications of individual licensees as well as nets such as the Salvation Army Team Emergency Radio Network. Such operation constitutes deliberate interference. Stations engaging in ongoing communications are not obligated to stop transmitting when K1MAN wants to start transmitting on a frequency, and complainants are so advised by the Commission. You appear to believe that the publication of a transmission schedule gives you the right to begin transmitting on a certain frequency at a certain time, even if the frequency is occupied. It does not.

All frequencies in the Amateur Radio Service are shared--no frequency is assigned for the exclusive use of any station, and your Amateur station has no greater rights to a frequency at any particular time than any other Amateur station. Section 97.101(d) of the rules prohibits an Amateur station from willfully or maliciously interfering with any radio communication or signal. Moreover, publishing a schedule is merely one of the several conditions necessary for the control operator of a club station to accept compensation for transmitting information bulletins, pursuant to Section 97.113(d) of the Commission's rules. Your station K1MAN, however, is not a club station.

Regarding use of an Amateur station for pecuniary interest, we note that your Amateur Radio program transmissions regularly advertise your web page at www.K1man.com, and on those pages you advertise items for sale by the American Amateur Radio Association (AARA), including T shirts, hats and a "Technician Degree Diploma". You advertise the sales commissions and "overrides" that your State Directors and

Section Managers can receive, and detail ways in which your Section Managers can earn money by recruiting members, selling hats, name badges or T shirts.

Section 97.113(a)(2) prohibits communications for hire or for material compensation, direct or indirect, paid or promised. Section 97.113(a)(3) prohibits communications in which the station licensee or control operator has a pecuniary interest.

We remind you that any attempts to threaten or intimidate Amateur radio licensees operating on the Amateur bands will reflect adversely upon your qualifications to remain a Commission licensee, and would be the subject of a license revocation or renewal hearing. By letter dated December 11, 2001, you were warned against the sending of your so-called "felony complaint affidavits" to various Amateur Radio licenses that you perceive to either cause interference to your station or which do not relinquish to you the frequency on which they are operating.

Complainants were advised by the Commission to forward any such "affidavits" they received to the Commission, and that they could otherwise be ignored. The United States Attorney for your jurisdiction also warned you that the mailing of such "affidavits" is contrary to law. Apparently you have discontinued those threats. We also remind you that, in regard to the taping and broadcasting of telephone calls, you must comply with applicable state laws.

In conclusion, failure to correct the deliberate interference caused by K1MAN, and the continued use of K1MAN for pecuniary interests, will lead to enforcement action against your license. Either would be sufficient to designate your renewal application for an evidentiary hearing to determine if you are qualified to remain a Commission licensee.

An adverse finding in regard to threats to complainant licensees, or violation of state law regarding recording and broadcasting telephone conversations, would lead to enforcement action against your license and would be sufficient to designate your renewal application for an evidentiary hearing to determine if you are qualified to remain a Commission licensee. You would have the burden of proof in such a proceeding.

You should be aware that in 1990, the Commission revised its character qualifications policy, expanding the types of non-FCC-related misconduct that it would consider as bearing on licensee or applicant character qualifications (Policy Regarding Character Qualifications in Broadcast Licensing, Policy Statement and Order, 5 FCC RCD 3252 (1990) (Character Policy Statement), recon. granted in part, denied in part, 6 FCC Rcd 3448 (1991), further recon. granted, 7 FCC Rcd 6564 (1992). The Commission concluded that "a propensity to comply with the law generally is relevant to the Commission's public interest analysis, and that an applicant's or licensee's willingness to violate other laws, and, in particular, to commit felonies, also bears on our confidence that an applicant or licensee will conform to FCC rules and policies. The 1990 Character Policy Statement applies to Amateur Radio licensees just as it does to all other FCC licensees (See, e.g., Herbert L. Schoenbohm, Decision, 13 FCC Rcd 15028 (1998), recon. denied, 13 FCC Rcd 23774 (1998), aff'd in part, dismissed in part sub nom. Schoenbohm v. FCC, 204 F.3d 243 (2000), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 405 (2000); Leslie D. Brewer, Order to Show Cause, Notice of Order of Suspension, Notice of Opportunity for Hearing, and Notice of Apparent Liability for a Forfeiture, 16 FCC Rcd 5671, licenses revoked, 16 FCC Rcd 12878 (2001).

Accordingly, we will continue to review the operation of K1MAN in light of the issues outlined above.

NOTE: Issuance by the FCC of a Warning Notice indicates that the FCC has what it believes to be reliable evidence of possible rules infractions and not necessarily that the recipient has violated FCC rules. The FCC has the authority, pursuant to §97.519(d)(2) of the rules to readminister any examination element previously administered by a volunteer examiner. These enforcement letters are representative of recent Advisory Notices, Warning Notices, Notices of Violation and other FCC communications to licensees and others involving possible serious rules violations. The best thing that could happen to Amateur Radio would be for K1MAN to be taken off the air.

If you don't know why, then you are a part of the problem like he is.
Tell me why someone who has no respect for other amateurs, who interfers with other amateur communications, issues phoney "felony complaint affidavits" to harass other amateurs, threatens other amateurs because they refuse to give up the frequency to him, willfully violates the FCC rules, uses amateur radio for monitary gain (against the rules), engages in broadcasting (against the FCC rules), should be on the air?

Once you have the site, send me an Id/password and I will put together something decent (but simple) for you. I won't spend as much time on it as my employees did on my corporate sites, but I will make it at least as nice as my home site.

For sure! Baxter has not mellowed a bit. I remember when he got his kicks knocking the fine, friendly gentlemen who ran the Sunday morning Bermuda Net off their traditional frequency with his one-way high-powered blather. Then Baxter went and declared a national emergency for the country of Bermuda! What a nut. How long must we endure Baxter's abuse of amateur radio? AK

--------- Tony's letter to the Bermuda Government Telecom Officer --------

Antony Sxxxx, VP9--
Hamilton, Bermuda
August 21st. 1989

Mr. E. Pitman,

Governement Telecommunications Officer, Department of Telecommunications, Hamilton.

Dear Ted,

I am faxing a transcript of the broadcast put out by K1MAN last week.

When you have read this I would like to have a meeting with you, maybe we could have lunch and discuss it then, to fill you in on what actually happened.

Your support with this would be appreciated. I have been to the American Consulate and will be writing a formal letter of complaint this week, requesting a public apology from K1MAN. He is advocating that I should lose my license for NOT passing third party traffic when the "world needed to know" and he had declared an emergency. He was doing this under the authority of the "FCC" according to him. I reminded him that we were not a State of the United States of America and that we were governed by the Department of Telecommunications and also the British arrangements for third party traffic. He could declare whatever he wanted to but until we had clearance, we would not pass it

No emergency had been declared and as far as we were concerned it was an unofficial net standing by in case we were needed should an emergency be declared. He did not like being informed that we were handling the situation ourselves very efficiently, without his help.

Please telephone me when it is convenient and I will explain more, or as I said, maybe we could have lunch.

Yours sincerely,
Antony Sxxxx VP9--

This is a response to the editorial broadcast by K1MAN after Hurricane Dean.

STATEMENT -
KlMAN stated "IARN activated for Hurricane Dean as it neared Bermuda, Sunday August 6th. 1989 at 11.30 UTC. IARN Headquarters in Belgrade Lakes etc. received a call from Tony Sxxxxx, VP9--, requesting assistance from IARN on 14.275mHz. Tony wants to activate 14 . 275mHz. . .etc. "

FACT - At 11.15 UTC, VP9-- & VP9__ activated the Bermuda net.

A broadcast was in progress and VP9-- decided to telephone KlMAN.

The conversation was "Glen Baxter" and the response was "Tony Sxxxx VP9-- in Bermuda. We want 14.275mHz cleared due to the impending Hurricane"

Response from Glen Baxter, "No problem" and the telephone conversation finished.

FACT - At no time was a request made for IARN to assist or to activate.

FACT - KlMAN checked in to the Bermuda net at 11.45 UTC and he was informed, (as were many others who had checked in) of the current situation in Bermuda.

STATEMENT -
"Associated Press and therefore the entire world, was, de facto, cut off from the world of public information dissemination..... up to the minute detail report, now assured that ham radio and IARN had a well established and well maintained link to Bermuda"

FACT - Glen Baxter was not on a well maintained link to Bermuda. He checked in and was given information the same as many other hams. The so called emergency was K1MAN generated and not an emergency in Bermuda. The reports of lack of readiness at 20.00 UTC were absolute poppycock. All of this information had been issued by the Bermuda Hams between the hours of 11.15 UTC and 13.00 UTC that Bermuda had been well prepared.

STATEMENT
by Glen Baxter ".....festival the previous Thursday which included a soccer match between teams on either end of the Island."

FACT - Again, poppycock. K1MAN had been informed that the Cup Match was a cricket game between St. Georges and Somerset, had been played, the result was a draw and everyone had a good time. The match was on Thursday and Friday when the storm was hundreds of miles away. This Information had been given hours earlier.

FACT - IARU had generated an emergency, no one else. Totally uncalled for "here is the important news we gathered for Associated Press." IARN were more interested in promoting themselves and Glen Baxter in particular and when he found that he was not wanted on the net and did not have control of it he resorted to terminological inexactitudes to achieve his ends.

FACT - Glen Baxter relayed conversations he had with VP9-- to Associated Press without the consent or knowledge of VP9-- at the time. This is in contravention of International Law.

As an American citizen he has no right to assume Governmental authority and issue edicts to hams in other countries. At no time can he advocate publicly that licenses should be revoked and should he have any complaints then these should be directed through the Department of Telecommunications in Bermuda. His pontificating on people's attitudes and his declarations of emergencies allows him to promote himself and his organization in such a way that his approach does sound plausible. As they say you can fool some of the people some of the time but not all of the people all of the time and K1MAN does not fool any Bermuda Ham. His trip to Moscow paid for by the Young Communist League leaves one to suspect his motives and his reporting.

As our numbers continue to dwindle regardless of this proposal, in fact this may make the numbers go down faster, I give ham radio 10 maybe 15 years and it'll be gone except for a tiny BPL/Part 15 device shared hf band of frequencies sort of like 17 meters only it will be channelized like 60 meters. There won't be any need for more, only less. The commercal interests will gobble it up and the spectrum will be filled with digital garbage from gadgets yet to be invented.

An interesting story and yet another opinion of why Baxter should lose

Lloyd,

Personally, I think K1MAN should be removed. Why? Because of the attitude "I am always right." and might makes right. It is such attitudes that brought us Tailgate, the Marine Corps mess (where medals were jammed into bare flesh, amongst other things) and the current situation where the mighty (who served, maybe, perhaps, uh .... well, he did receive at least one paycheck - I think) and their well monied supporters have caused us irreperable damage in the sight of the world with abominable treatment of prisoners.

Argue all you want; I won't. The world will pass judgement. The best thing is the removal of the current administration of this country and removal of K1MAN would do the amateur service a good boost in the right - uh, make that proper - direction.

Damn that was good Jim Hampton. I really liked the way you wound MAN in with alleged prisoner mis treatment in Iraq, and got it all, including MAN to be blamed on Bush.

You should go write for CNN. I hear they are sinking fast and need another writer from their political commentary (see political comedy) section.

Lloyd,

Regardless, he has not totally cleaned up his act. My best thought would be to eliminate any kind of "broadcasting". The ARRL wouldn't care for that, obviously, but there are going to be more folks that feel if one person (or organization) can, then they can. They can indeed, if they follow the rules. But those with the attitudes that bother me are always 'pushing' the envelope. Either they are given carte blanc, or others start the same thing. In any event, the willful interference bothers me a lot. This has been getting worse over time and if not nipped in the bud, amateur radio might just as well be called amateur cb. Sorry, just my opinion.

Dear Jack
After discussing with my mother , she was advised by one of the christain mothers who have been surporting us finacialy regarding feeding.

We would like the contract pappers to be drafted here in dakar. My mother's friend know a very good lawyer who can always advise us.

Please send us one hundred US dollars. The money is the lawyer's consultation fee.
If you can send the money today, then the draft will be ready tomorrow morning. I will emil you a copy for your sturdy and opinion before apending
signature.
Wire the money through western union money transfer.

---
jacks reply to him......
hi samson,

you are not answering my question, again, why did you say i could get a lawyer over here to do it, and then retract the statement later after giving me addl instructions for the lawyer?

i dont like this thinking you have, from the sounds of it, you already knew of the lawyer in your country, but gave me the option to use one here....

that is going back on your word, not good for a business transaction.......

please reply to me why you said what you said and then changed it, and not some skate around the reason comment either. i wish to have a direct reason.

---
samsons reply.....Wed, 05 May 2004 22:15:54 +0000

Dear Jack,
we are gething no where by runing about the bush.
I requested that you provide a lawyer if you can.
You said you can and on discussing what the terms should like like with my mother, she decided to have a chat with a confidencial christain mother who always assists us. THe woman advised that we should use a local lawye here who we can locate, after we are here and likewise the stones.No need using a lawyer from the states since it can be done localy.

THe draft will be sent for your sturdy before signatures.
The earlier you send the consultation fee, the better for us as we have no time to lose.
GOD BLESS.
SAMSON.

my reply to samson...Thu, 6 May 2004 16:49:04 -0700 (PDT)

hi samson,
i donot trust your word now, you told me i could do one thing, then backed out.

sorry samson, i am a business man, and you dont go back on your word, it is bad business practice.
i was potentially going to send you certain thousands of dollars as an investment, but i can not trust your word now.
i dont think i can continue helping you now....

you should not have offered what you did only to change your mind after i communicated with you that i knew a lawyer....
you said
"If you have a lawyer friend ,it will cost us nothing to draft the contarct pappers, or you can get a lawyer over there because it will cost up to $150 dollar to draft it here."

jack

i am debating emailing him back with more BS, but it looks like this C'mon, Dan, I wasn't blaming MAN for the prisoner mistreatment. I was blaming "attitude", of which I believe MAN has a mindset not unlike some other folks - all of whom I do not trust at all.

Most of the folks in Washington (Democrats as well as Republicans) did not serve. I believe there are only two congresspersons who have sons or daughters serving - and those few serving are officers.

I find it interesting that it is fine to export our jobs to other countries, but OMG to allow seniors to buy prescription medicine from Canada is positivly unamerican and illegal. Money and power talks. Kind of a double standard, don't you think?

I don't like double standards, and I believe that K1MAN is setting himself up as a standard above everyone else. Note how the FCC mentions that no amateur has any more right to a given frequency than any other. Perhaps that escaped you. Go read the note from the FCC again.

This might bring up another interesting topic. The license classes. I'd like to see extra with full access; general with about half of that, and novice with about 1/4 of extra. Then, I'd limit novice to 200 watts, general to 1.5 KW and extra to 200 watts. Yep, and no more even in the other areas (i.e. extras would still be limited to 200 watts in the general or novice portions). Generals would have to reduce to 200 watts in the novice portions. At least half of the bands would be cleaner. Anyone could request a downgrade so they could run that "gallon", along with the reduced frequency access. Anyone caught using excess power would have their license revoked. No second chance and no reapplies for 10 years. Maybe things would clean up a bit. Wishful thinking LOL.

BTW, perhaps you should take a job writing for the Republican party. Maybe you could put a good spin on what has happened. Then again, I think the Catholic Church might need a good spin writer. Go check with them. I'm not into putting spins on anything; the world is going to judge us regardless of the spin-masters and your wishful thinking..

Rules violations. Seems he has fixed all but 2 such problems. One that needs to be corrected is starting his transmissions on top of existing QSOs.
Even W1AW has to QSY up or down several KHz to find an unused frequency. Hams who wish to listen to K1MAN know how to tune a receiver to find him.

A more serious issue would be pecuniary interests he might be having in his transmissions.

Wacky opinions are still protected by the 1st Amendment.

Ummm, they are maneuvering here. That "general compliance" means that they are doing an end run around the broadcasting issue and prepping to go after him on the other issues.

He ought to be a tad worried now. The broadcast issue was a sticking point, as there is a thin line between what he is doing and the ARRL reports. That sticking point has been negated.

Yeah, that was quite a jump there, Dan! I think Jim learned that tactic from the neocons. I hear Rush and Anne do it all the time. And remember they are still blaming everything on Billary! Might as well get used to it. The libs have learned.

Here is an interesting thing I found out last night:

My wife's boss is paying $5.65 an hour to provide health insurance for one employee and his family. He's paying the total cost. The cost has gone up three times since January.

Only if the person has a speakerphone, or the volume up to much.

Then you cant help hearing them as they YELL at the caller.

I hate NEXTEL (speakerphone and the beeping) and stupid people who dont turn down the volume!!!! They dont even realise they are yelling into the phone.

I didnot until my wife said something.

As for radio RX, that is a NO-NO

Amateur Radio Newsline™ Report 1395 May 7, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1395 with a release date of Friday, May 7, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T. The FCC denies a request for more time to respond on BPL, the NTIA report on BPL explained and ham radio will honor the military. Find out the details on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1395 coming your way right now.

THE BPL FIGHT: FCC REFUSES TO EXTEND COMMENT CUTOFF ON BPL

The FCC has issued a ruling denying a request from the ARRL to extend the Commentary cutoff date on the introduction of BPL as outlined in ET Docket 04-37.

The ARRL had asked the Commission to extend the deadline for Comments and Reply Comments by 45 days in the Broadband over Power Line Notice of Proposed Rule Making. The League had argued that this would give it and others the time required for the National Telecommunications and Information Administration to conclude its study at BPL, issue an initial report and give commenters time to evaluate it.

In its April 30th release denying the request the FCC gave no overriding reason for turning it down. Instead the agency said that the now past May 3rd commentary cutoff date stands. It added that those wanting to address the issues raised in the NTIA report can do so during the Reply Comment period. That's open now and ends on June 1st. (ARNewsline(tm))

THE BPL FIGHT: NTIA RELEASES LONG AWAITED REPORT ON BPL

Meantime, as reported last week, the National Telecommunications and Information Administration has issued its long-awaited report on the interference potential of BPL. Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramwicz, NT3V, is here with an in-depth look at the report and the affect it might of on the introduction of BPL technology:

--

The very title: "NTIA Report Lays Groundwork for Responsible Deployment of Broadband Over Power Lines" doesn't sound encouraging.

But like any package - or the glowing press release that accompanied it - the more than 100-page document contains so much more once you open it.

And, you don't have to go beyond the executive summary that accompanies the report to find the glowing praise by Acting NTIA Administrator Michael Gallagher in the press release is quickly muted. Muted by the facts and some disturbing interference problems the agency's own technical review identified.

CQ Magazine Editor Rich Moseson, W2VU, digested and analyzed the NTIA report and agreed to share his findings with the Amateur Radio Newsline audience.

"It is one of the first really objective looks at the real danger of interference caused by BPL," Moseson says. "As of objective as studies by the ARRL might be, they would be perceived as someone with a certain interest here.

"The NTIA is a federal agency and their engineering study should carry a lot of weight with the FCC."

Moseson says he identified five major conclusions. First, among them, that the methods currently used to measure noise levels and interference potential are not adequate, according to the NTIA. Essentially, he says, there's an underestimation of peak-field strength. And, peak field strength is the leading contributor to high-interference risks.

"As applied in current practice to BPL systems, Part 15 measurement guidelines do not address unique physical and electromagnetic characteristics of BPL-radiated emissions," Moseson says. "That's a quote. That's pretty significant that the Part 15 guidelines do not address the unique physical and electromagnetic characteristics of BPL emissions. So the measurement system being used is not right."

Second, he says the NTIA engineers said noise levels must be measured from power lines carrying BPL as well as the device that couples the signal to the power lines.

"What the NTIA is saying here is that you can be 100 feet down the street from the actual coupling device or up to 300 feet down the street and if the signal bumps into one of these corroded connecters or something, then, it's going to start radiating there," Moseson says. "And you have to measure all along the line as well as at the coupling device."

Third, Moseson says NTIA found interference to weak- or medium-strength signals is likely to affect aircraft operation and the navigational frequencies used by aircraft.

"Interference to aircraft reception of moderate to strong radio signals is likely to occur below 6 kilometers altitude - that's 20,000 feet - within 12 kilometer center of the BPL deployment," says

Moseson, quoting from the report. "Interference would likely occur to aircraft reception of weak to moderate signals within 40 miles of the center of the BPL deployment area."

NTIA's fourth major conclusion, according to Moseson, is that results of BPL tests and implementation in other countries has met with mixed results. And, in some cases, it has been shut down entirely. He cites an example:

"During an emergency exercise of the Austrian Red Cross in May 2003, communication was massively disturbed - that's their words - by BPL with interference levels exceeding the limits by a factor of 10,000," Moseson says.

The fifth NTIA conclusion identified by Moseson is the agency's desire to conduct more testing.

"They proposed some more stringent measurement standards and procedures along with some of the interference mitigation techniques that were mentioned in the FCC's Proposed Rulemaking and others that weren't," Moseson says. "But they're saying here that they're not even sure that those are going to work. They want to do more testing on them and report on it later in the year."

The bottom line: Will the FCC's commissioner take seriously the findings and red flags raised by the NTIA report?

"In this case, I'm not really sure because they seem to have made up their minds going into this as to what they were planning to do," Moseson says. "So, I am not as optimistic as I might be in other rulemaking proceedings."

So, how soon could the FCC act? Moseson says he wouldn't even begin to speculate.

"At this point the comment period is closed. Comments closed on May 3," Moseson says. "There's a two-week reply comment period. And, then it's up to the commission of what they're going to do and when they're going to do it.

"There is no requirement that the FCC issue a ruling in a given amount of time after the close of comments on a proceeding. So, they very well could wait until the NTIA issues its second report. And, I'm sure that it would be accepted into the record as coming from another federal agency."

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia.

RADIO LAW: LEGALIZING AMBER ALERTS ON THE HAM BANDS

Hams worried that they might get into trouble if they relay lost child or AMBER alerts on the air may soon have regulatory relief. This as wording in an omnibus 71-page, Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on a variety of ham radio issues issued in mid-April tackles the problem had on.

One of the proposals in the April 15th NPRM proposes to and we quote: "clarify that amateur stations may at all times and on all channels … make transmissions … which may be instrumental in saving human life and property." In other words, if enacted as proposed, retransmitting AMBER Alerts and just about any other type of live saving communications would become legal under Federal law.

The proposal is part of FCC WT Docket 04-140. The Comment deadline is June 15th. (CQ)

RESCUE RADIO: YOUNG HAM TRIES TO GET AID FOR DROWNING VICTIM

A tragic story from the Great Smoky Mountains National Park near Townsend, Tennessee. That's where a youngster on a field trip drowned at Cades Cove while a classmate with a hand held 2 meter transceiver tried to get help to save him. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, reports:

--

It started about an hour after the group arrived at the campsite on Friday, April 30th. According to news reports, a group of people including the ill fated teen took to the water. In a short time, the victum, identified only as Chris found himself in trouble. Others tried to save him while teachers using cell phones tried to call for help.

When it was found that there was no cell phone coverage, another student, Jordan Webb, KI4AVG, said he would try ham radio. Jordan had brought along his two meter hand held radio. He found a near-by high location and called for help over the Knoxville area WB4GBI repeater. He was answered by Jim Bond, K6SPY, who notified Park Rangers. Unfortunately they didn't arrive in time to save the victum, but because KI4AVG had the foresight to bring along his 2 meter talkie, his classmate's body was recovered within hours, instead of days.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, reporting.

Jordan Webb, KI4AVG is only thirteen year old and attends the Vine Middle School in Knoxville. He has been a ham for just about a year and serves as net control for the weekly Young Amateur Radio Net on the Radio Amateur Club of Knoxville W4BBB repeater. (K4PZT, KG4UJC, KG4YTT, WBIR.com)

ENFORCEMENT: NET INTERFERENCE FOUND

Authorities in the United Kingdom were quick to act when a propagation net became the target of a jammer. We have more in this report:

--

Listeners to the DK0WCY Solar Geomagnetic Information broadcast on 75 meters recently experienced interference from an unmodulated carrier on the channel. The interference, which appeared to be deliberate jamming, was reported by the DK0WCY team to the authorities in Germany who founf that the interference was coming from from the United Kingdom.

With support from the Radio Society of Great Britain's Amateur Radio Observation Service and other U-K hams, authorities traced the interference to an amateur station in the Chepstow area. The interference ceased abruptly at 0608UTC on the 25th of March. No explanation was given but it is assumed that government regulators took the station off the air.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Norm Seeley, KI7UP.

No word on who the jammer was or what punitive action will be taken by U-K telecommunications authorities. (GB2RS)

ENFORCEMENT: YOU BETTER STAY OFF THE RADIO

Back here in the U-S-A, the FCC says that a former ham who has been to jail for operating without a license is back on the air and still has no FCC authorization to be there. Again, the FCC's Daryl Duckworth, NN0W:

Duckworth: "Richard A. Burton of Harbor City, California, has been sent a Warning Notice of unlicensed radio operation on 2 meters in the Los Angeles area. Mr. Burton has been convicted in 1984, 1990, 1993 and 2000 of unlicensed radio operation under Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as ammernded, and has served time."

--

According to Duckworth, the Notice sent to Burton states that additional instances will lead to -- and we quote -- to the same result. The FCC has also designated for hearing a second General Mobile Radio Service application that Burton had filed with the agency. (FCC, RAIN)

ENFORCEMENT: CRANK CALL TO CUBA'S CASTRO LEADS TO $4000 FINE

The FCC says that a Florida radio station should be fined $4000. This, for permitting the hosts of the Morning High Jinks show placed a crank-called to Cuban President Fidel Castro and broadcast the recording.

As previously reported, Joe Ferrero and Enrique Santos of WXJD FM used snippets of an earlier prank call involving Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez get past a Castro receptionist and up the chain of command in a five-minute broadcast June 17th of last year. They then fed pleasantries to Castro before breaking in and calling him an assassin.

On April 28th the FCC concluded that the station should be forced to pay a fine for the broadcast. The agency rejected claims that a rule requiring people to be notified before their voices are used on the air does not apply to people in Cuba.

WXJD was given the usual 30 days to pay the fine or to file a further appeal. (Published reports)

RADIO RECORDS: XL TO UA ON 137 KHZ

Hams in New Zealand and Asiatic Russia have claimed a new world low-frequency distance record. ZM2E at Quartz Hill near Wellington and UA0LE near Vladivostok say that they completed a two-way contact the night of the 20th of March on 137.70kHz. The path length is estimated to be 10,311 kilometers or 6392 miles. (Q-News, GB2RS)

HAMVENTION 2004: THE ARRL PUBLIC RELATIONS FORUM

The ARRL sponsored Public Relations Forum at the 2004 Dayton Hamvention will be held at 8:30 A-M on Sunday morning, May 16th. The venue is Meeting Room 1 at the Hara Arena and those planning it say that this will be a do not miss event for anyone interested in promoting the hobby.

What will be discussed you ask? Well the major items include public service, spectrum protection and of coarse Broadbnd Over Powerline internet access. The session will also explain how to tell the world outside the hobby about Amateur Radio and how to address our concerns to public officials and local media.

Again, that's Sunday, May 16th at 8:30 in the morning for the ARRL Public Relations Fourm at Hamvention 2004. We will see you there. (Dayton Hamvention(r))

HAMVENTION 2004: A NICE PLACE TO LAND

And if you are a private pilot planning to fly your own plane to next weeks Dayton Hamvention, the events planners have a tip for you. Consider landing and tie-down at Greene County Airport in the near-by town of Xenia.

That field is located just south of Route 35 approximately 7 miles east of Dayton and is the closest airport to downtown. Its also among the easiest to get in and out of using small aircraft. Fuel prices are reportedly some of the lowest in the area, and the facility is well kept and capable of handling quite a bit of traffic.

Green County is just one of many airports catering to pilots of small aircraft in the Dayton area. More information about it is on-line at www.gwaohio.co. (Dayton Hamvention(r))

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: SPAM LOWERING LEGIT E-MAIL

Meantime, a recent survey finds that Americans are e-mailing less and trusting e-mail less because of the growing flood of junk messages. According to the Pew Internet and American Life Project, 29% of e-mail users have reduced their overall use of the medium while 63% of e-mail users say they are less trusting of e-mail overall because of spam. That's up from 52 percent in June of 2002. (Technology OnLibe)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: SCIENTIST TO BE NEXT SPACE TOURIST

The next space tourist plans to spend his time on-orbit studying environmental issues. Gregory Olsen, the founder of Sensors Unlimited Inc. in Princeton, New Jersey says that he plans to bring along infrared sensors, which detect varying levels of heat, to analyze pollution in the Earth's atmosphere and the health of agricultural systems on the ground.

Olsen told a recent news conference that he hopes to inspire young people with his mission, and want to arrange a video teleconference with Trenton High School in New Jersey and a school at the Crow Indian Reservation in Montana.

The 58-year-old Olsen has hired Space Adventures to get him to the I-S-S. This is the same company that brokered the first space tourist trip of millionaire Dennis Tito's flight aboard a Russian spacecraft in 2001. Olson's eight-day voyage to Earth orbit is currently scheduled for April of 2005. As with all past space station visitors, Olson is expected to be trained in Amateur Radio and operation of the ham gear aboard the I-S-S as well. (Published reports)

WORLDBEAT: NEW RADIO RULES IN KENYA

Visiting hams now have a way to get on the air from Kenya. Ted Alleyne, 5Z4NU, the Chairman and Secretary of the Amateur Radio Society of Kenya sdays that that the Communications Commission of Kenya announced on April a new and more relaxed policy towards amateur radio licensing.

Until now it was "practically impossible" for most visitors to obtain an amateur radio license in Kenya. The previous stumbling blocks for reciprocal agreements, Security and Police vetting, have been dropped entirely. However, applicants' countries must have diplomatic relations with Kenya and 5Z4NU says that the ARSK will be happy to supply the new license application forms. (GB2RS)

THAT FINAL ITEM: HONORING THE MILITARY

And finally this week, ham radio will be honoring those serving in the military. Jim Meachen, ZL2BHF, is here with the details:

Amateur Radio Military Appreciation Day will be held world-wide on Saturday, May 29th from approximately 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Central U-S time. According to Emery McClendon, KB9IBW, this will be a day-long operation to talk to troops, and associated groups around the globe in appreciation of their service and personal sacrifice.

The main operating location will be from Johnny Appleseed Park and Wizards Memorial Stadium in Ft. Wayne, Indiana, using Emery's KB9IBW call sign. That station will be on from about 4 p.m. Central Daylight Time through the end of the Wizards game.

Planners say that they know of at least 25 military bases and club stations that will be operating the event. This includes stations in Iraq, Kuwait, and bases around the globe. More information on this event is in cyberspace at www.fortwaneradioclub.org

I love to listen to cell and cordless phones. It is only illegal in the land of the free but not illegal in truly free countries. It is a good close look at the personal lives of other people. I have 2 radios setup that can listen to cell and a few months ago I was having coffee with some members of the local city police and gave them a demo. They just loved the way that drug dealers talk so openly on the cell system.

Check http://www.mods.dk and see what scanners are cell capable. And go buy one from a pawn shop and do the mod.

Do your own listening and get the story first-hand.

Most cell phone systems are digitized now, so there's not as much chatter to listen to as there was several years ago.

Sold my last scanner 4 years ago. No room for 'em here in the 'frigerator box.

WH2T in Bloomington Indiana now calls himself Dr. Ace. Let me give you some background on this man. He lives in a shitty part of the city in a shitty house. He used to be best buds with N9GJC. His name is Tracy, not Ace. He went into the BMV and filled out a form saying his name had been legally changed. Oh yeah TRACY, I reported that to the State of Indiana. And so have some other hams. Hams that you thought were your friends. He has no education. He is a self-proclaimed Dr. now. Tell us Tracy, where did your education metriculate from? What is your doctorate in? Oh, thats right, YOUR A LIAR!!!!!! WH2T is complete white trash. Everyone should remember that. I will be doing a comprehensive background check on him and posting all my findings here in the group for all who talk to him to see.

Perhaps you should start out your writing career by learning to spell.

Nevermind that cell phones are ALL digital now. There is nothing to be heard.

WH2T in Bloomington Indiana now calls himself Dr. Ace. Let me give you some background on this man. He lives in a shitty part of the city in a shitty house. He used to be best buds with N9GJC. His name is Tracy, not Ace. He went into the BMV and filled out a form saying his name had been legally changed. Oh yeah TRACY, I reported that to the State of Indiana. And so have some other hams. Hams that you thought were your friends. He has no education. He is a self-proclaimed Dr. now.
Tell us Tracy, where did your education metriculate from? What is your

I disagree. I think the no-code HF will help sales of radios and help the ARRL, and will finally get me on HF. I've tried to learn code for over 10 years and still can't get it. I should'nt be penalized because of that.

Thank you for your timely response. The medical opinions presented here are the result of many, many years of hands-on experience with the likes of Mister Wiseman and others with his sexual proclivities. Mister Wiseman and friends have been a great research tool in furthering our never-ending investigations into the causes of rectal diseases and the communicability thereof.
As with any other post, we in the medical community would urge Mister Wiseman and others who practice his "rectal sharing" program to utilize on-hand preventatives sucn as condoms and antibiotic salves.
Doctor Grese also recommends abstinence as the best means of preventing rectally induced infections.
Mister Wiseman, unfortunately, has been undergoing treatment because he failed to heed these health warnings.

Dr. Grese, MD.

What do you suppose is the time frame before what we now consider ham radio 'old world style' is completely gone? I still use CW on a regular basis, but I notice that I never work anyone younger than myself (42). That means there are no new-comers to speak of. And I hear really really bad CW, even in the extra segment of the bands, which tells me that more and more folks are getting on the air with very little CW skill - I'm sure it won't be long and there won't be any CW left at all.

But what about radio in general? Shortwave is going digital, and it just seems to me that it's just a matter of time before SSB, AM, and CW are all just 'historical modes' and studied with the casual disinterest we now pay to spark transmitters and coherer detectors.

I give it all 10 years, tops. No more CW heard after that - ham AM will be gone, AM SW broadcasting will be gone (except for the jesus crowd).

What say you?

Its not the drug dealers they are worried about you listening too, its there illegal crap the cops are doing they don't wish you too hear, that's the bad cops, but the other reason is cops use cell phone to talk to each other, because there radio's suck for reception in rural areas, and if they are making a bust, they don't need those drug dealers know that they are coming.

Being that we both worked in law enforcement at the time we were able to buy a device that attached to a programmable receiver on the one side, and a computer on the other.

The software allowed you to follow calls by number, by cell site and numerous other options.

You wouldn't believe how easy it was to pick off the criminal behavior. Truly stupid criminals.

I don't think it will ever really go away completely. It will be a legacy mode forever to some one/groups. Just like AM phone is today. And as long as ham radio is on HF, it will be there.

I have run into several young people that are into CW. One recently that was Extra at 11, and is now running serious CW. She got ahold of me on the internet for a sked for this state (AL) that she needed for 5BWAS.

About a year ago I chatted with another young lady on CW. A college student.

There out there. But I agree, its is slowly going to drop way off.

And I hear

Well that shows me they are trying, and willing to put it to use. That is a GOOD THING to me.
But....I really think they should do it out of the low end of the bands.

Hello, Mike

Actually, that jump took since 1967 to form. My parents were Republicans. I was going to be (couldn't vote until you were 21 back then).

I've seen what that kind of thinking can do. When I was in boot camp, someone got on the wrong side of someone. He was taken into the shower and when he came out (do not attempt to tell me otherwise - I was there and saw this kid when he came out of the shower), his lip was split and he had a nasty bruise on his forehead. This was company 43, Great Lakes, in 1967. I mentioned this to someone else and the guy laughed - "that was nothing. The next company over, some guy's shirt was dirty. They stripped him naked and scrubbed him over every inch of his body with a scrub brush!". The discription was actually more graphic than that, but I'm sure you get the idea. That second story I cannot confirm; but it finally got me to thinking. If we treat our own that way, how would we treat prisoners (from whom we wish to obtain information). Over 3 decades later, I have my answer. And a lot of non-thinkers screaming that it is nobody's fault. LOL

The city mayor (a democrat) ran agains the county treasurer (a republican) last year. The republican said "no more taxes, no reduction in service". The democrat stated "anyone who thinks we can continue services and not raise taxes is either not telling the truth or they are kidding themselves."

Of course, the republican won and became county manager. Aid was cut to the city (natch), but OMG - a huge deficit. They are going to borrow more funds. Their credit rating has been cut again (I think this is 5 reductions in credit rating in 6 years). Now the courts have ruled that in New York State, there is underfunding of poor school districts (surprise, surprise - all 8th graders in Mendon - a high income area nearby - got free laptop computers!). None of this has caught me by surprise. It isn't a matter of if; rather, when.

So, go ahead and giggle in your self-rightousness. It isn't going to change what is happening and what will happen. Perhaps we should give away amateur licenses. Get some of those 20 KW class C amps up on 75 and 20 meters and out of 11 meters. Heck, if someone can afford to run a 20 KW rig, they should be entitled to do so, right? :))

You guys are a scream. Pardon me for not laughing.

Funny you should mention that. I was watching Hannity and Colmes the other night, and Hannity was coming up with a rationale for why the perps wre justified in treating those prisoners that way. Thought I'd puke.

Then last night I go to the local Barnes and Noble, and I see he has a book out "Deliver us Fron Evil". That was amusing enough, but then I read a review (plug actually) on Thebookservice.com. One of his "Insights" as they called it was:

"Why it's so difficult for liberals to see clearly on moral questions -- including the moral dimensions of the war on terror."

Sorry, Mike

Guess this thing got my dander up just a tad. The most frustrating thing is that I can see something wrong, but I'm at a loss for an answer. Should a unit come under fire (and I've been combat stations aboard ship), everyone has to follow orders. Period. Lives depend upon it. So, the military wants to weed out folks that aren't suited for military life, and some problems occur. What the proper answer is beats the heck out of me.

Certainly, in civilian life, we should at least be civil - even if we don't agree ;)

I guess that the actions of a few amateurs I would not consider at all "considerate" and I'm not too certain about "civil" either.

Off my soap box (finally - LOL)

I don't know who that is, nor do I care. That's another thing that is SO OLD in the newsgroups - the endless flamewars between 2 or 3 parties. They somehow find a way to rage against each other in almost every thread there is. Hard to believe folks like that are hams in the first place.

That's part of the reason I stick to CW - I find that the folks who ragchew at 13 WPM are a lot less cranky than some of the nitwits I hear on 75.

But just my 2000 milli-cents.

Yeah, you're probably right. I think to a large extent it's already getting that way. I notice the same folks on the bands much more so than when I was a kid. I almost never ran into the same ham ever again. But now I can almost every night hear someone I have have worked. So yes, the pool of 'diehards' is there!

Actually, Wiseman rarely leaves his house so he is probably not aware of the tunnel. According to what I have been reading the only tunnel Roger uses is his "carnal tunnel". Oh, wait, Oris. Let me rephrase that. Others use his carnal tunnel. Roger just charges a toll.

Dumbass Vic, W1WCR, was spouting his lies on the Lib Net again tonight.
Dumbass said the United States provided Iraq and Saddam Hussein with the poiseness gas Hussein used on the Kurds. Vic said the gas was used to kill "a few" Kurds and Sheites.
Duh! Apparently Vic views the 5,000 gassing deaths of the Kurds as being "a few".
Where the heck does Vic manufacture these "facts" from?
Oh, wait. For guys like Vic and his malingerers it is not necessary to have facts OR proof. Any lie will do and Vic is surely full of them.
Aside of Al Jazeera, Vic is the best propaganda machine that Saddam could hope for.

These guys are nut cases in the extreme. A bunch of cranks, kooks, and a conglomerate of conspiracy theorists.

Wiseman claims that these "mistakes" are simple keyboard errors on his part.
Some of us think he is a simpleton.

"Realy" Really?

"Nitoiced" Keyboard error or sheer stupidity? Answer. Stupidity.

"Becasue" What?

"Licence" By what dictionary?

"Convienince" Only Wiseman can do this.

"Myabe" Yeah..and maybe one day Wiseman will use a spell check program.

"occurance" Say what?

"srtuggling" Roger's keyboard is, like his head, missing a few keys.

"definatrely" Dittos

"delapidated" What a dufus.

"picutre" What is this?

"permenatly" Ebonics again?

"Arest" You need a rest, Wogie.

"Sentenceing" No comment.

"Undre" Is this a city in Germany?

"Surgeoun" And this would be?

"Commuications" Who is laughing at who?

"Ovre" Ovre and out!

"Wondreful" It's a "wondreful" day in the neighborhood?

"Derivitave" Still no spell-checker, eh?

"You lose, shit for brians." Woger showing who real loser is.

"Deisowned" Deis what?

"Deeppest" Roger strikes again.

"Dodgeing". Is he talking about a car?

"Staedy" Steady?

"Linme" Transmission line?

"Getr" Nobody knows.

"Experieince" Wogie is good, ain't he?

"Appropiate" What kind of opiate?

"Laywer" Lay what?

"Visitpors" You never have any, ergo you don't know how to spell it.

"It's "complaintant," you sniveling weasel." (Roger Wiseman on spelling complainant.)

"Irreevant" Good going, Wogie.

"Forwared" Forward HO!

"Glady" Glad Bags?

"Neighborhod" It's a wonderful day in Wogie's neighborhood.

"Mena" Mean? What you mean, Wogie?

"Notr" Not?

"Sassifyed" ALA Rolling Stones.No Sassifaction..

"Fantasises" That is "fantasizes", Wussman.

"Illarate" West BY GOD Virginny!

"Reveresed" Must be one of those off-brand keyboards.

"Soem".as in Some? What a loser.

"VIRIN".What Wogie was before he met the Lavender Lads.

"Minisule".he mussa meant miniscule. Like his IQ.

"Champoin".Whassup, Wiseman? No dictionaries in the mental ward?

"Anoinymous"...a cross between anonymous and annoying?

"Acident" Roger's mom got preggers by accident.

"Alreaedy" Alright, already!

"Amouints" Roger amounts to nothing.

"Aposterphe" This guy is a hoot, ain't he?

"Basios"...word Woger uses when he gets neeeerrrrvous.
"Behing"...a cross between being and behind?

"Coiward" As in peeking from behind his mommy's curtains.
"Feamle"...I think he meant female.
"Losser"...only loser Roger can do it better.
"Ignroant"...typical, considering the source.
"Sluprs"...only Rogie knows what this means.
"Travelled"...a Rogerism, replete with ignorance.
"Postss"...pssst...Roger..that should be Posts.
"Defgenerate"...well, it's Roger's word...
"Faity"...he meant to say Fairy, but you know Roger.

"Ghet" Get a load of Curtain Boy!
"Distribiution"...Roger likes using phonics.
"Biotch"...he meant Bitch, but his phonics took over again.
"Methjadone"...a West Virginia substitute for Heroin.
"Sumbliminal"...one of Roger's favorites.
"Recepticle"...either of Roger's moist cavaties.
"Cociane"...a West Virginia drug of choice?
"Tiome"...Roger meant to say Time...but his fingers were numb.

"Amny"...he meant 'any',
"Nlay"...a town in Maylaysia? Vermont?
"Al;ong"...only Wussman knows what this means.
"Becasu"...well, becasu Roger is not the brightest bulb on the tree.
"Seperation". Why? Because Roger cannot "seperate" from his mommie!
"Sisnce" He meant Since, but his pudgy little fingers slipped off the keys.
"gnetically" What?
"provce" (prove?)
"Piuzza" (West Virginia Pizza)
"Schol" (school?)
"strill" (still?)
"shoitgun" 12 ga or 20 ga?
"Snoip" (How they spell "snip" in Glen Dale) "Maturbater". Wiseman does it all the time, he just can't spell it.(leaves a sticky residue on his right hand)
"Coskscuking". It's a Roger thing, as in Lavender Lads.
"Waddleing". Only in Glen Dale, eh?
"Spaeaking". Curtain Boy did this after his second retest.

" Stgop" Roger's version of Stop.

"Fahter's" He meant Father's Day.

"fserting"..would that be festering?

"poists". Roger meant "posts".

"snadwich" As in peanut butter and jelly?

"regualr" Glen Dale rendition of "regular".

"aftrer" After? Aftrer what?

"soory". Sorry Roger fucks up again.

"didnb't" He didn't?

"whoile". He ate the whoile thing?

"Woamn" He's hooked on West Virginia phonics, all right.

"prrof" And he kin prove it, too.

"beforfe" Was that before he lurned to spell?

"yoiuy" Roger's version of "y'all".

"illerate" Only illiterate Roger can spell like this.

"haeart" Aw, how heartless of me to laugh!

"valule" Roger has no values. No wonder he can't spell it.

"proch" Doesn't everyone have one on their house?

"inmstitution" Where Roger's mom put him in June 1999.

"timne" It's Howdy Doody time?

"whgo" What? Who dat?

"gnetically" Only Roger knows what this one means.

"crfy" Like, cry, Roger, cry.

"stutrtering" Some stutter, Wiseman stutrters.

"Whjere" Where is Curtain Boy?

"Webiste" That's Website to the rest of us.

"Youire" Your? You're? Who knows.

"fiored" As in fired?

"Parety" Roger gave a party once. Nobody came. Nobody likes him.

"Bouynce" Bounce?

"Varification" Verifiable mental case.

"Probelms" Poor Rogie.has many problems of the mental sort.

"Partricipate" Oh, DUH!!!!

"Cryed" Gee, Wogie..cry me a river.you dolt!

"Stoick" What a dork. His old 386 has no spell check program.

"Partiall" More WV Phonics, I see.

"Obsucred" Either obscured or Rogie has "sucre" on his mind.

"Infinate" Stupid. Think finite, Rogie.

"Sustinance" As in Sustenance?

"Juvinile". This is the way Roger likes his boys.

"Piut" Put it where, Rogie?

"Toyus". "Toyus R Us?

"Diminuative". Roger's height.

"Definitely" Definitely

"Percriptions" Say what?

"Credibiliy" More Glen Dale intellect.

"Thsoe" Yet another Glen Dale gaffe.

Considering cellular monitoring is a felony in the U.S. Don't be so sure you can protect the identity of your informants. Especially under the new Patriot Act, in the name of homeland security.

and I can only imagine how pathetic they must ound now 20+ years later...!

> Duh! Apparently Vic views the 5,000 gassing deaths > of the Kurds as being "a few".
> Where the heck does Vic manufacture these "facts" from?

Does Vic still have that ANNOYING habit of eating while he is talking? I can recall years ago this bozo saying he was stuffing his face full of apples (like a demented chipmunk) and talking and slobbering all over his mic. I'll bet you dimes to a dozen Krispy-Kreme doughnutz that ole Victor has balooned up to near 300 pounds. Probably looks just like ole fat Junkyard Sid in Estenchia N.Mex. Poetic justice?

Does ole KJI still get on there and drive them up the wall or has he keeled over into cemetary mulch by now also..?

> Oh, wait. For guys like Vic and his malingerers it is not necessary to have > facts OR proof. Any lie will do and Vic is surely full of them.

Vic & Baghdad Bob (r they one and the same??) rotflmao!

> These guys are nut cases in the extreme. A bunch of cranks, kooks, and a > conglomerate of conspiracy theorists.

Does Harrisson from Florida still get on there and monologue and play his stupid tapes? How about that other guy DKJ? He used to get on from W. Va was a former KKK and every other word was "nig--r".

Does the 14313 dentist from NNJ and the nutcase from Central Pa still qrm them for hours at a time?

Jeeze, I gots to listen there next week. I bet half of the guys who used to get on there from the 80's are either dead or so hen-pecked their wives won't let em on anymore. Probably all new lineup of kooks and goofballs.
The Lib Net was always one of ham radio's biggest "kook

VOTE FOR A LEADER
Chuck Gysi, N2DUP for ARRL section manager in Minnesota

NEWS RELEASE

For immediate release
May 7, 2004
Contact: Chuck Gysi, N2DUP / N2DUP@RadioHams.net

NOTE TO EDITORS: A digital mug shot of Chuck Gysi, N2DUP, is available via e-mail request. Please specify the file format you prefer.

N2DUP announces run for ARRL Minnesota section manager

Chuck Gysi, N2DUP, has announced his candidacy for Minnesota section manager in this summer's election in the American Radio Relay League.

Gysi is a long-time ARRL volunteer and has been an active amateur radio operator for a solid 22 years. He chose to run for the section manager's position because of his leadership experience.

"I have a lot to bring to the section manager's position," Gysi said. "I am the best candidate running because of my leadership skills and long-time involvement as an amateur."

The section manager oversees the more than 2,500 ARRL members in Minnesota and appoints hams to serve in capacities ranging from official observers to public information officers.

"I can bring the ARRL Minnesota section back on track and fill unfilled key appointments," Gysi said. "I have served in a number of key ARRL positions in the past and know how to find the best people to get the job done."

ARRL members will receive ballots from league headquarters in Newington, Conn., about July 1.

Gysi currently serves as an ARRL public information officer and also has served as emergency coordinator, district emergency coordinator and official emergency station. He is a member of the Rochester Amateur Radio Club and the Minnesota Wireless Association. He also has served as a volunteer in amateur radio communications during his entire 22 years as a ham operator.

"I am the only qualified and experienced candidate running for section manager," Gysi said. "The Minnesota section has a lot of work ahead that needs to be done and only an experienced candidate can handle the task. That's why I ask you to vote for a leader. I look forward to serving my fellow ARRL members in our great state."

Gysi is available to make presentations at club meetings or other gatherings of hams anywhere in Minnesota. Call him toll-free at (888) 463-5355 or send an e-mail to N2DUP@RadioHams.net. In addition, he has set up an extensive web site about his candidacy at www.RadioHams.net.

(Any combination of the number of QSOs and Member States will be accepted.) The award is sponsored by the Polish MK QTC Magazine and PZK Zwiaze Krotkofalowcow. Please refer to OPDX.658 for more details or send an E-mail to: qtc@post.pl European Union Member States: Austria, Belgium, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Poland, Portugal, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, The Netherlands, United Kingdom.

HAMVENTION HAPPENINGS.....
* DX HOSPITALITY SUITE. The Northern Ohio DX Association (along with Janeen Hire, W8ZET) will once again sponsor a Hospitality Suite at this year's Dayton Hamvention. It will be in Suite 1011 on the 10th Club Floor of the Crowne Plaza Hotel (old Stouffers) on Friday and Saturday evenings (possibly late Thursday evening -- Look for signs!).

All DXers/Contesters are welcome. Munchies and refreshments will be avaialble. Come and meet the members and friends of NODXA.

* THE DAYTON CONTEST SUPER SUITE. Contester Tim Duff, K3LR, states, "Our 17th year, getting better every year!" The contest suite will be open Thursday, May 13th, Friday, May 14th and Saturday, May 15th, from 7:00 PM to 2:00 AM every night. Located in the Miami Room (2nd Floor) at the Crowne Plaza Hotel (downtown) Dayton, Ohio. The 2004 CONTEST SUPER SUITE is sponsored by DX Engineering. The suite is hosted by North Coast Contesters, The Frankford Radio Club and The Mad River Radio Club. The "Midnight Pizza Party Lineup" (don't miss one!):
Thursday, midnight - Sponsored by "Friends Of Bill Fisher, W4AN"
Friday, midnight - Sponsored by "Members of The Yankee Clipper Contest Club"
Saturday, midnight - In Memory of K4OJ. Sponsored by "Florida Contest Group"
This is an open invitation for Contesters and DXers to enjoy 3 great evenings of super conversation. Join them for FUN! Cash bar with lots of room and sit down tables. For details, contact Tim, K3LR, at: K3LR@k3lr.com

* SMC Dayton Hooters Party. Paul, K9PG, reports that the Society Of Midwest Contesters will be hosting its annual Dayton get-together/ party/beer bash on Thursday, May 13th, in "The Garage" at the Hooters in Centerville, OH starting around 6:30pm. There will be free wings for one hour.... starting whenever the most people are there (usually around 7:00 PM or so). Here's a map to the location: http://hooters.know-where.com/hooters/cgi/site?site=107&address= If you're coming from the Crowne Plaza, it's faster if you pass the Miami-Centerville exit and hop on the I-675 extension about a mile further south... get off at the first exit and go right about a half mile. (Thanks AC8G) Everyone is invited.... Questions? Ask Paul at: PAUL@k9pg.com

* Antenna Forum Agenda: Tim, K3LR, Antenna Forum Moderator, reports, "You are welcome to spend 3 hours next Friday afternoon hearing outstanding presentations on great antenna and propagation topics." The "Antenna Forum" will be in Room 1 on Friday, May 14th, starting at 2:00 PM and ends at 5:00 PM. On the agenda are:
"The Basics of How Antennas Work" - Bill Parker, W8DMR

"Selected Terrain Studies for Optimum HF Station Performance" - Dean Straw, N6BV

"SlippNott Rotator Enhancements" - Tom Taormina, K5RC (presented by K3LR)

"The W8JI Antenna Notebook" - Tom Rauch, W8JI

"An Investigation Into Ground Systems for Best HF Performance" - Rudy Severns, N6LF

"W6NL 40 meter Moxon Yagi" - David Leeson, W6NL (presented by K3LR)

"Propagation Software Review" - Carl Luetzelschwab, K9LA

* CONTEST FORUM PROGRAM. Doug Grant, K1DG, Organizer/Moderator of the Hamvetion Contest Forum, announced the following agenda for the Contest Forum to be held in Room 4 on Saturday, May 15th, from 9:30 AM to 12:15 PM. The program and speakers are as follows:

"Prince Edward Island Contesting at VY2ZM: Not Your Basic Caribbean Operation!" - Jeff Briggs, K1ZM/VY2ZM

"The Contesting Apprentice" - a sneak preview of next year's new reality TV series (Applications for Contesting Apprentice show contestant auditions are being accepted now by the Contesting Apprentice Review Board... To apply, send an E-mail to k1dg@ix.netcom.com by Tuesday, May 11th. Applicants MUST be planning to attend the Hamvention)

"Getting Young Hams into Contesting - the VP5X Program" - David Kopacz, KY1V/VP5X, and Daniel Bradke, W2AU

"Are we getting closer to the Ideal Radio for Contesting? - Rob Sherwood, NC0B

"NCJ Update" - Carl Luetzelschwab, K9LA, Editor, National Contest Journal

"Panel Discussion: A Look Back at 25 Years of Contesting" - featuring the "Class" of 1979

* Tom, N0SS, reports that the KC DX Club will (again, as in the past 20+ years) be offering its trademark "CW Pileup Contest" on SATURDAY night (only) at the KCDX Hospitality Suite at the Crowne-Plaza Hotel in downtown Dayton. The pileups are expected to begin around 9:00 PM, and will stop around midnight. This year's pileup will be a bit more 'challenging' than those previously offered. It's still 100 calls, with no more than two (2) callsigns sent at any one time (though there are still those who will try to argue the point), and speeds between 25 and 40 WPM, with received tones between 300Hz and 1kHz (not everyone zero beats your signal, right?). Tom states, "Though I've not heard, it's my guess that the KCDX Club will again offer some pretty nice prizes to the top scoring ops, so come to compete..."

HI, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC. Dave, G4WFQ, will be active as G4WFQ/HI9 from here (IOTA NA-096), June 12-24th. Activity will be on 80-10 meters CW, with some RTTY and SSB. QSL via G3SWH.

Z2 QSL BUREAU. Don, G3BJ, announced the following: "At the Zimbabwe Amateur Radio Society (ZARS) council meeting held on May 3, 2004, ZARS took the decision to close the Zimbabwe QSL Bureau. This is simply due to the excessive cost of services that are now prevalent in Zimbabwe.
The main cost is for the posting of cards to the various bureaus around the world. This is coupled with a declining number of members such that reasonable subscriptions can no longer support the costs of running the bureau. ZARS has recommended to members that QSL Managers be sought if they do not already have a manager. A number have taken up the suggestion and arrangements have been made. Member societies should note this information and advise their QSL managers accordingly."

Ken Holdom, ZL4HU (Group Organizer/Team Leader/QSL Manager), member of the Kermadec DX Association, reports the the issue of commemorative envelopes for the ZL9CI DXpedition in January 1999 was one of the significant milestones for this record setting DXpedition. The Kermadec DX Association has a small limited supply of these envelopes left, and they are anxious to find a good home for these amongst the very finest of collectors, DXers, and others worldwide. They are now selling these at the very modest sum of 10 USD per envelope postage paid. If you are interested please reply directly to: zl2hu@clear.net.nz

SV5/SV7/SV8/SV9, DODECANESE, GREECE AND CRETE. Laci, HA0HW, informs OPDX that he (and others) will operate from different parts of Greece this summer. He provides the following:
Operators: Tomi/HA4DX Geza/HA4XG Laci/HA0HW
---------- ---------- ----------
SV5 Dodecanese J45DX J45XG J45HW
SV7 Thrake Island J47DX J47XG J47HW
SV8 (Various islands) J48DX J48XG J48HW
SV9 Crete (and her islands) J49DX J49XG J49HW

Laci states (edited), "The first event will take place from Thassos (EU-174) between May 21-27th with our J48 callsigns. Then we will take part in the CQWW WPX CW Contest, and we will be operating from Thrake as J47s between May 28-31st. If the propagation will allow us, we will use 3 stations with Gps and wire antennas. Our main mode is CW and SSB, but we will do RTTY and PSK31 too, on all HF bands." QSLs via operator's home callsign via the HA QSL Bureau or direct to operator's addresses.

SX, GREECE (2004 Olympic Games Celebration Programs/Activities). This summer the 2004 Olympic Games will take place in Athens, Greece, during August. Look for many special event stations to be active (some activity has started already). The following upcoming activity and information was provided by Savas, SV2AEL:
1) 2004 OLYMPIC GAMES (Countdown on the Air program!). A special and interesting "Countdown on the Air" program will take place in the coming days leading upto the 2004 OLYMPIC GAMES (starting day August 13th) from many Greek radio amateurs. Look for nine Multi-Operators special event stations such as SX9A, SX8A, SX7A, SX6A, SX5A, SX4A, SX3A, SX2A and SX1A, from nine Greek regions to be active between May 6th and August 12th. The station SX9A was spotted this past week on May 6th. These stations will be on the air every 10 days, one by one, to celebrate the 2004 OLYMPIC GAMES. Their activities will be on all bands and modes. Some Greek radio clubs are providing several DX awards and planning special events for this program. All the contacts will be replied with a special QSL card via bureau. There will NOT be any QSL Manager. QSL via Greek Buraeu ONLY. For more info, a calendar and on-line logs, please visit the "2004 OLYMPIC GAMES Countdown on the Air" program Web site at: http://www.qsl.net/sv2ngct/sx.htm

2) OLYMPIC PREFIXES FOR GREEKs and FOREIGNERs HAM. The Greek Communications Authority has announced that Greek radio amateurs may use the optional SX2004 or SY2004 callsign prefix from June 1st, 2004, until November 15th, 2004, to commemorate the Athens Olympic Games and Paralympic Games 2004. QSL via operator's instructions. Also, the foreigner radio amateurs, as visitors in Greece, from the CEPT countries or from countries with reciprocity (U.S.A., Canada, Cyprus, Switzeland and Australia) can use the special prefix J42004 from August 1st, 2004 until November 15th, 2004, without any license from Greek Authorities. All the others needs to commumicate with the Greek Authorities for special permission. QSL via operator's instructions.

PLEASE NOTE that you can find the official Web site of ATHENS OLYMPIC GAMES 2004 at: http://www.athens2004.com

TM6, FRANCE. Look for special event station TM6MKI to be active June 1-14th, from the Panazol and Haute Vienne area (Limousin Province), for the 60th anniversary of the Landing in Normandy. (D-Day, 6th of June 1944). This activity also commemorates the killing of most of the inhabitants in the village of Oradour sur Glane, who where shot and burnt in a church (10th of June 1944), by the "Das Reich" SS division, in retaliation of partisans actions. The suffix "MKI" has been chosen to symbolize the famous transceiver "MKII" used by the partisans during WWII. Some TM6MKI activities are scheduled using an original MKII transceiver, on June 5th and 6th. QSL per operator's instruction.

YI, IRAQ. Bob, N2OO, informs OPDX that James, KC4MC, is on a 6 month deployment to Iraq and will be active as YI9MC. More details are to be provided later. QSL via N2OO. Bob states that it will be a nice photo QSL card.

ZA, ALBANIA (Last week's news from Albania by Martti, OH2BH). "Many noticed ZA/OH2BH and ZA/OH2PM signals bouncing in from Albania last week. Indeed, some 6000 QSOs were made--not only to please the Deserving but also to remind us about our shared responsibility to help those in need.
This time, five stations were fully equipped: ZA1BH, ZA1BS, ZA1DC, ZA1DJ and ZA1S. These callsigns were launched into the battle and these fine people made their first radio contact to the world. Their signals reached all parts of the world with ease and also many U.S stations were on hand to experience their first day of operating.
Radio equipment was donated by W3UR, K9MM, G3TXF, EA2NO and OH2PM, but many more recently licensed ZA hams are still in need of any gear to bring more ZA signals to the bands and make the Albanians welcome to this great passion of ours.
You are welcome to join this undertaking by making your old gear active from Albania. Your contacts are K7JA <c.margelli@vxstdusa.com>, N7NG <n7ng@arrl.org> and K9LA <k9la@arrl.net>. Or just meet personally ZA1B, OH2BH, OH2PM, G3LQP and the above U.S persons in Dayton to present your desire for support. For U.S. tax payers, your donations can be procssed by the Northern California DX Foundation. Contact W6OSP <w6osp@aol.com> for details."

ZW1, BRAZIL. Look for special event station ZW1I to be active until the end of of May (31st) to celebrate the City of Itaborai's 437th anniversary. This city is located 50 km North of Rio de Janeiro. Activity will be on all bands, CW and SSB. QSL via PY1AMF, by the Bureau or direct to:
P.O. Box 112436, 24800-000 Itaborai, RJ Brazil.

Todays users were kg4ogn, kf4rte, kg4coq, af4pa & ke4eao.

af4pa was venting about a issure with the florida national guard. af4pa is involved in this organization. don kg4coq blamed af4pa's frustrations on the republican party. then ke4eao got in and also made a comment about that he agrees the republicans are to blame. af4pa then got upset at everyone, af4pa told them this is not a political issue it is a issue with the national guard and some people in the organization. af4pa then advises that he is republican himself. don then tried to make it sout like he was joking about the republican party comment. af4pa was upset and ended the qso shortly after the comments. don kg4coq and ron n9ee frequently make lots of comments about the republican party, it would appears most of the users of the repeater are members of the democratic party.

Biography Info:

Hello all! It's John here! All is well and as usual my motor-mouth hasn't quit yet! I am usually found on these repeaters...
146.640- Holiday, FL - www.the64machine.org EchoLink #79540 ...
443.475+ (103.5) Tampa, FL www.westtampa.com EchoLink #99089 ...
442.650+ (100.0) Port Richey, FL - EchoLink #4429

I have been in FL for over 2 years now and I have grown to love it. Great state and great people (mostly). I have been an operator for over 10 years now and still love it! I also enjoy building antennas, ham radio fellowship, VHF and UHF dx and hanging out with my girlfriend, who is now a ham operator. Her call is KI4FJQ and her name is Danielle. My father is also a ham as well. Yes, he was a big part of the reason I got involved in radio. His call is KR4FL, and he can be found on EchoLink most of the time. I am currently studying to get my general ticket (slowly but surely). Alrighty then, if you want to get in touch with me, my email address above is accurate, or you can give me a call on any one of those machines. Also, for all you musicians out there, I have been a guitar player for 11 years and love to make music. If you wanna jam, write me or give me a call. Peace out and 73!

Thanks to the Northern Ohio Amateur Radio Society, Northern Ohio DX Association, Ohio/Penn PacketCluster Network, AB5K & the AR TelNet Clusters Network and SV1IW for the following updated DX information.

UPDATE/CORRECTION ON INFORMATION THAT APPEARED IN OPDX.660

OPERATION FOR VISITORS DURING THE OLYMPIC GAMES

* Licensed radio amateurs coming from countries - members of CEPT and countries with reciprocity.
Radio amateurs, citizens of a country - member of the Conference of Europe for Post-offices and Telecommunications (CEPT) - who possess a valid radio amateur license, which brings written evidence that it is issued according to the constitution T/R 61-01 of CEPT, and from countries with reciprocity (U.S.A., Canada, Australia, Cyprus and Swiss) visitors for the Olympic Games, have the right to operate their amateur radio stations while their visit in Greece under the special prefix J42004 plus their call sign i.e. J42004/IT9YAE.

* Licensed radio amateurs coming from countries non members of CEPT.
Radio amateurs, citizens of a country - non member of the Conference of Europe for Post-offices and Telecommunications (CEPT) may also operate under the same rules, i.e J42004/VU2IJ. This category though has to send a written notification about their arrival and the exact call sign they will use.

* Both categories alternatively, may use instead of their call sign a combination of up to three (3) letters after the special prefix, i.e. J42004/W or J42004/GGG. Written notification is applicable for the second category only. The ministry will not verify the written notifications unless there is a conflict with the special call signs.
The period of use for all these activities will be from August 1st 2004 till September 15th 2004.

What's up with general? Why not go on and be an extra?

Then get a big amp like Kevin's and have the biggest signal on The Great Liberty Net.

Get drunk and play music like Walter Miller.

Have a world wide shortwave show like The Colonel.

Make Sir Sidney and Kind Jewish Indian jealous.

Donut matter..the bpl makes your ears fubar'd eventually, so it's every station for themselves.

I'm gonna have to dust off an amp I swore I'd never use again.

You might wanna explain in more detail. Not sure Mr. Davies is familiar with the following terms:
kielbasa
Castro Street
'complete' (in the context to which you referred).

In the interest of travel time, he could possibly achieve the same effect in midtown Atlanta. Or Key West. Or the French Quarter.

He knows his history.

Back in the 80s our big mid-east enemy was Iran, and Iraq was the enemy of Iran and was also at war with them.
(Starting to make sense now? Remember the hostage crisis?) Saddam Hussein was also dealing with his own civil wars and was equally brutal in dealing with his own people.

As distasteful as this sounds, back then the US supplied Iraq with weaponry, intelligence, munitions, export-banned dual-use technologies, and biological products including anthrax. This was all done under "the enemy of our enemy is our friend" philosophy.

Check out this link, it's an easy read. The photo of Reagan Envoy Rumsfeld shaking hands with Hussein is classic.

FCC Amateur Radio Enforcement Letters for the Period Ending May 1, 2004
FCC Enforcement Letters
A representative listing of recent Amateur Radio enforcement-related letters from the files of the FCC Enforcement Bureau (letters are in alphabetical order by city of address):

NOTE: Issuance by the FCC of a Warning Notice indicates that the FCC has what it believes to be reliable evidence of possible rules infractions and not necessarily that the recipient has violated FCC rules. The FCC has the authority, pursuant to ï¿½97.519(d)(2) of the rules to readminister any examination element previously administered by a volunteer examiner. These enforcement letters are representative of recent Advisory Notices, Warning Notices, Notices of Violation and other FCC communications to licensees and others involving possible serious rules violations. Unless otherwise indicated, all letters were signed by FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth. This listing is not a comprehensive record of FCC Amateur enforcement actions. Follow-up correspondence will be published as provided. Address all inquiries regarding this correspondence to FCC Special Counsel Riley Hollingsworth, rholling@fcc.gov.

Mr. Glenn A. Baxter
RR 1 Box 776
Belgrade Lakes, ME 04918

RE: Amateur Radio license K1MAN

Dear Mr. Baxter:

This letter explains in what ways your Amateur station has come into compliance with Commission rules since our letter to you of January 29, 2002; and notifies you of two areas of operation that, if not corrected, will lead to enforcement action against your license and/or designation of your renewal application for a hearing.

By letter dated January 29, 2002, the Commission notified you that your understanding of various Amateur Radio Service rules was incorrect. We outlined your apparent misconceptions regarding station control, publishing a transmitting schedule and how that related to interference, threats made to licensee complainants, including threats made with so-called "felony complaint affidavits", broadcasting and broadcasting of tape recordings and telephone conversations.

The January 29 letter detailed complaints received by the Commission, and explained that your method of station control, i.e., "a timer from Radio Shack", did not achieve compliance with the Commission's Rules when you were not present at the control point for your station and, therefore, did not satisfy the Commission's Rules regarding automatic control of a station. We explained to you that to comply with the Commission's Rules you must be at the transmitter, or at the transmitter control point, every moment your station is transmitting when your station is locally or remotely controlled; and that if the station is controlled by telecommand from the control point using a radio link, the frequencies used for telecommand must comply with the Section 97.201 requirements for an auxiliary station (may transmit only on the 1.25 m and shorter wavelength bands, except 219-220, 222-222.150, 431-433 and 435-438 MHz segments).

By letter dated March 4, 2003, the Commission's Boston Office notified you that Commission monitoring and numerous complaints filed with the Commission indicated that the problems outlined in January 2002 had not been corrected. The letter stated that your Amateur station was apparently being used for broadcasting various programs having nothing to do with Amateur Radio; and that transmissions from your station were being used for deliberate interference and for communications in which you apparently had a pecuniary interest. The Boston Office letter stated that transmissions started and ended erratically, were sometimes repetitive and abruptly ended with no identification as required by Commission rules, and that such operation indicated that the transmissions were not under proper control of a licensed operator. The letter noted also that you continually broadcast notices of so-called "felony complaint affidavits " that you claimed to have filed with the United States Justice Department against other Amateur Radio licensees whom you perceived to have interfered with your broadcasts, or refused to relinquish their operating frequency to you.

The Boston Office's letter stated that transmissions from your Amateur station included references to a degree program and directed listeners to your website that advertised an "American Radio School Technician Degree in Electronics" for "$299.95". On that web site you solicited donations for radio equipment, advertised a credit card, and solicited donations and advertised for "IARN" and "AARA". The letter from the Boston office pointed out that such use of your station was in apparent violation of Section 97.113(a)(3) of the Commission's rules, which prohibits "Communications for hire or for material compensation, direct or indirect...." and "Communications in which the station licensee or control operator has a pecuniary interest..."

The letter from the Boston Office requested that you provide substantial additional information about the operation of your station, including submission of a log detailing the information on a weekly basis until further notice. In January 2004, the Boston office notified you that you could discontinue the log submissions, and referred the case to this office.

We have reviewed the information you submitted, as well as numerous complaints filed against your station. Additionally we have reviewed tape recordings made by Commission personnel of your transmissions at various times during 2003 and 2004 subsequent to the Boston Office letter of March 3, 2003.

It is the finding of this office that you are, with some exceptions, generally in compliance with the Commission's rules in the Amateur Service related to broadcasting and information bulletins, and we explain as follows. Broadcasting is prohibited in the Amateur Radio Service, with some exceptions. Section 97.3(a)(10) defines broadcasting as "transmissions intended for reception by the general public, either direct or relayed." One-way transmissions are limited in the Amateur service, but an exception is allowed in Section 97.111(b)(6) for "Transmissions necessary to disseminate information bulletins."

Information bulletins are defined by Section 97.3(a)(26) as messages "directed only to Amateur operators consisting solely of subject matter of direct interest to the Amateur service." There are no specific time limits placed upon information bulletins by Commission rules. A review of your programs at random times since March 3, 2003 indicates that your transmissions were directed to Amateur Radio operators, not to the general public, and that the individual bulletins were related to the Amateur Radio Service. The only notable exception was the offering of a reward for information leading to the identity of parties making threatening telephone calls to you.

The station control problems outlined to you in warnings from the Commission appear, with minor exceptions, to have been corrected. During the monitoring period your station abruptly ended transmission with no identification in one instance, and started transmissions in mid-sentence in another instance.

There are, however, two areas in the operation of your Amateur station that must be corrected in order to avoid enforcement action and/or a designation of your renewal application for hearing to determine if you are qualified to remain a licensee. These are: 1) deliberate interference resulting from your commencing operation on top of ongoing communications, in violation of Section 97.101(a) and (d); and 2) use of your Amateur station for pecuniary interests, in violation of Sections 97.113(a)(2)and (3).

Regarding deliberate interference, we receive continuing complaints, and our monitoring verifies, that your transmissions start up on top of existing communications of individual licensees as well as nets such as the Salvation Army Team Emergency Radio Network. Such operation constitutes deliberate interference. Stations engaging in ongoing communications are not obligated to stop transmitting when K1MAN wants to start transmitting on a frequency, and complainants are so advised by the Commission. You appear to believe that the publication of a transmission schedule gives you the right to begin transmitting on a certain frequency at a certain time, even if the frequency is occupied. It does not.

All frequencies in the Amateur Radio Service are shared--no frequency is assigned for the exclusive use of any station, and your Amateur station has no greater rights to a frequency at any particular time than any other Amateur station. Section 97.101(d) of the rules prohibits an Amateur station from willfully or maliciously interfering with any radio communication or signal. Moreover, publishing a schedule is merely one of the several conditions necessary for the control operator of a club station to accept compensation for transmitting information bulletins, pursuant to Section 97.113(d) of the Commission's rules. Your station K1MAN, however, is not a club station.

Regarding use of an Amateur station for pecuniary interest, we note that your Amateur Radio program transmissions regularly advertise your web page at www.K1man.com, and on those pages you advertise items for sale by the American Amateur Radio Association (AARA), including T shirts, hats and a "Technician Degree Diploma". You advertise the sales commissions and "overrides" that your State Directors and Section Managers can receive, and detail ways in which your Section Managers can earn money by recruiting members, selling hats, name badges or T shirts.

Section 97.113(a)(2) prohibits communications for hire or for material compensation, direct or indirect, paid or promised. Section 97.113(a)(3) prohibits communications in which the station licensee or control operator has a pecuniary interest.

We remind you that any attempts to threaten or intimidate Amateur radio licensees operating on the Amateur bands will reflect adversely upon your qualifications to remain a Commission licensee, and would be the subject of a license revocation or renewal hearing. By letter dated December 11, 2001, you were warned against the sending of your so-called "felony complaint affidavits" to various Amateur Radio licenses that you perceive to either cause interference to your station or which do not relinquish to you the frequency on which they are operating.

Complainants were advised by the Commission to forward any such "affidavits" they received to the Commission, and that they could otherwise be ignored. The United States Attorney for your jurisdiction also warned you that the mailing of such "affidavits" is contrary to law. Apparently you have discontinued those threats. We also remind you that, in regard to the taping and broadcasting of telephone calls, you must comply with applicable state laws.

In conclusion, failure to correct the deliberate interference caused by K1MAN, and the continued use of K1MAN for pecuniary interests, will lead to enforcement action against your license. Either would be sufficient to designate your renewal application for an evidentiary hearing to determine if you are qualified to remain a Commission licensee.

An adverse finding in regard to threats to complainant licensees, or violation of state law regarding recording and broadcasting telephone conversations, would lead to enforcement action against your license and would be sufficient to designate your renewal application for an evidentiary hearing to determine if you are qualified to remain a Commission licensee. You would have the burden of proof in such a proceeding.

You should be aware that in 1990, the Commission revised its character qualifications policy, expanding the types of non-FCC-related misconduct that it would consider as bearing on licensee or applicant character qualifications (Policy Regarding Character Qualifications in Broadcast Licensing, Policy Statement and Order, 5 FCC RCD 3252 (1990) (Character Policy Statement), recon. granted in part, denied in part, 6 FCC Rcd 3448 (1991), further recon. granted, 7 FCC Rcd 6564 (1992). The Commission concluded that "a propensity to comply with the law generally is relevant to the Commission's public interest analysis, and that an applicant's or licensee's willingness to violate other laws, and, in particular, to commit felonies, also bears on our confidence that an applicant or licensee will conform to FCC rules and policies. The 1990 Character Policy Statement applies to Amateur Radio licensees just as it does to all other FCC licensees (See, e.g., Herbert L. Schoenbohm, Decision, 13 FCC Rcd 15028 (1998), recon. denied, 13 FCC Rcd 23774 (1998), aff'd in part, dismissed in part sub nom. Schoenbohm v. FCC, 204 F.3d 243 (2000), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 405 (2000); Leslie D. Brewer, Order to Show Cause, Notice of Order of Suspension, Notice of Opportunity for Hearing, and Notice of Apparent Liability for a Forfeiture, 16 FCC Rcd 5671, licenses revoked, 16 FCC Rcd 12878 (2001).

Accordingly, we will continue to review the operation of K1MAN in light of the issues outlined above.

Warning Notice

Dear Mr. Baker:

Information before the Commission indicates that on March 18, 2004, you operated on 7.263 MHz, a frequency not allocated to Novice Class operators.

Such operation reflects adversely on your qualifications to retain an Amateur Radio license. Section 308(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, gives the Commission the authority to obtain information from licensees about the operation of their station. Accordingly, you are requested to respond to this letter within 20 days of its date submitting any information you wish to be considered in regard to the above operation. Address your response to 1270 Fairfield Road at the letterhead address.

Additionally, please be advised that such operation may lead to revocation of your license or a monetary forfeiture, and no renewal or upgrade application will be considered until this matter is resolved. Please call me at 717-338-2502 if you wish to discuss this matter.

RE: Renewal Application of Amateur Radio Extra Class license W6YEP
File No. 0001618466

Dear Mr. Fennacy:

On February 18, 2004, we notified you that the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau had referred the above renewal application, filed on February 17, 2004, to this office for review. That action was based on information coming to the Commission's attention that you continued operation of your station after the expiration date of February 1, 2004. The letter stated that you would be contacted if additional information was needed.

Information before the Commission indicates that, although aware that your license had expired, you operated on February 4, 5 and 8 on the Fresno Amateur Radio Club repeater, 146.940 MHz. Additionally, information indicates that that you may have interfered with the Fresno repeater by transmitting an unmodulated carrier on 146.340 MHz between 2000 and 2100 UTC on February 6, 2004.

In view of the above, more information is needed in order to make a decision on your application. Section 308(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, gives the Commission the authority to obtain information from licensees about the operation of their station. Accordingly you are requested to respond within 20 days of the date of this letter specifically addressing the operation in February after the expiration of your license and before the renewal was filed.

Please be aware that Congress has made punishable a willfully false or misleading reply to a letter of this type.

File No. EB-02-IH-0886

ORDER OF REVOCATION

Adopted: April 22, 2004 Released: April 23, 2004

By the Chief, Enforcement Bureau:

INTRODUCTION

1. By this Order of Revocation, acting pursuant to authority delegated to the Enforcement Bureau under section 0.111(a)(16) of the Commission's rules,[1] we revoke the above-captioned Amateur license held by Roger Thomas Scaggs. We conclude, based on the evidence of his conviction for murder, that Mr. Scaggs lacks the basic requisite character qualifications to be and remain a Commission licensee.

BACKGROUND

2. On November 21, 2003, the Commission, by the Chief, Enforcement Bureau, designated this case for hearing.[2] The OSC specified the following issues:

(a) to determine the effect of Roger Thomas Scaggs' felony conviction on his qualifications to be and to remain a Commission licensee; and

(b) to determine, in light of the evidence adduced pursuant to the foregoing issue, whether Roger Thomas Scaggs is qualified to be and to remain a Commission licensee and whether his Amateur Radio Advanced Class License W5EBC be should revoked.

3. The OSC ordered Mr. Scaggs, pursuant to section 1.91(c) of the Commission's rules,[3] within thirty days of the date of release of the OSC (i.e., by December 22, 2003), in person or by his attorney, to file a written notice of appearance in order to avail himself of the opportunity to be heard.[4] The OSC provided that the notice of appearance state that Mr. Scaggs would appear on the date fixed for the hearing and present evidence on the specified issues.[5] The OSC informed Mr. Scaggs that, if he failed to so file a written notice of appearance, his right to a hearing on the matter of his amateur license would be deemed waived, and the proceeding would be resolved thereafter in accordance with section 1.92(c) of the Commission's rules.[6]

4. The Presiding Judge determined that Mr. Scaggs had received a copy of the OSC but had failed to file a written notice of appearance seeking to avail himself of the opportunity to be heard.[7] Accordingly, the Presiding Judge concluded that Mr. Scaggs had waived his right to a hearing, and the Presiding Judge terminated the proceeding and certified the case to the Commission for disposition in accordance with section 1.92(c) of the Commission's rules.[8] The Commission has delegated authority to the Enforcement Bureau for such revocation proceedings, terminated on the basis of waiver, pursuant to section 0.111(a)(16) of the Commission's rules.[9]

DISCUSSION

A. Facts

5. Mr. Scaggs has held an amateur license since 1954. The Commission's records do not reveal any violations by him of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (the "Act"),[10] or the Commission's rules. However, on November 16, 1998, approximately six months after the Commission's last renewal of his captioned amateur radio license,[11] Mr. Scaggs was convicted for the March 6, 1996, homicide of Penny Scaggs, his wife of thirty-five years.[12] The record in that case showed that Mr. Scaggs beat his wife to death with a galvanized lead pipe and then stabbed her several times in their home.[13] Mr. Scaggs was convicted of murder by a jury and sentenced by the same jury to a prison term of thirty-two years and fined ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00).[14] Mr. Scaggs' conviction was affirmed, and his request for rehearing overruled on June 22, 2000.[15] Mr. Scaggs reports that he is pursuing post-conviction relief in the United States District Court.[16]

B. Discussion

6. Section 312(a)(2) of the Act provides that the Commission may revoke any license "because of conditions coming to the attention of the Commission which would warrant it in refusing to grant a license or permit on an original application."[17] Among the factors that the Commission considers in determining whether the applicant has the requisite qualifications to operate the station for which authority is sought is the character of the licensee or applicant.[18] In making character assessments, the Commission focuses on misconduct that demonstrates the licensee's or applicant's proclivity to deal truthfully with the Commission and to comply with its rules and policies.[19] The Commission has consistently applied character standards developed for broadcasters to applicants and licensees in the amateur radio service.[20]

7. The Commission considers relevant "evidence of any conviction for misconduct constituting a felony."[21] The Commission believes that "[b]ecause all felonies are serious crimes, any conviction provides an indication of an applicant's or licensee's propensity to obey the law" and to conform to provisions of both the Act and the agency's rules and policies.[22] In this case, Mr. Scaggs has been convicted of a most serious felony -- in this case the brutal murder of his wife of thirty-five years.[23] We find that such egregious criminal misconduct justifies a finding that Mr. Scaggs will obey the law only when it suits him.[24] Mr. Scaggs' record as an amateur licensee and the assertions of Mr. Shifrin, Mr. Scaggs' sole character witness, who, notably, did not address Mr. Scaggs' criminal conviction or any of the related circumstances, are not sufficient to overcome the impact of Mr. Scaggs' crime.[25] Thus, we find that Mr. Scaggs does not possess the character qualifications required by this Commission to be or remain a licensee.

C. License Revocation

8. The Commission's character policies[26] provide that any felony conviction is a matter predictive of licensee behavior and is directly relevant to the functioning of the Commission's regulatory mission. The extremely serious conviction described above mandates the conclusion that Mr. Scaggs does not possess the requisite qualifications to be or remain a Commission licensee. Based on the foregoing, we conclude, as a matter of law, that Mr. Scaggs' above-captioned license should be revoked.

IV. ORDERING CLAUSES

9. Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED, pursuant to section 312 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended,[27] and sections 1.92(d) and 0.111(a)(16) of the Commission's rules,[28] that the captioned amateur license held by Roger Thomas Scaggs IS REVOKED, effective the fortieth (40th) day after release of this Order, unless Mr. Scaggs files a petition for reconsideration or application for review within thirty (30) days of the release of this Order, in which case the effective date will be suspended, pending further Order of the Commission.

10. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that copies of this ORDER OF REVOCATION shall be sent by Certified Mail Return Receipt Requested to Roger Thomas Scaggs, RR 2 Box 4400, Gatesville, Texas 76597, with a copy to Charles R. Burton, Esq., Minton, Burton, Foster & Collins, 1100 Guadalupe Street, Austin, Texas 78701.

Applications for Renewal, Call Sign Change From KB4VU and Change of Address Case Number 2003-618
Warning Notice

Dear Mr. Richards:

On February 27, 2004, we notified you that the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau had requested this office to audit applications filed by you in regard to the above call signs. Specifically, we are reviewing the application you filed on November 28, 1995 in which you requested that: 1) the call sign KB4VU be changed to the next systematically assigned call sign; 2) your address be changed to 11 Ferris Court, Plattsburgh, NY 12901; and 3) your license be renewed. That application was granted September 17, 1996, after your application was returned for birth date clarification and signature. A copy if the application was enclosed for your reference. Postal records indicate that you received our letter on March 3, 2004.

Frank C. Richards of 6946 Pickadilly Court, Fort Myers, FL 33919, claims that he is the real licensee of KB4VU, that he had the call sign since 1979, has lived in Florida for 25 years and has never lived in New York. He further claims he filed no applications for call sign change or change of address. The February 27, 2004, letter informed you that the application you filed raises questions about apparent abuse of the licensing system, and requested additional information from you. We have not received your response, which was due March 20, 2004.

Section 308(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. Section 308(b), gives the Commission the authority to request information from licensees and applicants regarding their applications and operation of their radio stations. Failure to provide the information requested by the Commission would be a separate violation of the rules and subject you to enforcement action. You are requested to provide the information within 10 days of receipt of this letter.

RE: Amateur license N6CID

Dear Mr. Thompson:

Enclosed is a complaint we received about the operation of your station on various dates in January 2004. The complaint alleges deliberate interference to communications in progress on the 2-meter amateur band.

Section 308(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, gives the Commission the authority to obtain information from applicants and licensees about the operation of their station. Accordingly, you are requested to review the complaint and respond to this office within 20 days.

In an inquiry of this type we are required to notify you that a willfully false or misleading reply constitutes a separate violation made punishable under United States Code Title 18, Section 1001.

>BPL - A Call To Arms
>On April 26, President Bush told the American Association of Community Colleges Annual Convention in Minneapolis: "There needs to be technical standards to make possible new broadband technologies, such as the use of high-speed communication directly over power lines.
Power lines were for electricity; power lines can be used for broadband technology. So the technical standards need to be changed to encourage that."
>
>
>Mr. Bush is wrong. Using power lines to distribute broadband services (called Broadband over Power Lines, or BPL) is a bad idea that should not be encouraged. Federally licensed Amateur Radio operators need to tell him so -- and also need to enlist their Members of Congress in reversing this bad administration policy.
>
>
>The links shown on the right-hand side of this page will take you where you need to go to respond to the White House and to Congress. Do it now! We need thousands of responses from all parts of the country, right away, if we are to make an impression.
>
>
>Here is our basic argument:
>
>
>Power lines were designed to transmit electrical energy. They were not designed to transmit broadband signals, which is fact are radio-frequency (RF) signals. When a broadband signal is put on a power line, much of the RF energy leaks off the line and radiates, causing interference to nearby radio receivers. Interference has been documented at test sites throughout the country and overseas where BPL is in operation. Recordings of actual interference at several test sites are available at www.arrl.org/bpl.
>
>The nation's 680,000 radio amateurs are especially concerned about this interference because it affects the short waves -- a unique portion of the radio spectrum that supports long-distance, intercontinental radio communication. Licensed radio amateurs use these frequencies for hurricane reporting, disaster and emergency relief, and many other purposes in accordance with FCC regulations. The Amateur Radio Service is the only 100% failsafe emergency communications capability in the world. No matter what happens, radio amateurs will be able to communicate with one another without having to rely on the expensive and vulnerable infrastructure -- but we cannot maintain our emergency networks if BPL is deployed and interferes with the weak radio signals we are trying to hear.

>
>In addition to amateur operation, the short waves are used for international broadcasting, aeronautical, maritime, and other services including the military. Depending on the frequencies in use, BPL interference also could wipe out radio communication for many of our nation's First Responders -- police, fire, and emergency medical personnel -- who use low-band VHF radios operating in the 30-50 megahertz (MHz) range.
>
>Radio amateurs support expanded broadband services to consumers at lower cost. Indeed, they tend to be early adopters of new technology. However, there are ways to deliver broadband that do not pollute the radio spectrum as BPL does. These include fiber-to-the-home, cable, DSL, and Broadband Wireless Access. None of these technologies causes interference to short wave radio.
>
>BPL is sometimes touted as a solution for rural areas. It is not. A BPL signal only carries a few thousand feet down a power line and then must be repeated. This requires a lot of hardware and will not be economic in areas with low population densities.
>
>The FCC recognizes the interference potential of BPL and is in the midst of a rulemaking proceeding, ET Docket No. 04-37, that proposes new requirements and measurement guidelines for BPL systems. However, the FCC proposals do not go nearly far enough to protect over-the-air radiocommunication services.
>
>In short, BPL has a major disadvantage that is not shared by other broadband technologies and that outweighs whatever benefit it may offer. National broadband telecommunications policy should not include support for BPL, but should focus on other, more appropriate technologies.
>

thousands of responses to reach the White House and Congress in the next few days.

OT, so to speak.

What ever happened to the K1MAN thing? When I got re-activated several years ago, I happened across his 'casts on the air, then the Riley activities, then nothing...or at least I missed it.

What pisses me off, is in council meetings where one individual "always" gets a Nextel call. You would think he would turn it off for the short time we meet OR tell them not to call, he won't be available or plain turn the damned thing off. That is very distracting to see and hear when important issues are being discussed. I swear, I "think" some do this crap to impress others. "I" could give a shit less. It isn't something "new" that you just "have to flash".

I checked the web but couldn't find the frequency spectrum for tornados, etc. weather phenomena.

Being the owner of a scanner radio that can receive most any frequency, I am wondering if there are even better frequencies than just the TV bands to hear tornados on?

Lightning's frequency spectrum is concentrated where?

Hurricanes listenable? Any other phenomena listen able?

As many of you know, Bill Fisher W4AN -- top contester and founder of eHam.net and contesting.com -- recently passed away. His sudden passing was a shock to the entire ham community, and he will be greatly missed.

The W4AN Memorial Trust Fund was established to benefit Bill's two young children, Graeme and Erik. See W8JI's page for more info on this fund... http://w8ji.com/w4an.htm

To help add funds to the Trust, we've put together a Raffle, with a great assortment of prizes. Thanks to the incredible support of the ham radio business community, we are able to offer about $6,200 in prizes, including a new ICOM IC-756PROII, generously donated by ICOM America!

Tickets will be sold at the Crowne Plaza Hotel on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights (5/13-5/15) PLUS tickets are also available on-line via a secure server, for those that can't make it to Dayton this year. The raffle drawing will take place on Saturday night (5/15) at Midnight. Need not be present to win.

For all the details, including pictures and descriptions of all the prizes, go to:

Have you tried Ebay? I see tons of them show up there.

I would recommend Plextor or Yamaha.

Events in Iraq Test President as Leader
By Janet Hook
Times Staff Writer

May 7, 2004

WASHINGTON - The cascade of troubling developments in Iraq has posed an extraordinary test of President Bush's leadership, forcing him to do several things that do not come easily to him.

Although the hallmarks of his administration have been loyalty, discipline and doggedness, Bush in recent days has openly criticized a top lieutenant, changed course on troop levels and funding in Iraq and been subjected to a new spate of dissent from fellow Republicans in Congress.

Bush's rebuke of Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld for his handling of the Iraq prison scandal, delivered in private but deliberately made public by top White House aides, is a rare departure for a president who has labored to keep divisions within his administration behind closed doors.

Bush's decision this week to seek more money for Iraq, considered overdue by some members of Congress, is seen by lawmakers as an admission that costs are growing more rapidly than had been expected.

And the controversy over the administration's handling of the abuse of Iraqi prisoners, including the Pentagon's apparent delay in notifying Congress, has so infuriated lawmakers that more Republicans are second-guessing an administration that is seen as having little appetite for public dissent from its usual allies.

Bush's leadership style - both in domestic and foreign policy - has produced a remarkably disciplined and focused White House for most of his tenure in office.

But now, some critics argue that his administration's tightly held process of setting and sticking by policy - described by administration insiders in several recent books - has contributed to some of the problems it faces after the end of major combat in Iraq. Critics say administration planners gave short shrift to signs that stabilizing Iraq would require more time, money and manpower than they expected.

"It is not a deliberative or particularly rational process, and it's seldom open to new information," said Thomas Mann, a political analyst at the Brookings Institution. "That was responsible for the lack of planning for what was to follow the war."

"There is a general sense out there that the administration does not tolerate any points of view that are contrary to theirs," said Sen. Chuck Hagel (R-Neb.), who has argued that the U.S. should seek more international support for the Iraq mission. "Good, sharp critical thinking is absolutely imperative to good policy."

A senior administration official disputed the contention that the White House was rigid and closed to dissenting views or new information, citing the many course corrections the administration has made since the end of major combat in Iraq.

"I think actions speak louder than words. How the administration has pursued Iraq's reconstruction and the transfer of sovereignty is by having a plan but having a flexible plan that does adapt to changing conditions on the ground," the official said.

Recent weeks have posed a steady stream of challenges to Bush that have tested his ability to keep his Iraq policy on course.

The release of photographs of Iraqi prisoners being abused created a firestorm that he and his top lieutenants were ill-prepared to douse.

It came on the heels of weeks of continuing instability and outbursts of anti-Americanism in parts of Iraq. The U.S. military has struggled for a strategy to handle Fallouja, a hotbed of the insurgency. In April, 136 American troops died in Iraq - the deadliest month yet in the conflict.

Recent polls have suggested that these troubles are affecting the public's assessment of Bush's handling of the conflict in Iraq. A new Gallup survey - conducted as reports of Iraqi prisoner abuse were emerging - found that 42% of those surveyed approved of the way Bush is handling the situation in Iraq, down from 48% in April and 61% in January.

No one knows for sure how this will affect Bush's reelection prospects. But the events that seem to be swirling beyond his control undercut one of Bush's strongest political assets: his persona as a strong leader.

"It would be better for him if it appeared more that he was ahead of events rather than reacting," said Charles O. Jones, a professor emeritus at the University of Wisconsin. "His great strength has been a positive image of his capacity to lead . of seeming to be in charge, not letting others determine what he's going to do."

One important aspect of Bush's leadership style is his tendency to remain detached from the nitty-gritty details of issues. Some analysts say that may have contributed to the fact that Bush, who had been told in January in general terms about an investigation of prisoner abuse, felt blindsided when he recently learned its full extent.

"He is not known for his curiosity, for pressing for new information," Mann said. "His antennae were not well positioned to pick it up."

Another important feature of Bush's leadership has been the priority he puts on loyalty, discipline and presenting a united administration front. That has made his White House unusually free of leaks and unauthorized disclosure of internal divisions.

That is why it was so unusual that top administration aides made a point of letting reporters know Wednesday night that Bush had told Rumsfeld that he was unhappy with the defense secretary's handling of the prison scandal. But the scolding only went so far: The next day, Bush reaffirmed his support for Rumsfeld.

"He's an important part of my Cabinet, and he'll stay in my Cabinet," Bush said Thursday.

Another hallmark of Bush's presidency has been his tendency to consult Congress less often than many of its members, including those in his own party, would like.

"It's been like pulling teeth getting information out of this Defense Department," said Rep. Jim Kolbe (R-Ariz.), chairman of the House subcommittee that handles Iraq reconstruction funding.

Although such complaints are common under all presidents, the Bush White House has been especially determined to expand presidential powers and limit the reach of the legislative branch. Against that backdrop, lawmakers, especially in the Senate, were infuriated that the Pentagon had apparently delayed informing Congress about the prisoner abuse scandal.

Rep. Christopher Shays (R-Conn.) said the scandal might have been averted if the Pentagon was not so resistant to congressional oversight.

"Many of us have asked to go to places, and one of the places we should have been visiting were the prisons to see how difficult it was for our troops to handle these prisoners," Shays said.

Hagel argues that Bush will have to be more open to input from congressional dissidents if the president wants to shore up his political support during the potentially rocky months ahead, as Iraq makes its transition to sovereignty.

"It's more likely Congress will hang with you" if its members do not feel cut out of discussions, Hagel said. "These problems are going to get wider and deeper."

The White House denied that there was any effort to keep Congress in the dark.

"The president has made it clear he wants Congress to be kept informed," said an administration official who asked not to be named. "But I do think that for as long as I've lived in this town, Congress is rarely satisfied with its level of notification on any subject."

Hello Anybody,

Looking at the hx470 marine,frs,murs radio at Boat U.S, (the marine version of the vertex vx-7) I noticed a voice scrambler module accessory for the rig. Is it able to be used on the vx-7? Was wondering, anyone try it?

My dearest fellow underaged child lover,

I am a fan of child pornography and for the past 14 years,I have been able to gather quite a collection of it.
I have pictures, VHS tapes, posters, audio recordings, and games based on child pornography.

I am selling my products (or trading for other child pornography).

I have a complete color catalog of all products now available. You can purchase pictures (both normal kodak and computer JPEG's). Also, you can purchase posters, VHS tapes, used boys underwear, and audio recordings.

There are many products and services. Here are some prices:

Complete Color Catalog (160 pages).....$5.00
100 Pictures Little boys age 7-12.....$9.95
120 Pictures Little boys age 13-17.....$11.95
VHS tape, little boys "Bath Time for Uncle Lloyd".....$49.95
VHS tape, little boys "Happy B-day, Uncle Lloyd".....$49.95
VHS tape, teenage boys "Naked Pizza Party!".....$49.95
Personalized Audio tape.....$2.99

If you have child pornography, preferably little boys ages 7-9, I will trade or buy them from you. If they are action shots, of an adult with a little boy having sex, I am willing to trade big, or pay you a lot.
Please write to me for more details. Thanks.

You can send cash, checks, or money orders made out to FUN WITH CHILDREN.

Please send your order to:

Fun With Children

2269. Need to replace a 40 year old television antenna wall jack - help!

Hi,

I live in a 44 year old apartment building in Manhattan. I'm currently doing renovations and I've removed an old, dented, paint-encrusted TV antenna wall jack from the living room. I'd like to replace it with its modern equivalent so I can use the building's roof antenna for HDTV and FM radio reception.

I don't know exactly what this thing is or how to replace it properly. Ideally I'd like to have a standard 75 ohm coax output. Any help would be appreciated. Here's a description of the old jack:

The jack accepts 2 coax cable inputs at the back. and provides 2 screw terminal outputs on the front. The screw terminals on the front are presumably for the old standard 300 ohm TV wiring. Here's a schematic:

COAX 1 COAX 2
| |
| |
resistor 1 no connection
|
|
resistor 2 no connection
| |
| |
screw terminal screw terminal 300 ohm 300 ohm
```

Please reply to dschwarz but do not spam me - my email domain is verizon dot net.

Thanks,

Dan

Yeah, tried that. The local Radio Shack clerk stared blankly at the old jack then led me to a rack of 75 ohm coax TV wall jacks. Right output... wrong input. The local store has absolutely nothing like this.

Here is the Winegard WebSite, with a selection of splitters and wall outlets. If the system you described is part of a complete distribution system for the apartment building, removing the wall outlet will eliminate the signal to the outlets after it. It sounds like the outlet that you have is a feed thru outlet that comes from an outlet either above or below -- probably above -- and then continues the signal on to the next outlet. You could send an Email to the Winegard company and let them know what you want to replace and then go from there. Instead of the screw terminals for the 300 ohm cable outlet, you could go with the 75 ohm coax output. Be sure you ask for the feed thru type outlets.

If we presume that the poster who says it is part of a distribution system is right, and I have no experience with that setup to either agree or disagree, let me propose a simple solution, which if it doesn't work will have not caused any real grief.

The screw terminal are 300 ohm twin lead, right? You want 75 ohm cable, right?

Go back to the yo-yo at RS and tell him you want an Indoor/Outdoor 75W to 300W Matching Transformer
Catalog #: 15-1230

This will set you back 5.49 plus tax. The installation will be obvious. Open the package carefully and if this is not the answer take it back for a refund.

Try contacting TV weatherman Tom Skilling of WGN TV in Chicago. He has a web site called ask Tom. He is also very well connected with tornado chasers. The local College of DuPage has a very active storm chaser Sirs: This is yet another example of a clear violation of your Terms Of Service. As you can see, the poster is submitting this post over the name of another. This sort of activity is a chargeable criminal offense punishable by fines and imprisonment.

I urge you to look into this matter and assign it a higher priority than other posts since this is of a criminal nature.

Thank you for your assistance.

My dearest fellow underaged child lover,

I am a fan of child pornography and for the past 14 years,I have been able to gather quite a collection of it.
I have pictures, VHS tapes, posters, audio recordings, and games based on child pornography.

I am selling my products (or trading for other child pornography).

I have a complete color catalog of all products now available. You can purchase pictures (both normal kodak and computer JPEG's). Also, you can purchase posters, VHS tapes, used boys underwear, and audio recordings.

There are many products and services. Here are some prices:

Complete Color Catalog (160 pages).....$5.00
100 Pictures Little boys age 7-12.....$9.95
120 Pictures Little boys age 13-17.....$11.95
VHS tape, little boys "Bath Time for Uncle Lloyd".....$49.95
VHS tape, little boys "Happy B-day, Uncle Lloyd".....$49.95
VHS tape, teenage boys "Naked Pizza Party!".....$49.95
Personalized Audio tape.....$2.99

If you have child pornography, preferably little boys ages 7-9, I will trade or buy them from you. If they are action shots, of an adult with a little boy having sex, I am willing to trade big, or pay you a lot. Please write to me for more details. Thanks.

You can send cash, checks, or money orders made out to FUN WITH CHILDREN.

Please send your order to:

Fun With Children
c/o Uncle Lloyd
710 SOUTH CLINTON STREET #202
ATHENS, ALABAMA 35611

Sorry, but I can't make much sense out of the drawing. The resistors (where are the other ends??) and the "no connects" are a big mystery from this end.

Any clue as to Coax 1 / Coax 2, which is the input feed and which is the outgoing feed? If so...

You need is a simple "Directional Coupler". Probably a 14dB version. A DC is an unbalanced 2-way splitter. Instead of both splits being -3.5 dB down like a conventional 2-way, one leg is very low loss (typically < 1dB) and the other is high loss (-14, -16, -22dB etc.)

It has 3 female coax ports: IN / OUT / TAP. The distribution cables (the 2 on the back of your current gizmo) go to the IN and OUT, there is very little loss between them, the idea being to pass along as much signal as possible to the next guy.

The TAP port is the "high loss" leg which will poke out through your new wall plate, having a single hole in the middle for your coax connection. You secure it to the plastic plate with a hex nut.

I am taking my IC-W32A HT with me to europe on Vacation. The repeater access tone there is universally 1750 HZ however, my HT is not designed for this requirement. Is there a workaround? A manual whistle maybe? who would sell one?
Thanks in advance

Hello group,

Could anybody give me any links about studies done about the feasibility of using APRS in a real emergency situation?

- what use has APRS in emergency situations?
- are direct packet links preferable to APRS (1200 baud AFSK)?
- are other digimodes (MFSK-16, PSK-31, RTTY) preferable to APRS?

Any help is useful, thank you!

Heck. I love netcopping him. The mewling little bastard makes mistake after mistake which Stagger Lee picks up on and points out. I use this info to play Net Cop, just as Roger has done to me and many, many others.
Oh, by the way. Stagger Lee had nothing at all to do with the letters I sent to Pam Hoffer with copies of Roger's posts. I acted alone on that one...and three days after I sent the letter Pam booted Roger's ass off Ovis.
Also. I didn't refer to Roger as a bastard in a derogatory sense. I meant it in the literal sense.

There used to be articles in magazines to build the tone in a mic.

But I would really be surprised if it wasn't in your radio. You may just not want to do what would be required to activate it. With the European requirements for frequency coverage, I wouldn't be surprised if you have to opened jumpers or diodes on your PCB to configure your radio for one of the various European modes.

VOTE FOR A LEADER
Chuck Gysi, N2DUP
for ARRL section manager in Minnesota

NEWS RELEASE

For immediate release
May 15, 2004
Contact: Chuck Gysi, N2DUP / N2DUP@RadioHams.net

NOTE TO EDITORS: A digital mug shot of Chuck Gysi, N2DUP, is available via e-mail request. Please specify the file format you prefer.

N2DUP pledges to appoint youth as assistant section manager

Chuck Gysi, N2DUP, a candidate for Minnesota section manager in this summer's American Radio Relay League election, has pledged to appoint a youth as assistant section manager.

"There is no question in my mind that the future of amateur radio is youth, and if we don't value their input as to what is important in attracting them to the hobby, then we're not doing our job," Gysi said.

"It's too easy to try to think that we know what is best for youth and how to attract them to a world-class hobby," Gysi said. "However, as the father of two teen-agers, I know that we need to consult youth and value their input on the best methods to attract their interest."

Several younger hams have taken leadership roles in southeastern Minnesota, yet they are teen-agers. There are plenty of opportunities to ensure younger hams play an important role in the growth of the amateur radio hobby.

"The teen ASM I appoint will have a valuable role in my section manager's cabinet," Gysi said. "My section leadership will look to our teen ASM's input to gain more youth operators in Minnesota."

The teen ASM also will work with other young hams around the state to keep their interest in the hobby and identify new ways to put their skills to the best use of the ARRL, Gysi added.

"I want youth involved with Field Day activities, in contesting, at public service events, and more," Gysi said. "How better can we advance the participation in our hobby than to get younger operators involved and gain a taste of the various facets of amateur operation?"

Gysi is a long-time ARRL volunteer himself and has been an active amateur radio operator for a solid 22 years. He chose to run for the section manager's position because of his leadership experience.

The section manager oversees the more than 2,500 ARRL members in Minnesota and appoints hams to serve in capacities ranging from official observers to public information officers.

ARRL members will receive ballots from league headquarters in Newington, Conn., about July 1.

Gysi currently serves as an ARRL public information officer and also has served as emergency coordinator, district emergency coordinator and official emergency station. He is a member of the Rochester Amateur Radio Club and the Minnesota Wireless Association.

Gysi is available to make presentations at club meetings or other gatherings of hams anywhere in Minnesota. Call him toll-free at (888) 463-5355 or send an e-mail to N2DUP@RadioHams.net. In addition, he has set up an extensive web site about his candidacy at www.RadioHams.net.

Back when I was DA2LJ in Germany (70s) a whistle worked. You see once its brought up, it stayed up till the carrier dropped out on the repeater, resetting the system.

Your really going to love the system in Europe. The repeaters are on basically the same freqs and spread out and seperated so its like a cell phone system. You drop out of one, and your in range of another. Not like stateside at all.

at my emergency operations center we use aprs.. the county has a setup and each of the municipalities (towns) have a setup.. we are on our own little uhf frequency and we are not bogged down by 5 million stations trying to tx at the same time..

APRS is nice .. it's nice to look at a map - click on a municipality eoc and type a message.. but it has it's drawbacks too... try to type more than 3 or 4 lines and it will truncate your message..
try to print the screen and the software crashes.. messages have no formal formatting... just text typed on the screen...
(which it's supposed to do) you have to close the log file ,in aprs , in order to print it... the maps are nice .. if you are going to track a mobile user it may be suitable..
if you are going to send short messages back and forth .. it's great.. but if you are going to send more than a few lines.. be prepared to type multiple messages..

nice program but aprs wasn't designed for emergency communications... as far as the other digimodes... except basic packet, i dont have experience using them so i can't say... why not test it with a friend.. and see if you like it.. if it fits your needs.. who knows.. maybe they fixed a few things since i last seen it..

we did use a packet system once.. the problem with a direct packet link is when sending a message you would have to connect to the packet system you were sending the message to and then type your message then disconnect from the system.. while you were connected to the destination computer no one else could connect .. if you have someone that doesnt type fast and has a lot to type.. it could hold up someone trying to send an urgent message..
thats why we switched to aprs.. so no one would tie up the computers...
(remain connected to) with aprs there is no connecting to the destination computer.. it just sends the message.. aprs also has a acknowledgement feature.. when a message is received by the destination computer it sends an 'ack' and lets you know the destination computer received the message... (doesnt mean it was read by anyone though... just means it was received by the software..)

well i hope this wasnt too much rambling on....

I'm not aware of a specific study, but here is a link to a United States Navy web site focusing on APRS. Perhaps they, or one of the links there, can provide what you're looking for.

I have 3 boxes of precision resistors (leaded), IC's, Caps and inductors.
Some in bags some on reels. Follow the links below for the lists. They are in Adobe pdf and Microsoft word. I will accept best offers for all (would like to sell entire lot) More photos or info upon request. These are all new and unused parts

Hello, Fred and the group, repeaters over here in central Europe are not any more "universally" to be opened by 1750 hz tone. Many are carrier opened, and some need a PL tone.

The 1750 hz tone can be generated by whistling, though it is not the easy way, since the length of the tone differs.
I bet, there is a setting in your HT to operate with the 1750 tone. I operate a VX5R since 5 years, bought in San Diego. After doing some of the "usual mods" www.mods.dk I could operate it over there as well as here in Europe.

Unlike in the States, Repeaters are allocated frequencies between 145.600 to 145.787,5 in a spacing of 12.5 khz.
Only few are out of this range.

Mail me, offlist if you like, or here if this topic is of interest for others, where you plan to go, from your name assuming somwhere in the german speaking countries. Repeaters are strictly owed by clubs here, but are all open by law, and are well documented. I can mail you a list, or a link. If you need help for your travel, I am out of this business.

Herzliche Grï¿½ï¿½e an alle

Fred,

Go to http://www.rigpix.com/icom/icw32ae_manual.pdf

page 4 item 18 "call button"

but you will have to make a EU version out of your HT

try here: http://www.kb2ljj.com/data/icom/ic-w32a.htm

Maybe anyone else here nows a better way

Please note that APRS is an Automatic Position Reporting System first. It is great for knowing WHERE people are without having to. The Wx, message and DF capability are nice, but quite secondary. Think of it as a logistics aid with minor message capability. For traffic (message) handling during emergencies, any of the keyboard-to-keyboard modes should be better as could voice be.

That's about right. I left in 1978 and didn't return until about 1989. It was a major culture shock. Been thinking about leaving again ever since.

I just don't have the patience to work on vehicles anymore. My SUV needs some very minor work, but it will wait until the next service. However, in your case, one would think you would be in a little bit more of a rush to fix that Fiat since you have to drive around in a Mercedes 'till then. ;-)

But, of course, you do also have the Muzzy. I had a Kawasaki year ago, but traded it in for a BMW R100 RT while living in Germany (needed something larger than a 650 to tote the wife around and really liked that particular BWM). I later sold it to a friend who decided to drive on the wrong side of the road during a vacation to London. He survived, the BMW didn't.

Hi all!
I would like to know the proceedings to reduce the maximum power output of the ICOM IC28H transceiver. I know that it has two levels of power output: 5W and 45W. I'd like to reduce the maximum power output to 20W or 25W (22W would be the best!). Someone told me that this kind of equipment has an internal adjustment for this kind of work.

Could anyone help me?

Well yesterday morning after parking in the Staff car park I came down about 10am to go out to a job to find a big black line down the side of the Merc , the drivers door pushed in and the door mirror hinge broken...sitting beside it was a big dirty Land Rover discovery with marks on the front rubber corner bumper. Well ,I found out who it belonged to from the car park guy and SHE was summoned. "Sorry I didn't know I had done that" SHE said ( True! or SHE would have ran the scene)..... £600 worth of damage BIG FAT STUPID WOMEN SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO DRIVE ANYTHING BIGGER THAN A MICRO CAR...THERE SHOULD BE A LAW AGAINST WOMEN DRIVING 4 BY 4'S SUV'S MPV'S THEY JUST DONT HAVE THE GRASP FOR ANYTHING BIGGER THAN A PRAM!!!

That was a shame I only have a wee Suzuki GN125 and spend my time on it avoiding women drivers......

Final thought.....WHY after'73 in the states, were all the cars downsized to boring european dimensions because of the fuel crisis when now in the year 2004 every bugger is driving big 4 by 4's suv's and mpv's....I don't get it.....I blame the Japs.......

Suggest you get hold of the radio's service manual. Shouldn't be too expensive.

Take care, though. RF amps tend to do funny things, spurious-wise, if you reduce their output power too far below the design level. You should check the radio's output with a spectrum analyzer after you do the tweaks you describe.

If you don't have a SpecAn, get access to one somehow. You really don't want to run the modified radio without making sure its spurs are still down where they should be.

Then why is it that a traceback to you comes up with domain names like 1Cust127.tnt1.wheeling.wv.da.uu.net these days? (The digits in "1Cust127" may change, but the "tnt1.wheeling.wv.da.uu.net" seems to remain the same.) The last time I bothered with you, I traced you to poolA-042.stratuswave.net, but that address doesn't seem to show up any more.

That notwithstanding, the most important thing for the targets of your abuse to know is that the complaint address registered for the IP addresses you've been using recently (NetRange: 65.224.0.0 - 65.239.255.255; NetName: UUNET97DU-2BLK) is abuse-mail@mci.com,

and that MCI can take things from there.

Once again, Woger, you are welcome.

Ouch! A lot of people shouldn't be driving SUV's. About seven months ago, my wife's little car was hit by a big Ford Expedition at a stop light. Even though the lady driver was only going about 20 mph, with hardly a scratch on that truck, it darn near killed my wife's little car (almost $1800 in damage). It was at night and the lady driving the Expedition claimed she didn't even see my wife's car sitting at the intersection (too busy looking the other way to turn left I guess - or either blind as a bat).

Funny you should say that. It is exactly the reason my wife drives a small car. She just cannot handle a larger vehicle. It scares her. She almost completely panics when she sit behind the steering wheel of a big vehicle. In my case, I learned how to drive large trucks in the military year ago. After leaving the military, I drove trucks for while and and managed a commercial truck rental company. Therefore, driving a larger vehicle is nothing to me.

Of course, the so-called "gas crisis" in the '70's certainly pushed many into smaller vehicles. But this is a big country. People drive an average of 20 miles to get to work each day, with more miles for lunch and shopping after work. Add in a load of kids, the pet, and the shopping, and it's obviously uncomfortable to drive a smaller vehicle. That is pushing people back to larger vehicles. In my own case, I use my truck to tow large boats, both for pleasure and for Coast Guard related activities. Since this is important to me, I tolerate (but obviously don't enjoy) the higher gas prices.

Yes, I've noticed that about APRS... Once you've set it up, you can watch the little icons, all stacked on top of each other. Every once in a while, one of them shifts position, goes off the "air" (actually Internet) or suddendly appears on the big map.

(Yawn)

The position reporting feature has some potential to be useful, but that potential is seldom if ever realized. The main thing I've seen accomplished by APRS is that a lot of good equipment gets tied up that really ought to be utilized to provide emergency communications instead. Also, good ham radio operators get tied up, wasting time playing around with APRS when they could be doing something useful.

That's my "position" on APRS, folks... It's a fine example of wasted motion. - A distraction from the job of providing meaningful, useful emergency communications.

Yes well I got £160 out of the woman this morning and the rubber came off the side of the car with t-cut...left with a small crease in the door but I can live with that..

...it jusy annoys me that the beautiful big simple American cars of the 60's and early 70's are now gone replaced with big ugly trucks with no better gas mileage......

Amateur Radio Newsline™ Report 1396 May 14, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1396 with a release date of Friday, May 14, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T. Hamvention 2004 is opening and B-P-L is still in the news. Find out the details on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1396 coming your way right now.

**

HAMVENTION COVERAGE

The 2004 Dayton Hamvention is about to open its doors. One of this year's Hamvention themes is going back to the future. Our producer Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, flew in a few days early to find out what it really means for those who will be attending the show.

--
Audio report only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org
--

Bill, Mark Abramowicz NT3V and yours truly will all be at Hamvention to bring you all the highlights on next week's Amateur Radio Newsline report. (ARNewsline(tm))

**

THE BPL FIGHT: B-P-L EXPECTED TO DRAW ATTENTION AT DAYTON

While the latest in ham gear is certain to be grab the interest of most of those attending this year's Dayton Hamvention, the topic of Broadband Over Power
Lines internet access is likely to be on the lips of many. Amateur Radio
Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V has more...

--
While not much has happened in the past week on the B-P-L issue, look for lots of discussion on the Dayton Hamvention floor. You can expect to see

American
Radio Relay League President Jim Haynie W-5-J-B-P in the middle of it.

We told you here on Amateur Radio Newsline two weeks ago of Haynie's call to arms and his direct appeal to President Bush to abandon support for B-P-L technology.

Haynie is convinced Bush has been misled by his advisors. He and A-R-R-L's Washington corps have asked for a meeting with the president. There's nothing new to report on that front.

But Haynie says it's important for the ham community to continue to make its voice heard by writing to the White House, your congressman and your senator about B-P-L. Even though the Federal Communications Commission turned down the A-R-R-L's request to extend the May 3 deadline for comments on B-P-L, Haynie says there are still ways to be heard.

The A-R-R-L's website (www.arrl.org) has helpful tips on writing that letter or email or picking up the phone and calling your representative in Washington.

Meanwhile, the FCC is now studying the National Telecommunications and Information Agency report on B-P-L. And while the glowing press release put out by N-T-I-A touted the possibilities of B-P-L, the technical data in the report presents another picture.

And that picture is anything but fuzzy. N-T-I-A cites major interference concerns and suggests the methods used to measure B-P-L interference are inadequate.

It also cites worries B-P-L signals could affect aircraft operations and suggests more stringent measurement standards and interference mitigation techniques need to be explored.

Could that B-P-L fast-track train be slowing? No one is willing to speculate on that, especially since President Bush and F-C-C Chairman Michael Powell appear to be on the same page in their push for deployment of B-P-L.

Could the F-C-C be convinced to wait for the next N-T-I-A report and table the issue for a few months? No one knows how to read the tea leaves in Washington.

Tune in weekly to Amateur Radio Newsline and we'll keep you on top of the issue with the very latest news and views of those close to the B-P-L issue.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia.
--

And look for Mark's report on the B-P-L buzz and other topics from the Hamvention floor during our special program next week produced in Dayton.

RADIO RULES: FCC MKES "MINOR AMMENDMENTS" TO PART 97

The FCC says that it has minor amendments to various Amateur Radio rules. A bulletin from the ARRL highlights some of them including the most significant one. It involved revising the wording of Section 97.307(d), which defines spurious emissions. The updated language imposes a slightly higher standard on newer transmitters or amplifiers of any power level.

The FCC also has redefined what constitutes an Amateur Radio operator to reflect the advent of the Universal Licensing System electronic licensee database.
The current rule defines an amateur operator as "a person holding a written authorization to be the control operator of an amateur station." Under the revised Section 97.3(a)(1) an amateur operator is "a person named in an amateur operator/primary license station grant on the U-L-S consolidated licensee database to be the control operator of an amateur station."

The FCC made these and several other regulatory changes on its own motion rather than in reaction to any petitions. The decision appeared May 5 in the Federal Register. The changes become effective June 1st. (ARRL)

ENFORCEMENT: CONVICTED MURDERER LOOSES HAM TICKET

A ham serving a prison sentence for the murder of his wife has had his Amateur license revoked. Roger Thomas Scaggs, the now ex-W5EBC, had his ticket pulled after the FCC determined that he no longer holds the requisite requirements to remain a Commission licensee.

On March 6, 1996 Scaggs was convicted of murder in the death of Penny Scaggs, his wife of thirty-five years. The court record in that case showed that Scaggs beat his wife to death with a galvanized lead pipe and then stabbed her several times. He was sentenced to a prison term of thirty-two years and fined ten thousand dollars.

The Commission says that its character policies provide that any felony conviction is a matter predictive of licensee behavior and is directly relevant to the functioning of the Commission's regulatory mission. It says that Scaggs conviction mandates the conclusion that he does not possess the requisite qualifications to be or remain a Commission licensee and that his license should be revoked. (FCC)

ENFORCMENT: NO FISHING COMS HERE

The owners of four trucking companies, two seafood companies and one fishing boat have all been cited by the FCC for operating without a license on amateur frequencies. According to the C-Q magazine website, three of the trucking companies are in North and South Carolina and the fourth is in Idaho. They were allegedly operating on 10 meters. The fishing boats are in the Pacific Northwest, purportedly using the 2 meter band. (CQ)

ENFORCEMENT: FCC AGAIN WRITES TO K1MAN

The FCC has again written to Glenn Baxter, K1MAN, and the commissions note has both good and bad news for the Belgrade Lakes, Maine radio amateur. On the positive side, the April 14th letter informs K1MAN that a review of his transmissions indicates that he is complying with the Amateur Service regulations regarding broadcasting and bulletins and station control.

The negative? The FCC alleges that K1MAN is in violation of rules regarding use of his Amateur station for pecuniary interest and those regarding deliberate interference to ongoing communications.

Also, the letter again told Baxter that his "felony affidavit complaints" will not be accepted by the regulatory agency. He was also reminded that all frequencies in the Amateur Radio Service are shared. No frequency is assigned for the exclusive use of any station, and that Baxter's station has no greater rights to a frequency at any particular time than does any other Amateur station. (FCC)

**

ENFORCEMENT: CONSERVATIVE GROUP CALLS ON CONGRESS TO REPRIMAND FCC

A faith based group is chiding the FCC for not acting more decisively in getting dirty words off the public airwaves. Amateur Radio Newsline's Jim Davis, W-2-J-K-D, has more:

--

AUDIO

--

Focus on the Family was founded by Dr. James Dobson, whose commentaries are heard on radio stations world-wide. (Published reports)

**

ENFORCEMENT: FCC CHAIRMAN DOES NOT SUPPORT REVOKING BROADCAST LICENSES

F-C-C chairman Michael Powell says he doesn't support legislation that would pull a broadcast station license after a third indecency violation. He is not opposed to high fines to get the attention of broadcasters who step across the indecency line.

Speaking at the recent National Association of Broadcasters convention in Las Vegas, Powell suggested that he would support extending indecency regulations beyond over-the-air broadcasting to other media, such as cable and satellite broadcasts, but only if the FCC is given approval by Congress.

Powell labels as a "red herring" a proposal by Viacom president Mel Karmazin for more specific decency guidelines. Viacom owns C-B-S. That's the network which aired the controversial Super Bowl half-time show with rock star Janet Jackson. (Published reports)

RESCUE RADIO: EMERGENCY TRAINING IN KANSAS

A day-long program on Amateur Radio emergency communications will take place Saturday, July 24, 9 AM in Kansas. This, at The Salvation

Army, 420 E
Santa Fe, Olathe which is 15 miles southwest of Kansas City.

According to the ARRL Letter, the day begins with "New Ham Orientation," sponsored by Johnson County Amateur Radio Emergency Service. This session will provide an overview of ARES and explain how amateurs can get involved.
Following a lunch break the Kansas Salvation Army Team Emergency Radio Network will sponsor an ARRL Emergency Communications seminar.

Seats are limited. For additional information contact June Jeffers, KB0WEQ, by email to kssatern@att.net or call area code 913-856-8674 during normal business hours, Central time. (ARRL)

RADIO LAW: SAN DIEGO TV SHOP OWNER CONVICTED

Here's the kind of a story you probably have not heard of in

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: DTV AT A SNAILS PACE

The General Accounting Office has issued a report saying that more than 80 percent of Americans are either unaware or only "somewhat aware" of the transition to digital television signals. They are also unaware that Congress
plans to sell the analog spectrum that will become available when TV stations convert from analog to digital.

Lawmakers are counting on the money to help balance the budget.
However, the digital transition may be years away unless more consumers start buying digital TVs to receive the new signals. Current sales of those expensive digital sets appear to be fairly flat at best. (Science OnLine)

WORLDBEAT - UK: NEW 6 METER BEACON ON THE AIR

And members of the United Kingdom's Blacksheep Contest Group have activated a new 6 meter propagation beacon located near the city of Hertfordshire, in grid square IO91. This, as a replacement for the GB3NHQ beacon which closed down some years ago.

The new GB3BAA beacon became operational on 50.016 MHz at 15:10 UTC on April 20th, and ground-wave reception reports from Normandy and northern England have already been received. Further reports would be most welcome,

THAT FINAL ITEM: WHO INVENTED THE SCANNER RADIO - REDUX

And finally this week, an update on our recent story of who really invented the first scanner radio. We previously reported that a group of broadcast engineers working at Cape Canaveral during the early days of the space race developed the first scanner radio. This, so that the late NBC newsman Roy Neal, K-6-D-U-E, could know when a launch was going to take place.

Well, that is quite true but Harvey Cronen, a S-W-L who is one of our listeners in New Jersey has some further information. He says that musician and inventor
Raymond Scott is the person who holds a patent on at least one form of automatic scanning radio.

Harvey sent us a web link to a site that chronicles the life of Scott. While he is best known as the orchestra leader on the early NBC television show
"Your Hit Parade" and as the husband of the late songstress Dorothy Collins, there was another side to Raymond Scott that few in the public knew about. It is all on the website and it is there where it says that Scott actually patented a broadcast band radio receiver which tunes in on stations around the country and changes frequency by itself at any given interval. This, says the website, permitted Scott to catch most of the nations disc-jockey shows in a brief span and find out what tunes are being played.

There is lots of truly fascinating information at this very informative website about Raymond Scott, his life, his inventions that impacted on the worlds of recording and communications as well as his music. It is well worth visiting at www.raymondscott.com. (H. Cronen)

With a local, on board map in a spicific situation this in not a problem like it is on findu's larger maps. Too bad Microsoft killed his maps - they were really good in my area.

Hardly anybody uses it for RACES, ARES or ESDA activities. The local ARES group only recently started to create interest.

Could be said for the vast majority of amateur activities. It's a hobby -

I've collected information from various people who were involved in packet (APRS, BBS, etc.) and who participated in actual emergencies. e.g. Loma Prieta quake, coastal flooding, a tanker truck HAZMAT spill.

Here is what will happen in a real emergency.

At the very start, someone will instruct you to bring your 2M and 70cm radios, antennas, power cords and tools to a central location. They will explain that the trunked radio system exchange point is dead, and that the police cannot talk to fire and rescue anymore, and you are to solve that problem NOW. They will provide help to remove some antennas from your tower. When you arrive at the central location, you will be instructed to place the radios in specific emergency vehicles, and provide operators for them.

APRS is not of interest, packet is not of interest, solving the immediate problem is the ONLY thing of interest.

You will spend the next two to three days passing short messages between various emergency services, allowing them to coordinate their rescue activities. These will be messages like "The medical chopper should go at once to the clearing near Blah road and Blah street."
"We need a backhoe to clear the road at Blah." "We have 10 injured people that need immediate medical attention, get someone up here NOW."

The reason Amatuer Radio is useful is that hams can move equipment to where it is needed, operate that equipment, and provide VOICE communications when the emergency services VOICE links are not working, during the first phase of an emergency.

Once search and rescue has finished their job, after a few days have passed, then the various agencies will start to file reports and requests for material / people, etc. At this stage what they need is email, the ability to send documents and spread sheets. The packet network can do this quite well, once the radios are returned to the packet sites and put back on air.

What I suggest is that you don't ask the question here, but ask the emergency services people in your area. Talk to the local sheriff, the fire marshal, the local hospital emergency coordinator. Find out what has happened in previous emergencies and how Amateur Radio might help solve their problems.

I've never had one of these people say that they needed help finding out where their vehicles are located ... other than by VOICE.

It isn't always that SUV's though. One day I'm with a friend in his brand new Expedition. We're at a four way stop and there's an old blue hair in a huge Plymouth Fury making the turn. I told my friend that she wasn't going to make it and sure enough, she smacks right into the drivers side of the truck.

The really nice thing about a large vehicle is that there's plenty of

No military but I've driven all sorts of vans, large cars, etc. They don't bother me at all but the SO needs to have a small vehicle because the big vehicle is too intimidating.

While I have yet to see APRS used in an emergency, I'm not ready to write it off.

Packet, however, is another matter. Here we have used packet in anger, and in many situations it is vital. It doesn't hurt that we have perhaps a dozen packet stations scattered around the county in county facilities. For damage reports and the like, packet works a lot better than voice.

It's not only when the "official" communications are down. Governments are under cost pressure just like everyone else, and in many places the 911 crew is a bunch of minimum wage college kids. When things get interesting emergency managers would prefer to rely on trained communicators.

VHF phone undoubtedly does all of the heavy lifting in an emergency. However, in many states (mine included), the state EOC and Red Cross aren't reachable by VHF. We have had many situations where we have needed to resort to CW to get through. We are working on building out the packet network so that won't be necessary in the future, but right now, CW is an essential, if small, part of the mix.

> to send documents and spread sheets. The packet

We cannot effectively respond to an emergency without planning and preparation. Part of that prep, of course, is being able to quickly go anywhere and set up communications. But part is also having the right equipment in place at the right place. We find it important to have a significant number of phone and packet stations collecting dust waiting for the event.

Most counties have an emergency manager who understands the needs of all of the agencies. Your EC should be talking to this guy frequently. And an effective EC will be using ARES/RACES members to develop responses to some of those problems.

Bah...

Most ppl just seem to have some sort of mental block that prevents them from seeing where APRS might actually be useful.

Setting up portable weather stations in the vicinity of a forest fire is very useful.

Coordinating DF operations through APRS is a thing of beauty.

In a large scale disaster, I would say that having APRS trackers on the buses (or whatever) used to transport large numbers of casualties would be very handy.

With APRS, like any other similar technology, you have to understand how to exploit its usefulness in order to get it beyond the "gadget" stage.

The beauty about APRS is it's automatic. It doesn't need to take a piss break every couple of hours. It frees up operators to do other VOICE related activities. Which is better from a resources standpoint -- having 5 operators with HTs and Kestrels manually reporting weather on a periodic basis (rotating shifts, etc, etc) -- or 5 autonomous weather stations reporting the weather on a continuous basis -- and being able to read the information directly from a map of the area?

Perhaps. Let's be honest; ham radio spectrum benefits fewer than 500,000 active hams at any given time (my estimate and probably wildly optimistic). Unlicensed 2.4GHz users alone (meaning cordless phones and 802.11) are probably 50x that at any given instant.

I'm not suggesting that we should just give up ham radio spectrum, but I am objectively observing that we're getting far, far more value than we seem to recognize. It's like having half of the national forests set aside for the use of less than 1% of the population.

I think saying that packet is not of interest is a VERY broad and bold statement that is untrue. Here in our county (Hutchinson) the head over all county emergency managment loves packet. being a ham he knows the vales of ever aspect of ham radio.. but packet is the only form of communications that when typed in one one end comes out exactly the same way on the other.. you can have a hard copy on paper and there is no confusion.. I agree that 2m/70cm is going to handle about 90% of the communications in a desaster but it's nice to have MANY options packet or not. Alot of the guys (me included) run HF mobile so we have the ability for long range communications no matter where we are.. just because it's not used as the primary source of communications doesn't mean it's bad..
APRS shined bright one year when we had a tornado that hit a town and there where someplaces out in the country that were almost impossible to find because signs and everything else were gone.. well if a APRS station did make his way to a certain place it was real easy for someone to look on a computer screen and see exactly where he was so others could get to him..

One thought:

One reason that we do the "public service" activities, such as supporting large scale public events like the Boston Marathon, various charitable walks/runs/rides/paddles etc, is to practice radio handling and procedures in emergency and improvised conditions.

In our area, APRS was used last fall as an experiment with the Head-of-the-Charles crew race. Part of our support for this event is placing hams in 6 rescue boats up and down the river. APRS was used so that Network Control could dispatch the closest rescue boat to a racer in the water. Not perfect, but it did show some of the issues with using APRS, and the next time will be smoother.

I would suggest trying out APRS for similar things in your area, and get some real world experience before deciding whether it would help in your situation.

Most of the usefullness would be not for each unit to know where it is, but for a central planning person to know where resources are located.

5 operators with HTs.
They can do other things when position reports are not needed.

You dropped the pertinent part of what I wrote.
"AT THE START" of an emergency.

Also note that I did not say it, the folks involved in actual emergencies OBSERVED that packet was not of interest until the initial S & R and situation evaluation were finished.

Those APRS radios usually work just fine on voice. You WILL be told to use them that way, and use them that way PRONTO.

We don't burn our own houses down,
We like livin' gay, and bein' free.

France dropped the Morse requirement.

http://www.ref-union.org/accueil/actualites/pdf/7_mai_Lettre_du_Ministre.pdf

The publication in the 'Journal Officiel de la Republique Franciase' took place on the 16th of May, 2004. Please look at http://www.ref-union.org/accueil/a_la_une_supplement/pdf/2004-316.pdf .

The strange thing is that Class 2 operaters are not (!) allowed to use A1A, A2A and F1A on amateur bands below 30 MHz. This is strange!

If this official publication means that foreign Class 2 operators (CEPT-2) may use HF bands in France, has not been clarified yet.

It very much depends on HOW you deploy APRS.

As a Group, we have set up a number of tracking kits that can be thrown into a vehicle and on air in 2 minutes. We do not rely on personal equipment to do this.

The HUGE advantage of APRS, in my experience, is a 95% reduction in the "where are you" radio traffic. This in turn releases valuable voice net time for passing messages.

Giving the emergency services a view on exactly where their vehicles are, with 100% confidence, makes this a very useful tool in our armoury of solutions we can provide.

> That's my "position" on APRS, folks... It's a fine example of wasted

Not a distraction, an extra that can be rolled out IF the circumstances warrant a solution of that sort.

Just as conventional packet has a place in transferring evacuation centre information etc., but not if the emergency means you are manning loads of vehicles.

You apply each of the tools you have, as appropriate to the emergency.

Some months back I was interviewing a group of fire chiefs preparing for a project, and they did request the ability to relay temperature and humidity back from the scene. However, the equipment needs to be placed somehow, most likely by a human responder, and he is probably going to know where he put it. So it's not clear to me what advantage APRS offers in this situation.

APRS has built-in facilities for reporting weather... automatically... continuously... without operator intervention.

APRS is not just about position reporting, it's much richer than that.

This is a right tool for the job situation. Voice HT is the right tool for many jobs, maybe even most jobs -- but not every job. There are situations where APRS can be very useful. I've heard far too many people chewing up bandwidth while studdering and stammering trying to figure out where they are so they can give a position report when APRS can do it with a 2 second data burst on frequency other than the primary [emergency] communication channel. And the positions are overlayed directly onto a map to boot.

It can be a timesaver, resource saver, and bandwidth saver.

On the other hand, I realize there are people (like Hank) that simply "don't get it" and "don't want to get it". So be it.

Let's hope it never is. We don't want class two people disrupting the peace and quiet for the thousands of British white settlers in the

Ha,we use aprs in our local storm spotting and we just got the layover worked out to layover APRS date directly over the radar map and the local emergency manager said "you'd better hope I like you, I can lead you directly into the path of a tornado" with much laughing of course.. :)

2378. Low power video transmitter

Hi guys,

From your vast collective knowledge, please could you recommend a video transmitter with the following characteristics:

* very low power consumption (<70mA), ideally running at below 7.4volts

* small size

* transmits mono audio and colour video

* transmits outside the spectrum used by WiFi (802.11b/g uses 2401-2483 MHz). In practice I guess this means the video tx must use either 800Mhz, 1400Mhz, 2300Mhz or 5800Mhz. It must be legal for use in the UK. What I'm after is a video TX that uses a "quiet" part of the spectrum. 2.4GHz certainly aint quiet (wifi, digital cordless phones, microwaves, AV transmission)!

* available in the UK

* costs less than 150 UK pounds

* comes with a compatible RX which also has very low power consumption.

Many thanks for your help,
Jack

PS
Sorry for sending to so many newsgroups. I've spent bloody ages trying to find a solution but with no luck yet so I'm eager to get as much advice as possible.

I only need to transmit about 20meters.

Yes, but it is good practice on the internet not to use specific characters like the cedille, accent aigu, accent grave, accent circonflex etc. etc.

In come ASCII-translation tables, these characters translate to nothing, smileys etc. etc.

Use the 2.4Ghz video system from Radio Shack. Wi-Fi is a spread spectrum signal and will not interfere with the video. The Radio Shack system won't cause a problem with the Wi-Fi.

I just received my "e" QSL from a contact made a few hours ago on six meters ... low and behold there was a bunch of them in there that I had not gotten notification of.

I then checked two calls that we've used for contests the past 10 years ... WHOA ! a zillion of them in there. We never knew they were there.

In 1968, I restored a white '61 Oldsmobile Starfire convertable. When I was finished, it had a white leather interior and enough exterior chome to help a blind man see. It was absolutely gorgeous and won several California car show awards. Later, I bought a '69 Dodge Challenger (446ci engine). That car, while fun to drive, certainly drank more gas then my present SUV. I loved the muscle car period, but it will likely never happen again.

Of course. A vehicle isn't large enough unless you can eat dinner in it, preferably while driving. ;-)

I've drove all types of vehicles, from an MGB convertible to muscle cars to motorcycles to large commercial trucks, and have so far been lucky enough to never have an accident while driving. One of my vehicles was hit hard while parked, another ran over by a passing tractor plow, and two damaged by vandalism. But no moving accidents. My wife, on the other hand, has had three accidents. Luckily all relatively minor - no injuries.

D,
I know that commercial FM stations in the UK are on different channels (even for the UK and odd for the US). How about TV stations? This might make a difference with the equipment you'll need.

My friend had a Renegade, but I don't think that's what you mean. With his trailer on the back, it's 76 feet long...

Yelp! You got a brownie button for getting his ass TOSed from OVIS :)

What is funny is what is happening on Nim Busters. Everytime that Woger makes that Child porn post about Davies, DeLorean outs Woger to his ISP.
Woger however can't seem to stop, he is too fucking obsessed with stalking Davies. It has become his one and only reason for living.
Stupid fucker needs to go to a 12 step program or something :) But hell, even before the TOS violations Woger was getting his ass kicked by Davies on a daily basis :) Of course a lot of us are helping our Lloyd out which drives Woger even crazier because he of course has no friends.

When I purchased my RIGrunner 4005, it included one power cable which was of a decent gauge and had eyelets on one side, so it could be connected to a power supply. I would like to make a bunch of cables of a similar style except I'd like to use eyelets sized such that they can't be reversed on my deep-cycle batteries. Where can I find eyelets of the proper dimensions? Home Depot wasn't helpful. Also, where can I get a spool of nifty two-color two-conductor cable like that used for these cables?

Thanks in advance for any pointers.

What is the address for reporting AB8MQ TOS violations to Earthlink?

What? Is Roger using Earthlink now? I read that Stagger Lee was getting close to finding out yet another of Rogers accounts but I didn't realize he had done so. I bet Little Roger is fuming!
I read that Stagger had somehow tracked Roger and even exposed him but Roger claims that Stagger was lying. Funny. Roger lies about everything and anything so I gotta believe that Stagger did out him big time. Who would you believe?
Poor old Roger should be getting close to running out of local ISP accounts if he has not done so already. No wonder he had to go to Earthlink. Nobody in his area will let him have an account.
Do you think this sociopath will ever learn?
Sicko Roger could probably keep an ISP if he'd learn to act in a decent and civilized manner but the psycho apparently does not know how.
Roger's foul mouth, his cruelty, his libel and his antisocial behaviour have earned him nothing but disdain and even pity. I don't know anybody who pities him...I just tossed that in there. Most everybody simply cannot stand the little bastard and that seems to be the bottom line.
Dave said it when he referred to Roger Wiseman, AB8MQ, as a sociopath.

They had to have some parts added to them because in crash tests, they

Here is a quote from the latest National Geographic oil article about why a lot of women drive the monsters. This from a woman that owns an H1 Hummer: I know it's not fuel efficient, but I love knowing that anything I bump into, I win."

I hope she never does anyone harm with that Hummer, imagine the fun the legal beagles will have with that little comment!

Simple misplaced caffeine driven family protectionism, coupled with a complete lack of respect for the other person gets us to where we are now.

I predict that soon we will be seeing women driving modified Kenworths and Macks. An enterprising person could outfit a sleeper cab into a massive van! That'll teach those people in those puny Hummers and Excursions!

To be fair to my wife, I should mention none were directly her fault. Of course, she didn't have the skill to drive her way out of these situations, but she was the one hit in each case. With the exception of one (the one I described), she should have been able to avoid the accidents. Again, take care.

Towing a trailer with a Renegade? The man must have been mad. I have a hard enough time controlling my Explorer with a trailer and it is considerably longer than a Renegade.

I don't doubt it. As much damage as that Ford Expedition did to my wife's car at only about 20-25 mph, I'd hate to think what would have happened at faster speeds. However, the high repair bill was mainly because she hit the right front fender and tire at an sharp angle, damaging the body, steering, and front wheel drive.

That attitude it not that uncommon among those driving larger vehicles. And, as long as they drive safely, I don't see anything particularily wrong with it. The danger lies in the neglectful attitudes that can easily follow.

Not that far out. I had a friend years ago who spent almost two years rebuilding a military armored personnel carrier (APC) to drive on the highway. He replaced the tracks with tires and added bumpers, lights, turn signals, horn, steering wheel, modified exhaust system, and so on, just to get it to comply with local vehicle laws. Even after all that, they still wouldn't allow him to license it. Since this guy was a maniac behind the wheel, I'm kind of glad he never did get that thing on the road.

He's on his second Renegade, the first wasn't quite big enough. It was the one with the slideout kitchen area. The new one has the full slideout.
It's BIG!

Then the trailer... He usually has 1 or 2 race cars in the trailer.
Sometimes 3, then a small 'pit car' like a PT Cruiser. And a golf cart or two...

I found out, well, he found out, California has a 76 foot limit...

Want the real kick? It doesn't require a CDL. As long as it's registered as a 'camper' and 'not for hire'.

I recently purchased a GE Monitor Receiver from the estate of a man who was an offical with a local fire department. The radio is cosmetically in excellent condition, and I have a few questions about it that I hope someone in this group may be able to answer.

It is a solid state 2 crystal channnel radio.

Both crystals are marked the same:

19B206
221 PI
47810.000 Khz.

The crystals have 3 leads coming from them.

Does anyone know what frequency these crystals receive on? When I turn the radio on, all I get is faint static, no voice.

The radio model is NSO 6MDV 66
FCC Receiver Data ER-52-A Ship Sate 732

Are crystals available anywhere for this radio anymore if I wanted to change frequencies? Is the radio worth getting repaired?

It really looks good, and I would hate not to get it going again if it was possible.

Any info or help would be appreciated.

Thanks,

Mark

We use APRS to track the tail end of a fun run / race / bike ride. We then know where the end is. Then as the this progresses we know how long till the end passes the checkpoints. Then the RAYNET stations know how long they have left to be on duty.

| Could anybody give me any links about studies done about the feasibility of | using APRS in a real emergency situation?
|
| - what use has APRS in emergency situations?
| - are direct packet links preferable to APRS (1200 baud AFSK)?
| - are other digimodes (MFSK-16, PSK-31, RTTY) preferable to APRS?
|
| Any help is useful, thank you!

Amateur Radio Newsline™ Report 1397 – May 21, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1397 with a release date of Friday, May 21, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T.

Mr. Haynie goes to Washington D C and Dayton, Ohio comes alive with the sound of ham radio. These stories and more on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1397 coming your way right now.

(Billboard Cart Here)

THE BPL FIGHT: MR. HAYNIE TO MEET WITH WHITE HOUSE TELECOM ADVISORS

This weeks top story starts in Dayton Ohio and ends in Washington D-C. It was at the Dayton Hamvention that ARRL President Jim Haynie, W5JBP, announced that he would be meeting with presidential advisors art the White House Telecommunications Office to discuss the Broadband Over Powerline situation. Amateur Radio Newsline was there when a horse but upbeat W5JBP thanked the ham radio community for making the meeting come about: Haynie: “When we ran the story about my FAX’ing the President of the United States a powerful letter, what you helped me do with your letters and your e-mails was to get me an appointment Thursday morning, 10 a.m. in Washington. So you helped me to do that. (applause).

--

The meeting between President Haynie and those advising Peresident Bush on telecommunicastions matters was scheduled for Thursday, May 20th. We will have a full report on it, next week. (ARNewsline(tm))

THE BPL FIGHT: HAM TURNS THE TABLE ON BPL PROPVIDER

Still with BPL news, word that a ham attending an industry sponsored demonstration of the technology in Australia came prepared to do battle. From Brisbane, Q-News reports:

--

A presentation was given by Piero Peroni, who is the Business Manager for the BPL trial within Aurora Energy and Adrian Wild who is the Corporate Affairs

Manager within Aurora Energy.

Martin, VK7GN gave an audible demonstration of the interference on his portable HF receiver and I think it would be fair to say by all accounts the Corporate Affairs Manager was quietly horrified at the noise!

--

Whether or not the ham radio counter demonstration to Aurora Energy will slow down or stop the rollout of BPL down-under is, at this time unknown. (Q-News)

DAYTON HAMVENTION NEWS: A BIG SUCCESS

Back here in the U-S-A, Jim Haynie’s White House meeting announcement was just another layer of frosting on the very sweet ham radio cake known as the Dayton Hamvention. By all accounts, Hamvention 2004 was as good as any of those in the past and maybe better than some. Amateur Radio Newsline’s Mark Abramovich, NT3V, takes us on an audio tour of this years show:

--
The big buzz at Dayton was the introduction of two new, top-of-the-line HF radios.

Yaesu introduced thousands of visitors to its booth here to the FT DX 9000 - a radio the company has been developing four years. Here's Chip Margelli K7JA of Yaesu - Vertex Standard.

Over at the competition, Icom introduced showgoers to its sleek, new IC7800. It's already been out for more than a month and Icom representatives concede they underestimated the market demand for this high-end radio.

Here's Ron Rotino, W9WL, represting Icom.

In other Dayton news, Alinco announced a new distributor relationship. Evelyn Garrison WS7A tells Amateur Radio Newsline about the new partnership.

Now Amateur Radio Newsline Editor Bill Pasternak WA6ITF also took in the show besides running his annual Town Hall forum. Bill couldn't help himself when he stopped a the U.S. Towers booth where two lovely sales, eh, models were posing for pictures. Here's the exchange between our own California guy and some young ladies who came to the Dayton Hamvention for the first time..

Behind any Dayton Hamvention is the general chairman. This year Gary De Combes N8EMO took on that enormous responsibility. At the close of the show, he summed it all up for Amateur Radio Newsline.
And how did one of the big radio manufacturers we didn't mention yet think things went. Kenwood's Leo Famie was pleased with this year's event…

And, of course, Chip Margelli, summed up what Yaesu Vertex Standard thought.

Finally, there were lots of new friends and acquaintances made during the Dayton Hamvention 2004. And, despite the rain, spirits of those scouring the flea market for goodies weren't dampened.

It was one for the record books, too, in terms of participation.

Hope to see you here, next year.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, from the convention floor at the Hara Arena - home of the Dayton Hamvention.

--

As of the time this report is being prepared the Hamvention Committee has not announced a final attendance figure, but several vendors told Amateur Radio Newsline that their sales were way up over the past few years. And thats good news for both the United States economic recovery as well as for Amateur Radio. (ARNewsline(tm))

DAYTON HAMVENTION NEWS: N8EMO AND WX8F ASKED TO RUN HAMVENTION 2005

In a related development, on Monday night, May 17th the Dayton Amateur Radio Association’s Planning Council unanimously recommended the clubs Board of Directors reappoint Gary De Combes, N8EMO and Jim Nies, WX8F as General Chairman and Assistant General Chairman respectively, for Hamvention 2005. The two were affirmed to lead the 2005 show on Tuesday night the 18th. That's only two days after the close of this years show. Normally , no action is taken to fill these positions until the June Board of Directors meeting.

More on the 2004 Dayton Hamvention in future Amateur Radio Newsline reports. (ARNewsline(tm))

RESCUE RADIO: HAMS TAKE PART IN SIMULATED AIRPORT DISASTER

Over a hundred ham radio operators from seven counties in two Eastern states, provided emergency communications support for the Saturday, May 8th disaster drill at Dulles International Airport. The exercise consisted of a simulated plane crash and fire. The aim of the session was to provide treatment and transport of 200 volunteer "victims" to area hospitals by helicopter, ambulance and bus. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, picks up the story from here:

Larry Hughs, K3HE, is the Public Information Officer for for the ARRL’s Virginia Section. He tells Newsline that the job of Amateur Radio was to provide communications between agencies at the simulated crash site, those providing patient transportation, and the participating hospitals. To accomplish this, hams from a number of the regions Amateur Radio Emergency Service groups set up several portable repeaters in and around the airport grounds. They also provided a live Amateur Television link between the site and the airport Operations Center. This allowed airport management to monitor the progress of the drill.

Hams also accompanied some of the officials at the simulated crash site to provide instant communications to other temporary operational areas. Others rode the buses that transported ambulatory victims to local hospitals. This gave planners voice communications and real-time position data via Automatic Position Reporting System. Meantime, other radio amateurs were stationed at ten area hospitals. They helped to coordinate the arrival and departure of those simulating the victims of the crash.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, reporting.

Dulles International Airport is in Northern Virginia, near Washington, DC.. Its also not that far from where Al Quida terrorists crashed a jumbo jet into the Pentagon building on September 11th of 2001. Back then ham radio was among the first of the “First Responders” on scene and is credited in helping to save numerous lives. (K3HE, ARNewsline(tm))

RESCUE RADIO: SUIT BLAMES MOTOROLA HT’S IN 911 DEATHS

The families of twelve firefighters killed when the World Trade Center in New York City collapsed on 9-11 have sued the manufacturer of the hand held radios the men were carrying. According to Popular Communications magazine, the five billion dollar action against Motorola and the City of New York claims that Motorola failed to warn the Fire Department that its hand-helds could not transmit or receive in a high rise building. Because of this, the plaintiffs contend that firefighters could not hear an order to evacuate. (Popular Communications)

ENFORCEMENT: NC HAM MAY FACE LICENSE RENEWAL HEARING

A North Carolina ham who allegedly interfered with repeater operation in that area may not get his license renewed. This, as FCC chief rules enforcer Riley Hollingsworth writes to Daniel Barrett, KE4NOK of Kings Mountain to tell him that his application to renew his ticket has been referred to the enforcement arm of the agency by the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau.

According to Hollingsworth’s letter, the action was based on information coming to the Commission's attention that Barrett is alleged to have used his station to interfere with various repeater operations on 145.350, 145.450 and 147.120 MHz and that he ignored requests of repeater control operators to refrain from using their repeaters. Hollingsworth’s note also says that Barrett ignored the Commission Warning letter dated December 24th of 2003 regarding use of and interference to the repeaters and that apparently Barrett’s use of, and interference to, these repeaters continues.

Hollingsworth’s letter tells Barrett that his renewal application will not be routinely granted. Rather, that the Commission may need additional information from KE4NOK in order to determine his qualifications to remain a Commission license. The letter also tells Barrett that it may be necessary to designate his application for an evidentiary hearing before an Administrative Law Judge. In such a proceeding Barrett would be required to appear at a hearing in Washington, DC. (FCC)

ENFORCEMENT: UNLICENSED BROADCASTER CHALLENGES FCC’s AUTHORITY

An unlicensed radio station taken off the air by the FCC last fall has challenged the regulatory agency in federal court. Attorney Mark Vermeulen, representing San Francisco Liberation Radio, says that the seizure of the station's equipment in an October 2003 raid came without proper notice and violated Constitutional protections of due process and the First Amendment.

In an appearance before U.S. District Judge Susan Illston, Vermeulen argued that -- quote -- "It's a bedrock principle that parties have a right to pre-seizure notice and a right to be heard.

But government attorney Sarah Winslow disagreed with Vermeulen's free speech arguments. She told Judge Illston that there is no First Amendment right to broadcast without a license from the FCC.

The FCC had monitored San Francisco Liberation Radio for years. They eventually tracked the station to a laundry room basement in the San Francisco home of James and Charlotte Hatch. The Hatches never made a secret of their operations. They also claim that they had unsuccessfully sought an FCC license to operate legally. (Published reports)

FOR THE BIRDS: FCC RETAINS BIOLOGICAL CONSULTANT

Remember all those stories about thousands of migratory birds getting killed by running into radio towers? Well the FCC has now retained the services of Avatar Environmental Services of West Chester, Pennsylvania as a biological consultant. This, to assist in fulfilling the FCC's role under the National Environmental Policy Act and other federal environmental statutes.

The CGC Communicator reports that Avatar will give the Commission access to the services of experts with training and experience in evaluating the impact of construction projects on animal and plant species.

According to CGC, Avatar has performed similar services for other agencies. The possible impact of communications towers on migratory birds is one of the immediate pressing issues. (CGC)

RADIO CELEBRATIONS: W6RO AT AGE 25

A big celebration out West in the world of Amateur Radio. This as the Queen Mary Ocean liner ham radio station W6RO turned 25 on April 29th.

W6RO is actually the club call sign of the Associated Radio Amateurs of Long Beach, California. Long Beach is where the retired ocean voyager is permanently birthed and open to the public as a tourist attraction. The club operates the W6RO station which is located in the Wireless Room adjoining the ships historic radio museum.

In its two and a half decades of operation, visiting hams from around the world have called C-Q and made numerous contacts using its gear, and its well known call sign phonetics of W-6-Rolling Ocean. (W6RO)

HAM RADIO BOOKS: NEW VHF PROPAGATION BOOK FROM CQ

CQ Communications has announced the publication of a new resource book for hams active on VHF and UHF bands. Its a book for those who want to learn more about long-distance propagation possibilities available to them.

Titled "VHF Propagation - A Practical Guide for Radio Amateurs" the book examine each of the most common long-distance propagation "modes" found on these bands. Topics covered include tropospheric scatter and ducting, Sporadic-E, Aurora, 6-meters and the F-layer, transequatorial and more. The book then explains how each mode occurs and offer tips on making the most of these band openings.

"VHF Propagation - A Practical Guide for Radio Amateurs" was written by Ken Neubeck, WB2AMU, and Gordon West, WB6NOA. It is available from many ham radio dealers or direct from CQ anytime through the CQ online bookstore. To find it take your web browser to www.cq-amateur-radio.com and then click on “Visit the CQ Store." (CQ)

THE SOCIAL CIRCUIT: ROCHESTER HAMFEST IN JUNE

With the 2004 Dayton Hamvention now a part of history, we turn to the ham radio social circuit for the rest of 2004. Next up is the giant Rochester Hamfest the weekend of June 4th through the 6th. As usual, it takes place at the Monroe County Fairgrounds and is combined with the ARRL Atlantic Division Convention.

Chairman Harold Smith, K2HC, tells Newsline that this years outing features over 100 inside exhibitors, 1200 flea market spaces and that very much coveted on site free parking. He also says that area hotels can be found for $69 a nmight or less.

Interested in finding out more? You can do it right on-line at www.rochesterhamfest.org or by calling the hamfest office at 584-424-7184 during business hours Eastern Daylight Time. (Rochester Hamfest)

RADIO HONORS: HAM HONORED FOR SERVICE IN IRAQ

The United States Department of Commerce has honored Fredrick Matos, W3ICM, of Annapolis, Maryland. This by presenting him with its Gold Medal Award for Distinguished Achievement.

The ARRL Letter says that Matos is an employee of the National Telecommunications and Information Administration. He was given the honor for his work to help establish telecommunications in Iraq, where he was deployed for nine months.

While in Iraq, Matos who also holds the Iraqi call YI3DX helped establish a central telecommunications authority along with assigning frequencies to local law enforcement groups. He was also responsible for issuing YI Amateur Radio licenses to both nationals and visitors.

In presenting the award April 13, Commerce Secretary Donald L. Evans welcomed Matos home and thanked him for his role in "expanding freedom around the world." (ARRL, Daily DX)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: BEWARE OF FOREIGN PET CHIPS

Heres a communications story of a different sort, but one that affects anyone with a four legged friend around the house. The United States Humane Society and other animal care organizations are cautioning pet owners that the nation's animal shelters may not have the proper scanning devices to detect and read some foreign manufactured pet identification microchip.

The warning comes as a European company has entered the microchip market and is selling its microchips in approximately 440 veterinary clinics housed in one of the nation's largest pet product retailers. But the company has not yet provided many of the nation's shelters, humane societies and veterinary hospitals with compatible scanners needed to read all the microchips currently in pets. As a result, the animal protection groups recommend that pet owners thinking about getting their pets micro-chipped contact both the chip manufacturer and their local shelter. This, to make certain that compatible 125 kHz scanners are present in their community. (Science OnLine)

THAT FINAL ITEM: UP - UP - AND AWAY

And finally this week, we go back to the Dayton Hamvention where Amateur Radio Newsline ran into one of the nations best known experts in Amateur Radio balloon launches. And does Bill Brown, WB8ELK have a story about recruiting new young hams using high altitude ham radio carrying balloons. Amateur Radio Newsline's David Black, KB4KCH, has the details:

Bill Brown's class is all about going up up and away--and getting college credit at the same time. Brown teaches a course on building balloon payloads at the University of Alabama in Huntsville--and he makes amateur radio a big part of the curriculum.

--

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org

--

The ham bands get used not just by the students--but by what goes up. Amateur radio experiments are aboard the payloads students assemble.

--

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org

--

Brown's class is also creating a positive effect on amateur radio—by helping bring new people into the service:

--

Audio only: Hear it at www.arnewsline.org

--

About five students become licensed each semester. From the South - East bureau in Birmingham Alabama, I'm David Black , KB4KCH, for the Amateur Radio Newsline.

This is a wild guess, since I'm not familiar with that particular receiver. I will say that GE was fond of using a 10.700MHz IF, and that a LOT of FM receiver manufacturers used the combination of thirdovertone crystals and a 10.7 IF.

With that in mind: 47.810MHz times 3 = 143.4300MHz.

Add the 10.700MHz IF to that, and you come up with 154.1300MHz, one of the more common VHF fire department frequencies.

> The radio model is NSO 6MDV 66
> FCC Receiver Data ER-52-A

ER-52 sounds like something out of the MASTR-II series, but I couldn't be sure. I would suggest asking these same questions on the GE forum of http://radio.the161.net -- I'm sure someone there will know more than I can tell you.

> Are crystals available anywhere for this radio anymore if I wanted to > change frequencies? Is the radio worth getting repaired?

I would be utterly stunned if International Crystal, Bomar, or some similar manufacturer could not help you in that regard.

Happy hunting.

Woger who likes to imagine felonies on people who disagree with him, is a multiple count felon. He has been court ordered to the nut house for Yeah, they could, but last I checked, Bomar was wanting $50 minimum order.

The others were wanting $20, I believe.

I am looking for information on if I can get this repeater into the amature bands. I purchased it at a hamfest, and would like to use it as our repeater. It probably will need a Eprom edit or something. Any information on this repeater in the form of manuals or mods would greatly be appricated.

Thanks so much for your time.

VOTE FOR A LEADER
Chuck Gysi, N2DUP
for ARRL section manager in Minnesota

NEWS RELEASE

For immediate release
May 23, 2004
Contact: Chuck Gysi, N2DUP / N2DUP@RadioHams.net

NOTE TO EDITORS: A digital mug shot of Chuck Gysi, N2DUP, is available via e-mail request. Please specify the file format you prefer.

N2DUP calls for changes in ARES EC staffing in Minnesota

Minnesota's Amateur Radio Emergency Service needs changes to make the system work better, according to Chuck Gysi, N2DUP, a candidate for Minnesota section manager in this summer's American Radio Relay League election.

While strides have been made to appoint more emergency coordinators (ECs) in each county of Minnesota, the system still seriously lacks an adequate number of county ECs, Gysi said.

"With all the concerns about homeland security and the need for amateur radio to interface with that activity, we need to make it a top priority to make ARES a more effective organization throughout Minnesota," Gysi said.

Currently, the state is divided into 88 EC districts. Each of the state's 87 counties comprise their own EC district, except for St. Louis County, which is divided into two, north and south.

"Unfortunately, 56 of those 88 positions in Minnesota - including four of the seven Twin Cities metro counties - are vacant," Gysi said. "That means only 32 ECs have been appointed in Minnesota. That indicates to me that the system needs an overhaul."

Gysi said he has given the EC system much thought and has discussed the matter in person with not only ECs , but also district emergency coordinators (DECs) and the state emergency coordinator (SEC).

"The plan I have floated is to ensure every county has an EC appointed," Gysi detailed. "If there isn't a ham within a county willing to take on the EC role, then we need to look to a neighboring county for another already-appointed EC to assume an additional role. From the discussions I have had in my recent travels around the state, this system will work because we will be able to have an EC in place, and then we can look at assistant ECs (AECs) or even official emergency stations (OESs) to assist within the designated county."

Gysi notes that there already some areas of the state where an EC effectively watches over more than one county, such as the system in place in Houston and Fillmore counties in far southeastern Minnesota.

"I have people willing to fill AEC and OES roles in counties without an EC, so all we need to do is get an EC in a neighboring county ready to assume additional territory, and we can get the job done," Gysi said. "My opponent has yet to advance a proposal to address this serious shortage of ECs in Minnesota. I have a solid plan that will work and plan to begin working on its implementation even before I would take office as Minnesota's next section manager."

Gysi is a long-time ARRL volunteer himself and knows the ARES program well. He has served as an EC and DEC, as well as OES and county and municipal officer for the Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service (RACES). He has been an active amateur radio operator for all 22 years he has been licensed. He chose to run for the section manager's position because of his leadership experience.

The section manager oversees the more than 2,500 ARRL members in Minnesota and appoints hams to serve in capacities ranging from official observers to public information officers. ARRL members will be mailed ballots from league headquarters in Newington, Conn., about July 1.

Gysi is available to make presentations at club meetings or other gatherings of hams anywhere in Minnesota. Call him toll-free at (888) 463-5355 or send an e-mail to N2DUP@RadioHams.net. In addition, he has set up an extensive web site about his candidacy at www.RadioHams.net.

I really hate to say it folks, but if someone REALLY wanted to track you via the net, it would be relatively easy to do so (unless one not only uses an anonymous remailer, but does so from an anonymous shell account via remote access from yet another shell account, etc).

I should know this as I DO have some professional training in this particular subject.

IMHO, both stagger lee and roger are lying and trying to bluff each other (and the rest of us).

its just easier to slap them in an ignore bozo filter and be done with it! Thats what I suggest y'all do.

just my 2 pennies worth.

Why because one dumbfuck (Newbomb Turk) thought it was and another dumbfuck (you) agrees with him? Before that they thought I was Kent (the Cunt Mason). Maybe you can explain how I was posting to both fido and Usenet while Paris was in Prison, dumbfuck? Never mind asswipe if you want to call me Paris I have no major problem with it. It is not like You've been outted too many times, Woger. Tell us again about June of 1999. Bad summer, eh Woger. And that wasn't the first time you were sent their either. Why don't you again tell us how you liked prison better than the nut house:

Originally posted on Nim Busters (compliments of Lloyd Davies):

WHY I LIKED PRISON BETTER THAN I LIKED THE NUT HOUSE.
A TESTIMONIAL BY WOGER L. WISEMAN

Let me tell you something, Iï¿½ve been to both prison and the nut house and the big house is a whole lot better. In prison I had this big black daddy by the name of Bubba Johnson who always looked out for me and made the other darkies pay me in cigs for sucking their dicks and giving up my brown hole. I didnï¿½t have to talk to no head shrinking doctors neither about why I was so mad at the world and my mother that I would beat up on her 73 year old ass! The only bad thing about prison was that they wouldnï¿½t let me write Lloyd and tell him how he is my only love. That kind of sucked. Also now since prison my sphincters will never be the same. Sometimes when I laugh real hard (which really isnï¿½t all that often because Iï¿½m not all that happy a person since Lardass is rejecting me) a warm brown liquid oozes down my leg and stains my white fruit of the looms all brown in back, also when I walk to the store (too many DUIï¿½s to drive) if I donï¿½t use a lot of cologne I tend to smell really really bad. All in all though if I had my druthers Iï¿½d much rather be in prison (especially if Lardass would come and visit me)!

Woger 3X Loser Wiseman

The Roger Wiseman Dictionary

"Illarate" West BY GOD Virginny!

"Reveresed" Must be one of those off-brand keyboards.

"Soem".as in Some? What a losser.

"VIRIN".What Wogie was before he met the Lavender Lads.

"Minisule".he mussa meant miniscule. Like his IQ.

"Champoin".Whassup, Wiseman? No dictionaries in the mental ward?

"Anoinymous"...a cross between anonymous and annoying?

"Acident" Roger's mom got preggers by accident.

"Alreaedy" Alright, already!

"Amouints" Roger amounts to nothing.

"Aposterphe" This guy is a hoot, ain't he?

"Basios"...word Woger uses when he gets neeeerrrrvous.
"Behing"...a cross between being and behind?

"Coiward" As in peeking from behind his mommy's curtains.
"Feamle"...I think he meant female.
"Losser"...only loser Roger can do it better.
"Ignroant"...typical, considering the source.
"Sluprs"...only Rogie knows what this means.
"Travelled"...a Rogerism, replete with ignorance.
"Postss"...pssst...Roger..that should be Posts.
"Defgenerate"...well, it's Roger's word...
"Faity"...he meant to say Fairy, but you know Roger.

"Ghet" Get a load of Curtain Boy!
"Distribiution"...Roger likes using phonics.
"Biotch"...he meant Bitch, but his phonics took over again.
"Methjadone"...a West Virginia substitute for Heroin.
"Sumbliminal"...one of Roger's favorites.
"Recepticle"...either of Roger's moist cavaties.
"Cociane"...a West Virginia drug of choice?

"Tiome"...Roger meant to say Time...but his fingers were numb.
"Beraking"...no definition. Could mean 'beraking' the leaves,
"Amny"...he meant 'any',
"Nlay"...a town in Maylaysia? Vermont?
"Al;ong"...only Wussman knows what this means.
"Becasu"...well, becasu Roger is not the brightest bulb on the tree.
"Seperation". Why? Because Roger cannot "seperate" from his mommie!
"Sisnce" He meant Since, but his pudgy little fingers slipped off the keys.
"gnetically" What?
"provce" (prove?)
"Piuzza" (West Virginia Pizza)
"Schol" (school?)
"strill" (still?)
"shoitgun" 12 ga or 20 ga?
"Snoip" (How they spell "snip" in Glen Dale)
"Maturbater". Wiseman does it all the time, he just can't spell it.(leaves a sticky residue on his right hand)
"Coskscuking". It's a Roger thing, as in Lavender Lads.
"Waddleing". Only in Glen Dale, eh?
"Spaeaking". Curtain Boy did this after his second retest.

" Stgop" Roger's version of Stop.

"Fahter's" He meant Father's Day.

"fserting"..would that be festering?

"poists". Roger meant "posts".

"snadwich" As in peanut butter and jelly?

"regualr" Glen Dale rendition of "regular".

"aftrer" After? Aftrer what?

"soory". Sorry Roger fucks up again.

"didnb't" He didn't?

"whoile". He ate the whoile thing?

"Woamn" He's hooked on West Virginia phonics, all right.

"prrof" And he kin prove it, too.

"beforfe" Was that before he lurned to spell?

"yoiuy" Roger's version of "y'all".

"illerate" Only illiterate Roger can spell like this.

"haeart" Aw, how heartless of me to laugh!

"valule" Roger has no values. No wonder he can't spell it.

"proch" Doesn't everyone have one on their house?

"inmstitution" Where Roger's mom put him in June 1999.

"timne" It's Howdy Doody time?

"whgo" What? Who dat?

"gnetically" Only Roger knows what this one means.

"crfy" Like, cry, Roger, cry.

"stutrtering" Some stutter, Wiseman stutrters.

"Whjere" Where is Curtain Boy?

"Webiste" That's Website to the rest of us.

"Youire" Your? You're? Who knows.

"fiored" As in fired?

"Parety" Roger gave a party once. Nobody came.

"Bouynce" Bounce?

"Varification" Verifiable mental case.

"Probelms" Poor Rogie.has many problems of the mental sort.

"Partricipate" Oh, DUH!!!!

"Cryed" Gee, Wogie..cry me a river.you dolt!

"Stoick" What a dork. His old 386 has no spell check program.

"Partiall" More WV Phonics, I see.

"Obsucred" Either obscured or Rogie has "sucre" on his mind.

"Infinate" Stupid. Think finite, Rogie.

"Sustinance" As in Sustenance?

"Juvinile". This is the way Roger likes his boys.

"Piut" Put it where, Rogie?

"Toyus". "Toyus R Us?

"Diminuative". Roger's height.

"Percriptions" Say what?

"Credibiliy" More Glen Dale intellect.

"Thsoe" Yet another Glen Dale gaffe.

I've been saying for years that Wiseman needs to keep notes on his bullshit. The minute he gets his SSI check he needs to head down to the Family Dollar (I doubt he can afford Walley-World...if that shit hole Glen Dale even has one) and buy his ass a big loose leaf note book (with at least 300 pages) and with his favorite crayon he needs to right "LIES" in big block letters on the front so he can't keep his bullshit straight.

You mean like that wonderful piece of "detective work" that you posted on Nim Busters that you said was my IP (Earthlink) and it was found out to be a invalid IP address, Inspector Clueless? They even followed up to your "assertions" saying how you fucked up royally on that one.

Yeah, apparently, the "D" does stand for DUMBASS. Since when is a public proxy with free access any theft , DUMBASS. Try pulling your Yeah, and all you have is a oversized clit. Looks like I was right

Everybody should really see those pictures you posted of the interior

The keyword here is "Paris", I've never been Paris, Woger.

You on the other hand have been to the nut house:

WHY I LIKED PRISON BETTER THAN I LIKED THE NUT HOUSE.
A TESTIMONIAL BY WOGER L. WISEMAN

Let me tell you something, Iï¿½ve been to both prison and the nut house and the big house is a whole lot better. In prison I had this big black daddy by the name of Bubba Johnson who always looked out for me and made the other darkies pay me in cigs for sucking their dicks and giving up my brown hole. I didnï¿½t have to talk to no head shrinking doctors neither about why I was so mad at the world and my mother that I would beat up on her 73 year old ass! The only bad thing about prison was that they wouldnï¿½t let me write Lloyd and tell him how he is my only love.
That kind of sucked. Also now since prison my sphincters will never be the same. Sometimes when I laugh real hard (which really isnï¿½t all that often because Iï¿½m not all that happy a person since Lardass is rejecting me) a warm brown liquid oozes down my leg and stains my white fruit of the looms all brown in back, also when I walk to the store (too many DUIï¿½s to drive) if I donï¿½t use a lot of cologne I tend to smell really really bad. All in all though if I had my druthers Iï¿½d much rather be in prison (especially if Lardass would come and visit me)!

-Woger

...and leave Lloyd alone you pussy. Somewhere there has to be another 70 year old woman your loser ass can beat on.

I really hate to say it folks, but if someone REALLY wanted to track you via the net, it would be relatively easy to do so (unless one not only uses an anonymous remailer, but does so from an anonymous shell account via remote access from yet another shell account, etc).

I should know this as I DO have some professional training in this particular subject.

IMHO, both stagger lee and roger are lying and trying to bluff each other (and the rest of us).

its just easier to slap them in an ignore bozo filter and be done with it!
Thats what I suggest y'all do.

"In studying several smaller earthquakes from 1985-1987, it appeared that the larger the earthquake, the larger and sooner the precursors appeared. The 6.0 earthquake of April 24, 1984 was preceded by a radio depression 6 days before the shock. The Loma Prieta Earthquake of about 7.0 magnitude was preceded by a much greater radio depression 60 days before. A 7.0 magnitude quake is 10 times greater than a 6.0. The 60-day precursor time for the 7.0 earthquake was 10 times the precursor time for the 6.0 earthquake. More data is needed to clarify this relationship."

He may really have something here, but, absent other evidence, how can you prove correlations between events six days apart, much less 60? Further, there is no indication of where the quakes will occur. Assuming signal levels are depressed, it should be possible to monitor signal levels from several regional broadcast stations from several locations, which might help pinpoint the source of the absorption (assuming that's what it is). His claimed accuracy of 70% is only significant if it is possible to designate the area(s) in which tectonic events are pending. The seismic situation in California would probably allow that much "accuracy" through random predictions that an earthquake is about to occur.

The Schlumberger brothers pioneered modern oil-reservoir location in the 1930s by measuring ground resistance during controlled underground explosions. I believe similar methods have been used to try to detect earthquakes. The problem with this method is, you have to cover the ground with closely spaced sensors. That's hard to do in the highly populated earthquake zones of California.

I have an xm radio in my house that I want to be able to move around from room to room. The problem is that the antenna has to be in a position to get the signal without being blocked. Is there a way to put the antenna up on the roof, and connect it to a transmitter that would send the signal to the receiver located in any room of the house?
Seems like there's got to be something right off the shelf I could hook up to make this work.
Thanks for any advice,
John

Wow! I did. I haven't really been that active, but there were loads of Hello all!

I'm trying to diagnose an issue on an old ACC Shack Master SM100.

Overall the device is working fairly well but the secondary transmitter stage in the SM will not activate for the COS. I've tried other radios and all have the same symptom. Cross band repeat does not activate from Primary RX to Secondary TX. I can force the issue with the COS bypass codes as if I were accessing the SM from the telephone but even after swapping radios, and confirming the High/low state in the controller programming, this feature just will not activate without the *.

Any tips would be greatly appreciated!

TIA!

Hello,
I contacted the lady selling the Motorola unit. She told me it works perfect.
Her husband was a retired military electronic warfare specialist and he recently passed away so now she is just selling off all the equipment in their shop. Anyway, I am in Tampa, Fl and she is in a small town called Hudson about 30 miles north of here so I am going to take a drive to look at it. Hopefully she has some more goodies to sell.

Thanks everyone for responding to my question.

Folks,

I have a VFO/display problem with my Panasonic RF-3100 which I use as a backup general coverage receiver.

I've had and used the radio for about 18 years. What I want to know is could this be a simple `cleaning' `contact spray' solution, or something more serious.

Here's the situation and symptom:

Radio has digital display and the bandswitch knob has 31 positions covering 530-1600 Khz broadcast AM, 88-108 mhz FM, and 29 positions to cover 1-29 mhz shortwave.

Up until a couple of days ago, display and performance was fine on ALL bands.

However, all of a sudden, I lost the portion of the broadcast 88-108 mhz FM band. At a point below 95.7 mhz the display turned to 9989.3 and would not tune lower. Above that frequency the FM band works fine, as does the full range of all the other bands.

Would anyone have a clue about why this is happening?

The FM broadcast band is not that important as long as all shortwave bands work, but is it something that might deteriorate further?

Any comment or help would be most welcome.

RESCUE RADIO: TORNADOES ACROSS THE MID-WEST BRING OUT HAM RADIO COMMUNICATORS

Dozens of tornadoes and severe storms hammered the northern Plains and Midwest in the past week. As phone lines went out and cellular systems got overloaded it was ham radio that was again called on to provide storm spotting and other communications. Amateur Radio Newsline's Don Wilbanks, AE5DW, is here with more:

--

More than a dozen tornadoes swept across southern Nebraska the weekend of May 22nd. According to news reports the tornadoes were part of three days of severe weather that knocked out telephone service and power to hundreds of thousands of people from Nebraska to Michigan to West Virginia.

Hardest hit was Hallam, Nebraska. Hallam is located 25 miles north to Lincoln and is where a 73 year old woman was killed from flying debris. Every building in Hallam was damaged or destroyed and all normal communications was cut off. This prompted the activation of local A-R-E-S units under the leadership of Section Emergency Coordinator Reynolds Davis, K-Zero-G-N-D.

In Lincoln, Joe Eisenberg, K-Zero-N-E-B, was active with the local ham radio Stormwatch. He described this as a terrible weather front and said that ham radio played a key role in the emergency:

Eisenberg: "We went out on Stormewatch early in the evening and had spotters throughout the whole county and our spotters in the South part of the county began observing the extremely heavy rain, wind and hale, especially near the Hallem area. One of our spotters saw a semi that had been blown off the road."

Downed power lines and leaking propane tanks littered the Hallam, prompting the Nebraska National Guard to surround the community Sunday to keep people from entering. Newsline spoke to Sandy Ramsey of the Office of Emergency Management in Lincoln who had a lot of praise for the role that Amateur Radio is playing:

--

Ramsy: "The hams out there as storm spotters. They are just invaluable to us. They're our eyes and ears. We are in the E-O-C and they're our eyes in the field and we just couldn't do this without them. They are really an invaluable part of what we do."

--

But Nebraska was not the only place where hams were put on alert or activated. Iowa and central Michigan were also hard hit and the front also caused power and phone outages in southern Michigan, Wisconsin, northern Illinois and Iowa and northwest Ohio. On Monday night the 24th, Iowa was drenched by yet another wave of powerful thunderstorms, even as residents of the town of Independence waited for a flooded local stream to recede.

The wave of storms swept eastward early Tuesday. Illinois had high wind that damaged several structures near Jacksonville. State Police said a twister damaged a home south of Springfield.

And all across the region ham radio operators remained on alert. As we go to air their work is still ongoing and we will have more in future reports.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Don Wilbanks, AE5DW in New Orleans.

A total of 81 tornadoes were confirmed to have touched down in the region on Saturday as a weather front stalled over the area. As we go to air, ham radio is still involved in the aftermath of the storms. (ARNewsline, K0NEB)

THE BPL FIGHT: MR. HAYNIE GOES TO WASHINGTON REDUX

ARRL President Jim Haynie, W5JBP, says his meeting with White House telecommunications advisors on B-P-L issues was both revealing and encouraging. Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, has the latest:

Haynie says he and ARRL representatives met with Richard Russell, the White House associate director of technology in the Office of Science and Technology Policy in Washington D.C.

Haynie knew going in that the Bush administration's policy was clear: B-P-L is something that's good for America. But Haynie says Russell did offer assurances, especially in light of the interference findings about B-P-L contained in the National Telecommunications and Information Administration report.

"He did emphasize the fact that they would address the interference issues aggressively," Haynie says. "And I'm going to take him at his word at that. That they will do that.

"And I'm sure the FCC has taken note of the interference issues that NTIA has raised and as the representative for the amateur radio community, I intend to stay on top of it.

"We're not going to let this thing slide from that standpoint. They have the rules and they're printed and they're there. And we're going to make sure that they abide by those rules."

Haynie says it was clear from the start that Russell is beholden to the political agenda of the Bush administration.

"Mr. Russell heard what we had to say all right, but I think he was already predisposed to the fact that to anybody on the street - and I'm talking about the uninformed person that doesn't know about technology, broadband over powerline, where you can just plug your computer into the wall ,any wall outlet -does sound like a good thing," Haynie says. "And, I understand that.

"But on the other hand, there are issues that have to be dealt with and one of the examples I gave Mr. Russell was the fact that we could all lower our electric bills if we could burn high-sulfur coal.

"And he said, 'Well the EPA wouldn't let you do that.' I said, 'That's my point exactly. The FCC should be standing there, overseeing the rules about spectrum pollution.' I think I made my point."

Haynie says, upon reflection, one reality in the whole B-P-L debate is becoming crystal clear.

"I honestly do believe there's a disconnect between the engineers in the field, the engineers at the commission who actually understand the physics of the issue versus the politicians who are driving it," Haynie says. " I'm convinced now that's what it is. This is no longer a science issue, an issue of facts, it's an issue of politics and that disappoints me."

However, Haynie says in recent weeks certain admissions by utilities trying to work with the amateur community are significant.

"In the beginning, everybody said from the industry side that there was no interference," Haynie says. "Now they're actually saying, 'Yes, there is and we'll try to mitigate it, we'll try to work with you.' That in itself is a big step."

Haynie says there also are admissions that one major interference solution touted by B-P-L proponents - notching - just doesn't do the job across the board.

"Finally some of the people are admitting, 'OK we don't have a point-source radiator anymore, we have a continuous-source radiator such as a power line.' And they're saying that the notching techniques will work and we've actually found out that they don't work that well," Haynie says.

"The notches are not that exact. And, when it says that they notch something about 3db or 6db, that's still not enough. It has to be notched by at least 30 in order to get back down to where the amateurs can function. And that's going to be a big challenge for the industry."

Haynie says anybody studying the issue of broadband technology sees the B-P-L investment is not a good one because of the growing emphasis on creating a wireless network.

"Quite frankly, in my personal opinion, the broadband over powerlines is going to be a real flash-in-the-pan because other technologies are going to overtake it very quickly," Haynie says.

"Whenever people say they want to plug their computer into any outlet in the wall, then my question is: 'Then, why do you have a cordless phone?' And WiFi and WiMax enter that challenge by being able to go anywhere in your house and let your laptop down whether it be on your couch or in your easychair and operate broadband.

"And I think that technology is going to be the real answer to people that need that type of high-speed internet access."

Haynie says the B-P-L battle is far from over. He says the strategy now is to press regulators - especially the FCC - to enforce the interference rules.

"Hold everybody's feet to the fire on the rules," Haynie says. "And the encouraging sign I've seen in the last week or so is the fact that more and more utilities have said that they didn't think it was a viable option for them and have opted out.

"Interestingly enough, the city of Manassas now is advertising for another provider. I found that extremely curious and very interesting."

Finally, Haynie concedes the ARRL has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on the B-P-L issue and it's looking to the amateur community to get behind the league and its work.

"People are working overtime," Haynie says. "We are burning the candle at both ends and all I would ask is the amateurs support the organization and what we're trying to do in this effort."

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia.

RADIO LAWS: CALIFORNIA TO FINE DISTRACTED DRIVERS

California drivers who are distracted for any reason and whose actions attract law enforcement may soon face fines by eating, combing their hair or talking on a cellular telephone. This if a bill passed on May 18th by the state senate and bend to the Assembly is eventually made law. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, has more in this report:

It was called S B 1800 when Senator Kevin Murray introduced it to the California State Senate back in February. It went unnoticed by the Amateur Radio community until about a week ago when the Senate passed it and delivered to the State Assembly for further action.
That's
when news outlets state wide ran banner headlines saying that the state legislature might make it a crime to be distracted in any way -- while operating a motor vehicle in the Golden state. And that is exactly what the measure would do.

As written, the Murray bill would make it an crime for a person to operate a vehicle in an unsafe manner that results from engaging in a distracting activity while driving. What is a distracting activity?

Well according to the Senator it is just about anything. Eating or drinking, smoking, reading or writing, interacting with children, animals, passengers, or objects in the vehicle, adjusting the controls of an audio or other entertainment device, or even talking on a hands free cellular telephone. And it is the last two items that could easily impact on ham radio operators or any other two way radio user that a police officer might regard as distracted just because he or she has a microphone in hand or is changing frequencies on a radio.

The bill does say that a law enforcement officer may not stop a vehicle when a driver is engaging in a distracting activity unless the officer observes that the vehicle is being operated in an unsafe manner. But it is left to the officer to decide what unsafe really is under other areas of California state law.

The proposed law does not single out or target Amateur Radio operators for enforcement, but it does not exempt hams either. In fact, the only exemptions are police, fire and emergency services but even this is limited. The measure states that an emergency service professional would be exempt from these restrictions when using a wireless telephone or other electronic device, but only as part of the course and scope of his or her duties.

What about penalties? The bill would require a first offense to be punished by a fine of $35, and a second or subsequent offense that occurs within 2 years of a prior conviction for the infraction to be punished by a fine of $150.

Also, being permitted to continue driving in California and get insurance means that you have to keep your violation points count low. Any person whose driving record shows a violation count of 4 or more points in 12 months, 6 or more points in 24 months, or 8 or more points in 36 months be presumed to be a negligent operator of a motor vehicle. This bill would prohibit a first-time violation from being given a point value, but would mandate that a 2nd or subsequent violation within 2 years to be given a value of one point. And even 2 points can cost a lot of dollars when you go to renew an auto insurance policy.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, in Los Angeles.

Supporters of the proposed law cite studies blaming distractions for 25 to 30 percent of all vehicle crashes. Opponents say that the bill goes too far in meddling with the civil rights of individuals. This group vows a court fight if the measure gets signed into law. (ARNewsline(tm) from published news reports)

RESTRUCTURING: FCC CHAIRMAN SAYS RESTRUCTURING CONTINUING

FCC Chairman Michael Powell has told U-S representatives Greg Walden, W7EQI, and Mike Ross, WD5DVR, that the Commission will act 'as expeditiously as possible' on Amateur Radio restructuring. This, in response to a letter from Walden and Ross a month ago that urged the FCC to adopt the ARRL's restructuring Petition for Rule Making in its entirety along with rules changes needed to put it into place.

But in his response, Powell said the League's petition was one of many. There are 18 in all. An ARRL bulletin says that judging from the FCC Chairman's letter to Walden and Ross, it would appear as if the regulatory agency plans to address all 18 petitions within the framework of a single rule making proceeding. (ARRL)

ENFORCEMENT: 75 METER IN INTERFERENCE BRINGS FAA REFERRAL

A California ham is under FCC scrutiny for alleged interference to ongoing Amateur Radio communications. The FCC's Daryl Duckworth, NN0W, is here with more:

Duckworth: "AE6QD, Steve L. Wingate, of Corte Madera, California, has been sent a warning letter regarding malicious interference on 75 meters. This consists of jamming, making threats to other operators and to law enforcement officers, and broadcasts in which he appears incoherent."

--

The FCC warned Wingate that continued incidents of such interference will subject him to license suspension and revocation proceedings, as well as a possible fine of $7,500 to $10,000. And in an unusual twist, the FCC says that since Wingate also holds a pilot's license, this matter is also being referred to the Federal Aviation Administration as well. (FCC, RAIN)

ENFORCEMENT: FINES AFFIRMED AGAINST TWO ALLEGED PIRATES

Fines of $10,000 each have been affirmed by the FCC against Jason Green and Gary Feldman. The regulatory agency alleges that the two are pirate broadcasters in Florida who reportedly operated on 91.9 Mhz. The FCC says that neither filed a responses to the Commission's initial findings in the case. (FCC)

ENFORCEMENT: A "RADIO SUMMER CAMP" TO TRAIN MORE PIRATES

Now here's one that we know will interest the FCC enforcement folks.
Writers to the CGC Communicator report that budding radio pirates can learn how to buy or build FM transmitters and get on the air this summer. This at four-day "workshop" sessions, at least one of which will be bilingual.

Not only that. CGC readers also report that the event promoters will have transmitter and antenna kits available to attendees. For more on these strange educational check out www.freeradio.org. (CGC)

RADIO LAW: AIR FORCE JAMS GARAGE DOOR OPENERS

A new military radio system is jamming remote-control garage doors in communities near this Florida Panhandle base. During testing of the $5.5 million two-way radio system at Eglin Air Force Base, homeowners in Niceville, Valparaiso and the Crestview area reported that their garage door openers failed to work or went wild by themselves.

According to Air Force officials the contractor, Motorola Inc., will try to minimize the problem. Technicians will run the system on slightly different frequencies from those used by garage door openers when another test is conducted.

But an FCC spokesperson had some bas news for local homeowners. Lauren Van Wazer, said that if the Air Force has been running the system within its licensed frequencies then the users of garage door openers may have to change the operating frequencies of theirs.

By the way, the Navy says that a similar radio system has been requested for Pensacola Naval Air Station and other nearby installations. (Published reports)

NEW PRODUCTS: THE TNC WIZARD

Creative Services Software has announced the release of version 1.0 of the Kantronics and Timewave TNC Wizard. This program searches for your TNC and sound card on both serial ports and TCP/IP networks.

Creative's Rick Ruhl, W4PC, says that the TNC wizard works with built in serial ports in the TNC, USB to serial adapters and TCP/IP to serial interfaces. It also has an option to detect the soundcard in the computer and add that information to the PacTerm or PkTerm startup files without any additional setup needed at install time.

The TNC Wizard requires Windows 98 or later, with TCP/IP installed. There is no cost for the TNC wizard and it can be downloaded from the CSS website at http://www.cssincorp.com (CSS)

WORLDBEAT - IRAN: IARU TRAINING PRESENTED

Turning to international news, word that the I-A-R-U recently presented an Amateur Radio Administration Course in Iran. Amateur Radio Newsline's Jim Meachen Zed-L-2-B-H-F in Auckland New Zealand brings the details:

PKG HERE: In response to an invitation from the administration of the Islamic Republic of Iran, Fred Johnson ZL2AMJ representing the IARU Region 3 and Daniel Lamoureux VE2KA representing the IARU International Secretariat visited Iran to present a three-day Amateur Radio Administration Course, 26 to 28 April 2004. Fred Johnson ZL2AMJ takes up his story:

ZL2AMJ:

Since the early 1980s this course has been conducted by IARU in various forms in countries all over the world and in response to invitations from administrations to train regulators and prospective regulators in the administering of the amateur service and amateur satellite service. Related objectives include managing disaster relief communications and organizing an amateur radio society.

Our recent course in Tehran was arranged by Mr T. Shafiee and Mr M. Zomorodi of the Directorate General of Telecommunications. An excellent training room was provided for us with full support facilities including a data projector and access to a photocopier. Daniel and myself presented our course using PowerPoint displays prepared by IARU and each of the 16 participants received printed copies of the displays and many other documents and two CD-ROMs with documentation about amateur radio.

We had discussions with many radio amateurs in Tehran, some of whom attended the course. The course participants visited EP3PTT, a station established in the Ministry's office premises in Tehran. The equipment in this station was provided for Iran amateurs by from the IARU Region 3 Stars program and may be operated by licensed Iranian operators by arrangement.

There have been amateur radio societies in Iran in earlier years but there has not been an IARU member society. An amateur radio "club", a social meeting group, presently meets in Tehran.

ZL2BHF: ZL2AMJ reported the course as a most memorable experience. He said that Daniel and himself were warmly received.

From Auckland New Zealand I'm Jim Meachen ZL2BHF for Newsline.

Contact between the IARU and the amateurs and the administration of Iran is to continue with further Amateur Radio information to be provided. (ARNewsline(tm))

WORLDBEAT - ALBANIA: PROJECT GOODWILL AT DAYTON 2004

Len Geraldi, K6ANP, who is the President of the Northern California DX Foundation has announced that his organization is teaming up with Vertex Standard . The two will combine forces to donate ten complete Yaesu FT 840 stations to Project Goodwill Albania. The gear will be set up at the University of Tirana to boost the successful completion of the project.

The announcement was made at the recent Dayton D-X dinner in Ohio. At the same time Bob Ferrero, W6RJ, stepped forward on behalf of Ham Radio Outlet. He offered up a matching number of antennas. Bob Heil, K9EID, of Heil Sound said that he would supply the needed p sound gear. Other equipment was pledged by AA4XR, N3BNA, K3LP, K7JA, VE1JF, W3BTX, W4MYA, W6EUF, W6OSP, W6UM and W9JUV in addition to those already reported earlier. (Various)

THAT FINAL ITEM: BAY TO BREAKERS

And finally this week, the story of ham radio assisting in a truly fun public service event. It called the Bay to Breakers race and its held every year in the San Francisco. David Hirtz, KG6CEL, reports from the City by the Bay:

Audio Only: Hear it at www.anewsline.org
--

By the way, it's called the Bay to Breakers Race because it starts in the financial district not far from San Francisco Bay and ends at the western most edge of Golden Gate Park overlooking the mighty blue Pacific. More information on this event is on line at www.baytobreakers.com. (ARNewsline(tm))

 EDITOR'S SPECIAL NOTE: Let me first say, it is great to have electrial power back again. Thanks to last week's storms, we had no power between 4:00 PM Friday to 8:30 PM Monday. It made for an interesting weekend (with no computer or television). Anyway, due to the large amount of late CQ WPX CW Contest announcements, I decided to release the bulletin early. I also wanted to free up more time during the Memorial Day weekend. Have a safe and fun holiday! 73 de Tedd KB8NW

DXCC COUNTRY/ENTITY REPORT: According to the AR-Cluster Network for the week of Friday, 21st/May, through Friday, 28th/May there were 215 countries active. * PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

5W, SAMOA (Update). Ted, K8AQM, reports that his upcoming trip to 5W will take place between July 7-21st. He will operate as 5W0TR from the Samoan Village Resort on 160-10 meters CW/SSB/RTTY and PSK. He also mentions that they will be active for the IARU Radiosport, hopefully using the special callsign for the contest only, possibly 5W0XX. All QSLs are via K8AA CBA. They will put the log on the "Logbook of the World" and eQSL. Also, look for them as KH6BB from Hawaii, July 5-6th and 22-24th.

6Y, JAMAICA. Felipe, NP4Z, will be active as 6Y4OJ during the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Single-Op/QRP entry. QSL via WC4E.

9H, MALTA. Con, DF4SA, will be active as 9H3MM in the CQ WPX CW Contest as a Single-Op/All-Band/Low-Power entry. Activity will be on 40-10 meters from Gozo Island. QSL automatically via the bureau after the contest via DF4SA or direct to: Cornelius Paul, Adelberger Weg 3, D-73104 Breech, Germany.

9M6, EAST MALAYSIA. Look for Toivo, ES2RR, to be active as 9M6A in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as possibly a Single-Op/All-Band entry. QSL via N2OO. Activity will be from the Hillview Gardens Resort (Web site http://www.qsl.net/9m6aac/). Toivo will be active occasionally as 9M6AAC outside of the contest.

A45, OMAN. Alex, YO9HP, will be active as A45WD during the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (20m)/Low-Power entry. QSL via YO9HP.

ALBANIA NEWS. Tim Totten, N4GN, sent out the following press release from the "Project Goodwill Albania" team:
"A HEARTY THANK YOU FOR THOSE WHO RESPONDED TO A CALL FROM ALBANIA AT DAYTON 2004
It was delighting to Geni, ZA1B, and other Project Goodwill Albania members to hear the sincere compliments for a project well executed from the visiting DXers in Dayton. Many complimented the dual-track idea of making amateur radio's entry to University level training and including a DX outing in the same package.
Many individual donors wanted to do their share in getting the students on the air. To that end, equipment support was received from AA4XR, N3BNA, K3LP, K7JA, VE1JF, W3BTX, W4MYA, W6EUF, W6OSP, W6UM and W9JUV in addition to those already reported earlier.
The highlight obviously was when Len Geraldi, K6ANP, President of the Northern California DX Foundation, announced at the DX Dinner that NCDXF and Vertex Standard (Yaesu) will combine forces to donate ten complete FT840 stations to the University of Tirana to boost the successful completion of the project. DXers around the world are reminded that NCDXF relies on the support of individuals like you in order to fund such DX projects.
As Bob Ferrero, W6RJ, stepped forward on behalf of Ham Radio Outlet with the same number of antennas and Bob Heil, K9EID, added the good Heil sound to the package, the event was ending happily, once again showing the power of the DX community and related industry for a good cause.

The First Albania DX Convention, scheduled for 19-20 June in the capital city Tirana, is the place to be to enjoy the camaraderie of the new ZA amateurs as well as many figures from the DX community who helped make the donated equipment work--G3LQP, G3TXF, I8NHJ, K2WR, W6UM, OH2BH, OH2PM, T93Y and others. Your participation will be welcomed! U.S. DXers may contact Rich, K2WR, at <k2wr@njdxa.org> for advice how to travel there easily. In case of your further equipment donation, these people will be happy to take them along and do the presentation on your behalf.

ARLHS PRESS RELEASE: Jim Weidner, K2JXW, Founder and President of the Amateur Radio Lighthouse Society, provides the following information: "Guidelines for the Amateur Radio Lighthouse Society August 2004 National Lighthouse-Lightship Weekend (NLLW) QSO Contest are available at: http://arlhs.com/NLLW-2004-guidelines.html
This annual event, along with our International event later in August, draws thousands of participants from all over the world. Last year we had over 40 countries participate, and over 400 lighthouses activated."
Further information is available from K2JXW at mailto:weidner@waterw.com

C6, BAHAMAS. Duncan, EA5ON, is once again active from Freeport. He has been active since May 26th and will continue to be active unitl May 30th as GM7CXM/C6A. Although this is primarily a business trip, Duncan informs OPDX that he will be taking his IC-706 and portable antenna. This year the licence is already issued, the antenna has been thoroughly tried and tested, and it is hoped that more contacts will be made than last year. Operation will be 80-10 meters SSB. In case the hotel accomodation proves to be radio unfriendly, batteries will be taken along to enable portable use on the beach. Freeport is on Grand Bahama Island, IOTA NA-080. QSL to EA5ON, direct or by the bureau.

CO8, CUBA. Juan, CO8TW, will be active during the CQ WPX CW Contest as a Single-Op/Single-Band (20m)/Low-Power entry. QSL information is IZ8CCW, and the Log will be on after the contest at: http://www.qsl.net/co8tw/

EM3, UKRAINE. Alex, UR3HC, will take part in the CQ WPX CW Contest as a Single-Op/All-band entry and use the callsign EM3H. QSL information is via UR3HC, either direct or through the bureau.

ET, ETHIOPIA. Michal, OK1HWB, will be active as ET3TK in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (40m) entry. QSL via OK1CU.

FT5Z, AMSTERDAM ISLAND. Sebastien, FT1ZL, on Amsterdam Island (AF-002) is expected to become active soon because the French have changed their licensing structure. French operators that previously hold a VHF-only license have been granted HF bands privileges and are allowed to operate on all modes except A1A, A2A, F1A and F2A. These stations usually have a 1 or 4 in their prefix. So, look for Sebastien to be on 20/17/15/12/10 meters SSB. Suggested frequencies are: 14195, 14274, 18138, 18148, 21191, 21271, 24954, 24974, 28485 and 28495 kHz. Please go easy on Sebastien because he is not used to pile-ups.

GB4, ISLE OF MAN. Members of the Wrexham and District Amateur Radio Society will be operating from the Isle of Man (IOTA EU-116) during the period of September 1-8th. The site that will be used is Scarlett Point, a discontinued Coast Guard lookout tower, approx 1.5 miles South of Castletown, Isle of Man (QRA: IO74, WAB SC26). Activity will be on all HF Bands, 50 MHz, 70MHz, 144MHz and 432 MHz, at full UK power. The team plans to operate simultaneously on 3 HF Bands (CW, SSB, RTTY, PSK and some SSTV) and 1 VHF Band. They also plan a high level of activity on the lower HF Bands with particular attention being paid to 160 and 80 meters. Stations will use a combination of aerials, including Phased Arrays, Yagi's and Quads at heights of 40 - 100 Feet. Callsigns will be: GB4IOM and GB4SPT. Some operations from the island's mountain will take place, conditions permitting, for SOTA devotees. QSL via the Bureau or direct to M1LCR (Further details and a P.O. Box address will be issued later). A number of awards are planned for working the station, either multiband/multi mode or a combination, and QSLs will be available for SWLs. Further press releases will be issued on the following dates: June 7th, July 7th, August 7th, 14th and 28th. Visit the following Web site for more details and updates: http://www.gb4iom.co.uk

GET WELL WISHES. OPDX and its readers would like to send out their "Get Well Wishes" to well-known DXer Bill, AK0A (TI9M/OY7WB/T33C), who became ill while in Dayton for the Hamfest. He is currently still in Dayton at the Miami Valley Hospital recovering from triple bypass surgery. The operation took place on Tuesday morning, May 25th. For those wanting to send (mail) "Get Well Wishes", send to: WILLIAM F BOECKENHAUPT, Miami Valley Hospital, One Wyoming Street, Dayton, Ohio 45409-2793.

GI1, NORTHERN IRELAND. Look for M0SDX to be active as GI1A in the CQ WPX CW Contest as a Single-Op/All-Band/High-Power entry. QSL via UT5SI, by the Bureau or CBA.

HS72, THAILAND. Champ, E21EIC, was expected to be active as HS72B on the WARC bands looking for NA stations (Before CQ WPX CW Contest). However, this did not happen. Hopefully, he will be in the CQ WPX CW Contest, using the HS72B callsign as a Single-Op/Low Power entry (SOAB or SOSB). QSL via E20NTS.

HZ, SAUDI ARABIA. Look for Thomas, SM0CXU, to be active as HZ1AB in the CQ WPX CW Contest as a Single-Op/Single-Band (15m) entry. QSL via K8PYD.

IOTA NEWS.....
AS-117. (Update) It seems Kenji, JA4GXS, was active earlier than announced from Saba Island as JA4GXS/4 on May 22nd. Remember to QSL via his home call, direct or by the JARL Bureau.

AS-133. Jaak, XU7ACE (ES1FB), recently back from XU-land, states that his operation and trip were very sucessful. However, due to logistical problems and very bad weather in July, they have cancelled their IOTA Contest operation from Koh Pos.

EU-006. The WestNet DX Group will be active from Inis Mor in the Aran Islands, from Friday, June 18th, to Tuesday, June 22nd.
Callsign used will be EJ7NET, and activity will be on HF and 6m. QSL via EI6FR.

EU-040. A multinational team of operators will be active as a Low-Power DXpedition entry in the 2004 IOTA Contest from Ilha da Berlenga.
Team members are: CT1APE, CT1CJJ, CT1EEB, CT1ILT, CT2GLO, EA1CA, EA1DKV, EA4ABE, EA4ST, ON5NT (if not busy for the UN) and some more operators to be confirmed. Activity will be on all bands and modes including VHF/UHF. The homepage will soon be hosted at: http://www.qsl.net/cs7t
There will be (on the Web page) online logs, QSL info and some interesting stories about the Berlenga Arch.

EU-159. Members of the Bordeaux DX Group (F2VX, F5OZF, F5RXL, F5SSG, F6EXV and F8BBL) will be active as TM7BDX from Cordouan Island (WLH 271 and DIFM 032), for about 12 hours on June 12th.
Activity will be on 40-10 meters CW/SSB. QSL via F8BBL, by the bureau or direct.

OC-160. Bill, VK4FW, will be active as VK4FW/p from the Queensland
State (South Coast) North Group, June 5-6th. Bill informed OPDX that he hopes to be active on 40/30/20/17/15 meters.
QSL direct only to the following address: Bill Horner,
P.O. Box 513, Nambour, 4560, Australia.

JY9, JORDAN. George, JY9QJ, will be active in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Single-Op/All-Band entry. QSL via DL5MBY.

KH2, GUAM. Look for Haru, JA1XGI, to be active as W8XGI/KH2 until May 31st. Activity will be on 40/30/20/15/10 meters, mostly on the digital modes. QSL via JA1XGI, direct or by the bureau.

Contest. Please QSL via the info on QRZ.com.

OH0, ALAND ISLAND. Toni, OH2UA, will be active as OH0B during the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Single-Op/All-Band/High-Power entry.
QSL via OH2BH.

OY, FAROE ISLAND. Carsten, OY1CT, will be active in the CQ WPX Contest as a Single-Op/All-Band/High-Power entry. He mentions that he will be on 160 meters this year. Please QSL, if needed, direct via address on QRZ.com or CBA address.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.............
EA9IE LOGS. Juan, EA9IE, is celebrating his 25 years in ham radio (his first QSO as EA9IE was July 30th 1979). He has put his logs on the Web page at: http://dx.qsl.net/logs/index.html Logs contains his 212.576 QSOs with more than 95,000 diferent callsigns. The last date of QSO is May 18th, 2004, and he will update the log continously. QSLing is OK direct or by the bureau. If QSLing direct, people can also include in the same envelope QSL cards for his XYL and her two callsigns: CN2MP and EA9AM.

EM0U. Is a club amateur radio station of the Ukrainian State Centre of Radio Frequencies and the 6th ITU Centre of Excellence. QSL Manager is UT3UZ (Alex I. Arbuzov, P.O.Box 240, Kiev-232, 02232, Ukraine). QSL either direct or through the UARL bureau.

Fran, EA7FTR, informs OPDX that he is now the QSL Manager for Pedro, HK1HHX (and 5K1X), from Colombia. QSL must be sent to Francisco, Lianez Suero, Asturias 23, 21110 Aljaraque HUELVA Spain.

Bob, W9OL, reports that logs for the recent YO3APJ have been uploaded to "Logbook of The Wolrd" (LoTW). He also mentions that more of the 9X5AA 1989 logs have been uploaded to LoTW (still a lot to do yet).
Lastly, Bob states IRC info for Belarus has been updated to:
http://www.qsl.net/w9ol/ircchart.txt

Alan, VK4AAR, would like to advise OPDX readers that the cards for the recent IOTA expeditions to VINEY (OC-266) and PASCO (OC-071) Islands have been printed, and he has started to work on the backlog.
They will all be in the mail very shortly.

SPECIAL ACTIVITY (Attention Prefix Hunters!). Portuguese radio operators from Portugal, Azores and Madeira will be using the following special prefixes from June 12th through July 4th during the Football (Soccer) European Championships (EURO 2004):
CT1 -> CQ14 CU0 -> CU04 CU5 -> CU54
CT2 -> CQ24 CU1 -> CU14 CU6 -> CU64
CT4 -> CQ44 CU2 -> CU24 CU7 -> CU74
CT5 -> CQ54 CU3 -> CU34 CU8 -> CU84
CT3 -> CS94 CU4 -> CU44 CU9 -> CU94
Also, look for special activity by the official Rede dos Emissores Portugueses (REP) station CS2004REP. A EURO 2004 award will be available for working these stations. Details are available at: http://www.rep.pt

SPECIAL EVENT (Addition/Correction). Pi, K1RV, has provided a few corrections to last week's announcement about the Annual Museum Ships Weekend. This year will be the 8th year (not 5th) for this year's event.
They expect close to 90 ships to participate from around the world. The event's Web site is at: http://www.qsl.net/k1usn/event.html
The USS Salem Radio Club - K1USN, will again sponsor this event. Additional information about the USS Salem can be found at: http://www.qsl.net/k1usn

The operating time (for the Museum Ships Weekend) will be from 0001z, July 17th through 2359z, July 18th. QSL Manager for K1USN is K1RV. DX may QSL via the bureau, and all others please enclose #10 SASE for K1USN QSL card and USS Salem literature. ADDRESS: (K1USN QSLs ONLY #10 SASE) Harold Pugh - "Pi" - K1RV, 78 Temple St., Abington, MA 02351. All stations that work 10 of the participating ships will receive a certificate if they send a copy of their log showing these contacts and a SASE to W1QWT. Certificate is 8.5 X 11. The address for W1QWT is: Bob Callahan, 56 Acorn Street, Scituate, MA. 02066 USA.

SPECIAL EVENT. The Penticton ARC will be operating a special event station from the Kettle Valley Railroad steam train on May 29-30th starting about 9:00 AM (local time) and running through to about 10:00 PM. They will be active as both RR mobile and RR portable. Suggested frequencies are just above 3785, 7225, 14225, and 21300 kHz for SSB. For CW, look for them in the lower part of the U.S. General portion of the band (if they have CW operators) on 20, 40 and 80 meters. A nice four sided QSL card will be available with pictures of the locomotives they used on the railroad line. The callsign they will use is VE7KVL (VE7 Kettle Valley Line). Also, visit the Web page at: http://www.kettlevalleyrail.org/
QSL direct only w/SASE to VA7DP. No return postage no card. NO BUREAU CARDS PLEASE. They will post the log on eQSL, but you will only get "normal" (one sided) QSL card.

SPECIAL EVENT (Radio Reactivation Day). Look for special event station VE3SCX to be active June 5-6th (11:00 AM - 3:00 PM) from Camp X on the Oshawa-Whitby border. Activity is to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the D-Day landing on June 6, 1944. For more information on Camp X, have a look at the following Web page: http://www.camp-x.com

SPECIAL EVENT. Look for the special event station ED8ERC to be aired between July 3-10th to celebrate the 2nd Canarias HamRadio Meeting (II Encuentro de Radioaficionados de Canarias). Activity will be on all HF bands SSB/CW, possibility of PSK/RTTY and one APRS station on the air. QSL Info: QRZ.COM. The special station will be operated by EA8ZS, Gran Canaria DX Group members and others EA8 operators.

SPECIAL EVENT. Rodja, YZ1AA, is active until the end of year with the special callsign YZ200A. Activity is to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the First Serbian Mutiny against Turks (1804). His activity will be mainly on CW (just a reminder, he is a member of FOC, YUCWK etc...). He already made over 3000 QSOs last week. Look for him in CQ WPX CW Contest, mainly during the night time. QSL via YZ1AA: Rankovic Rodoljub, P.O. BOX 17, 11550 Lazarevac, SERBIA AND MONTENEGRO. Please note, bureau cards are also welcome.

ST2, SUDAN. Michael, PA5M (ex-YI/PA5M and 9U5M) is now in Sudan and will be active for about one month using ST2DX. He will use his vertical from the hotel or a 10 element log periodic antenna from his work QTH with 100 watts from his FT-857. Operating times...work permitting. All info about this operation including on-line log search, is available on: http://www.pa7fm.nl

VK9L, LORD HOWE ISLAND. Bill, VK4FW, announces that "At this time we still need 1 more YL operator and 1 CW operator." Operation will take place between September 25th and October 16th. Activity will be on all HF bands CW/SSB/RTTY and 6 meters. For more details, visit the following Web page at: http://www.odxg.org

VO2, CANADA (Zone 2). Francois, VA2RC, will be active as VO2/VA2RC from Labrador City (VO2 - Zone 2), July 31st (1200-0600z) to August 1st (1200-0400z). Activity will be on 80/40/20/15/10 meters SSB and RTTY.
Suggested frequencies are as follows:
SSB - 3790-3795, 7050-7060, 14185-14200, 21250-21275 and 28420-28450 kHz RTTY - 3580-3600, 7040-7050, 14085-14090, 21085-21090 and 28090-28100 kHz QSL to VA2RC via the bureau. For more information, pictures and updates, visit the Web page at: http://www.qsl.net/va2rc

Z32, MACEDONIA. Look for Venci, Z32AF, to be active in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 29-30th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band entry. The band was not provided. QSL via N8RKA.

Don,

You don't know shit about Ham Radio. You are the professor of bullshit, and your a fucking loser. Cab driving, nose picking dildo.
You're old and funny looking, too.

Dear Ass,

You just wait till you hear what I have in store for you and your fag buddies on the sex flour repeater. Echo link? It's as good as gone.
By the way, how many times have you buggered Chris lately?

How would that be possible since I was never in a mental ward to begin with, dumbass?

> You haven't been out of your West Vagina shack in 5 years.

BWHAHAHAHA..just because convicted felons like yourself have to get an ok to leave the state from Chris Hudson, your parole officer, doesn't mean everybody else can't come and go as they please, CONVICT. Why I go out of state quite often.

> SSI checks don't finance over seas trips,

I've heard (I don't get one,either, dumbass) that they could very well finance an "overseas" trip.
Maybe you should fake, (well in your mental condition it really wouldn't be faking it) or see if you can get SSI and find out that they do sometimes receive substantial monthly checks. I bet it would be better then you having to be a wage slave cleaning carpets and being the towel boy down at the Weight Room gym.

Oh, and I didn't ever say when I was in France, But you can be sure I was there, along with several other European countries. But to help your mentally ill retarded single brain cell out, with just a clue, I haven't lived in WV all my life, dumbfuck.

> retard.

Just like your claims that I am using Earthlink and now a Washington State server through QWest? BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!!!!! You are such a total fuckup! And you don't have any "trojans" except the ones your black drag queen make you wear so they don't get your AIDS.

FuckTard, you need to link them other than to your C: drive, just because they display on your cheap-assed computer, dioesn't mean everybody else can see them.

It is very important that the world knows the most up to date stuff about the most famous repeater in north america 146.640 n9ee.

on 5/28 & 5/29 there has been lots of discussion about the great band opening on vhf (10, 6 and 2 meters). a station in cuba was heard in the repeater, other stations from orlando fl and ocala fl area.
Everyone remember to get those rigs fired up and enjoy the great dx.

5/28 was the friday night net ran by don kg4coq. lots of check ins, don kg4coq has made announcments about field coming soon, don needs everyone to get ready to attend. don and 146.64 is still looking for a monday net operator for the computer tech net. kd4vlx greg also had announcements about all the tampa bay area nets and times, and greg stressed and encouraged everyone to join into trivia net on 5/30. greg is one of the 2 hosts.

there has been lots of recent conversation about the weather - everybody seems to report that it is very hot out every day.

on 5/30 there will be a trivia net with kg4ymb shoen & kd4vlx greg.
greg kd4vlx still makes claims to have the most famous call in pasco county and pasco countys weatherman. in the past kd4ghe steven known as jeff has expressed a interest in being a 3rd host of the trivia net and having his wife (non licensed) help him organize questions. steven has not been heard since his offer of help. kd4ghe seems to be a CARS guy most of the time but enjoys the 64 trivia net.

The 2nd annual 64 Repeater Group Field Day Weekend will be held on the last weekend of June. (June 26-27,2004) Fun starts at 2:00 pm Saturday and ends Sunday at 2:00 pm. We need Cw operators as well as Voice operators to man the radios during the 24 hour period.

Come and enjoy this great Emergency Communications Exercise.

Needed equipment include a 10 foot step ladder and RG-8 type coax and rope and PL259 coax connectors. We currently have all the radio equipment we need.

Last year we had over 50 Ham operators and their families at our event.

The 64 Field Day Weekend will be located at the new Boyce Park.

Off US 19, 1 block South of Ridge Rd.to "Bay Dr." on the West side of US 19. Head West on Bay Dr. To the 4-Way Stop Signs.This is "Old Post Rd.". Turn Right (South) and follow Old Post Rd. past the 8 foot fence gate beyond the start of the dirt Road. This is Boyce Park.

Ahead of you will be a intersection to the right.Parking will be along the side of the road .There will be no parking in front of the Field Day Site as there is no room to park at the Site trailer.

Talk-in will be on the 146.640 Repeater.Setup of equipment will start at 9:00 AM.We will be needing people to help in the setup as well.

If interested in helping setup,operating,or need any other info please contact me at the above email address or Rob,KG4ZUO at sixfourfieldday@yahoo.com

Thankyou for your time...

P.S. Please feel free to pass this email along to anyone whom might be interested...

Hope to see you all at the 640 Field Day !! June 26-27 2004 .

From Mark KG4OHH
Project of the moth

This is for you people that still don't have PL tone boards in your 2/440 FM radios
I found this link that can change all that you could even build this simple circuit into a desk mic here's what you or a friend can do:

An Inexpensive Tone Encoder

If your local repeater has got you singing the PL tone blues, then read on. For less than $10, an inexpensive PL tone generator can be constructed that will bring new life into that old non-PL rig.

Figure 1 (Pease refer to enclosed picture) illustrates an easy circuit that can be constructed with mostly Radio Shack parts on any general purpose circuit board. The only rigid requirement is that capacitor C1 be stable over a wide temperature range. Use only Mylar, Polyester or Metal film for capacitor C1. The frequency is determined by the following formula:

FREQUENCY = 1/R1C1

The specified values should allow any tone between 100 to 300 Hz. Increase R1 or add another resistor in series with R1 for lower tone frequencies.

The output of this PL generator should be connected to the deviation potentiometer in the transmitter circuit and not the microphone input. (Check schematic diagram of transceiver.) If the circuit reduces the transmitter audio, install a resister between the output of the circuit and the transmitter. Use a value in the range of 1K to 10K depending on what yields the best results.

The heart of the PL tone generator is the ultra stable 567 IC which is readily available from JDR Microdevices or Ocean State Electronics. All other parts are available at Radio Shack.

To align the frequency of the tone generator, use another transceiver with CTCSS decode capability for the desired PL tone frequency. Attach a dummy load to the transmitter and key down the transmitter which turning R1. As soon as the correct frequency is obtained, the squelch will open on the transceiver with CTCSS decode. Now adjust R4 for the correct audio level of the tone. The tone level only needs to be loud enough for the other receiver to decode the tone and not loud enough for others to hear it. If the tone can be easily heard then the level is probably too high.

IC's are Available from JDR MicroDevices (1-800-538-5000) or Ocean State Electronics. The author will make this chip available to RASON members for about $1 each if enough inquiries are received.

Parts List

R1 10K 15 turn trimmer pot (271-343)
R2 470 ohm ï¿½ watt resistor
R3 10K ohm ï¿½ watt resistor
R4 1K ohm trimmer pot (271-280)
C1 1 uF Mylar, Polyester or Metal Film Capacitor (272-1055)
C2, C3 10 uF Electrolytic Capacitor (272-1025)
C4 .01 uF ceramic Capacitor (272-131)
C5 4.7 uF Electrolytic Capacitor (272-1024)

2507. Recomended mid-range shortwave set-up

Hi,

I have wanted to get involved with shortwave for years and would like to get some recommendations on a mid-range ($200-400) receiver and antenna set-up. I plan on telescoping mast for shortwave, TV (mostly for uhf PBS stuff), and FM. The height restriction in our town is 50' but I imagine anything around 30' would produce good results since there are no big hills or trees nearby. In addition I own a newer 2.8 GHz PC running Windows XP for any recommendations on how I might incorporate this into the overall set-up.

Being inexperienced I am thinking I should start with simply listening with a capable mid-range receiver and then after some years time buy into a transmitter as well. This is all untutored preliminary thinking on my part and would welcome anyone's ideas as to how a beginner could best get started on the road to mid-to-high end shortwave/ham listening/broadcasting. I see this initial step as phase one of a two or three part program that will extend over a period of five or ten years.

Thank you for your help.

Please explain to those of us who do not know this Roger Wiseman guy you refer to. Why is he so hated? I have seen his posts and I do agree that he has a very foul mouth and I further agree that he is very, very immature for his age providing what you guys say is correct. Someone said he is 49 years old but this is a joke, right? I mean, just look at his posts. That guy can't be a day over 14 years old, if that. I bet he is a puny little teenager using his daddy's computer to pull your chains and you guys are falling for it.

I mean, come on! Look at the poor spelling and juvenile comments he makes. No adult would do that. Certainly not a 49 year old man!

This kid sure has you guys going. Ever think of contacting his parents and letting them know what their little darling is doing? I bet his parents would pull the plug on his computer faster than you can say Boo! Problem solved.

"Additionally, the FCC had sent Wiseman a Warning Notice last November in response to allegations of deliberate and malicious interference on 20 meters."

Despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary, Roger to this day maintains that the FCC, via Riley Hollingsworth had no particular or real reason for choosing him for retesting. Roger maintains that he was chosen randomly. Roger has challenged other posters to post proof that he had to retest because of his nefarious, malicious interference activities. As is so typical of congenital liars, Roger has told this lie so often and so loudly that he has convinced himself that what he is saying is true. This sort of behavior is atypical of pathological liars in that they are so warped that they soon begin to believe their own lies.

This topic has been addressed many times before and each and every time it is brought forth, Roger spins his usual. He will challenge the poster to show where he was retested for having violated any FCC rules or regs. Yet the evidence is clearly there for all to see. No, he was not chosen at "random" as he likes to claim. Yes, the FCC CAN ask any Ham licensee who was licensed under the VEC program to retest, but when was the last time you heard of that happening? Hollingsworth simply has too much to concern himself with and the idiotic claim that they "randomly" chose Wiseman for a retest is laughable at best.

The excerpts concerning the Wiseman debacle are easily found via several sources. The ARRL site is one such example. A Google search will yield each and every letter of warning for Malicious Interference by Wiseman...it takes only a few minutes to find.

Wiseman may argue that the warning notices mention "allegations" and thereby maintain his "innocence", but the bottom line is that he was forced to retest not randomly, but because Riley Hollingsworth was willing to rescind his Ham License if he failed to comply. To put it bluntly, Wiseman was tracked and caught, hands down, jamming and interfering with Amateur Radio transmissions. How often Wiseman did this before being caught is open for conjecture, but it is a safe bet that he had been doing so for years before the FCC took the time and effort to monitor and catch him in the act. The fact that Wiseman was caught doing this speaks volumes and he must have had a pretty high profile to be singled out.

No, the demand that KC8JBO, now AB8MQ, be retested was no random act. Of the thousands upon thousands of Amateurs active today, only a miniscule number of them have ever had to retest. Roger Wiseman can henceforth wear this somewhat dubious Letter Of Distinction in that he is one of the few to have entered this Hall Of Ham Radio Shame. After all, he got it the hard way...he earned it.

In closing, I wll mention that there are still some older Hams who maintain that Roger is still jamming them. They may well be wrong but in light of Wiseman's record, who knows?

can anyone assist...

i picked up a FT-726R, untested and with no warrenty recently and it has 144 and 50mhx modules ....

my questions are ..

1, the receive on 144 is very poor, i can only just hear the local repeater, i have tested with my handheld and i can receive at 59 plus when transmitting next to the radio but the gain is very bad ... any ideas.. i did see in a earlier posting that maybe the BF981 might need replacing ... an i correct or can anyone help.

2, the 50mhz module has no cables .. Grrr :-(, can these be made up, do the have to be shielded?

3, I disconected the 144 and wired up the 50mhz module in it's place and i got a E on the display ... can the 50mhz module be run on it's own ?

appreciate any help with this, and any more that i find on the way to repairing this radio.

thanks for reading

I have one and it's performs nearly equal to the Sony ICF 2010 /2001D.
Not too bad for a a widerange communications receiver.
For shortwave only I would take a look on the RX320 from TenTec when going on a computer controled blackbox...
It is also DRM ready. Have a look:

JD, I don't have a DRM receiver but there is a Radio Netherlands broadcast in DRM from Bonaire aimed at the U.S. Check out

Here's the DRM schedule:

The transmissions from Sackville are a good bet. On an analog radio, it sounds like a whole SW channel of constant hissing .

Since you're not an American, how would you know if there's a "police" state spreading across the country? There was nothing in that memo that the police in any country concerned about preventing terrorism wouldn't agree with...or those that aren't terrorists would object to.

BTW, what country are you from? I see you've spoofed the e-mail address for the Mossad. How many people has your country lost to terrorists? Let me guess, you're really from Canada.

When it happens to you and your country, then you'll have some room to talk. Until then, shut up.

Now I see you actually posted from Latvia. There's a country that's never been and still isn't a police state, eh? Plus one of the world powers. The next time we need advice from Latvia about how to run our affairs, we'll be sure to e-mail you.
